THE WINCHESTER STAR.

VOL. XXVIII. NO. 13. WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1908. PRICE, FIVE C.

BY ACCLAMATION.

Hon. Samuel W. McCall Nominated for Congress.

At the Congressional convention held in Citizens' Hall, Winter Hill, Wednesday, Hon. Samuel W. McCall was nominated by acclamation. This is the ninth time our distinguished citizen has been nominated for Congress, and he has already served sixteen years in that body --a longer term than usually falls to the lot of public men. Hon. Fred W. Dallinger of Cambridge made the nominating speech, in which he referred to the brilliant career of Mr. McCall in Congress, and expressed the hope that he would continue in that office indefinitely. He believed that a Congressman's best work can only be attained through continued service and experience. Mr. McCall, in accepting the nomination, reiterated his purpose of giving his best service to the Country, State and district and to work and vote for those measures which he deemed best for the wellfare of the whole Country.

Winchester was represented at the convention by Messrs. George S. Littlefield, George A Fernald, Fred V. Wooster and Theo P. Wilson. Mr. Littlefield served on the committee on credentials and Mr. Wilson on a committee to nominate a district committee.

Hon. John Reed of Cambridge was nominated Presidential elector from this district.

DOHERTY—HALEY.

Miss Margaret J. Haley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Haley, 1 Ashbury avenue, Montvale, was married last Sunday evening to Mr. John Joseph Doherty, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Doherty, Canal street, Winchester.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Patrick J. Higgins of St. Joseph's Church, Montvale. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Mary Haley of Montvale and the best man was Mr. Ernest Morrow of this city.

The bride was attired in a gown of white silk with applique trimmings and carried bride roses. The bridesmaid's dress was of gray silk with valenciennes lace trimmings.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where the young couple were assisted in receiving their friends by Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Haley of Montvale and Mr. and Mrs. John Haley of Reading. The house was prettily decorated with autumn leaves.

The couple were remembered by their friends with many beautiful presents.

Following the ceremony the young couple left on a wedding tour and on their return will reside on Harvard street, this town.

FORSAKEN THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

Mr. William C. Newell has ceased to be a Democrat, and is now enrolled in the ranks of the Republican party. He announced his intention to the Warden at the Republican Caucus held last week, and at that time voted for the Republican nominees to the several conventions. Presumably he could not vote for Bryan and his many "isms" and also be a follower of George Fred Williams, who dominates the Democratic party in this State.

For many years Mr. Newell has been a very active Democrat in this town, a constant attendant at caucuses and many times a delegate to conventions. He has also been the nominee of this party for the lower branch of the Legislature.

SHOULD NOT BE CIRCULATED

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The "Endless Prayer Chain" has appeared again in Winchester this fall. A prayer is circulated which claims to be set forth by Bishop Lawrence. It seems hardly necessary to state that Bishop Lawrence has lent his name to no scheme of this sort. He has used every effort, through the secular and religious press to deny it. The method pursued is highly objectionable, as is the inducement or threat which accompanies the prayer.

I send this line in the hope of checking any spread of the mania in this community. Any person receiving the prayer, with its accompanying request, should destroy it. Yours truly,

JOHN W. SUTER.

NELSON-KELLEY.

The marriage of Mr. Patrick Nelson of Swanton street and Miss Annie Kelley, both of this town, took place on Wednesday evening at the parochial residence, it being performed by Fr. Francis Rogers of St. Mary's Church. The couple were attended by Mr. Anthony Nelson of Brighton and Miss Abby J. Lally of West Medford.

The bride was dressed in fawn colored veiling, trimmed with lace, and carried a bouquet of bride's roses. The bridesmaid wore a dress of similar material and carried pink roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the future home of the couple on Swanton street, which was attended by friends and relatives. Many handsome gifts were received from their numerous friends.

CRIPPLE AIDED.

Appreciable Amount Raised For Man Without Hands.

Mrs. Edgar M. Young, through her appeal in last week's STAR and by her personal efforts, has realized quite an appreciable sum towards the fund for the purchase of a pair of hands for a needy man who was recently crippled while at work.

Although the necessary sum ($100) has not been realized to date, it is expected that it will ultimately be received.

On Wednesday evening Mrs. Young gave a whist party at her home on Glen road for the purpose of adding to the fund, and a most enjoyable and profitable evening was spent by a number of card lovers. Prizes of rubber toilet cases were donated for the affair and were won as follows: Mr. Chas A Lane and Mrs. E. W. Farmer, first; Mr. H. Gerlach and Miss Emily Ladd, second; Mr. Fred B. Jordan and Mrs. G H Bates, third; and Dr. William Buckley and Mrs. E. O. Ladd, fourth.

Through the STAR and the whist, the following contributions have been received:

A Friend	$10 00
J A Laraway Co	5 00
Miss E D Chapin	2 50
A Friend	2 00
Mr and Mrs G A Burgess	1 00
Mr and Mrs J H Gerlach	1 00
Mr C A Lane	1 00
Mr Joshua Paine	1 00
A Friend	1 00
Mr R S Vinal	50
Dr A V Rogers	50
Mr E W Farmer	50
Dr Wm Buckley	50
Mrs E O Ladd	50
Mr F B Jordan	50
Mrs G H Bates	50
Miss Carrie Dunklee	50
Mrs Sarah Goffe	25
Miss Mabel Borden	25
Total	$29 00

Mrs. Young desires to thank the contributors to this worthy cause for their generous assistance. One of the hands for the man has already been made and it is expected the other will be completed today. No doubt the required sum necessary to pay for them will be subscribed within a short time.

In connection with this case it has been stated that Mrs. Young's appeal in last week's STAR was read by a gentleman of Lynn who telephoned that he could secure employment for the cripple when he had received the hands at doing light work in a factory.

ENDEAVORERS ELECT OFFICERS.

A meeting of the Young Peoples' Society of Christian Endeavor of the First Congregational Church was held in the church vestry on Tuesday evening for the election of officers for the coming winter.

PARISH OF THE EPIPHANY.

The service at 10.30 a. m. Sunday will be the service of the Holy Communion.

The Sunday afternoon services will consist as last year, of Evening Prayer and a brief address. The first Sunday of each month there will be an Organ Recital at 4.15 p. m. The last Sunday of each month the service will be a Musical Service.

The Woman's Guild will hold its first meeting of the season next Tuesday afternoon. The meeting will be at 2.30 p. m., at Mrs. W. E. Wilde's, Stratford road, and will be in charge of the Hospitality Committee.

MARSHALL-KELLEY.

Albert Lincoln Marshall of Woburn and Winnifred Kelley of this town were were united in marriage at Stoneham on Wednesday evening.

CROSBY NOMINATED.

Arlington Captures Senatorship After Fourteen Ballots.

At the Senatorial Convention for this district held in the Town Hall last evening, J. Howell Crosby of Arlington was nominated on the fourteenth ballot. Ralph E. Joslin, Esq., chairman of the district committee, called the Convention to order, and later was elected permanent chairman, and Frank Witherell of Woburn secretary. There were four candidates--Crosby of Arlington, Lovering of Medford, Jones of Stoneham and Miller of Wakefield. The first ballot gave Crosby 13 votes, Lovering 17, Jones 8, Miller 7. On the third ballot Crosby gained one making his vote 14, Miller being the loser. There was no change up to the 14th ballot, when the Jones and Miller delegates went over to Crosby with 14 votes thereby electing him. On motion of Mr. Miller of Wakefield, the choice was made unanimous.

On motion of Samuel J. Elder, Esq., Wilton B. Fay of Medford was elected a member of the State Central Committee. With but one change the district committee remains the same as last year.

The full list of delegates—45—was present, and the convention was most harmonious throughout, the best of feeling prevailing after the result was announced. When the Convention closed a collation was served in the small hall.

PILGRIMS ELECT OFFICERS.

A largely attended meeting of Wedgemere Colony, No. 134 U. O. P. F., was held on Monday evening in Lyceum Hall. Besides the election of the new officers a very enjoyable social evening was passed by the 75 odd members present. Among the invited guests was Deputy Gear of Boston. The new officers are to be installed Oct. 12th.

The following officers were elected: James McLellan, Gov.: Mrs. Sarah Doherty, Lieut. Gov; Mrs. James McLellan, Sec; Wm. H. Vayo, Treas.; Miss Annie Daly, Dep. Sargent at Arms; Miss Katherine Kenney, Sargent at Arms; Miss Annie Carney, Chaplain; Miss Lena Tigh, Sentinel; James Roach, Collector.

LEIGHTON-JARDINE.

Rev. John R. Chafee, pastor of the Methodist church, officiated at the wedding of two former Winchester people on Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Jones of Mt. Vernon street.

The groom was Mr Henry V. Leighton and the bride Miss Ella M. Jardine. They both reside now in Beverly, where Mr. Leighton is connected with the United Shoe Machinery Co. Previous to the removal of that Company from Winchester, they lived here, the town being their home for twelve years. The ceremony was witnessed by a few relatives and intimate friends, and at its close a wedding luncheon was served. The couple will make their home in Beverly.

INJURED BY FALL.

Mrs. Moses P. Richardson was quite badly injured by a severe fall at her home on Forest street Monday night. By accident she stepped off a flight of stairs mistaking the head of the stairway for the entrance to her chamber.

She received a broken rib and was badly bruised and wrenched and her injuries are very painful. She narrowly missed striking the steam radiator at the foot of the stairs. She is reported as recovering as well as could be expected.

MR. ELDER TO SPEAK AT BOAT CLUB.

The Winchester Boat Club will close one of the most successful seasons in its history on next Friday evening by a smoker at its club house. Samuel J. Elder, Esq., will be the principal speaker of the evening, and will give a talk to the members and their friends on a subject which will be announced later. During the past season the Club has practically doubled its former membership.

ARTHUR F. ODLIN.

Judge Arthur F. Odlin has resigned from the school board and will take up his residence in Cleveland, O., where he will become a member of a law firm. He is a personal friend of Mr. Taft and will stump some of the Western States, it is said for him.

The school board at a joint convention with the selectmen, to be held in a few days, will recommend that Mr. C. E. L. Wingate be elected to fill the vacancy.

George Adams Woods has sold for G. Edward Smith, nine room house and 5,500 square feet of land, No. 6 Lincoln street, to Bernard F. Matthews, the well know hairdresser, who buys for a home.

A MEMORABLE TRIP.

From Naples to Pompeii and Cava Dei Tirreni.

NAPLES, Italy,
Macpherson's Hotel Britannique,
Aug. 26, 1908.

That was a day filled with memories that will follow us through the years, hours in which tears would come, and laughter take the place of sadness and rest after weariness. Wednesday, August 26, we left our Hotel Britannique and turned our faces toward Vesuvius.

Bare and brown it frowned upon the blue Bay of Naples, smokeless and forgetful of the terror of only two years ago.

But our thoughts were back in the fearful days of 79 A.D. A ride by rail, of two hours, brought us to the resurrected city of Pompeii. How strangely sad it all seemed, and to know that not a thought of fear disturbes the hearts of the people, in the little village near the railroad station, within a stone's throw of the great, gaping volcano. Why did they name their village by the harrowing name again? "Pompeii."

The city at time of the catastrophe was 30,000, the enclosure of walls is now 2840 yards. None enter the place but by ticket. One feels as if their step must be noiseless, for surely we were about to attend a most princely obsequies. Our guide, a young man, went over the story with a solemnity harmonizing with our hearts.

The narrow streets showed plainly the grooves worn by the chariots. We stood in the banquet hall of the ruler of the people at that far away time. Its red (Pompeiian) walls were of color as attractive as if just completed. There were exquisite pieces of marbles and bronzes about, choice odd flower stands and the friezes attract artistic eyes even now. The homes were small; an outdoor life in gardens of choice shrubs and statuary, pleased them most.

The utensils (kitchen) that were used to prepare that last meal before going to the theatre were seen. We stood in the reception room of the home of Glaucus, as he left it, and went forth to his doom in the arena that fatal day and where, a few days before, he had purchased for his lone, jewels for her bridal morn. (Those jewels are now in the museum at Naples.) We could but think, as we looked up and down the long narrow streets, now so perfectly resurrected, that centuries passed before the location of the burried city could be found. Only by accidental discovery of some relics were excavations successfully renewed in 1748; however, the world is indebted to the government of Victor Emmanuel which, in a true spirit of antiquarian research appointed those who were well qualified to superintend the excavations with system and with care under Fiorelli.

Some one of our company was heard to remark, "Columbus, and his America are young when we look upon this new ound city whose beginnings go back to 400 B.C."

An hour's ride by rail brought us to Hotel De Loudres—Cava Dei Tirreni.

Looking back we viewed the superb valley with its watch-tower peaks above it, and said "farewell, farewell," thou living tomb of Oscan, Etruscan, Carthaginian or Roman rule; which wert thou? and the soft breath of an Italian evening and the silvery moonbeams answered, 'which?"

JENNIE E. SKINNER.

$100 REWARD.

In the hope of bringing to an end the sending in of false alarms for fire, the Selectmen have offered a reward of $100 for the arrest and conviction of any person found sending in a false alarm. It is thought that this action on the part of the Selectmen will speedily bring about the arrest of the culprit who should be severely punished. False alarms have been frequent during the past few months, and aside from the danger to the men, and the wear and tear on the horses and apparatus, they have a discouraging effect on the men because of being called out needlessly at all hours of the day or night. That the perpetrator is certain to fall into the clutches of the law, sooner or later, there is no doubt, and when that time does arrive he will receive but little sympathy.

TRADERS ORGANIZE.

The third meeting of the Traders of this town was held on Tuesday evening, and resulted in definite steps being taken toward organizing a Winchester Board of Trade. Some eleven merchants were present and the meeting was presided over by Mr. Alfred B. Mills. Mr. Gene B. Farrow was elected temporary secretary and A. W. Rooney treasurer.

Another meeting is to be held next Thusday evening, Oct. 8, at 8.30 p. m., at the same place, when it is hoped more of the business men of the town will be present and join this association for the advancement and protection of men doing business here. At this time the agreements of formation will be signed by the members and by-laws and a constitution adopted.

TAKING ADVANTAGE OF DISCOUNT.

Ten year contracts for street lighting have recently been signed by the towns of Medway and Sharon with the Edison Electric Illuminating Company which supplies electricity for light, power and some heating in those towns as well as in Boston and many other surrounding towns. The new contracts which go into effect this fall secure to each town a discount of 10 per cent from the regular municipal street lighting schedules. Such a discount is in itself an important item.

The new Tungsten street lights of 40 candle power each will replace the old 25 candle power incandescents will be another advantage. By their use the towns will get an increase of 60 per cent in the street illumination for less money than they have been paying for the old style of lighting.

Such municipal contracts, of which a number have been made with the Edison Company, provide the usual advantageous feature. The rates paid by the towns are subject to correction by the State Gas and Electric Light Commission, if the Town requests a hearing, once in three years; also all reductions in rates and improved facilities for lighting which the Edison Company may find it possible to make, will be granted to the towns during the life of the contract.

The "moon-light" schedule for burning street lights is now in use in Sharon and Medway. There is a growing demand for the adoption generally of the all night burning of street lamps. The longer hours are a preventative check on housebreakers, inasmuch as the constant lighting of the streets makes much safer conditions.

SCARLET FEVER.

The number of cases of scarlet fever in town is on the decrease and it is expected that within a short time the town will be free from the disease. The spread of this fever has been due in great measure to ignorance on the part of some members of households to recognize the disease. The afflicted person has been allowed to suffer and mingle with others and only when the sickness assumed a serious form has a physician been called. Other persons have shown a willful disregard of the requirements of contageous diseases.

Since the schools opened, the Secretary of the Board of Health, Dr. Allen, has found four cases of scarlet fever among pupils that had not been reported to him as the law requires. Absence from school of pupils caused the secretary to visit their homes and in four instances he found the pupils sick with scarlet fever. The parents pleaded ignorance of the cause of sickness, and while this was undoubtedly true in three instances, in the other the nature of the disease was believed to be concealed willfully.

At the present time all scholars who are absent from school from sickness, the nature of which is not known, are visited at their homes by Dr. Allen, who hopes in this way to unearth all cases of the fever and prevent its spread.

At the close of last week there were only fourteen cases, none of them being very serious.

DECISION WAS CORRECT.

Placing blame for defeat on the Umpire after a game looks rather small, generally, but North Woburn can honestly do that in regard to the game Saturday without losing any of its self respect or being accused of quitting.

With the score 4 to 1 against them and two out in the 9th, Winchester won out after Umpire LeDuc made a rank decision against North Woburn.—[Woburn News.

After the game the manager of the Woburn team acknowledged to Manager Payne that McCall was safe on first. That ought to settle all ground for dispute.

VESPER SERVICE.

At the first vesper service of the fall at the Congregational Church on Sunday at 4.30 p. m., the choir will have the assistance of two of the soloists connected with the Boston Municipal Orchestra, William Frederick Dodge violinist and Carl W. Dodge 'cellist. Following is the order of the musical program:

Organ Prelude
Andante Expressioso from 2d Sonata, Mendelssohn, Messrs. Dodge.
Anthem, "Before the heavens were spread abroad," Parker
Anthem, "Fear not, O Israel," Spicker
Trio, Widor, Messrs. Dodge
Anthem, "In Heavenly Love Abiding," Brown
Choral Responses and Lord's Prayer.
Organ Postlude.

All are welcome.

REPRESENTATIVE CONVENTION.

The convention to nominate a Republican Representative to the Legislature will be held in the Town Hall Monday evening. Every indication points to the selection of Mr. Frank E. Barnard, no other candidate having been mentioned. The delegates from West Medford will acquiesce in the choice made by the delegates of this town.

AN ADEPT IN POLITICS.

It seems that our apparently quiet and sedate dealer in footwear, Mr. James McLaughlin, is a top notcher in politics. During his many years residence here he appeared to show no interest in politics. For a time he was an engineer of the fire department. However, when he moved to his farm in Burlington his talent as a politician blossomed forth in brilliant hues, and as a result he has caused the farmers and dairymen of that sleepy little town to sit up and rub the hayseed out of their eyes. He has eliminated cut and dried caucuses and in its place has given them an up-to-date method of voting that has met with their approval. Mr. McLaughlin is also doing all that he can to increase the population of that beautiful and healthful town, and what he will do next is beyond conjecture. But the future of Burlington appears to be assured as long as Mr. McLaughlin remains a citizen.

Last week, having a good candidate for Representative, he went into the caucus and notwithstanding there were two other candidates he won out handsomely. His choice was Mr. Fred F. Walker, well remembered here as furnishing fresh and pure milk from one of the best dairies in the state. By hard and efficient work he has built up a large and successful business conducted on the latest hygeinic principles. He is well known in the district, capable and intelligent, and a maker of friends, and if he gives the same attendance to legislation that he has given to his private business, he will prove a good man for the district. He is a good man, and Mr. McLaughlin had all these good points in making his canvas for him. However, Mr. McLaughlin has proven to be an astute politician. He was elected a member of the Burlington Town Committee.

MARRIED MEN LOST MATCH.

The challenge bowling match at the Calumet Club last Friday evening between teams made up of ten married and ten unmarried members proved one of the most interesting evenings held at the Club this fall. In addition to the bowlers on the two teams a large gallery was present to encourage the sport.

The challengers—the married ones—were in greater abundance than their opponents, and in consequence the bachellors were augmented by five benedicts. Notwithstanding this handicap, however, they succeeded in carrying off the honors.

At the close of the match those present sat down to lunch of lobster salad, sandwiches, punch and coffee, paid for by the losers. The scores:

MRS. ELLEN O'CONNOR.

Mrs. Ellen O'Connor, wife of Felix O'Connor, passed away at her home on White street last Friday of acute indigestion. She was 70 years of age, and was born in Ireland, making her home in Winchester for the past 50 years, and was widely known here. She leaves her husband and six children—Felix P. of Boston and John M., James W., Joseph E., Katherine F. and Ella M. of this town.

Funeral services were held from St. Mary's Church on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Fr. Walter J. Roche. The bearers were J. H. Keleher of Holliston, James McNulty of Lynn, John Campbell of Woburn, Dennis Keleher of Holliston, and Patrick O'Connor and Frank J. Corcoran of this town.

The burial was in Calvary Cemetery.

WILL SUE THE CITY OF WOBURN.

Mary Melaugh of this town this week filed a claim through her attorney, James E. Feeney, for alleged damages received by an alleged defect in the crossing in front of Whitcher's Store on Main street, Woburn. The said injuries, she claims, were caused by a defect in the crossing.

INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION.

James W. Van Cleave of St. Louis, President of the National Association of Manufacturers, in an address before the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education, stated that "in 1905 our manufacturers had doubled the number of wage earners which we had in 1880; they worked up nearly three times the value of the products and received nearly three imes the wages of the earlier years. The number of industrial schools which have been created during this period is small compared with the needs of the country. The door of industrial education must be thrown wide open to every American boy by means of free trade schools so that his superior originality, initiative and versatility may have an open field for their exercise."

Many labor men have looked with distrust upon the movement for industrial education, but this feeling is gradually disappearing. Samuel B. Donnelly, Secretary of the General Arbitration Board of the New York Building trades, is a member of the Board of Education in that city. Mr. Donnally is also on the Board of Managers of the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education. Referring to the incorporation of vocational schools in the public school system, Mr. Donnelly said: "Our public schools have featured literature and devoted too much time to the literary development of the imaginative faculties. There has been too much one-sided presentation of our great men to the children. Washington as the agriculturist and Jefferson as the architect and builder have been neglected. The superintendent of the New York Public schools, Dr. Maxwell, has extolled the merits of 'a system of schools which discover and reveal genius born in low estate.' We ask for a system that not only reveals the genius of music, the genius of art, the genius of literature, the genius of statesmanship, but one that reveals the genius of mechanics and the genius of industry."

Under the auspices of the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education, the problem of the relation of industrial education to the public school system is being thoroughly studied by a committee of ten, the chairman of which is Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, President of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. A report will be presented at the coming covention.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

September 28th, 1908.

Board met at 7.30 p. m. All present.

Chief Symmes and Engineer DeCourcey of the Fire Department were present to discuss various matters regarding said department.

Patrick Noonan and Michael J. Sullivan of Canal street were present in regard to condition of said street. Taken under advisement.

Hearing having been held as required by the statutes, Board signed petition of the Edison Electric Illuminating Co., for location of 3 poles on Irving street.

Voted, to instruct the Edison Electric Illuminating Co. to install and maintain an incandescent light on Lawson road. Location to be given by the Town Engineer.

WINCHESTER WON.

When umpire George LeDuc at a ball game gives a decision it stands. No amount of kicking will cause him to reverse his decision. He is to be commended for this stand always taken by him. We have seen him umpire a great many games and we have yet to see him show partiality. He appears to be absolutely fair, so far as it is in human power to be, to both the visiting and home teams. Last Saturday on Manchester Field in the fourth game with the North Woburn nine, the managers of the latter raised frequent objections to rulings made by Mr. LeDuc, but he adhered to his decisions. It seems that these "kicks" were a part of the game, and he fully understood this.

There is no question but what the North Woburn's, in the four games played, have proved themselves the stronger team, as they captured three out of the four games played. Their team work is very much better than that of the home nine, as the latter has had difficulty in keeping the same men together, it being a team hastily gotten together, apparently for each game. Next year it is hoped to have a nine composed of permanent players.

Up to the last third of the game of last Saturday afternoon the score stood one to one. In the eighth inning North Woburn scored three runs, when the tally stood four to one, and it appeared to be a certain defeat for the local boys. The visitors failed to score in the first part of the ninth, and Winchester went to the bat with what appeared to be an unsurmountable odds staring them in the face. With two men out and two on bases, Hal McCall went to the bat and hit to centre field. The ball was thrown to first, and the umpire ruled that he was safe. In the meantime the crowd surged onto the field, and the two men on bases ran home. There was a wrangle, and much talk, but LeDuc was firm and refused to reverse his decision. When the crowd entered the field LeDuc called time, but before doing so one of the men on bases had got home, while the second was on his way. Finally the visitors agreed to play out the game, LeDuc refusing to allow the second run of the home team to be counted. The score was thus two to four. In rapid succession the home team made three runs, winning the game four to five, amid much excitement. That LeDuc was right on his first base decision was acknowledged by the manager of the visitors after the game. He simply put up a kick in the hope of changing the decision.

The Woburn boys are good, clean players, gentlemanly, and they have given the best exhibition of the game seen on Manchester Field during the season just closed.

The score follows:

THE WEEK'S FIRES.

On Friday night of last week the fire department was called out to extinguish a pile of sleepers by the railroad track at the rear of George W. Blanchard & Co's lumber yard on Main street, set probably by sparks from a passing locomotive.

Sunday afternoon a fire in the woods on Andrew's Hill necessitated over two hours work on the part of the firemen before it was extinguished, and on Sunday evening the apparatus was again called out for a false alarm from Box 64 on Highland avenue. Fortunately the fact that the alarm was false was discovered in time to prevent the long run being made by the steamer and ladder truck.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The annual convention of Middlesex County W. C. T. U. which was at Concord Sept. 24 was in every way a success in point of numbers, also in the program which, was very full and carried out to completion. The greeting by Rev. L. B. McDonald, pastor of the First Church, was hearty and made all feel they were in the right place at the right time. Mrs. Hogan responded for the convention in a few well chosen words.

The secretary's report and annual address of the president with the department reports all had a hopeful tone. It was evident that quite a gain in membership had been the result of much activity and wise effort on the part of many unions.

The Quiet Hour led by Rev. G. A. Tewksbury, pastor of the Congregational church, was inspiring and restful. At noon an excellent lunch was served. The election of officers resulted in the re-election of Mrs. H. C. Rolfe president, Mrs. J.W.Paxe secretary, Mrs. Alfred Boynton treasurer. An address by Rev. F. H. Billington on "Temperance in Country Towns," was listened to with attention as he portrayed the need in order to offset the great efforts that are being made at the present time by the liquor dealers to draw the attention of boys especially to the good things offered them. Mr. Billington is organizing a Loyal Temperance Legion in Carlysle and is to lead it. We wish him success.

MINISTERS ENJOY A SOCIAL CHAT.

A score of ministers spent an afternoon together recently and, as many of them are well known in Stoneham and vicinity some of the things they said may be of both interest and value.

Of this region, Stoneham, as nearly as any place, is the centre. It takes in the towns on every side. But as a number of ministers formerly belonging to this company have moved away without wishing to sever pleasant ties, the company now numbers more than two score, and they are scattered over the world from Illinois on the west to Constantinople on the east.

Three topics were especially discussed —Vacations, Bishop Potter and "Jesus as a Churchman."

Mr. Adriance, of Winchester, gave a short but exceedingly interesting account of the late Bishop Potter of New York. Bishop Potter must have been a wonderful man: at any rate the author of the paper saw a great deal in his life that had stirred his own warmest enthusiasm.

The world is getting by its sectarian notions. There is such a thing as living in the midst of sectarian people and doing them good, and yet being not of them. Bishop Potter was larger than many other men, altho they also are good men. Bishop Potter's life shows that you don't always have to be poor in order to sympathize with the poor, you don't always need to be unfortunate to sympathize with the unfortunate. Born and reared in luxury, one of the first of the "four hundred" if he had chosen to be, Bishop Potter took delight in the society of just such folks as ourselves. He never was identified with any wing, or school, or set, in his own church, that separated him from the rest. No. A minister can be an all-round man, as a great many of them certainly are, and as more of them are than sometimes have the credit of being, and this very paper, and the approval with which it was heard, was an illustration of the broad and Catholic Spirit.—[Stoneham Independent.

AN ESTIMATE OF MR. PARKHURST.

In brief sketches of the members of the last Legislature, Practical Politics has this to say of Mr. Louis Parkhurst:

Rep. Lewis Parkhurst of Winchester was a new member of the legislature, being assigned to the committee on railroads, and he immediately proved himself to be worthy of the important position, concluding his committee work by making a strong speech in the final debate on the railroad control bill.

All through the merger controversy in the committee, his associates gave him credit for taking a prominent part in the deliberations. In addition to his work on that committee, Mr. Parkhurst was vitally interested in all measures relating to public affairs in his own county. An attempt to have senators in his county nominated by direct vote of the people was frustrated by the delegation of which he was a member. A general bill along the same lines, applying to all parts of the state, was defeated first and the advocates of the Lynn measure hoped by adding Middlesex county, to get enough Middlesex votes to carry through their measure.

Mr. Parkhurst made many friends in the house and was the centre of quite a coterie of members who formed a practice of discussing subjects on the calendar from day to day. In these discussions he took a prominent part and his advice and suggestions were often followed by the other members who early in the session formed the opinion that the member from Winchester was a man who weighed things carefully and who had the ability to form in each case, an opinion as to the correct solution of the problem at hand.

I like to see a man proud of the place in which he lives. I like to see a man who lives in it so that his place will be proud of him. Be honest, but hate no one: overturn a man's wrong doing, but do not overturn him unless it must be done in overturning the wrong. Stand with him while he is right, and part with him when he goes wrong.—[Lincoln's advice.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

The theatrical annals of Boston do not record such a towering success as "The Round-Up," Klaw Erlanger's stupendous production of Edmund Day's famous play which broke all records last season for big receipts. It returns for a limited engagement to the Hollis Street Theatre, Monday, Oct. 5.

Its performances at the Hollis are the only opportunities those living within a reasonable journey to Boston will have of seeing this tremendous dramatic sensation and no one should miss the chance. The management have established an extremely popular tariff of prices ranging from 35 cents to $1.50. So great is the demand for seats from those living at a distance from Boston that a special bureau has been established for the expeditious handling of mail orders, which when sent with cash or money order and accompanied by addressed, stamped envelope, receive immediate attention.

Matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday.

BOSTON THEATRE.

For the opening of the regular season of the Boston Theatre Stock Company, on Monday, October 5th, Mr. B. F. Keith has arranged a production that is sure to attract widespread attention. With a lavish expenditure, and one of the largest companies ever put on in stock, he will present E. H. Sothern's greatest success, "If I Were King."

Wilson Melrose will have the part of Villon, and Frank Losee, the new member of the company, will be seen as Louis XI, a part in which he has made one of his greatest successes. Eleanor Gordon will also return to the company, as leading lady and will appear as Catherine DeVaucelles.

New members of the company will be Gertrude Binley, who was formerly with Clara Bloodgood in "The Girl With the Green Eyes," and Dudley Hawley, who for the past eight years has been with the Keith and Proctor companies in New York.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

One of the most important announcements of the season is made for Keith's Theatre, the week of October 5th, when La Sylpho, the classic dancer, will make her first appearance in Boston. This exponent of the biblical dances has been the sensation of New York the past six months and was the first of a long line, who entered into this form of entertaining when it became popular. The only real rival of the Slypho has been Maud Allan, who has been a London sensation for more than a year.

The bill for the week will be of a decidedly high class character, among the entertainers being Willa Holt Wakefield in a pianologue. There will also be Charley Case, the old time minstrel and story teller; the Eight Kellinos, a European acrobatic sensation, which will be held over for another week, Harry Allister; the Three Lelliotts in a musical comedy act; Al Rayno's Bull Terriers; the Gillette Sisters, and the especially arranged entertainment of moving pictures, travel features and special singing numbers.

BAY STATE POLITICS

Frothingham Leads In the Lieutenant Governor Canvass

VAHEY CAPTURES DEMOCRATS

Good Work Is Necessary by Republicans to Insure Election of Their State Ticket—Votes of Conservative Democrats Will Help Draper—Republicans Will Elect Eleven Congressmen and Possibly Twelve

The caucuses held last week have indicated very strongly the nomination of former Speaker Louis A. Frothingham of Boston for lieutenant governor. The canvass for the nomination has been an extremely active and hustling one and it may fairly be said that all three of the candidates, Messrs. Frothingham, Robert Luce and John N. Cole, have done everything possible and proper to secure the nomination. The state convention Saturday will decide the matter absolutely, but there seems to be very little doubt about the result, even now. Unquestionably Mr. Frothingham is far in the lead of both Luce and Cole, and the natural tendency among men to desire to get on the band wagon will bring over to him most of the doubtful or unpledged delegates, and probably some of those who were supposed to be for the one or the other of the minority candidates.

Mr. Frothingham is a man of the highest integrity, a careful and conservative business man, who has had valuable legislative experience which has given him a very intimate knowledge of state affairs—an experience which will be useful to him in the office of lieutenant governor.

There is naturally some disappointment felt by the other candidates over their failure to win out in the caucuses. However, they are both strong Republicans with many years before them in which they may be honored by further positions of trust. They will both be found working as heartily in the interests of the party as they have done in the past.

State Convention Prospects

The Republican state convention will undoubtedly be a very lively affair with a very large attendance. The contest for the lieutenant governorship would ensure this, but aside from that it has now come to be practically certain at any state convention that Senator Lodge will be present and speak. It is always easy to fill a hall where it is known that the senior senator is to make a talk. He is easily the keenest, the ablest, and the most searching political speaker in the state today. His thrusts at the opposition are always telling both in wit and aptness, and the delegates regard a day well spent in which they have had an opportunity to listen for a half an hour to the eloquence of Mr. Lodge. The hall will be open to the public except for the reservation of a few seats for friends of the speakers and officers of the convention, and there will be abundant opportunity for anyone who wishes to attend to find a place in which to view the convention and listen to the oratory.

Vahey Has It Safe

So far as the Democrats are concerned there is no doubt about the candidate for governor. He will be Senator James H. Vahey of Watertown, notwithstanding the fact that he is far from acceptable to a considerable body of Democrats in the state. Mr. Vahey wants the nomination and claims to believe that he can be elected. If he speaks the truth, he expects to be the next governor of Massachusetts. It rests with the Republicans of the state to say whether Eben S. Draper shall be elected to that high office, or whether a Democrat of the character and calibre of Vahey shall secure the position.

Undoubtedly a good number of Democrats will vote for the election of Eben S. Draper. The conservative men in the party believe that representative men should be nominated by the Democratic party for the high office of governor of this state. They do not consider Vahey qualified either by instincts, by training, or by capacity for the position of chief executive of the commonwealth. However, the rank and file of the party were content to take him, and they will undoubtedly support him.

It will be necessary for the Republicans to do more telling work for their state ticket this year than for several years in the past. It is true that a large vote will probably be polled by reason of the presidential election, but it will be necessary for the party to do everything in its power for the election of Mr. Draper, owing to the blind antagonism of a part of the labor element in opposing him for office. Certainly he deserves well of all classes in the commonwealth, whether the wage-earner, the large taxpayer or the common citizen. He has done everything in his power to cut down the expenses of the commonwealth and he has done so in a very marked degree.

Tame Democratic Convention?

If the Democratic state convention shall turn out to be as violent and tyrannical as that held in Springfield by that party last year it will cap the climax which ought to disgust the average voter who has been casting that ballot for years. Probably, however, it will be a peaceful gathering of militant Democrats, sobered and subdued by the experiences of the last twelve months. There seems to be a disposition to fix upon a wage-earner as the party candidate for lieutenant governor. The state branch of the American Federation of Labor modestly offered to contribute Elbridge Gerry Brown for this honorable position. It is evident that the Democratic party intends to decline with thanks this generous offer, and leave Gerry marooned upon the desolate sands of oblivion. It is now thought probable that some such man as John Golden of Fall River, a labor leader connected with the cotton industry there, may be invited to accept the nomination of lieutenant governor with a view to solidifying the labor element for the Democratic ticket. It is probable in any event that some labor man will receive the nomination.

The Congressional Situation

The congressional situation points today to the election of eleven Republican congressmen to three Democrats. In the First district Congressman Lawrence will unquestionably be returned for another term. The same is true of Congressman Gillett in the Second district and of Congressman Washburn in the Third. In the Fourth district Congressman Tirrell has an opponent in the person of Senator Mitchell of Marlborough, but the district is rock-ribbed Republican and Mr. Tirrell is practically sure of a re-election. In the Fifth district Congressman Ames will be returned; in the sixth Congressman Gardner is certain to be elected; and in the Seventh Congressman Roberts has little to fear. Congressman McCall is down for election in the Eighth district. The Ninth is strongly Democratic, but John A. Campbell of East Boston is to be the Republican nominee. In the Tenth Congressman O'Connell seeks a re-election. Former city clerk of Boston, J. Mitchell Galvin, will contest the election with O'Connell as the Republican candidate, and it is possible that he may be successful in his candidacy. In the Eleventh district Congressman Andrew J. Peters will again receive the Democratic nomination, and Daniel W. Lane of Boston will be his Republican opponent. It is a very close district, but Peters is extremely popular, and Mr. Lane will have a considerable task to defeat him, although he ought to do it and very likely may. In the Twelfth district Congressman John W. Weeks will be re-elected by a very large majority. In the Thirteenth Congressman William S. Greene is as good as elected, and so is Congressman William C. Lovering in the Fourteenth.

Letter to G. W. Purrington.

Winchester, Mass.

Dear Sir: A big mill-owner, Spartansburg, S C, wanted 5 000 gallons of paint and bought by price; paid 5 cents less than ours; got a "lead-and-zinc" paint but the lead was sulphate of lead, no carbonate. Sulphate costs about half; and covers about half.

That paint was adulterated about six times as much as the 5 cent paid for. He "saved" 5 cents; and it cost him 30.

Oh, no; it cost him more than that; we forgot the labor. Can't work it out exactly; don't known how long it'll wear.

Short-measure besides; that alone was twice as much as his "saving" 5 cents.

It was thin, too; some loss there; don't know how much.

There was too much dryer in it. The maker made something on that; he didn't.

Taking it altogether, he didn't make much by that 5 cents.

Go by the name: and the name is Devoe lead and-zinc.

Yours truly
F W DEVOE & CO

OBSERVATIONS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Appropriations Committee should give a well advertised public hearing in the small Town Hall the first of next year so that citizens other than public officials might have a chance to appear and speak upon any phase of the town's business they desire to. I believe more citizens would be inclined to speak before the committee's printed report comes out than afterwards and what is needed to get the best results is a full and free presentation of ideas regarding our town's interest and government. It is worth trying at least.

I should not think the Commonwealth would want the plan submitted at the last grade crossing hearing known as its plan. It would get less than no support from the town and is a miserable thing in every way. I doubt very much if the Commonwealth inspired it and it is nothing new either. Nothing has ever gone along so slowly in our town affairs as this matter.

What an amusing campaign this is. Nobody who has ever been connected with a corporation or any big interest is to take any part in it nor is their money good. If this program can be carried out long enough the so called protective system is doomed. But if anybody believes the beneficiaries are going to lie down meekly because of the wild and loud ranting of a few most prominent citizens, he don't know them. Reform may be in the air but a good deal of it will stay there.

A good many municipalities run their street lights all night, but I have never heard it claimed that crime was any less frequent there than in those places where the lights are turned out at midnight. The fire alarm box from which a false alarm was turned in last Sunday night is on the same pole with a street light.

Not much political activity can be expected in this town so long as there is practically no contest over Congressman, Senator or Representative. Citizens should however register and vote at all elections, town and state, and if it could be compelled in some way it would be a good thing. There is always plenty of opportunity to register and vote and few men have any good excuse for not so doing.

Lines like the Woburn-Medford street railway which competes with the steam road should not run open cars after the weather gets cold as it drives people to the latter in large numbers. Conductors should also be instructed to look after the windows and ventilators more carefully for the same reason. People had rather be warm than have food.

An Electric Story of an Enterprising Merchant

THE odd thing seizes our attention. Good oddity—so to speak—is good advertising.

One merchant has told us that he finds it pays to keep the lights in an entrance show case burning all day. He is fond of telling how a friendly brother retailer came in one morning and said:

"Say, you have made a mistake. As I passed I noticed your show case. You have forgotten and left all the electric lights burning. It looks odd."

"That's why I did it," smiled the merchant. He is fond of adding that there is now at least one new day-light load for us in the show case line on an adjoining street.

An electric sign turned on cloudy days has a cheerful and eye catching effect.

Another point is that the number of electric signs in Greater Boston has grown faster than elsewhere.

Now they are growing faster than ever before because of the cheaper prices for electricity.

Get yours.

We can tell how—the prices—and the latest things in signs.

METHODIST CHURCH NEWS.

The annual supper given by the Ladies' Aids Society at the beginning of the Fall season on Oct. first was a great success, a large number of people being present. The program took the form of a vacation social as follows: "Summer wanderings," by the following ladies and gentlemen: Mr. Horatio Hovey, Mr. R. M. Armstrong, Mrs. John Chaffee, Ned Mason, Miss Emily Ladd. Miss Jean McLellan has a warm place in the hearts of the M. E. Church people, and her two solos were beautifully rendered. The general arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Horatio Hovey.

The ladies are hard at work for their annual fair which usually comes the first of December.

EPWORTH LEAGUE NOTES.

On Oct. eighth comes the regular business meeting and social. New business, and lots of changes, will interest each member. Do not forget the date.

The social committee met last Monday evening and planned enough work for a hundred Leaguers. It looks as if the new president, Mr. George Davidson, intended to push things.

EPWORTH LEAGUE RALLY SUNDAY OCT. 4

The annual rally Sunday of the Epworth League occurs at seven o'clock p. m. Oct. 4. Miss Gertrude Freeman of Boston will address the young people on League work in which she has been engaged for years, having been a district officer, and is largely known all over New England. A rare treat is in store. She is a sister of Rev. Dr. Luther Freeman.

Mrs. Jennie Larson of Somerville soprano, and Miss Anna Redding of Medford contralto will sing.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

The departure of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Campbell and mother will be a real loss to the church. They are people who have hosts of friends. May prosperity follow them in their new home in Prince Edward Island where Mr. Campbell has a home and a large tract of land and other business interests.

The regular monthly official board met at the vestry last Thursday evening to arrange for the Fall items of business. Some new business of interest was discussed, which will be given to each church member later.

W. H. S. NOTES.

At a meeting of the Sophomore class held last week, the following officers were elected: President, Robert Leland; Vice-President, Madge Hovey; Secretary, Kenneth Caldwell; Treasurer, Frank Rowe.

On Thursday the senior class elected their officers for the coming year. They are as follows: Russell Keehn, president; Evangeline McPhie, vice-president; Ralph Cowdery, secretary and Eunice Walch, treasurer.

The class of 1910 held its first meeting on last Thursday, the officers elected for this year are Emma Farnsworth, president; Theodore Hurd, vice-prsident; Helen Noyes, secretary; and Edmund Cottle, treasurer. Robert Hemilton was elected captain of the class basketball team.

The class of 1911 called a meeting on Friday and elected the following officers: Robert Leland, president; Madge Hovey, vice-president; Kenneth Caldwell, secretary; and Frank Rowe, treasurer.

The Recorder staff for this year is: Russell Keehn, editor-in-chief; Dorothy Ayer, assistant editor-in-chief; Ralph Cowdery and John Sharon, business managers; Adelbert Collins and Elizabeth Coit, associate editors; Eunice Walsh, exchange editor; Agnes Cullen, artist editor; Josephine Wingate and Charles Thompson, graduate editors; and the class editors are Eleanor Briggs and Elliot Barta, 1910; Marjorie Waldmyer and Karl Guething, 1911; and Esther Parshley and Dwight Thompson, 1912.

George LeDuc has been elected captain of the 1911 basketball team.

The football candidates are having practice every day under the charge of the coaches, Minot Hurd and Harold Webber.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

It is still further evident of the enterprise of Messrs. Gulesian and Craig, and of their desire to give their patrons the best that the theatrical world affords, that they have secured "Strongheart" for production at the Castle Square next week

The cast will of course be headed by Mr. Craig in the title role and that he will give a fine interpretation of the character is without question. With Mary Young as Dorothy Nelson, Miss Cleveland as Molly Livingston, Mabel Colcord as Mrs. Nelson, Mr. Friebus as Thome, Mr. Meek as Billy Saunders, Mr. Hassell as Buckley, Mr. Evarts as Reade and all the other members of the company equally well cast, this production will be unequalled by any other presentation of "Strongheart" that has ever been given in Boston. Its run will be positively limited to one week only.

All playgoers will be glad to her the news that Mary Hall, one of Boston's actresses, and some seasons ago leading lady of the Castle Square and Empire stock companies, has been especially engaged to appear at the Castle Square for a limited series of performances.

Only a little cold in the head may be the beginning of an obstinate case of nasal catarrh. Drive out the invader with Ely's Cream Balm applied straight to the inflamed stuffed up air-passages. Football Season Here

During the month of October every eye is turned toward the oval

Our purpose in advertising in this space is to turn the eyes of everybody during the whole year toward the "Oval". Of course we mean "Creamalt" - the oval loaf.

For beauty of shape and for delicious-ness of flavor, you won't "tackle" anything in the class of Creamalt. It's the only Oval people never "kick" at. Game starts next time you eat.

Mortgagee's Sale.

Pursuant to the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Ida W. Witherell to Frederick W. Witherell, dated December eleven, 1905, and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, libro 3265, folio 345, will be sold at public auction on the premises hereinafter described, for breach of the condition of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, on all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, viz:

MONDAY, October twelve, 1908, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon,

A certain parcel of land, with the buildings thereon, situated on the southerly side of Herrick street in Winchester in the County of Middlesex and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and bounded and described as follows: Beginning at the northeasterly corner of land now or formerly of Joseph H. Tyler on said Herrick street at the northerly end of a stone wall dividing the land hereby conveyed from said Tyler's land; thence running easterly on said Herrick street ninety-eight and 75-100 feet to a stone bound; thence turning and running southerly by land now or formerly of Moses A. Herrick one hundred and seventy-two and 4-10 feet to the middle of a stone wall formerly standing at land late of Boon; thence turning and running westerly as the fence stands ninety-nine and 14-100 feet to the middle of the stone wall first mentioned as dividing the land hereby conveyed from land of said Tyler; thence turning and running northerly by said Tyler's land, and by the middle of said last mentioned stone wall, one hundred and eighty-one and 3-10 feet to the point of beginning; containing by estimation 17,450 square feet of land.

The premises are to be sold subject to a prior mortgage for five thousand dollars and interest given by said Ida W. Witherell to Ada Small Moore, dated October nine, 1906, and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, libro 3130, folio 585, and also subject to any unpaid taxes and assessments.

Two hundred dollars of the purchase money will be required to be paid by the purchaser at the time and place of sale. Other terms will be stated at sale.

FREDERICK W. WITHERELL,
818 18,25,02 Mortgagee.

Mortgagee's Sale

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a mortgage given by Charles A. Ellis to Emma B. Frost, dated July 3, 1907, recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds book 3314, page 501 for breach of condition of said mortgage will be sold by public auction on the premises therein and hereinafter described on MONDAY, October 12th, 1908, at four o'clock in the afternoon,

all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage, namely:

A parcel of land with buildings thereon situated on Washington street and Lincoln street in Winchester in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and bounded northwest on Washington street two hundred nineteen feet, northeast on Lincoln street two hundred sixty-two feet, southeast on land now or late of Martha Ann C. Reynolds two hundred twenty three 5-10 feet, southwest on land now or late of Tucker, formerly of McCall, two hundred eighty-one feet. Containing about 60,000 square feet. The premises will be sold subject to a prior outstanding mortgage for five thousand dollars and to restrictions shown of record if any such there be, and all unpaid taxes and assessments.

Other terms of sale will be stated at time and place of sale.

TRAVEL.

Amundsen, Roald. The northwest passage: being a record of a voyage of exploration of the ship Gjöa in the years 1903-7. 2v. 1816.26

An account of the voyage which Captain Amundsen and his crew of seven men made in exploration of the North-west passage. "Difficult navigation, sledge excursions that were not exactly summer picnics, meteorological and magnetic observations under trying conditions, the exaction of some degree of respect and decorum from the swarming Esquimaux that beset them in their winter quarters, and the continual problem of food, fuel, and shelter in the cruel cold of these latitudes—that, in brief, indicates the work that was cut out for Captain Amundsen and his little crew." Lieut. Hansen's supplementary chapter relates to his surveying expedition to the east coast of Victoria Land.

ETHICS AND RELIGION.

Bowne, Borden Parker. Personalism 413.16

The N. W. Harris lectures for 1907, Northwestern university. Professor Bowne discusses the subject of personal metaphysics; shows the relation of sound philosophy to science and to common sense; points out that the field of science is empirical phenomena, while philosophy's realm is that of causality and purpose behind experience; and agrees with Comte that abstract and impersonal metaphysics is a mirage of formal ideas which begin, continue and end in abstraction and confusion. He stands for a personal idealism in philosophy and the possibility of an enlightened orthodoxy in religion.

Gladden, Washington. The church and modern life. 536.3a

A practical as well as inspirational study, seeking an audience among pastors and teachers, but aiming to arouse to activity the young men and women to whom the future of the church is committed. The author shows that the roots of religion are in human nature; that like all living things, religion grows; that our religion is Christianity; that Christianity is a social religion; that as the life of religion is nurtured in social worship and service, so its fruit is gathered in the transformation of society; that the church has imperfectly performed its function; that a new reformation is called for; that the church is called to redeem society; and that for the redemption of society a new evangelism is needed.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

SWEET SIMPLICITY.

We read of sweet simplicity
As though we must be bound
To worship or at least admire
Wherever it was found
The shy and timid country maid,
Sunbonneted in pink.
The subject well may typify
We have been led to think.

The frock of modest calico,
Well washed, but trim and neat.
Shoes? Maybe, but it's best to have
Just bare and dew washed feet.
Pink cheeks and merry, laughing eyes,
Two dimples just in place.
Who'd rave o'er sweet simplicity
Without a pretty face?

You've read about this lovely lass
In many story books.
And, truly, she is all the coin
Whichever way she looks.
But do not ever think she does
Not know it all the while
And that she did not fix her hair
To fit the simple style.

Yes, she is on as large as life
Or as a ton of hay.
She figures she can catch a man
Much easier that way.
And if she corners one with wealth
Then in a Paris gown
She'll bid simplicity goodby
And dress like folks in town.

Might Be Worse.

"It is easy to buy men."

"Yes, but that is not such a bad thing."

"You venal thing! Not such a bad thing to buy men? What could be worse?"

"A state of affairs where you could also make them stay bought."

Poor Hustler.

"He is going about with a great unsatisfied ambition."

"What ails him?"

"He wants a public office."

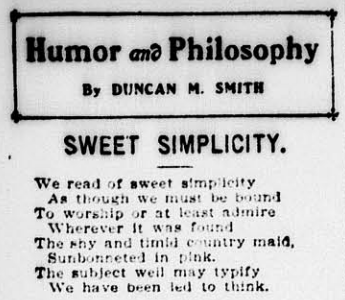
"Why doesn't he go after one?"

"He doesn't know how. That fellow hasn't gumption enough to break into an insane asylum."

A Stanch One.

The poor, downtrodden millionaire
May well put up a holler.
He hasn't got a friend on earth
Except the mighty dollar.

Force of Habit.



"Going in swimming this summer?"

"No, I can't very well do it. My wife is along."

"Will she make fun of you?"

"I ain't afraid of that, but she might find my clothes on the bank and sell them to the old clothes man."

The Simple Life.

They're picnicking upon the beach.
The sun is fierce The sand is hot.
Upon the fire in easy reach
They've placed an ample coffeepot.
The babies cry with all their might.
A pebble bruises Tommy's heel.
He'll have a stone bruise there all right
That's due to make the urchin squeal.

Now Mary's found a poison vine.
She pins it flaunting to her breast.
The doctor 'll say she's doing fine
About a month from now at best.
They're picnicking upon the beach.
The sun is fierce. The sand is hot.
Experience no doubt will teach
To them a lesson, maybe. What?

Adjustable Proposal.

"Were you seriously in earnest when you asked me to marry you?"

"I was if you will have me; otherwise I was only joking, and you will please so regard it."

Saved.

His father left him money,
That filthy stuff accursed,
But very little got to him;
The lawyers saw it first.

While religion may be free, the preacher is apt to have a string or two hitched to him somewhere.

Sometimes the things that you don't know cause as much of a sensation as the things that you do.

The beauty specialists are all sitting in the shade in calm delight, watching the frolicsome summer girl broil, blister and tan and mentally estimating the number of dollars each separate freckle is good for.

I AM A MOTHER

How many American women in lonely homes to-day long for this blessing to come into their lives, and to be able to utter these words, but because of some organic derangement this happiness is denied them.

Every woman interested in this subject should know that preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by the use of

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. Maggie Gilmer, of West Union, S. C., writes

"I was greatly run-down in health from a weakness peculiar to my sex, when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. It not only restored me to perfect health, but to my delight I am a mother."

Mrs. Josephine Hall, of Bardstown, Ky., writes:

"I was a very great sufferer from female troubles, and my physician failed to help me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound not only restored me to perfect health, but I am now a proud mother."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Telephone Talks

Household business before pleasure. Party line "telephone visits" need not be curtailed, but your service would be improved if they were made in conventional visiting hours.

"Rush Hours"

No other public service is called upon to meet such extraordinary fluctuations of demand as is the telephone. The "rush hours" of trolley and steam roads represent by comparison, a demand that is steady and moderate.

Moreover, during the transportation "rush hour" crush some people must stand, or, if they insist upon having a seat, must wait for less crowded cars.

In telephoning, however, the simile would be applied by stating that each "passenger" must have, not a seat, but a "special car," and that this car must have a "special motorman and conductor," and the absolute right of way over a "special pair of rails" from the point where its journey begins to the point where it ends.

In telephone exchanges the "rush hours" usually are those between 8.30 and 11 A. M. It is during this period that party line subscribers are apt to be most troubled by "busy" reports.

It would materially help the service of subscribers on such lines if calls that are not imperative—social calls, for example—were deferred to the afternoon, leaving the morning hours free for domestic business calls.

It would be well if party line users would keep in mind this fact—that while any one subscriber on it is talking, it is closed to every other person connected therewith, and also to every person desirous of communicating with him or with any other person on that line.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

It is said that Officer James V. O'Connell, who was in charge at the ball game last Saturday, handled the crowd in fine shape, especially when things appeared to be indicative of a scrap between the two factions over Umpire LeDuc's decision. More than one spectator commented upon his work.

Now that you have returned to town you no doubt wish to send your friends a few souvenir postals of Winchester. You will find a fine assortment of views at Wilson the Stationer's.

Mr. James D. Haggerty, editor of the Woburn Daily Times, was married last Sunday afternoon to Miss Mary A. Lovell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Lovell of Mt. Hope, Roslindale, Mass. Bro. Haggerty has our best wishes for a happy future.

The grippe is quite prevalent in town, and has been for the past three weeks or more.

Last Sunday was Rally Day at the First Congregational Church.

It is intimated that the reason for the Commonwealth's presentation of a new plan for the elimination of the grade crossing at the hearing of last week, was for the purpose of delaying the whole matter. It will probably take another fatal accident to cause acceleration of the matter.

MR. C E. L. WINGATE
Who is to succeed Judge Odlin on the School Board.

AN EXCELLENT SELECTION.

The two members of the School Committee in their selection of Mr. C. E. L. Wingate to fill the unexpired term of Judge Odlin on the committee have made an admirable choice. Mr. Wingate has the right temperament, is practical and well qualified for the position of school committee man. He is a born newspaper man, and at the present time business manager of the Boston Journal, wherein he has been remarkably successful. His newspaper training has made him a broad-guage man, and his willingness to serve on the committee will be found a distinct gain for our public schools.

Charles E. L. Wingate has always been interested in public matters. He was one of the Organizing Committee who formed the well known Boston City Club and is a member of the Puddingstone Club of Boston, the Winchester Country Club, the Harvard Club of New York and honorary member of the Twilight Club of New York. He was one of the founders and the first Vice-Presidents and afterwards President of the Newspaper Club of Boston. For a number of years he has served on the Harvard College Visiting Committee in English Literature, under appointment of the Overseers of Harvard University. He has also held membership on many of the general committees appointed to consider various civic and public interests of Boston.

Mr. Wingate is a native of Exeter, New Hampshire, and a descendant of Judge Paine Wingate, a member of the Congress of the Confederation and one of the Senators from New Hampshire to the first Congress of the United States After graduating at Phillips Exeter Academy, he graduated at Harvard. At the University he helped found the "Harvard Echo," later the "Crimson," the first daily paper ever started at the college, and remained its news editor until he graduated. Then he engaged in newspaper work, both in the editorial and business departments. He has served as one of the editors of "Universities and their Sons" and is the author of the following books: "Shakespeare's Heroines on the Stage," "Shakespeare's Heroes on the Stage," "Famous American Actors of To-day," "The Playgoer's Year Book" and the novel, "Can Such Things Be."

In Winchester, Mr. Wingate has served on the Appropriations Committee and on the special committees on school accommodation, preliminary to the building of the Grammar and High schools.

LOST HER TEETH.

Conductor Green of the Winchester-Arlington electric road in addition to being one of the oldest conductors in point of service on this line, is one of the most courteous and accommodating, and furthermore he is well liked by the patrons. Again, his car is always on time. A sample of his accommodating spirit came to the front Wednesday forenoon. As his car was passing the turnout on Church street a lady, who apparently was suffering from temporary illness, lost her false teeth as she leaned out of the window at the rear of the car. When Glen road was reached she discovered her loss and informed conductor Green. An appeal from the lady to stop the car touched the tender cords of his heart, and he signalled the motorman to back up the car when the tournout was reached, sure enough there lay the teeth in the middle of the track covered with dirt.

It is not known whether conductor Green is superstitious or not, for apparently his accommodating spirit deserted him, when he absolutely refused to pick up the teeth, requesting the owner to do so herself. This being accomplished, the car resumed its journey.

Have a kind word for Conductor Green when you get onto his car, and perhaps he may consider it a reward for helping aged and infirm people on and off his car, assisting mothers with babies and young children, and doing all that he can to direct strangers to their destinations.

Mrs. E. A. Brackett returned to town on Wednesday after spending the summer in Tennessee and the West.

The Methodist Church is receiving a coat of paint.

WHAT THE EDISON CO. IS DOING.

Improvements and alterations in the system for supplying electric service to its customers in Winchester, Woburn and Stoneham which the Edison Electric Illuminating Company has been making this summer will be completed and the new service put into operation sometime this month. This new work has cost the Edison Company upwards of $75,000. The result, however, is a doubled capacity for supplying electric service and improved conditions which will furnish an absolutely satisfactory service. A new service main has been put in from the Willow avenue Sub-Station of the Company in Somerville through Highland avenue, Holland street and Broadway, in Somerville, Broadway, Warren, Chestnut, Mystic, Cambridge and Pond streets to the present Woburn station.

This line will be connected through the Somerville Sub-station directly to the high power lines running from the Company's big power station in South Boston. This means a constant, unvarying supply of power from one of the most perfectly developed and equipped electric light stations in the world.

Changes have been made on the old Woburn Station to accommodate this service, but the machinery that has been in use in the Woburn Station will not be discarded. The steam will be cut off and the machines stopped, but the steam plant will be retained in position ready for use on some rare occasion, if one should ever come, when there is an interruption in the big new service.

No changes will be made in the conditions of service for street lighting, nor for residence and other commercial lighting, nor in the power service; that is, what is known as the voltage or pressure will remain the same as it is now under normal conditions. It will be possible, however, for the Company to furnish electricity for motor power service in large quantities, the service being limited only by the time that might be necessary to build more lines.

FORTUNATE IN ITS PRESIDENT.

A Boston paper recently commented upon the impetus to club life which was given by the Biennial meeting of June last. The Winchester Fortnightly is especially fortunate in its president, Mrs. Wheeler, who has been made a member of the State Federation Board, Chairman of meetings. By her resistless energy and great tact she has done much to make The Fortnightly a success, and with a strong board of Directors is prepared to present to the club a most exceptional program for the coming year.

The privilege of hearing Judge Lindsay and Miss Annie Peck with the Shakespearean scholar Marshall Darrach, is surely not to be accounted lightly.

The writer was privileged to accept an invitation to visit the Thursday morning Fortnightly of Dorchester on Thursday morning of last week. This is a most delightful musical club which has for its place of meeting the palatial club house of which the Dorchester women are so justly proud. The Fortnightly has had for the eleven years of its existence but one president, Mrs. Bates, who with her gifted family has aimed to place the programs in the very highest class of entertainment.

The season opened last Thursday with the first of a series of Wagner programs, Mrs. Bates herself giving some interesting biographical details at intervals through the afternoon. An orchestra of five pieces gave the Rienzi Overture with success, followed by a most spirited reading from Lord Lytton's "Rienzi" by Mrs. Adelaide Hibbard, the talented wife of Boston's present Mayor. A chorus then gave a beautiful rendering of the Spinning Maiden's Chorus, which was followed by "Lenta's Song," by Miss Lily Neil, who is especially interesting to us as as being one of the "Junior Charity Girls" whose president is Mrs. Young, corresponding secretary of The Winchester Fortnightly.

Adjourning to the tea room, which was beautifully decorated with the autumn hues of salvia and maple, the guests enjoyed a social hour, with the help of the proverbial "cup of tea" which Mrs. Bates said "smelled like coffee." An added interest was given to the entertainment by the fact that the Club does not hire any artists for its programs, its own members being among the most gifted of Boston's gifted daughters, and are all efficient to furnish most acceptable programs.

WINCHESTER'S DEVELOPMENT.

One of the largest operations in real estate in Winchester in recent years has just been undertaken by the signing of agreements by Messrs. Frank L. Ripley and Freeland E. Hovey for the opening of a tract of land lying between Sheffield road and Everett avenue, and containing approximately 300,000 square feet. Their agreements to purchase include about six acres from the Swan heirs, 20,000 square feet from W. P. F. Ayer, 10,500 square feet from Leonard H. Spaulding and 3500 square feet from John Abbott.

A gravel macadam road with attractive park features is to be built at once continuing Sheffield road in a graceful curve through to Everett avenue more than 1000 running feet and coming out near Cambridge street, thus making the most direct route from Arlington by the new road and Church street to Winchester centre. Sewer, water and gas pipes are to be laid, the new road built in the most approved manner to grade established by the Town Engineer, with wide loam spaces and sidewalks, and the street when entirely completed will be turned over to the town for acceptance as a town way. The land, which is high and well above the level of the lake and of a dry, sandy soil with adequate surface of loam, is to be carefully graded and divided into lots of from 8000 to 15,000 square feet each with good frontages on either the new road or Everett avenue, and is to be sold at fair prices with careful restrictions.

Practically all of the available land on Sheffield road and Everett avenue has been sold, three lots on the latter street having been disposed of in the last few weeks to Mr. Russell, Mr. Reynolds and Mr. Ayer, all of whom are to build fine houses for their own occupancy. Geo. B. Smith's $20,000 house and the three new houses built by Capt. Nickerson, together with the completed development of Sheffield road, and the fine residences on Everett avenue, all adjacent, have established the neighborhood as one of the best in Winchester, and its nearness to Wedgemere station, the electrics, and Mystic Lake make it convenient to train service, trolley line and boating facilities.

Capt. Nickerson has signified his intention of building in the near future on several of the lots. Already there are numerous inquiries for choice of locations from prospective house holders, and as there are but about twenty lots altogether, it will be a case of first come first served.

All this means a great benefit to the town, especially in a completed highway, desirable new people, and as soon as houses are built much improved taxable property. Winchester should be grateful to the gentlemen financially interested for progressive methods and a willingness to invest a large amount of capital in their home town.

Geo. Adams Woods, who conceived the opportunity and has carried through the numerous transactions, representing all of the different interests in the negotiations, has charge of the development of the property and the future sale of lots.

WHITTAKER—WINN.

A social event of considerable interest to a large number of the town's young people, and also the first wedding of the autumn of a prominent nature, was the marriage on Wednesday evening of Miss May Louise Winn, daughter of Mrs. Mary L. Winn, to Mr. Arnold Whittaker, son of Mr. Benjamin Whittaker of Somerville.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's mother on Elmwood avenue, at 7.30 o'clock, being witnessed by a large gathering of relatives and friends. Rev. Henry E. Hodge, pastor of the First Baptist Church was the officiating clergyman.

The residence was handsomely decorated for the occasion with potted plants and ferns, and cut flowers and autumn foliage. The bride was dressed in a very handsome white lace empire gown, with tulle veil, and wore a wreath of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of bride roses. Miss Elizabeth Winn, her sister, was maid of honor, she being gowned in yellow silk, trimmed with lace, and carried a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums. The best man was Dr. Charles H. Piper of Boston.

At the close of the ceremony a reception was held by the couple, they being assisted in receiving by Mrs. Whittaker and Mrs. Winn. During the reception music was given by an orchestra composed of young ladies, and a large tent erected adjoining the residence was used for refreshments. The ushers at the reception were Messrs. William S. McLean and Walter B. Sanborn of Somerville, and Marshall S. P. Smith of Boston.

Guests were present from Somerville, Everett, Arlington, Melrose, Boston and New Hampshire, both Mr. and Mrs. Whittaker enjoying a very large circle of acquaintances. The groom is connected with the Commonwealth Trust Company of Boston.

At the close of the reception the couple left for a wedding trip to the Maine woods and the White Mountains.

POSTMASTER RICHARDSON OPERATED ON.

For a number of weeks Postmaster J. Winslow Richardson has suffered from what appeared to be an abscess on his foot. Not showing any appreciable recovery from the trouble, his physician decided Saturday that the seat of the disease was due to a piece of diseased bone, and on Monday Drs. Church and Ordway performed an operation and removed it.

Mr. Richardson is recovering rapidly and the foot is healing nicely, he and expects to be able to go out with the aid of crutches this week, and to walk normally in about three weeks.

Sherman Cup Won by Mrs. Tompkins.

The ladies golf tournament at the Country Club, which opened last week Wednesday for the Sherman cup, closed this week. The cup was won by Mrs. Maurice Tompkins, 5 up, 4 to play. Mrs. R. E. Sherman was awarded the consolation prize. The cup was for the best 36 holes, match play.

AN EXCITING MINUTE.

Tuesday evening at about six o'clock, a Boston bound Woburn electric having been given the signal to cross the tracks at the crossing, the motorman turned on the power and just before the front end of the car reached the tracks the gates were hastily lowered for the express from Boston. The gatemen yelled at the approaching car. The motorman was quick to take in the situation by seeing that it would be disastrous to try and stop his car and then back it off from the tracks, as the express would be onto him before he could get clear, so he crowded on more [illegible] and with the gates nearly scraping the top of the car he got over a few seconds before the train dashed past. To onlookers the situation appeared to be full of danger, and in the hands of a less thoughtful motorman, the result might have been disastrous. It was a narrow escape, and was made more so by the liability of the car to jump the tracks at this dangerous crossover. The speed of the car was such, however, after the motorman saw the danger, that the momentum would have carried the car clear of the rails of the steam road, even if it had jumped the tracks.

MISS A. AUGUSTA SMITH.

Miss A. Augusta Smith, aged 78 years, passed away very suddenly on Friday last of heart failure at the home of her neice, Mrs. C. N. Johnson of Webster street. She had come to Winchester five weeks ago to make her home here with Mrs. Johnson.

Miss Smith was born in East Lexington, and with the exception of two years, had passed her entire life in that place. Funeral services were held on Monday at the Follen Church, East Lexington, conducted by Rev. Mr. McDonald. The burial was in the Lexington cemetery.

MASONS TO BE ENTERTAINED.

At the next meeting of William Parkman Lodge, A. F. & A. M, next Tuesday evening, Worshipful Master Frank F. Carpenter, has arranged for an entertainment after the completion of the regular work. The entertainment, which will be for members, will commence at eight o'clock, and promises to be interesting and pleasing. Masons not affiliated with William Parkman Lodge are cordially invited to be present.

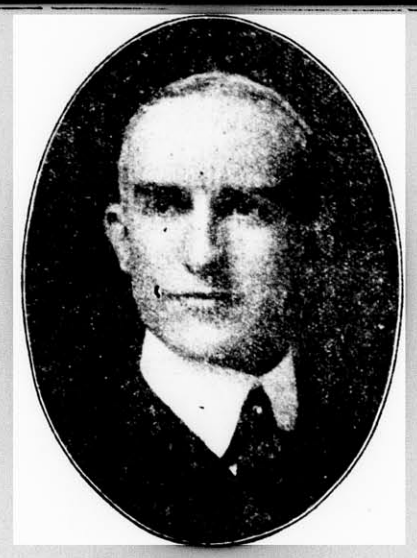
ABATEMENTS.

The Assessors will be in session at their room in the Town Hall Building, Thursday afternoon and evening, Oct. 15, and Tuesday afternoon and evening, Oct. 27, from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 o'clock, to hear parties aggrieved who claim abatements.

All claims for abatement will be adjusted according to the law regulating taxation.

PARISH OF THE EPIPHANY.

Attention is called to the change in the hour of the service. Hereafter the Sunday Morning Service will be at 10.45 instead of at 10.30. This arrangement will continue until the first of January, when it will be left with the Parish to decide whether to maintain the new hour or to turn to the old one.



MR. FRANK EUGENE BARNARD
Candidate of Republican party for Representative.

FRANK E. BARNARD NOMINATED.

Convention by Acclamation Endorses His Candidacy.

At the Republican Representative Convention held in the small Town Hall, Monday evening, Mr. Frank E. Barnard was nominated by acclamation for the lower branch of the Legislature. There was no opposition and his was the only name before the delegates.

George C. Coit, Esq., the chairman of the district committee, called the convention to order and after reading the call, William B. Lawrence, Esq., of Medford was chosen temporary and then permanent chairman. Alfred S. Hall, Esq., was chosen secretary.

Messrs. Geo. S. Littlefield of this town and William C. Craig and Wilton B. Fay were appointed a committee on credentials who reported twenty delegates present, as follows: Four from ward 3 and 5 from ward six, Medford, and eleven from Winchester.

Marcus B. May, Esq., after brief remarks, nominated Mr. Frank E. Barnard as the Republican candidate for the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

Judge Littlefield then moved that Mr. Barnard be nominated by acclamation, and the motion was unanimously agreed to. Messrs. George C. Coit, Marcus B. May and W. C. Craig were appointed a committee to find Mr. Barnard and escort him into the hall. He was found in the Selectmen's room attending a meeting of the Board of which he is a member. His appearance was greeted with applause. He thanked the delegates for the honor conferred upon him and promised while a member of the House to exert his best efforts for good and pure legislation. There were no planks in his platform, and he proposed to meet issues as they arose according to his best judgment. He hoped that efforts would be made to get out a full vote in Winchester this fall. Last year but 65 per cent of the vote was cast. This was not creditable to the citizens who did not cast their ballots.

The convention then dissolved.

Frank Eugene Barnard was born in Franklin, N. H., Feb. 17, 1871, where he received his early education in the public schools. He graduated from Phillips Exter Academy in 1888, and Dartmouth College in 1891; was admitted to the bar in New Hampshire in 1894, and on taking up his residence in Massachusetts was admitted to the Suffolk bar in 1895. Has been secretary of Boston evening High school for four years. He has been a resident of Winchester for many years, is at present a member of the Board of Selectmen having been elected in 1907, and has always taken a deep interest in the advancement of Winchester. He is also a member of the Unitarian Church, and a director of the Winchester Country Club. At present he is associated with the firm of Isaac F. Paul.

ENGAGED BY WILLARD SETTLEMENT.

Mr. Albert E. Brown, supervisor of music in the public schools of this town, has been engaged by the officials of the Frances E. Willard Settlement of Boston to conduct the choral society that is to be held in connection with the other work of that organization. It is the desire of those interested to have the chorus managed upon the same general plan as the People's Singing Classes, which for the past ten years have done much for the general uplift in the South End of Boston.

The Willard Settlement has recently acquired the possession of the church hitherto known as St. Andrew's Church, which by its proper transformation will be made to serve the various uses of the Settlement, at the head of which is Miss Caroline M. Caswell. The outlay of money required to secure this property was $78,000. This large financial venture will succeed partly because it has behind it the compelling names of Frances E. Willard and of Phillips Brooks. The one will appeal to all who remember that devoted woman's interest in temperance reform, and the other to citizens of Boston and vicinity generally.

Already a factor in the life of the West End of Boston, it will no doubt be made a more powerful agency for good. Upon the musical advisory board of the Settlement are the names of Mr. Louis C. Elson, Mr. Henry M. Dunham and Samuel W. Cole, men of national reputation.

Mr. Brown will begin the rehearsals at Phillips Brooks Hall on October 25th and will have charge of the work every Sunday thereafter throughout the season.

NEW TIME TABLE ON STEAM ROAD.

The winter schedule on the steam road went into effect on Monday, and although the service has been somewhat curtailed, the changes are considerably less than had been anticipated. Four inward and two outward trains have been taken off, although in place of two of the discontinued inward trains other new trains have been put on, making an actual loss of four trains.

The inward trains discontinued are those leaving Winchester at 10.59 a. m., 11.45 a. m., 2.01 p. m. and 8.55 p. m. New inward trains have been put on at 7.25 a. m. and 11.25 a. m.

The 5.54 a. m. and the 1.05 p. m. trains from Boston have been discontinued.

The other changes do not number half a dozen, and are of an unimportant nature. The Sunday trains are practically the same, there being but three changes of a minor nature.

CHANGE IN MAILS.

The new change in the time on the steam road has necessitated several changes in the mails at the Post Office, affecting not only the arrival and departure of the mail, but the delivery and collection by the carriers as well.

The removal of the 5.54 a. m. train from Boston has resulted in the opening of the first mail at 7.30 instead of 7.10, causing the morning collection at the boxes to be fifteen minutes later and the departure of the carriers on the first delivery corresponding later.

The outgoing mails have been changed as follows: 8.30 a. m. to 8.45 a. m.; 9.00 to 9.45; 10.20 discontinued.

One new mail, which is considerably to the advantage of the office, has been put on—an outgoing mail at 12.50

The inward evening mail formerly opened at 7.00 o'clock is not open now until 7.15.

Exhibition of photographs, loaned by The Library Art Club. New Brunswick, Gaspé peninsula and Halifax. Starting at St. Stephen, opposite Calais, Maine, this set illustrates a trip through New Brunswick, by way of St. John and up the beautiful St. John River. From Grand Falls a descent is made by the Restigouche to the Baie des Chaleurs, followed by some pictures of the wonderful scenery at the extremity of Gaspé Peninsula. Returning to New Brunswick the eastern coast is followed to Moncton and the extraordinary rocks at Hopewell Cape, and the collection ends with a few views of Halifax.

FESTIVAL OF THE FOUR SEASONS.

Brilliant Pageant in Town Hall Tomorrow Afternoon.

With the postponement of the annual May Party of the Ladies' Friendly Society last May, promise was made of an equally attractive dancing party in the fall, and during the summer months the ladies of the committee have been actively at work on the preparation of an elaborate affair for the children, entitled "The Festival of the Four Seasons."

This is to be held this Saturday afternoon in the Town Hall, commencing at 2.30 o'clock. As is always the case with the May Pairty, this festival is given entirely to the children, and the afternoon will witness the presentation of a program fully as attractive as the usual spring event, containing a number of fancy and solo dances by the young people. The maypole dance will be given as formerly, but instead of the May Queen, there will be the Queen of the Seasons, with her attendant knights, pages and flower girls. The four seasons will be represented by young people, each with their attendants, and a teddy bear will also be a feature.

The spring party was abandoned this year on account of the numerous cases of scarlet fever then in town.

Following is the program of the afternoon, with the dances, performers and committee in charge:

THE PROTECTION OF BIRDS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The welfare of the birds is a matter of great importance to you, reader, and to every man, woman and child alive today. Were the birds exterminated it would mean to us, not merely a trifling inconvenience or the loss of dollars and cents, but want and famine, pestilence and death.

You know that many birds are decreasing in numbers and that the recent remarkable increase of destructive insects and other pests is attracting wide attention; but do you know that it is estimated that the birds in Massachusetts eat twenty-one thousand bushels of insects a day, that the birds in Nebraska destroy one hundred and seventy carloads daily, that a single species of hawk saves the western farmers $57,600 annually by killing grasshoppers, that the tree sparrows of Iowa eat two and one thirds tons of weed seeds daily, and that our native sparrows save the farmers of the country $35 000,000 annually by eating weed seeds, while they also save an immense loss by destroying insects? A vast sum might be saved if we could increase the number of birds by even one per cent. and this is easily possible.

Pests such as insects, field mice and weeds increase wherever birds are depleted: the cost of raising grains, other food stuffs and domestic animals increases in consequence and this causes an advance in the prices of the necessities of life. Higher taxes are imposed to sustain state or municipal work for the control of insect pests, and the poor find it hard to exist.

Always and everywhere the forces of animal and vegetable life spring into pernicious activity and swarm with destructive effect wherever their natural checks are removed. The ever-present danger of the increase of insects is shown by the investigations of Mr. W. L. McAtee of the United States Biological Survey. He made a careful, systematic, minute examination of the surface of small areas of woodland and meadow soil.

If the number of animal objects found on these areas will hold good on larger tracts each acre of forest land contains 1,216,880 small forms of animal life, mostly insects or their eggs, and each acre of meadow land contains 13,654,710 such objects. Many of the insects eat others; but people who realize how fast insects increase when unchecked can readily imagine what would happen were such active, voracious insect eaters as the birds exterminated.

Some birds will eat their own weight of insects each day, and the daily food of a full-fledged young robin equals sixteen feet of caterpillars or earthworms.

Nevertheless the destruction of birds by men continues. Many species of birds have been exterminated, and many others are nearing extermination. The foreign portion of our population rapidly increasing is a serious menace to bird life.

"No doubt" you will say, "we should protect the birds"; but what are you doing to conserve them? Are you making an effort or spending a cent?

The National Association of Audubon Societies for the Protection of Wild Birds and Animals, organized and endowed by practical business men and women, directed by altruistic, unpaid executive officers is engaged in securing bird protective legislation and law enforcement. It is protecting the sea birds and wild fowl on their breeding grounds on hundreds of islands along the coasts of the United States.

It is educating children and the people generally regarding the value of birds. Every one should consider it a duty to join this Association or contribute in some way to its work, for it is the only national association in this country that is organized for the protection of all useful birds; and the urgent needs for its activities are far in excess of its resources. Mr. William Dutcher the President, 141 Broadway, New York City will always be grateful for an encouraging word from any sympathizer in his work of self sacrificing endeavor on behalf of the birds and his fellow men.

AN EMINENT NEWSPAPER MAN.

The following was taken from the Boston Transcript of a recent date:

The Figaro of Paris sounds this pleasant note of welcome to "M. Saunders," the new Times correspondent in Paris, successor to Lavino and the redoubtable De Blowitz:

"M. Saunders," says Le Figaro, "is a man of fifty years, in all vigor and maturity of spirit. Correspondents of the chief journal of the metropolis are never amateurs, never mere birds of passage; they are veritable ambassadors, carefully chosen for their responsible place and expected to fill it with dignity. M. Saunder has been twenty years in Berlin Possessing a great personal fortune active, cultivated, owning a rare intelligence, M. Saunders attained an eminent station in diplomatic circles in Berlin. His great courage won general esteem, especially among the friends of France. Indeed, so frequent were his leanings France-ward that he was many times in danger of explusion from the German capital. It was he who first enunciated the principle that 'England should not permit France to suffer from Germany.'

"The confidence that the editors of the Times repose in M. Saunders was shown when, during the illness of Chiroll, he was summoned to London to replace his eminent editor-in-chief. Thus he comes to Paris worthy to take the great place that he assumes."

M. Saunders is first cousin to Mr. A. B. Saunders of Church street, this town.

A HEARTY ENDORSEMENT.

It is clear that this congressional district recognizes and approves independence. The unanimous nomination of Mr. McCall for the ninth time is proof of that. No other Republican has paid less attention to the opinions of his party colleagues. He has thought for himself, and has been true to his own convictions, even if he stood alone. He might have been one of the leaders of his party if he had chosen, but he has preferrred his freedom and has had it. In taking this course he has not lost his influence. No member is better known, and in the re-arrangement of the next house on new lines and new issues he is sure to be an effective member. If any Democrat wants the empty honor of a nomination against him, he is welcome to it, but Mr. McCall is sure to be a member of the next house of representatives, and people will know he is there. The call for speeches from Mr. McCall in the West shows what they think of him. His tariff views meet a warm response there.—[Cambridge Chronicle.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Alice Lloyd, the English comedienne who is making her second visit to Boston, has again become the talk of the town, and the result is crowded houses at Keith's Theatre. She has been held over for another week, special arrangements having been made to prolong her last appearance in vaudeville.

Another strong attraction is Julius Steger and Company playing the "Fifth Commandment," a piece that has been a sort of a revelation in vaudeville. La Sylphe is another sensational feature that may be held over.

Then there is Ed. F. Renard, the ventriloquist who puts on an entire production, and has innumerable figures, all of whom take part in a well constructed play. Of equal importance will be Winston's Sea Lions, the most remarkable performing animals ever shown on a stage.

The entire bill is made up of features of this character, including the Adelman Musical Ensemble; Johnston and Hardy; Piccolo's Midgets, Leo Donnelly, Marseilles, Shungopavi, and a number of new acts to be announced later, making up a bill that has been seldom seen in vaudeville.

Benjamin F. Miner has just occupied a residence on Kendall street where he is using the Edison Company's service for electric lights.

BOSTON THEATRE.

The welcome received by the Boston Theatre Stock Company last week seems to leave no doubt as to the place held by this organization in the estimation of the theatregoers of the Hub, and that it is destined to play an even more important part.

For a second week, for instance, there has been secured one of the greatest successes of recent years. This attraction will be "Salomy Jane," in which Miss Eleanor Gordon will appear in the title role. There is no other person now on the stage who is better fitted for this splendid character than Miss Gordon.

The play in itself is unquestionably one of the very best that has been built around the stories of Brete Harte, and the author, Paul Armstrong, made his reputation of a playwright with it.

It is in four acts, beautifully staged, and laid among the Californian redwoods.

Following "Salomy Jane" "The Royal Family" will be the attraction.

CONGRESSMAN McCALL.

Representative McCall, who will receive his ninth nomination for Congress this year, probably without opposition, will soon be confronted with the great opportunity of his political career. His name appears third in the list of Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee of the House, being outranked in service on that important committee only by Sereno Payne, its Chairman, and by Mr. Dalzell of Pennsylvania. This is the supremely important committee whenever the tariff is revised, and relatively commonplace at other times. Next spring Mr. McCall will be looked on as the champion of Massachusetts interests in the important service of Tariff revision, and while the final work of the house will be sent to the Senate for overhauling, the decisions of the lower body go some distance toward determining results.—[Boston Transcript.

BAY STATE POLITICS

Both Great Parties Now Ready For the State Campaign

REPUBLICANS UNITED TO MAN

State Convention Was Very Harmonious—Frothingham Will Strengthen the Ticket—Democrats Raise Cry of Extravagance

The campaign is now in full swing. Both state conventions of the two leading parties have been held and candidates placed in nomination. The Democrats have nominated James H. Vahey of Watertown for governor and ex-Mayor Barton of Melrose for lieutenant governor. The Republicans have placed before the people Eben S. Draper of Hopedale as their candidate for governor and Louis A. Frothingham of Boston as their candidate for lieutenant governor. The rest of the Republican state ticket is the same as last year.

It is difficult to see how Mr. Vahey is going to make much of a run in view of the fact that the best element of the Democratic party discouraged his nomination and sought to find a man worthy of the honor once given to such men as William E. Russell of Cambridge, John E. Russell of Leicester, and William L. Douglas of Brockton. Those were the days before the Lomasneys, the Kileys and the Williamses had secured control of the party and given such exhibitions of riot and mob law as characterized the Springfield convention last year. In the old days the party was rich in such men as Nathan Mathews, John W. Corcoran, Patrick A. Collins, Sherman Hoar, John C. Crosby, John F. Andrew, Robert Treat Paine and A. C. Houghton. It is possible that such days may again return to the Democracy in this state, but no one with prophetic insight has thus far been rash enough to predict it.

Vahey's Real Strength

Vahey will poll that part of the Democratic vote which casts its ballot invariably for the party nominee. It is possible that he may also secure the vote of some occasional Republicans who are disgruntled for some reason or other with the nominees of the party. He will lose a good many of the old time conservative Democrats who believe that the party should be in a position to fulfill at least a small percent of its promises. The Democratic party in this state, as at present organized, is willing to promise everything, even though having no intention of fulfilling any of its pledges should it be successful at the polls.

One of the issues which the Democrats seek to inject into the state campaign is the state tax. The charge is made that the Republican party in administering the affairs of the state has been extravagant in its expenditure of money. For that reason the Democrats ask that they may be put in power so as to curtail the state expenditures.

Douglas Was Frank

There was once upon a time a man by the name of William L. Douglas of Brockton who was a candidate for governor in this state. One of the chief issues of his campaign was the large state tax assessed upon the people of the commonwealth. By a series of unforeseen circumstances Mr. Douglas was elected governor. As a matter of fact he did absolutely nothing to curtail the expenses of the commonwealth, and he gave it as his unprejudiced opinion, after serving in the office, that it was impossible to cut off any of the these expenses and continue to care in some generous way for our insane, our poor, the criminal class confined in houses of correction and prisons, and other unfortunates supported at the expense of the state in hospitals and reformatories.

The point of this illustration is the fact that Mr. Douglas was nominated and elected as a Democrat, but was broad enough when placed in the position of governor to acknowledge the facts. The cities and towns of the commonwealth are to blame almost wholly for the large tax rates. A few years ago the state assumed the care of the insane and the pauper class throughout the commonwealth, taking this burden of more than a million dollars annually from the cities and towns. These latter, instead of reducing their expenses by that amount, continued to expend as much money as before and thereby increased by a large amount the annual sum to be levied upon their citizens.

This commonwealth has always treated its unfortunate poor and the insane within its borders whose relatives are unable to care for them with the greatest consideration for their comfort and well-being. It has always been the Massachusetts way of doing things. Perhaps the Democratic party would do better, but the example given by the city of Boston under the regime of John F. Fitzgerald is not encouraging. The only aim of the Democratic party is to Tammanyize the state as they had Tammanyized the city of Boston until the election of George A. Hibbard as mayor. Anybody who votes the Democratic ticket with the idea that this party, if successful, would reduce the tax rate in Massachusetts has faith enough to remove mountains.

Frothingham Will Run Well

The nomination of Louis A. Frothingham of Boston as the Republican candidate for lieutenant governor is as strong a one as could well have been made. The harmony which prevailed at the state convention which placed him in nomination was one of the most gratifying features of that event. It was especially pleasing that Mr. Cole and Mr. Luce both moved to make the nomination unanimous immediately after the first ballot when it was seen that Mr. Frothingham lacked but sixteen votes to give him the nomination. The contest between the three men has been earnest, exciting and incessant. The state has been traversed from the Berkshires to Cape Cod, and from the southern boundary to that on the north. The issue has been placed before the people and they have decided in favor of the Boston man, and the result has been accepted with the greatest good feeling by the defeated candidates. They will both be found fighting side by side for the Republican ticket in the campaign which is now well under way.

The contest for the councillor nomination in the Second district has been decided by the renomination of Albion F. Bemis of Brookline. There seems to be general satisfaction at the result, although it was a close fight in convention. There were three candidates in the field, and while Mr. Bemis led on the first ballot, it required five ballots to nominate. Mr. Bemis has proved one of the most trusted members of the executive council and has been a great aid both to Governor Guild and to Lieutenant Governor Draper.

Republican Club Rally

The Republican Club of Massachusetts will inaugurate the campaign in the city of Boston with a grand ratification meeting in Tremont Temple on Monday evening, Oct. 12. There will be a concert by the Salem Cadet band from 7 to 8 p. m. The meeting will be called to order by Joseph Walker, president of the Republican Club of Massachusetts, who will introduce as the presiding officer of the evening, former Governor John L. Bates of Boston. The other speakers will be Hon. Eben S. Draper of Hopedale, Republican candidate for governor; Hon. Louis A. Frothingham of Boston, the candidate for lieutenant governor; Hon. James R. Garfield of Ohio, of President Roosevelt's cabinet, and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Nahant. The meeting will be open to the general public and no tickets will be required for admission.

Lebanon Street Spring.

There is talk of petitioning the Selectmen to request them to see if the water cannot be brought back to the Lebanon street spring. Hundreds of families used this water for drinking purposes, and now that they have been deprived of it they feel the loss keenly, not being financially able to purchase spring water from dealers. This spring was never known to dry up before, and it cannot be understood why it should do so now.

The annual meeting of the Winchester Equal Suffrage League will be held on Wednesday, October 14, at 3 o'clock, at Miss Murdock's, 64 Church street. All interested cordially invited to attend.

Mrs. Nichols came from Camp Ellis, Me, last week where she had been spending the summer and is visiting Miss Sarah Bowser of Winthrop street.

Carl Thompson of Forest street is home on a visit from Panama, where he is employed.

Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Kerr entertained a large number of friends Friday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. John Macleod who leave here shortly to make their home in New York.

Mrs. Macleod and children are spending a few days in Vermont.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Rogers gave a dinner and bridge Wednesday evening to a number of their friends.

Sunday was Rally Sunday at the Second Congregational Sunday School and was held under the direction of the new superintendent, Mr. McLane. Seven children, eight years of age, graduated from the primary into the intermediate grade and were presented with diplomas tied with blue ribbon and a carnation pink. Mrs. Bowers, their teacher, had the children all prepared with recitations which were followed by the 23d Psalm and Lord's Prayer given in unison. Mrs. Bowers then made a pleasing address to the children, also the superintendent, who responded in a very fitting manner. The children who graduated were: Russell McGown, Edith Reebernecker, Harold Bowers, Spencer Jones, Margaret Kay, Leslie Nutting, George Peterson.

The Ladies' Bethany met Tuesday for their first fall meeting. Thirty-six ladies sat down to dinner served by Mrs. Payne, Mrs. Butler and Mrs. Currier. Two new members were added. The ladies planned to hold a sale in December at the home of Mrs. McIntosh, Stone avenue. The pastor and his wife were present at the dinner, after a summer at Oak Bluffs.

The Home for Aged People in Winchester comes to our citizens in general, once in every two or three years, with a request for contributions toward its support. Two years ago it conducted a Rummage Sale, toward which our people afforded both goods and buyers. On Saturday of next week, the 17th inst., the whole town will be invited to participate in a Tag Day enterprise for the benefit of the Home. Much money has been raised in various cities and towns near us, for like causes, by this method, and it is hoped that the Home may be given a new replenishing next week. Everybody will be given an opportunity to buy and wear a souvenir tag, and the Home, for which years at least are steadily qualifying us all, will be still further supported.

Edward Smalley of Cross street has a mattress exhibit at the Food Fair, Boston

The quarterly meeting of the Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. will be held Tuesday, Oct. 13th, at the home of Mrs. Newth at 3 p. m. A full attendance is desired.

At the meeting of Aberjona Council, No. 1002, Royal Arcanum, Tuesday evening, S. Deputy Grand Regent E. D. Byron and suite, paid an official visit, also Angel's Haven No. 3 was present. One applicant was initiated, after which the meeting was turned over to the Orator, G. F. Arnold, who gave an address of welcome to the visitors and called upon Deputy Bryon and Commander Potter of the Argels, and others for speeches, after which the company proceeded to the banquet hall where a collation was served. There were ten councils represented, including Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Pennsylvania.

TO ELECT CAPTAIN OF TEAM

The railroad commissioners have announced that the express rates now charged by the Adams and American companies are excessive and unreasonable. The complainants to the commissioners were the Merchants association and others of Boston. It now remains to be seen whether these express companies will go back to reasonable and fair rates, or having a monopoly, continue to squeeze the people.

Mr. Francis C. McGrath, well known to Winchester people as the ticket agent at the centre station, and Miss Delia A. Connolly of Woburn were united in marriage on Sunday evening at St Charles Church in that city by Fr. Fagan. The best man was Mr. Philip H. O'Brien and the bridesmaid Miss Lucy Moran, both of Woburn. Upon their return from their wedding journey they will reside in Woburn.

An interesting smoker is promised at the Winchester Boat Club this evening, with Samuel J. Elder, Esq., as the speaker. This will probably be the last entertainment with the exception of one dance at the Club this season, as the date of closing has been set for Oct. 19th. Mr. Elder has few equals as a speaker and a large attendance is anticipated.

Letter to Geo. Carter.

Winchester, Mass.

Dear Sir: Mr. N. Avery, Delhi, N. Y. had two houses exactly alike, and painted them: one Devoe lead-and-zinc; the other barytes and zinc. He paid same price for both paints.

He used six gallons of lead-and-zinc, 12 gallons barytes-and-zinc.

He paid $18 for painting lead-and-zinc, $36 for painting barytes-and-zinc.

The total cost of the lead-and-zinc job was $27; the total cost of the barytes-and zinc job was $54.

He didn't know he was buying barytes; the dealer told him that paint was as good as Devoe.

A fair example of how it generally comes-out, when you buy "something just as good." Better go by the name; the name; and the name is Devoe.

Yours truly

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES.

EPWORTH LEAGUE NOTES.

The rally service last Sunday evening was a very interesting one. A very good audience greeted Miss Freeman, and she held their attention, as what she said was direct, convincing and uplifting. Though not possessing a large voice, she could be heard distinctly to the last seat. Mr. Arthur Rebethge presided at the organ and Mrs. Jennie Larson and Miss Anna M. Redding rendered solos. The pastor, Rev. John R. Chaffee, assisted the President, Mr. George Davidson, in conducting the service.

The first rehearsal for the old maids convention was held on Tuesday evening, and a fine start was made. Those taking part were convulsed with laughter, as the different parts were given a first reading. The next rehearsal will be on Monday, Oct. 12.

On Thursday evening, was held the first of a series of business meetings and socials combined. They will not occur each month and though few in number, will increase greatly in interest. Twenty-five new members were taken in at that meeting. Music by Mrs. William Kingston, Paul Dotten and Leslie Goffe, and the refreshments, in charge of the social department, added much to the pleasure of the company.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY.

The all day sewing meeting held in the vestry yesterday was to push plans and work on the Annual fair, which they hold each year, and this year is to occur on Dec. 11 and 12. Never have the ladies of the church made such elaborate plans as this year. The friends of the Methodist Episcopal Church will please note the date.

The Sunday school rally which will be held Oct. 15 is in the interest of good attendance, and only those who are present on Sunday in their respective classes will be invited to sit down at the supper the following Thursday evening. Come next Sunday and receive the ribbon, which only will entitle you to the feast on Thursday evening, Oct. 19.

Mrs. Lorenzo Hall has returned here after an absence of ten years, during which time she resided in Walpole.

Mrs. Moses Richardson is still very ill from her recent fall and confined to her bed with the services of a trained nurse.

ESTABLISHED 1854.

In selecting furs about which your personal knowledge is necessarily limited it is always safest to purchase from a responsible dealer who has a reputation earned by years of testing to maintain, and who does not desire and cannot afford to treat you unfairly.

For nearly fifty years we have been established in Boston as manufacturers of High Grade Furs, collecting the skins from all over the world and making them into every conceivable kind of fur attire.

This long experience in satisfying the needs of the most discriminating persons, has taught us how to give the largest possible value for every dollar expended with us.

All of our garments are fashioned after the latest Paris and London styles and are guaranteed in every respect to give perfect satisfaction, and to be superior to other fur garments when price, quality and workmanship are considered.

This is why shrewd fur buyers prefer to deal with a long established house whose entire business is centered in one location and whose workrooms are always open to inspection.

All we ask is for you to call and then decide where to purchase.

How Much Does it Cost to Light a Match

ELECTRICITY is cheaper than matches for closets.

You generally want a light in a closet for a second or two.

1000 matches cost five cents. A 4 candle power lamp costs for 1,000 "lights" less than one fifth of one cent, now that the electric prices have been cut.

You need not even stop to think of the danger from matches and the trouble in lighting them when costs are compared.

It has made a large difference all along the line—the reduction in electric prices. Everybody should—nearly everybody is—getting in Edison light these days. It would surprise you to see the figures on the number of new applications we received last month.

All these are needed to help out our reduced income due to the lower prices.

If you are already a customer you now have the advantage of our Department of Illuminating Engineering. Its purpose is to give you more useful light without increasing your consumption of Electricity or help you cut your bills without decreasing your present useful light.

Either way we are satisfied if you are pleased.

Here you are treated with the same courtesy whether you buy or not, as you would receive in the best retail stores.

A GREAT FOOD FAIR.

The claim made by the management of the 2d Annual New England Food Fair and House Furnishing Exposition, which opened at Mechanics Building, Boston, October 5, and which will continue to the 31st, that $100,000 will be spent for free attractions can easily be believed when one considers the list of free features already announced. The exhibition of trained animals of Frank G. Bostock is more than worth the price of admission so to are the concerts given by the celebrated Mexican Band de Palicia, the finest musical organization in the country; the moving picture show; the great Mexican exhibit which contains the largest foreign display ever made in this country. These are only a few of the many attractions that will require a half dozen visits to see. It is the greatest and most interesting food fair ever given in Boston, and no one should miss attending it.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

There is a humor and liveliness to Clyde Fitch's comedies that makes every one of them a pleasurable entertainment. One of his best is "The Stubborness of Geraldine" and it will be given at the Castle Square during the coming week, beginning with a Monday matinee.

The John Craig Stock Company will be especially adapted to bring out all the romance and humor in this play. Mr. Craig will have the leading role of Count Kinsky. The vivacity and sprightliness of the Girl from Butte will have an admirable representative in Mary Young, and Mary Hall has been especially engaged to play the role of Geraldine Lang. The entire cast will be a lengthy one, and it will include Minnette Cleveland as Mrs. Wrighton, Mabel Colcord as Fraulein Handt, Theodore Friebus as Mr. Wrighton, Donald Meek as Lord Tilbury, William Evarts as Mr. Jars, Kate Ryan as Mrs. Jars, George Hassell as Mr. Crager, besides many other competent characters necessary to fill out the lengthy dramatis personae.

It should be remembered that the matinees are given every day in the week at the Castle Square, and that they are especially attractive to playgoers who are unable to attend the theatre in the evening.

Miss Elizabeth Spencer of the Prince school, who has been away on leave of absence owing to sickness, is expected back about the first of November.

THOMAS W. LAWSON INJURED WHILE DRIVING

Mr. Thomas W. Lawson and his daughter "Bunny" had a very narrow escape from serious injury in a driving accident at Scituate on Saturday, when their horse became frightened by two automobiles and threw them from the carriage. Miss Bunny Lawson, who was driving the horse at the time of the accident, was unhurt, her escape from the flying heels of the animal being almost miraculous, but Mr. Lawson was rendered unconscious and badly shaken up.

It was between 4 and 5 o'clock when Mr. Lawson and Miss Bunny were riding behind Glorious Duggie, one of the prize horses of the Lawson stable that two autos dashed up behind on Beach street, just opposite the North Scituate station. The horse shied and before Miss Lawson could get control of him he had made a dash to one side of the street.

The phaeton was thrown against the station platform, the wheels became tied, and, powerless to do anything, both Miss Lawson and Mr. Lawson were hurled out when the vehicle was overturned. Both were caught under the phaeton.

Mr. Lawson was rendered unconscious by the fall and lay beneath the vehicle as the horse plunged and kicked furiously. Miss Lawson, while badly shaken, escaped the horse's heels.

Reginald Shea, who keeps a store across the street from where the accident occurred, rushed to the assistance of Mr. Lawson, and grabbing him by the feet, dragged him clear of the horse's hoofs. The animal then kicked himself clear of the overturned phaeton and dashed for home.

Mr. Lawson was carried into a nearby house and restoratives applied. Then he was hastened to "Dreamwold" in a passing auto.

FIRST ANNIVERSARY ON MONDAY.

Mr. John J Doherty, proprietor of the Winchester Shoe Store, will reach his first year of business in this town on Monday. During the year passed Mr. Doherty has experienced a constantly increasing patronage, and his line of shoes, boots and rubbers is unequalled. He will offer some specially fine bargains to his customers on Monday.

JUSTICE.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

We notice with much pride the promptness of our police in dragging the Italians into court, and having them fined, when they attempt to build barns on the Lord's Day. It is well to have foreigners know our great appreciation of the law. "Example is better than precept," and we can but wonder whether these Italians have not been taking lessons from some Americans among us—not by any means poor people—who, year by year, put up stormporches, mend autos, burn leaves, etc., on Sundays. Can it be that we have one law for Italians and another for Americans? JUSTICE.

AUTO STRUCK CARRIAGE.

Last evening at about 8 o'clock an automobile driven by Frank D. Kendall, son of Mr. Charles E. Kendall, when coming out of Glen road onto Cambridge street collided with a carriage occupied by Joseph Buckley of Arlington and his driver. The carriage was badly wrecked and the occupants thrown out, Mr. Buckley having three ribs broken and his companion badly bruised. Neither of the occupants of the automobile were injured. Mr. Buckley had been visiting his brother, Dr. William Buckley the veterinary of Cambridge street.

SIMON J. CALLAHAN.

Simon J. Callahan died Tuesday at his home on Richardson street. He was 43 years old, and was born in the town of Peabody. He was a currier by occupation. He leaves a wife and three sons: James, Stephen and Joseph. Funeral services were held Thursday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Church, conducted by Fr. Walter J. Roche. The bearers were four brothers of the deceased—John J., James H., George J. and Thomas Callahan. The burial was in Calvary Cemetery.

W. H. S. NOTES.

At the regular monthly meeting of the association, George LeDuc resigned his office as purchasing agent. Robert Hamilton was elected as his successor.

Edmund Cottle was appointed assistant manager of the foot ball team.

George LeDuc was appointed manager of the basket ball team. All the members of last years team have returned and there is no reason why they should not hold their own with any team around and make it the most successful season we ever had.

John Welch '08 has returned to school to take a post graduate course.

Ervin Small and Ove Mortensen have come back to complete their studies.

The foot-ball team plays its first game today with Melrose in that town. During the past week scrimmages have been held daily and great improvement has been shown in the work of all the players. There has not been much interest in foot-ball since 1906, and now that we have a team the support of the whole school will encourage all the players to play harder and do their best.

POULSON—JOHNSON.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Poulson, of 20 Ward street, North Woburn, are enjoying the surprise they worked on their many friends. They intended to be married Friday night, but to the surprise of their many friends they were told by the newlyweds that they married during the week.

Where they were married they did not divulge, and they are thoroughly enjoying the mystification of their friends.

Mr. Poulson is employed at the Harry Clarke patent leather factory, North Woburn.

The bride was formerly Miss Minnie Johnson of Winchester.—Woburn News.

FOOD FAIR.

Some wise man once declared that facts were stubborn things. Certainly they are realities and have got to be reckoned with in all sorts of endeavors, great or small, through life. Sometimes facts are decidedly pleasant; again they are of a disagreeable sort and grate harshly upon one's sensibilities.

Here are some facts regarding Mechanics Building, Boston, one of the largest exposition buildings in America. In this building will be held from October 5 to October 31, the greatest food fair ever held in America. It will contain the greatest number of exhibitors. It will also have the greatest number of attractions, at a cost of over $100,000 or over five times more than the total cost of any previous food fair held in Boston.

The Mexican National Band alone is twice the size of, and will cost double that spent for any musical attractions at any previous food fair or exposition held in Boston.

The expense to produce the Frank C. Bostock Consolidated Trained Wild Animal Arena, a combination of the Bostock shows from Earl's Court, London, England, and from Bostock's Dreamland, Coney Island, N. Y., and the feeding of the 500 animals, will be over $1200 per day.

All of these attraction, with a host of others, are free to all.

Town Clerk Green of Stoneham has a most complete system of keeping the town books. He has indexed, in a system of his own, all the town affairs back to the time the town was incorporated, and has valuable historical data. He is also treasurer of the Stoneham Co-operative bank and has established a system of bookkeeping, especially his ledger, which brought forth compliments from the bank examiners.—[Boston Record.

While working with Davidson the plumber last week John Bellew of Mt. Pleasant street, Woburn, had the top of the forefinger on his left hand cut off by catching it in a cog wheel.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

AN IDEAL TICKET

Draper and Frothingham Nominated by Republicans

Brief Sketches of Candidates For Governor and Lieutenant Governor

In presenting to the people of Massachusetts the Hon. Eben S. Draper of Hopedale as its candidate for governor, the Republican party honors itself as much as it honors the man.

Mr. Draper has served three years as lieutenant governor of the state, receiving the support of the solid men of both parties, notwithstanding the campaigns of misrepresentation and abuse which he has had to face.

There is no questioning the fact that he has grown steadily in the confidence and respect of the people, and that his high character and ability are beginning to be appreciated all over the state.

Even as lieutenant governor, Mr. Draper has achieved success in a far larger degree than most men who have held the office. It is not a position in which an energetic man has a large field, as most of the real work is done behind closed doors in the sessions of the executive council, and at the meetings of its various committees.

But Lieutenant Governor Draper made up his mind in the beginning that there was work to do, and he did it with the same persistence that has characterized his whole business life. He has been a constant visitor at the state house since he was first chosen to the office and has given careful attention to all the matters which come before the council. To its sessions he has brought a frank opinion, and has been outspoken in all of its deliberations, helping to make the governor's councils for the past three years of real and vital importance to the state.

During his present term Mr. Draper has been called upon to act as governor during the illness of Governor Guild and, although his acts as governor under such circumstances were more or less circumscribed, he held the reins of state in a firm grasp and showed a wide knowledge of men and affairs. His prompt action in starting the relief to the city of Chelsea, after its great conflagration, is characteristic of the man.

Mr. Draper was born in Hopedale, Mass., June 17, 1858, and is therefore in the prime of life. He was educated in the Allen school at West Newton and at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He then entered the machine shops and cotton mills of his father's business, andwas later admitted to the firm of George Draper & Sons. In 1896, when the firm was reorganized into the Draper company, he became its selling agent. He is also a member of the corporation of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, of the Peter Bent Brigham hospital, the Milford hospital and a director in many business enterprises.

In political matters Mr. Draper was well known prior to his first selection as lieutenant governor in the fall of 1905. He served as chairman of the Republican state committee in 1892, and in 1896 was chairman of the Massachusetts delegation to the Republican national convention and, as such, was instrumental in securing the passage of the gold standard resolution. In 1900 he was the presidential elector in the Eleventh district. He has also served as president of the Republican Club of Massachusetts, and is a member of the Norfolk, Middlesex and Massachusetts clubs.

Moreover, Lieutenant Governor Draper is a cultivated gentleman, a lover of literature and a patron of art. He has a deep interest in the village of Hopedale, acknowledged to be the best kept and architecturally the most beautiful manufacturing town in New England. He has traveled extensively, is polished in manner and a most genial companion, known far and wide as an example of the best type of a New England business man.

With such a man as its candidate for the high office of governor, the Republican party confidently appeals to the voters of the commonwealth of Massachusetts, in the full assurance that such an intelligent electorate will not allow this opportunity to pass of securing for the constantly increasing business of the state such an able business man as Mr. Draper has proved himself to be.

And the times demand a strong executive at the head of our state government. The legislative tendency is towards increasing the expense as well as enlarging the functions of government by the state, and Mr. Draper, through his work in the executive council and through his wide acquaintance throughout the state, is amply and especially well fitted to continue the work.

After a hard, though entirely friendly contest for the honor, the Republican party has selected as its candidate for lieutenant governor the Hon. Louis A. Frothingham of Boston, a man universally conceded to be in every respect a fit running mate for the head of the ticket.

He was born in Jamaica Plain, July 13, 1871, of old New England stock long noted for its sturdy honesty and good citizenship. As a boy he received his education in the public schools of Boston, supplementing this by fitting for college at the Adams academy in Quincy. He entered Harvard in 1889 and almost immediately became a popular figure in the university. He was a scholar in all the best sense of the word, but he was more than that, he took part in all the social activities in the college and he soon won a prominent place in athletics, being one of the best captains and baseball players ever turned out at Cambridge.

Mr. Frothingham studied law at the Harvard law school, graduating from that institution in 1896, and immediately began the practice of his profession.

In the Spanish-American war he served as second lieutenant, U. S. M. C., having command of the marine guard on the U. S. steamer Yankee in Cuban waters, and his record in that position was quite typical of the man, for he was a good officer and at the same time a popular comrade.

It was not long before the attraction of politics began to appeal to the young lawyer, and at the age of 30 he was elected to the Massachusetts legislature. There, as elsewhere, his native ability and energy soon made him a marked figure. He began to be considered a man of influence. He got good committee appointments. In 1902, his second year, he was made house chairman of the committee on taxation as well as a member of the committee on banks and banking.

In 1903 he served as chairman of the street railways committee, and at that time was so prominent that he was considered for the speakership of the house and in 1904 he was elected to that high office, being re-elected unanimously in 1905. No speaker was more popular or highly respected. Mr. Frothingham displayed an immense amount of energy in the chair and under his administration business was expedited as it had not been for decades before. In his second term as speaker the session comprised but 143 days, the shortest session for twenty-five years.

Mr. Frothingham's record as a lawmaker was admirable. He was always to be found on the side of good order and the best interests of every citizen of the commonwealth. He was the introducer of the resolve which led to the revision of the corporation laws, a very much needed and useful reform. He was the first to introduce a bill providing for laws governing the conduct of trust companies. He was always and is today a constant advocate of general instead of special or class legislation.

In the fall of 1905 he abandoned further service in the legislature at the call of duty, and accepted the Republican nomination for mayor of Boston. The story of that campaign is well known to all, and his defeat for that office added new lustre to his character and proved him to be a man who put public duty in a higher place than personal ambition.

As a citizen apart from the practice of politics Mr. Frothingham stands high in many walks of life. He is a member of the board of overseers of Harvard university, being the youngest man in that body. He is president of the Blackstone Savings bank and has various other interests, yet amidst all his wide variety of duties he practices law with conspicuous success. He is tolerant, broad-minded and considerate of the views and feelings of others. He is a typical Massachusetts citizen of the best and most highly respected kind and those who know him well are firm in their belief that he will adorn any office to which he may be called.

His acquaintance with the needs of the state, through his long service as a member and as speaker of the house of representatives, and his public spirit in sacrificing himself as a Republican candidate for mayor of Boston, three years ago, are ample evidence that in its nomination of Mr. Frothingham for lieutenant governor the Republican party still maintains its proud record of excellence and continues its high standards of the past.

Football Season Here

During the month of October every eye is turned toward the oval

Our purpose in advertising in this space is to turn the eyes of everybody during the whole year toward the "Oval". Of course we mean "Creamalt" - the oval loaf.

For beauty of shape and for delicious aroma of flavor, you won't "tackle" anything in the class of Creamalt. It's the only Oval people never "kick" at. Game starts next time you eat.

Miss Lillian Ross, 530 East 84th Street, New York, writes: "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound overcame irregularities, periodic suffering, and nervous headaches, after everything else had failed to help me, and I feel it a duty to let others know of it."

Katharine Craig, 2355 Lafayette St., Denver, Col., writes: "Thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I am well, after suffering for months from nervous prostration."

Miss Marie Stoltzman, of Laurel, Ia., writes: "I was in a run-down condition and suffered from suppression, indigestion, and poor circulation. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me well and strong."

Miss Ellen M. Olson, of 417 N. East St., Kewanee, Ill., says: "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me of backache, side ache, and established my periods, after the best local doctors had failed to help me."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Telephone Talks

Keep in touch with the world — and see to it that the world may keep in touch with you.

Party-Liners And the Golden Rule

Party line telephone subscribers virtually are co-tenants. They jointly pay for a single telephone line.

If they were co-tenants of a building they would be careful not to infringe upon the rights of others. That same regard for the equities should keep them from infringing by appropriating to themselves more telephone service than can be exacted as their fair share of the capacity of that line.

Lengthy conversations on unimportant matters, the prattling intercourse of children, phonograph concerts, and the like—these sometimes congest party lines and give cause for protest from other tenants in common.

A party line telephone has been likened to a spur track on a main line of railroad. But there is this important qualification—when the telephone spur track is in use, the entire main line is closed to traffic, not merely to the other spur tracks on the line, but also to incoming trains consigned to any part of the line.

Ordinary regard for the principle of the Golden Rule will do more to avert party line difficulties than all the rules any telephone company may promulgate.

Before Buying a Home

Stop and consider. Have you perfect confidence in your ability to judge for yourself as to location, values, etc.?

If not, or even though you have, it will pay you to consult this agency. For many years we have made a careful study of Winchester real estate.

Our time, our facilities and our counsel are at your service for the asking and you will find them of much value to you.

When you make a deal through us we attend to all those "little" things that are so likely to be overlooked by inexperienced buyers.

BE SAFE

Don't take the chance of being exceedingly sorry some day because you neglected to properly safeguard your property by covering it well with insurance.

Fire insurance costs so little in comparison with the amount of damage you might sustain in a fire that it is the height of folly to run any risk whatever.

This agency will put you in a first class company and it not only writes fire insurance, but Burglary and Liability insurance as well.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

During the thick fog of Monday morning a loaded market wagon owned by a farmer from Lowell was tipped over at Symmes corner and a quantity of vegetables damaged. The driver could not see where he was going on account of the fog. He lost his bearings at Symmes corner and ran into the watering trough, and in trying to turn out, the horses turned too sharp and tipped his team over in the street. With the help of several men employed on Symmes' farm the team was righted and what was left of the vegetables was packed on and the driver started again.

There seems something doing in the base ball line between Winchester and North Woburn. Now if Winchester has a team that can compete on equal terms with North Woburn we move that it be admitted to that mythical league which Harris Dolbeare of Wakefield, Michael Meagher Jr., of Woburn, editors in these places, and the sporting editor of The Chronicle have formed on paper and which is going to materialize sometime in the sweet bye and bye.—[Reading Chronicle.

Special meetings will be held in the Second Congregational Church, Cross street, on October 13, 14, 15 and 16 at 8 p. m. The speakers will be the Rev. Thomas Sims of Braintree, the Rev. A. R. Atwood of Quincy, the Rev. Edgar C. Wheeler of Rockland, and another speaker to be announced. The music will be under the charge of Mrs. W. H. Corliss, Mrs. John Park, and Mrs. Richard Taylor. The speakers will be well worth hearing, on themes that relate to the deepening of the religious life and a better preparation for Christian service. The public generally is cordially invited to attend.

ARTHUR E. WHITNEY
Nominee of Democratic party for Representative, and who has declined to serve.

ARTHUR E. WHITNEY NOMINATED.

At the Democratic Representative Convention held at West Medford last week Thursday evening, Mr. Arthur E Whitney was nominated for the lower branch of the Legislature, to represent this district. He has declined the nomination.

SECOND ATTEMPT AT INCENDIARYISM.

A second attempt to set fire to the old McCall estate on Park avenue was discovered on Sunday night by Officer Harrold. He rang in an alarm from Box 31 at about 2 o'clock. When driver Michael Nagle of Hose 3 approached the box he saw a man going down the street and immediately gave chase, having his mind on the $100 reward offered by the Selectmen for the arrest of persons found guilty of pulling in false alarms. His chase was without results however, as the persued man was Officer Harrold, who was also looking for firebugs. The blaze was in the billiard house at the rear of the estate and was quickly extinguished.

CRIPPLE HAS HANDS.

The crippled workingman, for whom subscriptions have been in order to furnish him with a pair of artificial hands to replace his own lost through an accident, has received the artificial members. In connection with the matter, Mrs. Edgar M. Young, through whose energy and efforts the charity has been accomplished, states that the article published in a Boston paper saying that Medford people had furnished the funds necessary for the hands was erroneous, and that outside of Gen. Samuel Lawrence, no contribution had been received from that city. Following is the list of contributions received to date:

Previously acknowledged	$31 00
Junior Charity Club	10 00
Mrs. F. B. Tracy	1.00
Mrs. Fred Farrow	1.00
Appreciation	1 00
A Friend	1.00
Total	$45 00

The manufacturer of the artificial hands has made a further reduction in his price for the work, bringing the cost down to $75, and of this amount the $45 has been paid. Mrs. Young expects to realize the remaining $30 within a short time.

HANDICRAFT SOCIETY.

The first regular meeting of the Handicraft Society will be held in the High school (room 13) Friday, Oct. 23d, from three to six in the afternoon. There will be an informal talk on weaving, illustrated by a practical demonstration on the loom and many interesting examples of finished work. Refreshments will be served by the committee in charge, and it is hoped that the men of the Society will be able to drop in for a short time at least on their way home from business.

Similar meetings will be held every month during the coming season (sometimes in the afternoon, sometimes in the evening) and by them it is hoped to stimulate a greater interest in the Society's work and promote better acquaintance among individual members.

The committee in charge of these monthly gatherings consists of Mrs. Allan E. Boone, Mrs. Rufus Crowell, Mrs. Leicester K. Ely, Mrs. Henry L. Houghton, Mrs. Frederick H. Means, Mrs. Hermann D. Murphy and Mrs. Sylvester Taylor.

MR. ELDER'S TALK.

The smoker at the Winchester Boat Club last Friday evening proved to be fully as interesting and entertaining to the large audience gathered in the spacious hall as have the other entertainments held there this season. The chief attraction of the evening was the talk by Samuel J. Elder, Esq., and at the close of his remarks the seventy odd persons who comprised the audience were thoroughly satisfied that they had listened to one of the most entertaining talks yet given by that gentleman.

Mr. Elder chose as his subject in general "transportation," citing the canoe as the first method of transportation. From that he led up in a most interesting way to the present means of conveyance as embodied in our magnificent ocean liners and railroad trains.

During the evening the steward of the club, Mr. James Cooper, was presented a purse of fifty dollars by president P. G. Gray as a token of appreciation from the members of the club for his efficient and painstaking labor during the summer. Mr. Cooper, who has filled the position most capably, and who is universally liked among the club members, accepted the unexpected gift and thanked the donors in a short speech.

The dance at the club this Saturday evening will close the season on the lake.

WINCHESTER COUNTRY CLUB DEFEATED.

Twenty one members of the Winchester Country Club visited the Vesper club at Lowell on Saturday, and in a team match with that club were defeated. The Vesper golf team beat the Winchester players, 16 to 5 in the team match which was at the Tyngs island links. The conditions of the match are that the teams of 20 men each, plus the professional of each team, must play alternately in Tyngsboro and Winchester an 18-hole match. The trophy, valued at $100, will become property of the team winning three times.

The Winchester players were accompanied by members of their club and a dinner was given in their honor at the clubhouse following the play. The summary of the match.

THE FORTNIGHTLY PHILANTHROPIES.

THE VACATION PLAYROOM.

The number of our people who have shown themselves interested in the effort to help those children who must spend their summers in Winchester has been so encouragingly large that The Fortnightly feels no hesitancy in again presenting to the public an opportunity to do a deed of philanthrophy and at the same time give one's own self a pleasure of no common order. On alternate Wednesday afternoons, beginning Nov. 4, Mr. Leon H. Vincent will give a course of three delightful lectures upon Franklin, Hawthorne and Lowell. To those who have been fortunate enough to have heard this most interesting speaker nothing need be said in recommendation, and all others may be most confidently assured that a rare treat is before them. The Fortnightly again maintains its record of bringing to our town the best in all lines.

Tickets for the Vincent lectures may be obtained from any member of the Philanthrophy Committee at $1 for the course to those who are not members of The Fortnightly; 75 cents to members. Admission to one lecture 50 cents.

It is hoped he the Club that an addition may be made to its philanthropic work in the form of a scholarship fund which may enable deserving pupils of our schools to obtain higher development in any lines in which they may show special aptitude. To do this it is necessary to support very loyally the efforts made to increase the fund available for such uses.

PARISH OF THE EPIPHANY.

The Woman's Guild will meet Tuesday afternoon at the usual hour at Mrs. Walter Cummings, 7 Cabot street. The meeting is in charge of the Vestments committee.

The Epiphany Circle, and the Choir club resume their meeting in November.

It is the wish and suggestion of the Rector that Sunday, Nov. 1, two weeks from next Sunday, being All Saints Day, should be made a Fall Rally day for the whole parish. Every member of the parish is asked to make a careful plan to be present at least at one of the services of that day.

Kindly save your cast off clothing, especially children's, and anything useful, for the rummage sale to be held soon in Winchester. Particulars next week. A card addressed to Mrs. E. L. Dunning, 24 Vine street, will bring an expressman for your goods. Methodists please note.

LICENSE REVOKED.

J. A. Laraway the Plumber and Board of Health Differ.

At a meeting of the Board of Health last Friday evening it was voted to revoke the permit of J. A. Laraway to do plumbing in this town. The trouble arose because Mr. Laraway in connecting the soil pipe of a house with the sewer, used some old pipe that had been used to connect with a cesspool. The old pipe is not as heavy as that demanded by the plumbing rules and regulations of the town. The Board contends that when the soil pipe was changed from the cesspool to the sewer, it should have been replaced by the heavy pipe. Mr. Laraway, who used several lengths of the old pipe in connection with the new in the work, contends that the heavier pipe applies only in cases of new work and that merely changing the line of pipe does not require new material.

When the Inspector of plumbing looked over the work, he notified Mr. Laraway that he would have to take out the sections of old pipe and replace it with what the town regulations demand, and gave him two days in which to decide whether he would make the required change. Mr. Laraway told the Inspector that he would not take out the old pipe. The Board of Health on being notified summoned him to appear before it which he did last week Monday. The Board heard his contention that the regulation did not apply to alterations of plumbing but to new work. The Chairman of the Board then read the regulations to him, and gave him until the following Thursday to make the change. This not being done, the Board at a meeting held last Friday evening, revoked his license. The matter appears to be a difference of opinion that may be taken to court for settlement.

The town by-law read as follows: "Sec. 9. These regulations shall apply to all new plumbing work hereafter constructed in the town. Alterations made in plumbing already in use must, in the future, be in accord with these regulations, and such alterations shall be ordered by the Board of Health whenever in their opinion they judge it necessary for the public health and safety. It will be so judged when after the examination by the Inspector any old plumbing is found to be defective."

Under Sec. 5, the regulation says, "Such cast iron pipes and fittings, whether used for soil, waste or vent pipes shall be plain 'extra heavy' cast iron."

The pipe prescribed for sewer connections is 4-inch, 13 pounds to the foot. The old pipe which the Board objects to weighs about one half per foot. Scores of houses in Winchester are using the lighter pipe, and if the contention of the Board is sustained, whenever alterations are made in the sewer pipe, the heavier weight will have to be used.

The Inspector has the power to revoke a permit as per Sec. 4, which reads, "Should the plumber fail for a period of two days to remedy any defects that may have been pointed out to him by the Inspector, he shall not be granted any further permits until action is taken by the Board of Health."

The Board has authority to act under the general statutes.

A VERY PLEASANT EVENING.

Members of William Parkman Lodge, A. F. & A. M., had a very pleasant evening after the close of the Lodge Tuesday evening. For the first time in many years the members had the privilege of enjoying an evening of relaxation and fun, the prime mover in the arrangements being Grand Master Frank F. Carpenter. About seventy-five members were present including many affiliated Masons residing in this town. The entertainer was Walter Eccles and his repertoire included recitations, both humorous and serious, monologues and song, in all of which he proved to be an artist and an admirable entertainer. He was assisted on the piano by F. Percyval Lewis, the well known music teacher.

At the conclusion of the progam, refreshments consisting of ice cream, cake and punch were served followed by cigars. It is intended, when an opportunity arrives, to have another entertainment. Also, later in the season there will be a ladies' night.

THE WINCHESTER MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION.

The October meeting of the Mothers Association will be held in the Mothers' Room No. 30, High School building, on Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 21, promptly at 3 o'clock.

There should be a very large attendance, to hear Miss Laura Fisher (principal of the training school for kindergartners, Boston,) speaks on the subject of "The Common Faults of Children." New comers are especially invited to attend and to join the Association. It is a non-sectarian association, including all mothers and teachers, and any who have to do with children—meeting once a month, on each third Wednesday: and offering,—besides subjects of interest to all,—a social hour with refreshments, and the use of helpful books,—all for the nominal fee of .25 per year.

Notice date, please—Wednesday, Oct. 21, 3 p. m.

In November there will be an evening social meeting for all fathers and mothers of pupils of the public schools and their teachers. Date to be announced later.

MORE IMPROVEMENTS.

The Directors of the Winchester Improvement Association held a meeting on Thursday evening last at which time several matters of importance to the town were thoroughly discussed and placed in the hands of different committees, who will in due time endeavor to remedy the defects. The most important matter which they considered was the advertising signs or bill boards which are so conspicuously situated in various parts of the town. The committee under whose care this matter would come headed by Mr. Robert Coit as chairman, are to make a survey of the town and make a list of all the bill boards which come to their notice and then the association will take up the matter and see what can be done toward their elimination.

There were several other matters of importance which came before the directors, the subjects of which cannot now be given to the public, but have been placed in the hands of committees and upon which a report will appear later. The Board of Directors for this association would hereby call attention to the members of the corporation and townspeople to the fact that the board of directors for this organization would deem it a great favor if those living in Winchester would notify the Secretary, Mr. Charles A. Lane of any matters or conditions prevailing in Winchester which may come to their attention and which in their judgment can be handled by the Improvement Association to advantage. By doing this the directors will then have brought to them matters which might otherwise escape their attention, and fulfill the purpose for which the organization was formed.

ELIZABETH D. CHAPIN.

Miss Elizabeth Dwight Chapin, for the past 60 years a resident of this town, passed away at her home on Church street yesterday. She had been in failing health for the past two years, and on Saturday last she suffered a shock from which she never rallied. She was in her 74th year.

Elizabeth D. Chapin was probably as greatly beloved as any woman in Winchester, both for her numerous charities and her kindly ways. She was born in the Sandwich Islands, her parents—Alonzo and Mary A. (Tenney) Chapin—being among the earliest of the medical missionaries sent by the American Board to the Sandwich—now Hawaiian—Islands. Sixty years ago she came with them to this town. For a time after taking up his residence here her father practiced medicine, and both her parents died in this town. Miss Chapin leaves no immediate relatives. She was a cousin of the late Isabel Tenney, a former well known resident.

She was an active and devoted member of the First Congregational Church and the societies connected with it. At the time of her death she was treasurer of the Ladies Western Missionary Society, which office she had held for the past 25 years. She was previously the visitor of the church, and her charities and kindness will long be remembered by many persons in Winchester.

Funeral services will be held at the First Congregational Church, on this Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, conducted by Rev. D. Augustine Newton. The burial will be in Wildwood.

HONORING THE AGED.

Seventeen years ago the pastor of the First Congregational Church introduced the custom of a special Sunday service for the aged and elderly. The custom has met with favor from the beginning. Next Sunday morning at 10.30 a. m. will occur another observance of these services to which every one, especially the aged, are invited. The pastor will preach and the choir will render special selections entitled "The Parable of the Harvest," "O Jesus Thou Art Standing," In Heavenly Love Abiding," and there will be a "Hymn of Gratitude," written for the occasion by Mr. Alpheus Bowers. Come. Collection for Home for Aged People in Winchester.

Messrs. Fred L. Symmes and B. T. Morgan, while on their way home late Tuesday night, encountered a muskrat on Main street. After a sharp combat they succeded in killing it.

THE FESTIVAL OF THE SEASONS.

The Town Hall was the scene of a merry company on Saturday afternoon last, when the postponed May Party of the Ladies' Friendly Society took the form of a "Festival of the Seasons" and an interested audience gathered to witness the dainty program prepared for their pleasure. Such a charming host of little people is seldom seen, and a happier assemblage it is hard to imagine. The hall, decorated with the rich coloring of autumnal foliage, was a pleasing setting for the dainty raiment and exquisite coloring of the little folks there. The grand march led by Alice Cutting and Guy Messenger served to give every child who chose an opportunity to join and feel himself a real part of the afternoon's pleasure. Derby Weston as a robust Teddy Bear did valiant service as a program announcer and served to enliven the hour much to the joy of all, from the youngest to the oldest. The beautiful cards which he so accommodatingly displayed were the work of May Whitten and Katharine Fiske, being each decorated with flowers appropriate to the season named.

The Queen of the Seasons appeared led by a gallant knight and attended by tiny pages and dainty flower girls, all most becomingly arrayed. The crowning of the Queen was then accomplished. The Knight, Master Leslie Johnson, sang most acceptably appropriate selections, while Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter appeared to do obeisance to the Queen, all accompanied by fairy-like forms as attendants. One can hardly speak too highly of the childish grace and beauty of the whole performance.

The dance around the May pole was given without an error, and was enthusiastically received, the little maids seeming the personification of youth and joy.

A unique feature of the afternoon was the Jesters' Dance, by the older children, which was so exceedingly well done as to demand an encore. Ice cream was then served the children.

Great credit must be given to Mrs. C. T. Whitten, the chairman of the afternoon, and to her most efficient committee, who have made the occasion such a marked success.

MRS. MALVINA W. SAUNDERS

In the death of Mrs. Malvina W. Saunders who passed away suddenly last Tuesday morning at a hospital in Boston where she had gone a short time before for treatment, we have lost a truly good woman. She had been in poor health for some time, but only her most intimate friends knew of her illness as she was of an uncomplaining nature, and was always cheerful. She was sixty-four years of age, and was born in Waterford, Maine, a daughter of Moses R. and Betsey G. Mason.

Her early life was spent in her native town, but she had resided in Winchester about thirty-five years and they have been years of great usefulness. She was a member and a constant attendant of the First Congregational Church, and Sabbath school, and seldom missed the weekly prayer meeting. The Missionary societies connected with the church will miss her faithful work in their behalf. She was also a member of the Woman Christian Temperance Union. Many in sickness and affliction will remember her kind deeds. She was self sacrificing and was most happy when she was ministering to others. Several years ago her aged father came to Winchester and made his home with his daughter where he was tenderly cared for until his death. She leaves one brother, Mr. Frank Mason of Malden, who has cared for her during her late sickness and was at her bedside when she passed away. Mrs. Saunders was not free from troubles and trials, but she bore them in a Christlike spirit. She was a devoted Christian, upright and honest in all her dealings and we feel sure she is resting from her labors and receiving the reward promised to those who live uprightly.

Farewell services were held in the Congregational Church, Thursday morning conducted by her pastor, Rev. D. A. Newton, who made very appropriate remarks. He spoke of her beautiful Christian life and her devotion and faithfulness to her church and societies connected with it, and at the close read these poems: "The Everlasting Memorial," Horatius Bonar and "Christus Consolator," Miss Jean McLelland rendered very acceptably three solos "Rock of Ages," "Beautiful Home" and "Rest by and by."

A large circle of relatives and friends were present and the floral offerings were very beautiful.

The remains were taken to Nashua for interment.

TUCK CAUSES DEFEAT OF DR. McCARTHY.

At the Democratic Senatorial Convention held at Medford last Saturday evening, Mr. John J. Butler of Wakefield was nominated for Senator. Mr. W. L. Tuck opposed the return of Dr. C. F. McCarthy of this town to the State Committee on the ground that he had neglected his duties as chairman of the town committee by not calling a meeting of this committee. Mr. Tuck nominated in his place Thomas E. Dwyer of Wakefield who was elected by the vote of nine to five for Dr. McCarthy.

MARY B. O'LOUGHLIN.

Miss Mary Bridget O'Loughlin of this town, died at her home on Saturday after a long and lingering sickness. She was 60 years of age. Her death was caused by a stomach trouble. For the past seventeen years Miss O'Loughlin had resided on Shawmut avenue, Boston, she coming to Winchester three weeks ago.

Funeral services, which were private were held from St. Mary's Church on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, conducted by Fr. Rogers. The burial was in Calvary cemetery.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Miss Elizabeth Spencer, principal of the Prince school, pres.; Benjamin D. May, submaster, of the High school, vice pres.; Robert C. Metcalf, former superintendent of schools, honorary vice pres, Miss Mary A. Lyons, principal of the Chapin school, sec-treas.; Mrs. Inez M. Holcombe, supervisor of sewing, and Arthur P. Briggs, principal of the Wadleigh school, executive committee.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The past few weeks since the opening of the Castle Square Theatre under the management of Messrs. Gulesian and Craig have revealed the fulfillment of their promises to make that house the leading theatre in Boston. Not only have the plays been of the highest class and the greatest popularity, as has been shown by the large audiences that have assembled day after day, but the members of the John Craig Stock Company have demonstrated an all round ability that is exceptional.

For the coming week at the Castle Square one of the most famous of Henry Arthur Jone's celebrated dramas will be offered. The play is "Judah," which the distinguished English actor Edward S. Willard, included in his repertory for many seasons.

The run of "Judah" will be positively limited to one week.

PASTOR'S RECEPTION.

Rev. Mr. Newton and Wife Receive Memcers of their Church.

The first of the series of winter socia's at the First Congregational Church was held on Thursday evening, being a reception to the pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. D. Augustine Newton. Last season the opening social was a reception given by the pastor and his wife at their home on their 25th anniversary, and proved such a successful affair that Mr. and Mrs. Newton opened their home again for that of this year.

The evening was in charge of a large group of ladies of the church under the able direction of Mrs. William A. Snow and Mrs. Charles E. Redfern. Other ladies of the group had various parts of the affair in charge. The house was decorated very tastily with autumn leaves and flowers by Miss Helen A. Pressey.

The hours of the reception were from 7.30 until 10, during which time some 300 members of the church and friends of the pastor and his wife called. The reception room was used for the receiving, and was in charge of Mrs. William A. Snow, Mrs. Charles E. Redfern, Mrs. Joshua Phippen, Mrs. William H. Herrick and Miss Helen A. Pressey. The parlor was in charge of Mrs. Albert A. Sargent and Mrs. Manuel H. Lombard, and in this room were the frappe tables, presided over by Mrs. Allen E. Bouve and Mrs. Frederick Clark. In the dining room, which was under the direction of Mrs. Albert F. Blaisdell and Mrs. Benjamin T. Church, were the tea tables. Mrs. Clarence E. Ordway and Mrs. Maurice C. Thompkins pouring.

During the evening music was given by a ladies orchestra composed of Miss Florence Fletcher violin, Miss Dorothy Fletcher 'cello and Mrs. Ernest L. Bragg, pianist. The evening was one of the most successful yet given by the ladies of the church, and the fact that they were able to hold the evening at the parsonage made it a pleasing innovation, as the other affairs in the series are all given at the church.

Following is the committee of ladies in charge of the evening:

TUESDAY'S FIRES.

On Tuesday noon an alarm of fire was sounded from Box 56 for a brush fire on Cox's Hill on the West Side. The alarm had hardly rung in when another alarm from Box 36 was sounded. The latter fire was in the stable at the rear of the parochial residence of St. Mary's Church, and except that it received prompt attention would have proved serious. Eugene P. Sullivan, who was passing, was called to by the maids, and he found the barn filled with smoke. He located the fire in the cellar, briskly burning about the floor timbers. The cellar was largely filled with ashes, and by throwing these over the flames he succeeded in smothering them. When the department arrived the fire was practically out, although there was much smoke. A stream of water was put on and everything soaked down thoroughly.

The building is very rotten, and when Sullivan broke open a door at the side a part of the wall opened with it. Had the fire burned a few minutes longer it would have assumed serious proportions How it started is not known, but the cellar was used for a dumping place for ashes.

THE FORTNIGHTLY.

The Fortnightly held the first meeting of the season in the Town Hall on Monday afternoon. The business meeting convened at three o'clock, Miss Maude Folts, recording secretary, was absent and Mrs Mary F. B. Woods was appointed secretary pro tem.

The records of the last meeting, May eleventh, were read and approved. Names of new members were announced, also a number of names on the waiting list.

Mention was made of the State Federation meeting to be held at Bridgewater, Nov. 3, to which the club (because of its membership of four hundred) is entitled to send five delegates.

The business meeting was followed by an informal reception, social and tea.

The artistic decorations of autumn leaves, the tea-table, so daintily in its appointments, the soft tints of the many colored dresses the ladies wore, all blending harmoniously together made a pleasing picture to look upon. A spirit of cordial good will and friendliness prevailed, and everyone seemed to be having a thoroughly good time. Mrs. Frank Ripley and Mrs. George Fernald presided at the tea-tables and Mrs. Marden's Orchestra from Medford played during the reception.

Letter to Geo. S. Rice,

Winchester, Mass.

Dear Sir: Some think we take a good deal of risk in inviting complaints of Devoe lead-and-zinc—we authorize our agent to sell it under this guarantee:

"If you have any fault to find with this paint, either now in putting it on, or hereafter in the wear, tell your dealer about it.

"We authorize him to do what is right at our expense."

The following story tells how little the risk is:

J. H. Asher & Co., hardware dealers, Rhinebeck, N. Y., have sold Devoe from '76 to now; have sold thousands of gallons and have had just one complaint in all this time.

Three sides of a house were perfect; the fourth was as bad as the three were good.

Explanation—It rained the night before the fourth side was painted: and the painters didn't wait for the wood to dry.

What is done in such a case? Whatever the dealer, who sold the paint, considers it fair to do. We leave it to him. He may not do exactly what we should do if we were there: but we are not there. The best we can do is to leave it to him.

Yours truly
F W DEVOE & CO

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The week of October 19th will be memorable by the first vaudeville appearance of Annette Kellerman, the woman championship swimmer of the world, who promises to be as big a feature in this new line of work as she has ever been with her remarkable swimming exhibitions. Miss Kellerman will not only give exhibitions of swimming in an enormous tank, but also dancing and diabolo, in the latter of which she holds the championship, which she won in Paris last winter. As a dancer she is also in the front rank, being a woman of great beauty and graceful movement, and coming from a family that has long been associated with this class of work.

The bill will include also a dramatic sketch by Margaret Wycherly and Company called "The Open Door," and it is said to be one of the most intensely dramatic pieces that has been offered in years. Another strong feature will be the Tuscany Troubadours, an act that will be seen here for the first time, and which is a strong musical novelty. The Czarina's Guards is also another new act, put on by a large company amid the most picturesque stage settings. Also on the bill will be San Curtis and Company in one of his characteristic comedy sketches, Fred Watson and the Morrissey Sisters, the Bessie Valdare Troupe, Ed Morton and the special show of pictures, singers, etc.

WARNING TO BOYS WHO OWN SHOT GUNS.

It has been brought to our notice that the young men who own rifles and shot guns in Winchester, have in the past and are still looking for the domestic gray squirrels which afford so much pleasure to the townspeople, as a prey for their weapons, a case occuring within a day or two of two boys in the vicinity of Symmes Corner, who did shoot a gray squirrel on a private estate which is against the law. The names of these boys we have in hand and the matter will be more closely watched in the future and any boy found to be disobedient to the law will be punished according to the same.

COLONIAL THEATRE.

Adeline Genee, the famous dancer from the Empire Theatre, London, who has created sensations wherever she has appeared, is to be seen in Boston for the first time at the Colonial Theatre, commencing Monday, Oct. 19, in F. Ziegfeld, Jr's musical entertainment "The Soul Kiss." The piece which is in two acts and ten scenes enjoyed a phenomenal run of twenty weeks in the New York Theatre last winter.

Mlle Genee, is conspicuous through the entire performance, during which she will present four of the most popular divertisements of her reportoire which will include "The Hunt Dance," "Sir Roger de Coverly" "The Soul Kiss" dance and "The Money Ballet."

The little Danish artiste, has danced, by royal command before the King and Queen of England, Emperor William, Emperor Franz Josef, the Czar and Czarine of Russia, the King and Queen of Italy, the King of Denmark, and many other celebrities. Manager F. Ziegfeld, Jr., has surrounded Genee, with a company numbering one hundred musical comedy entertainers, which includes such popular favorites as Ralph C. Herz, Vera Michelena, John B. Park, Stella Tracy, Barney Bernard, Lee Harrison, Mortimer C. Welden, and the handsomest chorus extant.

Genee's engagement in Boston will be of four week's duration only, and she will not be seen in any other New England city this season.

BUSINESS MEN FOR THE LEGISLATURE.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The hearty mention of the editor of the STAR that his name would be a most acceptable one as a candidate for Representative to the Legislature meets with popular favor. Some one should serve who knows the town of Winchester thoroughly, and certainly Mr. Wilson knows Winchester, its wants and needs as well as anyone in town. Too long this highly honored office has been in the control of a little committee of politicians who pass it around to a favored few and all the public has to do in the matter is confirm the choice of the committee or "go hang." Representatives should be voted upon directly at election town meetings without the intervention of any committee whatever. There are many good men in town besides Mr. Wilson who would accept the office of Representative as a great honor, provided they did not have to personally work for it or crawl in the dirt politically to get it. It is reported that the committee in charge cannot find any good business men in town who will accept the office, but this cannot be true. The town is full of good men who would take the office if it came to them naturally and honorably. For instance, it is reasonable to suppose that most of the following gentlemen, in addition to Mr. Wilson would accept the honor under honorable conditions: Fred M. Symmes, David N. Skillings, J. Herbert Dwinell, Frank H. Cutting, E. B. Badger, Preston Pond, Arthur E. Whitney, George S. Littlefield, John E. Ayer, Charles A. Lane, Stephen Langley, E. Henry Stone, James H. Winn, John W. Suter.

This list could be doubled and not exhaust the list of good candidates for the legislature. To say that no one will take it" and the office "goes a-begging" cannot be true except in the case of a few politicians who will not take it for one year for fear they may miss the office for a two year term. If the committee does not nominate some good live Winchester man who knows his town and can stand up for it, it is to be hoped that some good man may run on nomination papers that the town may have a representative who is not wholly a politician, such a representative as was Mr. Parkhurst, a man who has convictions and is not afraid to give them vent. It is time the town should own its representative and not a select few of its citizens who are "workers" only in one or the other dominant political parties. I have always been a Republican and voted the Republican ticket, but I do wish our town representatives could be more representative of the life and business interests of the town they represent than the representatives of a few political citizens of any community. We want more business men in the legislature, if the legislature is to be run in the interest of the business of the state and not principally in the interest of political schemes in favor of any party.

REPUBLICAN.

[The Editor of the STAR would say that Mr. Barnard, the nominee of the Convention held Monday evening, was in no way the choice of the Republican leaders, but was the selection of many gentlemen who looked upon him as a desirable man for the office. The Republican leaders had no candidate, and so far as known did not assist in promoting Mr. Barnard's candidacy. The STAR claims the distinction of first bringing Mr. Barnard's name before the voters. In this connection we will state that the STAR is willing always to announce the names of candidates for any office, whether the request comes from would-be candidates, or from their friends.—[Ed.

REPUBLICANS AND LABOR

A Record Which They Have Good Reason to Be Proud of

Over against all the clamor and claptrap and windy persiflage of the various demagogues who are running up and down the state and the country, vexing the air with megaphonic vociferations that they are the original, true and only friends of "labor," and by the very absurdity of their claims insulting the intelligence of the level headed, industrious and inventive artisans, whose brains and hands have made industrial Massachusetts known and respected all over the civilized world, stands out in bold relief (and "relief" is a good word, just here), the solid facts and deeds—the record of the protection and sustenance which successive Republican legislatures, by constructive legislation, have given to its fellow-citizens, engaged in every kind of manual employment.

We have not present space, nor is it necessary, that we should recount the progressive labor legislation which Republican legislatures have placed upon the statute books in other years; but just a glimpse of the work of the very last session, in this direction, is a sufficient answer to the blatant howling of the professional agitators. According to the report of the bureau of labor statistics, just issued, (which we do not think any of these self-styled "reformers" will be likely to attempt to impeach) no fewer than thirty-four bills to broaden and enlarge the rights and privileges of the Massachusetts working man and woman were enacted into law by the legislature of 1908.

As we intend to consider some of these in detail, hereafter, we will refer to only a few of the more important. Among these are acts providing for weekly payments of state, county, city and town employes; providing for a limit to the bar against recovery of damages by railway employes on the ground of "contributory negligence," by lessening the assumption of risk; an amendment of the "conscious suffering" act; an amendment to the fifty-eight-hour law, providing that fifty-six hours shall constitute a week's work for women and minors, except in establishments where employment is by the season; the shortening of hours of labor in penal institutions; the authorization of the chief of the bureau of labor statistics to supply city and town clerks with weekly lists showing the demand for employment; providing for the approval by the state board of conciliation and arbitration of plans for compensation of injured employes.

These acts and many others, looking to the amelioration of the condition of the laborer and providing for wholesome and helpful adjustment, have been placed upon the statutes; and these, or all the thirty-four acts mentioned, represent less than half the laws passed which directly benefit the wage-earner, in some form or other. No legislature ever convened in any state of the Union ever passed so much original and amendatory legislation for the benefit of wage-workers.

In the face of these facts, the attack upon the Republicans' "labor record" by the "friends of labor" whose service to it is mainly through their mouths becomes worse than absurd—a direct and indefensible attempt to deceive the voter. As to labor legislation upon labor matters the Republican party, so far from being in any respect derelict, are proud of a record which has been consistent and beneficial beyond precedent in this or any other commonwealth.

FIT AND UNASSAILABLE

Business Administration Assured by Election of Mr. Draper

For the consideration and suffrages of the voters at the coming state election the Republicans have presented a candidate for governor in every respect able, fit and unassailable. There never was a time, in this or any other state, when there was greater need of an executive of foresight, discretion and firmness in the matter of revenues and expenditures, and especially, as to the latter, when the impetus toward extravagance is still upon us and likely to grow in momentum, unless wisely restrained. It is a problem demanding an executive who will exercise a watchful care over the purposes and detail of legislation.

With the large burden of taxation which already rests upon the cities and towns of the commonwealth, and the necessity for large disbursements for educational, sanitary and various other purposes, it is the duty of the legislature to curtail and adjust the one upon equitable lines and to appropriate the public moneys with the greatest economy consistent with the traditional liberal policy of the state. To this end it is all-important that in such a juncture as the present, there should be a trained, practical, business executive, large enough to fully comprehend the needs of the state, and both by suggestion and action conserve the highest financial welfare of the whole citizenship.

Such a man is offered in the person of Mr. Draper, a man thoroughly accustomed to both small detail and large operations and development of business; a hard worker with both hand and brain from boyhood and by years of observation and experience, supplemented by his latest years of service to the state in an official capacity and as thoroughly equipped as is any man in the state who could possibly be suggested to fulfil the varied and exacting duties which will fall to the hand of the next governor of Massachusetts.

His watchfulness over the finances of the commonwealth during his incumbency of the executive office during the lamentable illness of Governor Guild has been so marked as to commend him to the attention and judgment of all conservative men. It has been carefully estimated that by this watchfulness evinced both by vetoes of extravagant or otherwise unwarranted expenditure, and by his firm announcement of his position as the bills sought to be passed, he has saved the state at least $200,000 during the past year. He realizes fully that all expenditure means taxation in the end and that taxation falls the heaviest upon the men of small means with whom he has all his life been intimately associated and whose welfare he has done so much to enhance.

Were he in congress, or in the United States treasury department, there might well be applied to him the title of "the watch dog of the treasury," and it is no less fitting that it should be applied to him now. If the people want the business of the state administered upon the same business lines as those upon which they conduct their own personal affairs they will vote for Mr. Draper, as they may do with the full conviction that their desire in this direction will find effect. In the direction of financial administration, as well as in others, and especially as to so-called labor interests, Mr. Draper is unassailable, and it is to be noted that he is not assailed, as his whole career proves that he cannot be, successfully. Capable, honest and fearless, he is the ideal candidate for all men who seek for ideal state conditions.

POLITICAL BRIEFS

There seems to be a Vahey-cancy in Democratic enthusiasm as to the state ticket.

By the way, Mr. Vahey, Governor Guild has done a little something in the way of tariff reform, too.

Granted that there is extravagance on Beacon Hill, where is there a man in the state more likely to do all in his power to stop it than Eben S. Draper? We pause for an answer.

Just think of the commonwealth being run according to the Democratic "Boston Idea!"

Fervid eulogiums of Candidate Vahey are conspicuous by their absence.

Only a little cold in the head may be the beginning of an obstinate case of nasal catarrh. Drive out the invader with Ely's Cream Balm applied straight to the inflamed stuffed up air-passages. Price 50c. If you prefer to use an atomizer, ask for Liquid Cream Balm. It has all the good qualities of the solid form of this remedy and will rid you of catarrh or hay fever. No cocaine to breed a dreadful habit. No mercury to dry out the secretion. Price 75c., with spraying tube. All druggists, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren street, New York.

Crawford Cooking-Ranges

Our New Range a Winner!

The new range that we introduced last year has won all hearts. The old End Hearth is gone—there is more room on top—the ashes fall into a Hod far below the fire, making their removal easy and the grate to last longer. The Ash Hod when emptied is returned full of coal. Three sizes, "Palace," "Castle," "Fortress."

All the famous Crawford features are present: Single Damper, Patented Grate, Cup-Joint Oven Flues, Asbestos Backed Oven, Improved Oven Indicator. Booklet free.

Woburn Adopts All-Night Lighting.

Woburn has made a ten-year contract with the Edison Company for street lighting, and also made arrangements for all night lighting. The wording of the contract was very favorable to Woburn and the conditions were readily accepted by the city government. Winchester appears now to be about the only place in the territory covered by the Edison Company that has not made a contract, although the matter has been before the town for several years.

The present Board of Selectmen are in favor of the town making a contract, thereby securing a substantial saving of ten per cent. The Board also, it is understood, believes that the lights should be burned all night. As we stated recently, Wellesley took up all night lighting as a safeguard against the depredations of robbers.

Who is Back of the Plan.

Who the real sponsors are for the grade crossing plan presented by the commonwealth at the hearing held recently, is somewhat of a mystery. All through the long drawn out hearings, counsel for the commonwealth stated that it would have no plan to offer. Now, at the eleventh hour it comes forward and presents the most ridiculous and unsatisfactory scheme yet offered. Many persons think it was presented for the sole purpose of preventing the abolition of the grade crossing. It was also somewhat of a surprise to have this plan admitted at so late a date by the Commissioners. And again it was a surprise to have them announce that further additional plans could be presented up to Oct. 17.

Unless Winchester is exceedingly watchful it will have a single bridge foisted onto it, or else a decision that the separation of the tracks and the streets at the centre are not necessary. The scheme of raising the centre of the town and bridging the tracks does not appear to meet with the approval of the commission, the Boston & Maine or the Boston & Northern. The Redfern two bridges plan has had the approval of the two latter, and, from all that could be seen at the many hearings, has a strong hold on the minds of the Commission. The Redfern, or the Redfern-Vinal combination plans, have won many supporters during the past year among those who have studied them, and in our opinon affords the best scheme for the abolition of the crossing as affecting the whole town in the years that are to come. Also we are of the opinion that unless the citizens have a due regard to the importance of this question, the town will be obliged to get along with one bridge or else have conditions at the crossing remain as they are at present.

Tag Day.

Tag day in Winchester comes this week Saturday and is to raise money for the support of the Home for Aged People in Winchester. No more worthy or deserving object could make an appeal to our townspeople and should command the consideration of every inhabitant

Over a hundred of our most prominent ladies will have charge of the solicitation assisted by 200 young ladies who will be stationed on all the public streets at terminals and byways in order that none may escape the opportunity of buying a tag. These tags have no fixed price but it is expected that every one will purchase a tag and pay as liberally for it as they feel they can afford. Please prepare yourself in advance, for you will certainly be asked. By responding willingly and freely you will help to make others happy and the giver will go on his way rejoicing.

The seven o'clock electric car from Arlington ran off the tracks at the grade just this side of the Country Club last Saturday night, tying up traffic between Winchester and Arlington until Sunday. It is said that the accident was due to the rails spreading, not having been properly gauged by a repair gang which had been at work on the line during the day. The forward truck of the car was badly damaged and deeply buried in the roadbed. As no word of the accident was sent to the Arlington end of the line, many people were obliged to walk to Winchester.

There were 40 entries in the matinee golf of the Women's Mass. Golf Association at the Country Club on Friday last, the play being for the best selected nine holes. OBSERVATIONS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As political party rallies in this town amount to nothing, how would it do to have a general public meeting in the Town Hall and let citizens speak from five to ten minutes on political questions that are before the country? A very large number of citizens feel very independent of party now, but are much interested in their important public affairs and might like to discuss them and hear other's views. It would be a real town meeting on general public issues regardless of party or candidates and should be both interesting and profitable to all. Probably the Selectmen would be willing to grant the use of the hall free for such a purpose.

The law regarding lights on automobiles is certainly not a good one as to the hour when they shall be on. It provides that they shall be on one hour after sun down. This is certainly too late, as it is much too dark before that time to have these swiftly and quietly moving rubber-tired vehicles running through the streets unlighted, and the law should be amended.

Our method of supplying your requirements in Furs has made The Dunlap-Cooke Canadian Furs famous as the Furs of Quality. The Canadian Climate produces the finest furs known to commerce, because of the long, cold winters. The fur-bearing animals of Canada are provided by nature with a coat that is warmer, finer and more lustrous than temperate climates can produce.

The Duty on Manufactured Canadian Furs is 35%—We receive our Canadian Furs in the Raw State Duty Free. We have our own fur stores in Canadian centres; here we receive the raw furs from the trappers. We are the only Canadian Fur concern with a store in the United States. In this respect the strength of our position is unequalled. When you buy direct from us you save middlemen's profits and secure skins taken in prime season from the best sections, because we know where and when to buy the best that Canada offers.

In selecting furs about which your personal knowledge is necessarily limited it is always safest to purchase from a responsible dealer who has a reputation earned by years of testing to maintain, and who does not desire and cannot afford to treat you unfairly.

For nearly fifty years we have been established in Boston as manufacturers of High Grade Furs, collecting the skins from all over the world and making them into every conceivable kind of fur attire.

This long experience in satisfying the needs of the most discriminating persons, has taught us how to give the largest possible value for every dollar expended with us.

All of our garments are fashioned after the latest Paris and London styles and are guaranteed in every respect to give perfect satisfaction, and to be superior to other fur garments when price, quality and workmanship are considered.

This is why shrewd fur buyers prefer to deal with a long established house whose entire business is centered in one location and whose workrooms are always open to inspection.

All we ask is for you to call and then decide where to purchase.

TAG DAY.

EDITOR OF THE STAR :

Will you please give place to this article from the Lawrence Daily American to increase the interest in Winchester's "Tag Day" next Saturday, the proceeds of which will swell the Treasurers receipts for the "Home for the Aged." Claremont, N. H. received $2000 as the proceeds of her Tag Day for the Hospital. May every one honor themselves by wearing the Red Cross Tag next Saturday. H. F. D.

Winchester, Mass.
Oct. 13, 1908.

Up to a late hour Sunday evening the ladies in charge of "Tag Day" had not reported the total receipts. There are yet several reports to be handed in by ladies who were interested in the affair. It is expected that the receipts will be over $3000.

The city was firmly in the grasp of the "taggers" Saturday and hardly any one went by without purchasing a red cross tag. "Taggers" were stationed everywhere, and their appeals : "Can I tag you?" did not go unrewarded. The Andovers and Methuens did not escape, scores of taggers, keeping the townspeople busy responding to their charitable efforts.

Mrs. L. E. Barnes, of Methuen reported to the committee Saturday noon that she had sold out her entire supply of red tags, the highest price received for a single tag being $100.

BOSTON THEATRE.

Many changes have taken place in the Boston Theatre, both in the house and on the stage, and that they are attracting wide spread attention and the approval of the amusement going public, is evidenced by the large attendance both afternoon and evening. Next week, another production, will be Robert Marshall's play, "A Royal Family." This is one of the most recent successes, and in it Miss Annie Russell had a most prosperous season. The present production will be given with all the original stage settings, and the piece is one in which all the members of the Boston Theatre Stock Company will be seen to great advantage. This company with Wilson Melrose and Eleanor Gordon in the leading parts, has been strengthened by the engagement of Mr. Frank Losee, one of the best known actors of the American stage, and he was secured for the heavy parts. Miss Gertrude Binley, is another newcomer who is attracting a vast amount of attention. Dudley Hawley, the comedian, who was for seven years a member of the Keith and Proctor forces in New York, has also been added to the company. These three with all the favorites of last season are making the stock company one of the recognized institutions of Boston.

THE SENATORSHIP.

Although ex-Mayor Lovering failed of nomination in the Sixth Middlesex senatorial convention, he is to be congratulated on the loyalty of the Medford delegates who cast a solid vote for him from the beginning to the end. It is the first time in years when a new candidate was to be elected that Medford has gone into a senatorial convention with any degree of unanimity and stuck faithfully to its candidate. If Medford could have come together earlier in the contest it is believed that more of the Woburn and other delegates would have supported the Medford candidate and perhaps enough of them to have secured his nomination.

Certainly Medford was entitled by rotation to the candidate this year, if it presented an able and acceptable one, not having had a senator in 14 years, while the other places in the district have all been honored during recent years. When Senator Crosby steps out Medford will insist upon its fair share of the senatorial honors.

As for the nominee of the convention, ex-Rep. J. Howell Crosby, he is one of the popular young men in Arlington, a successful market-gardener who has made an excellent reputation as a legislator and town official and who should win credit for himself and his district as a member of the senate.—[Medford Mercury.

Exhibition of photographs, loaned by The Library Art Club. New Brunswick, Gaspé peninsula and Halifax. Starting at St. Stephen, opposite Calais, Maine, this set illustrates a trip through New Brunswick, by way of St. John and up the beautiful St. John River. From Grand Falls a descent is made by the Restigouche to the Baie des Chaleurs, followed by some pictures of the wonderful scenery at the extremity of Gaspé Peninsula. Returning to New Brunswick the eastern coast is followed to Moncton and the extraordinary rocks at Hopewell Cape, and the collection ends with a few views of Halifax.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

WOOLWICH, ME.

A Sad Accident takes Memory Back to this Old Town.

EDITOR OF THE STAR :

The sad accident resulting in the death of Mr Lemuel G. Trott, brings to the writer memories of Mr. Trott's parents and the place of his birth. It is now forty-nine years, since my home was fixed in the rough and rocky town of Woolwich, Maine, and it comes to me, with interest and sentiment, if my memory serves that the same and identical gentleman, whose grevious misfortune is recorded so vividly in the STAR of a week since, came to my door perhaps 46 years ago bringing a bundle of Macauley's essays that came by express from Boston. His home was on the East bank of the Kennebec river, opposite or nearly opposite, the ship-yard of the Sewalls, and majestic ships oftimes shot from their slides to the neighboring shore of Mr. Trott. They would enter their native element, with all the grace and affection, which Longfellow declares their kindred craft hastens to the embrace of boundless water. The city of Bath, Maine, was, in time of the civil war, the second place in the United States, in the amount of ship building, the first being that of East Boston. Tradition declared at the time of which I speak, that in Woolwich, "there was neither rich man, poor man, wise man or fool." But hardly a town of the same size on hill or shore had as many intelligent and substantial men and women as there were in this woody and uneven town of Woolwich a name in England which congregates the armaments of that doughty land, which embodies a part of that strength by which they rule four hundred millions of the world's inhabitants.

In this Maine township you will find bright and active men, who have sailed every sea, and whose training and practical knowledge of the world, was equal in power to that of men educated anywhere, and there wives were women of sparkling sense, and choice taste, and with an education gained in the plain old schools, and finished by visits and study in many of the largest cities of the world. Their experience often was checked too, by danger and suffering in storms and wrecks, and anxious waitings in extreme peril, for life, or death, in angry waters. One lady modestly related to the writer, her experience and suffering, as she was lashed to the wreck of her husband's ship for three days, and of her comical plight when rescued as she—with soaking apparel,—mounted the steps of some consul's building to secure relief from the official of our government. And there was a physician in Woolwich, whose learning and sense made him ready and sharp upon many subjects.

He could read the Latin almost as easily as the English, and the last time the writer called on him, he was perusing the works of Democritus or some ancient medical authority, written in the Latin tongue. He was a gentleman, and was not in favor of the federals in the Civil War. He often sat socially in the writer's home, for he was a near neighbor, and the first man the writer ever married. We sometimes, for four hours, from six to ten o'clock in the evening contended for our respective views of the great contention between North and South, between freedom and prerogative the question of the ages, between freedom and tyranny and we never gave or received an unhandsome word. He was well read in politics and literature and history, and the writer's mind was benefitted by the discussion, for he saw in his opponent, the truth of the fact, true in all ages of the world, "that so irresistible, in such cases of devotion to wrong, is the influence of the sentiments of the mind, over the operations of the understanding," that it is no novelty for men to sustain what is ruinous to any government. But I must close with the assertion, of my high esteem and respect for Mr. L. G. Trott's parents, and present sympathy for his own family in their recent great and sore loss.

M. L. R., Montague.

ROOSEVELT SCORES.

Points Out the Fatal Weakness of Socialistic Schemes.

Prominent Socialists Declare His Strictures Unfair, but Are Confuted by the Statements of Other Members of Their Own Party.

Judging from the angry replies of Socialists, President Roosevelt must have struck home in the address in which he recently paid his respects to socialism in the following words:

"We have made this country what it is partly because we have measurably succeeded in securing in the past equality of opportunity. That is very different from equality of reward.

"I believe emphatically in doing everything that can be done by law or otherwise to keep the avenue of occupation, of employment, of work, of interest, so open that there shall be, so far as it is humanly possible to achieve it, a measurable equality of opportunity—equality of opportunity for each man to show the stuff that is in him. But when it comes to reward let him get what by his energy, foresight, intelligence, thrift, courage, he is able to get if the opportunity opens. I don't believe in cuddling any one. I would no more permit the strong to oppress the weak than to tell a weak man or a vicious man that he ought by rights to have the reward due only to the man who actually earns it. Very properly we in this country set our faces against privilege.

"There can be no grosser example of privilege than that set before us as an ideal by certain socialistic writers—the ideal that every man shall put into the common fund what he can, which would mean what he chose, and should take out whatever he wanted. In other words, this theory is that the man who is vicious, foolish, a drag on the whole community, who contributes less than his share to the common good, should take out what is not his, what he has not earned, that he shall rob his neighbor of what that neighbor has earned.

"This particular socialistic ideal would be to enthrone privilege in one of its grossest, crudest, most dishonest, most harmful and most unjust forms. Equality of opportunity to render service—yes, I will do everything I can to bring it about. Equality of reward—no, unless there is also equality of service. If the service is equal let the reward be equal, but let the reward depend on the service. And, mankind being composed as it is, there will be inequality of service for a long time to come, no matter how great the equality of opportunity may be, and just so long as there is inequality of service it is eminently desirable that there should be inequality of reward."

The tenor of the Socialist criticisms of this address is shown by the following quotations from replies, most of which appeared in the New York Evening Call, a Socialist organ:

"This peculiar statement of Roosevelt makes it clear that he does not in the least understand socialism."—Robert Hunter, Millionaire Socialist.

"He is truly most ignorant concerning the principles of the most vital question of our day. If Mr. Roosevelt wishes to abuse socialism he must learn what socialism is."—Rose Pastor Stokes, Wife of Another Millionaire Socialist.

"The president's idea of socialism is absurd. But who could expect him to say anything different? He would make people believe that Socialists were communists. As a matter of fact, we want each man to get just what he earns through his own efforts and no more. If a man earns $5 a day, then give it to him. If he earns $10, give him that. But we would assert that one man who does inferior work to another should not get the same pay."—Morris Brown.

It is unfortunate that President Roosevelt worded his remarks so that they could be construed into an identification of socialism and communism. He undoubtedly is well aware that, while all communists are Socialists, few American Socialists are communists. It is perfectly evident that what he was protesting against was the doctrine that all workers should receive the same pay without regard to the quality of their work. This doctrine is repudiated by Morris Brown and also by Warren Atkinson, who, in a lengthy rejoinder to President Roosevelt, says:

"The answer is simple and conclusive to this question, how to determine the pay in the industrial republic—just as we do it now. The Socialist party has never proposed to determine the relative pay for different kinds of work in any different way from the way in which it is determined now by the ordinary action of supply and demand."

This answer is not ingenuous. Mr. Atkinson knows very well that the Socialist party platform by no means fully represents the ideals of the party. It was toned down to catch votes—the votes of those who have something to lose, either of property or skill, and are therefore more conservative than those to whom any leveling process would involve a betterment of conditions—the unskilled, the incompetent and the thriftless.

The appeal that socialism makes to this latter class will be found in its papers and pamphlets rather than in its platform. If we turn to these we shall find that the "proletarians," as the Socialists delight to call them, are asked to vote for socialism because it puts all men on a plane of earning equality—one day's pay for one day's work, and all work, with some exceptions, to count as of equal value. Even the exceptions favor the "proletarian," for the suggestion is that workers in unattractive employments, miners, stokers, etc., shall work only one-third or one-fourth as many hours per day as doctors, teachers, etc.—in other words, that a premium shall be placed on ignorance and that skill and ability shall be penalized. In proof of these statements the following quotations are made from three typical Socialist pamphlets, at least two of which are specially recommended by the most prominent Socialist organ in this country:

"Now, note that the reason for different degrees of remuneration is due to the fact that the grades above common labor need to be compensated for years of apprenticeship and study given to qualification. But it is certain that after socialism has been in operation a few years, and artisans and professional men were supported by society during their years of qualification, then another rule would be applicable. The ratio of differentiation would gradually diminish until all labor would receive equal remuneration for equal labor performed. Economic equality is the ideal. It will ultimately be attained.

"For every day's labor a certificate would be issued against the wealth created, which would enable the laborer to exchange the note for the product or for any other commodity containing a like amount of labor time."—"Principles of Scientific Socialism," by Rev. Charles H. Vail.

"Socialists demand that when one does a day's labor he shall be given an evidence of labor performed, and this evidence he can exchange for anything on earth the labor cost of which is one day.

"If a person worked a day he could then command the average product of a day's labor of any commodity.

"But what should constitute a day's labor? So many hours' work, but not necessarily the same number of hours per day for all sorts of toil—not at least under the conditions that will prevail when a co-operative commonwealth is first inaugurated. Adverse critics of socialism often ask: 'Under the system you propose who would do the work in dust and heat? Who would perform the menial labor?' Ask such a critic, 'If two hours constitute a day in the dust and heat and eight hours a day as a bookkeeper, which would you choose?' and the chances are a thousand to one that if he is a man of superior ability or is ambitious to develop along praiseworthy lines he will choose the dust and heat."—"Introductions to Socialism," by N. A. Richardson.

"But after all said in favor of equal wages for equal effort, as we have already mentioned, it is not absolutely necessary to the success of socialism—that is to say, socialism inaugurated with a small inequality would be fairly successful. I am inclined to the opinion that it will start this way, though I have but little doubt that the question will finally be settled in favor of equality.

"The standard hour's work or day's work will probably become the standard for measuring all values.

"Let us not forget that the performance of disagreeable work deserves great remuneration and that under socialism the physical work requiring the least skill will be generally the most disagreeable and the most avoided and therefore would be, strictly speaking, entitled to the highest wages."—"A Plain Analysis of Socialism," by L. F. Eccles.

These may not be the views of the Socialist critics of President Roosevelt, but as they are probably the views of the great mass of voting Socialists the president was fully justified in making them the basis of his strictures upon that un-American ideal of discriminating against the competent in favor of the incompetent.

Scrapping a Good Pump.

The city of Joliet, Ill., has just been put to a heavy and unnecessary expense because of the lack of permanence of important employees, which is one of the characteristics of municipal operation. The Municipal Journal and Engineer tells the story:

"After having purchased and installed a 3,000,000 gallon pump it has been discovered that the city might have increased the capacity of its old pump 1,200,000 gallons by a slight and inexpensive change to an old pump. When this pump was installed some ten years ago it had a sixteen inch plunger. As the boiler capacity of the plant was then short and there was an insufficient supply of steam, the sixteen inch plunger was taken out and a fourteen inch substituted, with a proper fitting. This circumstance was apparently not recorded and was unknown to the present officials."

Disguised Payments.

City payments are sometimes disguised so that the actual amount paid by the city must be carefully investigated. In some cities under municipal ownership there is no charge for hydrant rental, but interest charges, repayment of bonds, appropriations to meet deficiencies, etc., may equal or even exceed a proper hydrant rental. This is bad bookkeeping and should be corrected.—Charles Carroll Brown, M. Am. Soc. C. E., in Water and Gas Review.

The Woonsocket (R. I.) Gas company is replacing its old meters by new ones, as they were all slow. This was discovered by a consumer who objected to his bill being too large. Upon testing the meter it was found to be 37 per cent slow, and then he was sorry.—Progressive Age.

The municipal electric light plant of Hastings, England, closed its fiscal year with a loss of nearly $15,000, with no allowance for depreciation.

Football Season Here

During the month of October every eye is turned toward the oval

Our purpose in advertising in this space is to turn the eyes of everybody during the whole year toward the "Oval". Of course we mean "Creamalt" - the oval loaf.

For beauty of shape and for delicious taste of flavor, you won't tackle anything in the class of Creamalt. It's the only Oval people never "kick" at. Game starts next time you eat.

This woman says she was saved from an operation by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lena V. Henry, of Norristown, Ga., writes

"I suffered untold misery from female troubles. My doctor said an operation was the only chance I had, and I dreaded it almost as much as death.

"One day I read how other women had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I decided to try it. Before I had taken the first bottle I was better, and now I am entirely cured.

"Every woman suffering with any female trouble should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Humor and Philosophy

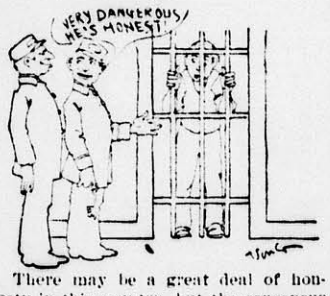
By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

Duty has a very bad habit of appearing at such importunate times and undesirable places.

Most of us are rather fond of criticism if we are the wise people who are passing it out.

If circumstances are not favorable to you, send them back to the factory and demand others.



There may be a great deal of honesty in this country, but the consensus of opinion seems to be that a lot of it isn't working.

The man who prescribes for your pocketbook is generally thinking of his own.

The person with a hot weather temper and a cold weather manner represents an extreme that is pleasant to avoid.

The way some girls dress and act is enough to make Cupid go way off and commit suicide.

Not every man who tries to be friendly is after your dollar. Some may even be trying to add to your store, so be an optimist.

Taking All the Credit.

Some pleasant gentlemen who live
Where climate is their staple pride,
The subject that they talk about
Until the sufferer wants to hide,
Take credit almost personal
For sunny days and balmy air,
As though unaided and alone
They put the dandy climate there.

You'd think they had been hanging round
And working when the earth was made
At making climate for the spot,
As though it were their special trade,
That with the sunshine and the wind
They mixed the right amount of rain
And made the climate that you see
With very little sweat or strain.

Though it was perfect at the start,
They modified it just a shade
By planting out a lot of trees
Until you see it now, handmade,
Their own and special property,
Of which they have a right to brag
And every time a stranger looks
To tie on it the premium tag.

And that is not the worst of it;
They want to lord it over you
Because the climate is so fine
And round them is a pleasant view,
As though they were of different clay,
A better and a higher grade,
Because they happen to reside
Where climate is the stock in trade.

Much Better.

"Yes," said Miss Previous loftily, "we have electric fans in our house now. I tell you they are fine things on a warm day."

"Indeed," replied Miss Catchup, "they must be very lovely. We haven't any at our house, and I have to be satisfied with being fanned by the young men who call around evenings."

Reason to Be Proud.

"What in the world is the matter with you? Your cheeks are swelled to twice their normal size, and your eye is a beaut."

"Oh, I just had an argument with a bumblebee."

"Who got the better of the argument?"

"I feel that I did. Can't you see that I am all swelled up about it?"

Perfectly Good Ones.

"I thought you were going to hire a man to look up your ancestors."

"I was, but I found I could buy a new set that had never been used for half the money."

"Still, they wouldn't be yours."

"They would if I bought them. Besides, all ancestors look alike to me."

Contagious.

"Tell me one thing."

"What is it?"

"Do you believe all you say?"

"Certainly."

"Why?"

"Just to set a good example for the other fellow."

Using His Old Clothes.

"Yes, he is a gentleman of the old school."

"Likes the ancient customs best?"

"No, but he is stocked up on clothes to fit them and can't afford new ones."

In the Bill.

"Did the doctors take your temperature?"

"I don't know. Has it any value? They took everything I had that was worth taking."

Deceptive.

"May sound good, but it is a dangerous occupation."

"What does he follow?"

"Safe blower."

Telephone Talks

Keep in touch with the world — and see to it that the world may keep in touch with you.

Party-Liners And the Golden Rule

Party line telephone subscribers virtually are co-tenants. They jointly pay for a single telephone line.

If they were co-tenants of a building they would be careful not to infringe upon the rights of others. That same regard for the equities should keep them from infringing by appropriating to themselves more telephone service than can be exacted as their fair share of the capacity of that line.

Lengthy conversations on unimportant matters, the prattling intercourse of children, phonograph concerts, and the like—these sometimes congest party lines and give cause for protest from other tenants in common.

A party line telephone has been likened to a spur track on a main line of railroad. But there is this important qualification—when the telephone spur track is in use, the entire main line is closed to traffic, not merely to the other spur tracks on the line, but also to incoming trains consigned to any part of the line.

Ordinary regard for the principle of the Golden Rule will do more to avert party line difficulties than all the rules any telephone company may promulgate.

The Winchester Laundry Co. has taken a part of the building adjoining its factory and is fitting it up to use as an office.

On Sunday evening as Mr. Charles Young was driving on Washington street in the vicinity of the old Nathaniel Richardson place, his horse stepped on a rolling stone and fell breaking a shaft of the wagon. With Mr. Young were a child and maid of the family of Thomas G. Hodgson of Brookside road, to whose house Mr. Young was driving. When the horse fell Mr. Young jumped out of the wagon to hold it, and the maid with the child also jumped. Both were quite badly hurt, the child it is understood having two ribs broken. No blame is attached to Mr. Young in the accident, as he was driving slowly, and had not the maid been frightened and jumped, no harm would have resulted. The horse was not injured.

The special services this past week held at the Second Congregational church have been greatly enjoyed, and attended by good audiences. The number of cases of scarlet fever in town is gradually growing less. What serves to prolong the disease is the lightness of the attack, many parents failing to note the sickness,and as a result their children are allowed to mingle with others,thus making it difficult to effectively stamp out the disease. Caution on the part of parents is urged, or else the disease may spread with rapidity and in virulence during the approaching cold weather. If a child's actions are suspicious, consult a physician.

TAG DAY.

The Sum of $912.10 Netted for Home for Aged People.

The persons who were not tagged by one of 150 young ladies last Saturday were exceptional and must have been in some way overlooked as every avenue and street were securely guarded. Any one who failed to be tagged need not feel put out as they can now send in their donation in aid of the Home for Aged People. The day was perfect, and the young ladies worked like beavers, and with the smile that would not come off, the hearts of the male sex mellowed and their pocketbooks opened to their widest capacity.

Each of the young ladies dressed in white, carried a little pink pasteboard bank and wore a large pink chrysanthemum. The work was in charge of the directors of the home, including President Alfred S. Hall, George H. Carpenter, Charles A. Lane, Henry C. Ordway, Preston Pond, Harry C. Sanborn, Mrs. M. A. Cummings, Mrs. A. Foster, Mrs. C. N. Harris, Mrs. F. W. Hight, Mrs. E. J. Johnson, Mrs. A. Kelley, Mrs. J. K. Murdock and Mrs. J. W. Witmer, assisted by many citizens.

The headquarters were at Parker & Lane's, where Mrs. N. J. Moody had charge of the distribution of tags and received the returns as they were brought in by the army of young ladies, who entered into the spirit of the affair in a way to insure good returns.

As early as six o'clock in the morning the young ladies were in positions at every street corner, and as the early risers came down town they were "held up" and tagged and good naturedly contributed. All day long the young ladies stood at their posts and sold tags, and it was not an uncommon sight to see a big touring car entering the town held up, and in nearly every case its occupants contributed, pleased that they had given to a good cause. The electrics were not allowed to escape attention and passengers were asked to buy a tag, and did so readily.

In addition to the young ladies stationed at street corners, large touring cars, loaned for the day by Mrs. George Huntress, P. G. Gray, Frank Cutting, Louis Parkhurst, Frederick Osgood, William Palmer, O. C. Sanborn, T. W. Gilson and Charles Lane, each with eight young ladies and a matron, toured the town, calling at every house so that none should feel slighted.

Included among those who did active work were: the Misses Ruth and Margaret McCall, Cassie Sands, Jessie McDonald, Marjorie and Bertha Waldmyer, Mary Witmer, Hildegarde Gutterson, Margaret Hunt Alice Twombley, Dorothy Brown, Margaret French, Carlen Gleason, Ruth and Margaret Lawrence, Rhoda Chapin, Marion Hazelton, Carolyn Nutt, Marguerite Sache, Elizabeth Sherman, Alice Mason, Gladys Spaulding, Evangeline McPhee, Leah McIntosh, Pearl McLean, Dorothea Chase, Ruth Carpenter, Eleanor Briggs, Tabor Carr, Florence Ripley, Dorothy Nash, Mildred Stone, Esther Sands, Marion Lovering, Esther Parker, Annette Symmes, Eunice Homer, Marion Lovering, Rosamond Capen, Josephine Wingate, Marjory Braddock, Edith Hinds, Mrs. Henry Smalley, Mrs. William McIntosh, Mrs. Samuel Smith, Mrs. F. H. Leonard, Mrs. Royal Hurd, Mrs. W. H. Hart, Mrs. George Fitch, Mrs. E. J. Tufts, Mrs. W. S. Forbes, Mrs. Frederick Clark, Mrs. John Page, Mrs. M. B. May Mrs. Frank Carpenter, Mrs. F. H. Boles and Mrs. T. E. Thompson.

Tuesday evening the boxes were opened and the gratifying sum of $912.10 was counted as the result of Tag Day.

FREDERICK HARROLD.

Frederick Harrold, better known as "Fritz," the little five year old son of police officer John A. Harrold, died at his home on Myrtle street on Sunday. The boy was taken sick with ptomaine poisoning a number of weeks ago and rheumatic fever developed. For some time his condition had been very serious and his death was expected from day to day.

"Fritz" was the son of John and Agnes A. Harrold. He was one of nine children, and the first member of the family to pass away. He gained considerable distinction last summer as being the youngest bather among the children at Sandy Beach, Mystic Lake.

The services were held from the home on Monday, the burial being at Calvary cemetery. The display of flowers sent by the many playmates and hosts of friends of the little lad were remarkably profuse and beautiful.

FIRST LADIES' NIGHT.

The Entertainment Committee of the Calumet Club announce that the first Ladies' Night of the season will take place on Tuesday, October 27, at eight o'clock. The evening will consist of a reception by the officers of the club to be followed by dancing and whist. Reception 8 to 8.30, Dancing 8.30 to 11.30. Poole's orchestra. Refreshments.

PERMIT NUMBER ONE.

The Winchester Post Office has recently issued its first permit to mail under the imprint "Postage Paid." Under this permit we have mailed during the week the third and last of a series of cards for the Winchester Co-operative Bank. Every person whose name is on the Assessors list has had three card's addressed to him. A few years ago this would have required the affixing of nearly seven thousand stamps, now under the new postal regulations, when two thousand or more pieces of identical matter is mailed at the same time, a permit may be had to pay the postage in currency.

It is the largest number of cards that we have ever printed and mailed at one time.

The first card expressed the desire of the Bank for intimate relations with every one in Winchester.

The second card tells of the Bank's Mission and illustrates how very easily one may save money and secure a home.

The third card contrasts methods of saving and of paying a mortgage and directs attention to the personal relations of the Co-operative Bank.

Each card tells of the issue of a new series of shares and especially invites the interest of the youth of Winchester. We are informed that not since the first and second series were issued fifteen years ago has so many shares been applied for as at this date of this issue.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The regular meeting will be held Friday, October 23, at 3 p. m., in the Congregational vestry, having been postoned on account of the farewell reception to Mrs. Katherine Lente Stevenson, president of the State W. C. T. U. who has gone on a round-the-world mission.

Last Friday a delegation of white-ribboners were at the station to "farewell" Mrs. A. A. Rowe who started for the convention of the National W. C. T. U. to be held this week and next at Denver. Mrs. Rowe goes as a delegate from the State union, an honor richly deserved as she has been for a third of a century one of the most active temperance workers in this town. She was for twelve years the president, retiring from that position four years ago only to take up the equally arduous duties of the secretaryship and adding to those the press-work and flower mission work. She has also been a faithful and able representative of the union in the county and state organizations. She went bearing not only the good wishes but more substantial evidences of the regard of her fellow workers who will miss her during her absence in Denver and California.

The current number of McClure's Magazine has an excellent and convincing article on the value of alcohol which should be read by every lukewarm temperance person.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

The Stanton estate at the corner of Washington and Mount Pleasant streets has been sold to H. H. Woodrough of New York, who will make extensive improvements in the old Colonial house and erect new single houses for rental. Mr. Woodrough in thus adding to his investments in Winchester real estate shows his faith in the town's future. The sale was made by M. H. Dutch.

Mr. W. D. Elliott has moved into the new house on Mt. Vernon street recently erected by Mr. J. C. Kennedy, renting the upper suite through M. H. Dutch.

Mr. Leon J. Barrett has leased the house No. 87 Church street through M. H. Dutch and will occupy at once.

THOMAS EASTHAM.

Thomas Eastham, aged 83 years, died at his home on Mystic place on Monday. Death was due to the infirmities of his age He was born in England, coming to this town many years ago. He is survived by his wife, Mary.

Funeral services were held from St. Mary's Church on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The burial was in Calvary cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS.

The relatives of the late Mrs. Malvina Saunders of Winchester wish to express their heartfelt thanks to her friends who so kindly attended the funeral services on Thursday last, and especially those who expressed their words of sympathy or extended their hand in friendly feeling

Signed for each

FINANCE COMMITTEEMAN.

Mr. W. L. Tuck has been appointed a member of the Democratic National Finance Committee, and is authorized to collect funds for the party anywhere in the United States. Mr. Tuck will stump the New England States from now until the day of election, his time being spent principally in New Hampshire.

MISS BROWN'S CONCERT.

At the concert on Wednesday evening, November 11th, Miss Dorothy Temple Brown will have the assistance of Mrs. Bernice Atkins Mallory, pianist; and Miss Helen Reynolds, of the Helen Reynolds Trio, violinist.

Mrs. Mallory of the Hartford Conservatory, pupil of Prof. Laubin of New Britain, Richard Burmeister of New York, Carl Buonamici and Alvah Glover Salmon of Boston, has played with great success in many New England cities, both in recitals and with orchestra. "She possesses a musical touch combined with unusual strength and her technique is fully equal to all demands made by the most difficult piano works."

Miss Reynolds will be accompanied in her solos by the pianist of the trio, Miss Margaret Gorham. Both of these artists have had much success in concert work.

Miss Reynolds has studied with several famous violinists, Ysaye, Joachim, Willy Hess and others. Besides her solos she will play three obligatos.

Miss Gorham is a pupil of Harold Bauer and has had a wide experience on the concert stage.

Mrs. J. Churchill Hindes has kindly consented to accompany Miss Brown at the piano.

With the combination of such artists the concert is an assured success and many tickets have already been spoken for.

MRS. WHEELER CHAIRMAN OF JUVENILE COURT COM.

Mrs. Carrie F. Wheeler, president of The Fortnightly, has been made chairman of the Juvenile Court Committee of the State Federation Board. This is a sub committtee of the Civics committee whose chairman is Mrs. Andrews of the Jewish Council of Women and has as its work the reclaiming of wayward children by means of the Juvenile Court. Judge Baker gives a private hearing to children who are accused of wrong doing, where the testimony of witnesses is not made to feed the morbid love of the sensational to which the yellow journal caters. In every way the probation officer seeks to aid the parent to reclaim the child. Sometimes people are advised to change their place of residence in order that the child may be removed from evil influences. The work is still in its infancy, but surely is a step in the right direction. A great need of more salaried probation officers is noted.

THE FORTNIGHTLY.

The next meeting of the Fortnightly will occur on Monday, October 26, when Mrs. Mabel Loomis Todd will speak on "Panama and the Canal."

The State Federation of Women's Clubs promises to be a very pleasant occasion. It is to be held at Bridgewater, Nov. 3, in the Congregational Church, and the Ousameguin Club will be the hostess club. Mrs. Margaret J. Blair of St. Paul, Minn., will speak on "Home making as an art," and Melvil Dewey of the Lake Placid Club, will discuss "The Future of Home Economics."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE.

Last evening in the Town Hall before a large and interested audience, Mrs. Sue Harper Mimms, C. S. D., of Atlanta, Ga., gave a lecture on Christian Science. Owing to lack of time and the demands on our columns, report of the lecture will be printed next week.

SCHOOL SAVINGS PLAN.

The idea of teaching pupils in the public schools some lessons in thrift is not new altho' it is in agreement with the present thought that the education of the child should help to make him a good citizen. To this end it seems worth while to be at some pains to encourage habits of economy and frugality.

A careful investigation during the last school year showed that a very large proportion of the pupils in the public schools of this town have no idea of saving. The custom among children here, as else. where, has been to spend all the money that comes into their possession on candy and other temporary pleasures. Now it has been recognized that children cannot be made over into nature individuals but it has seemed that it the joy of reasonable saving may be substituted for the exhiiration of indiscriminate spending the whole future of the individual might be benefited.

With this in mind an extended inquiry as to the plans for savings in use in various schools was made. The replies were uniformly favorable and the School Committee has approved a trial of the idea in the fourth and fifth grades of the Chapin, Rumford and Washington schools.

On one day of each week as may seem best in the individual school, probably Monday, each pupil wishing to make a deposit will fill out a deposit slip and will give it with his money to the teacher. The teacher will keep an account for each such pupil and after making the record will return his receipted deposit slip. The money will then be kept in a general fund until the money credited to any one pupil shall amount to one dollar, when, if desired, a savings bank account will be opened for him in the Winchester Savings Bank. Thereafter, as soon as he has one dollar to his credit in the general fund it will be transferred to his savings bank account. Accounts both in the general fund and in the savings bank shall be under the trusteeship of parents and withdrawals may be made only with their approval. Pupils will be encouraged to hold accounts unimpaired, but even should this not be the case it is felt that saving small amounts for a comparatively large expenditure is a good thing and that to have a savings bank account is an asset in the formation of character.

As time passes the details of the savings plan may be modified. Two requirements will, however, be held in mind. 1 To conduct the plan in such form that the pupils shall receive definite training and 2 to make the necessary clerical work on the part of teachers and principals as slight as possible. At present the teachers and pupils affected are enthusiastic. A report later in the year will indicate whether the success of other places may be had in Winchester. If so, it will be a distinct gain to our future citizenship.

WINTER BOWLING TOURNAMENT.

The first games in the bowling tournament at the Calumet Club were rolled on Wednesday evening last amid much enthusiasm, a good sized gallery being present to watch the fun and "size up" the teams. Straight wins were in order, teams I and B being the lucky ones and starting off with four points each. The scores were remarkably good for the opening games, Henry Weed of team I and C. E. Kinsley of the A's each bettering a three hundred total. The scores:

PARISH OF THE EPIPHANY.

The officers and teachers of the Sunday School will meet next Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 27, at 4.30 at the Rector's house.

The North Suburban District Sunday School Union meets next Wednesday evening, Oct. 28, at St. Paul's church, Malden.

Mr. N. T. Apollonio, owing to pressure of other duties, has been obliged to resign as treasurer of the parish. Mr. Wm. C. Newell has been elected treasurer.

TAG DAY PROCEEDS.

Thanks from the Home For Aged People.—Bits of History.

The Home for Aged People in Winchester returns its thanks to the citizens of Winchester for a general and generous giving on Tag-Day.

What a host of responses rained down into the boxes last Saturday! Nobody would have thought that it was dry weather. Thousands of coins, and more than a hundred bills, were handed to the collectors. It is a good town where all participate in sustaining the good causes. Saturday was the day of the many, not especially appropriated or monopolized by the money-lucky. So the Home is everybody's all the more. It is yours, if you contributed, whether you were able to pay over five cents or not. You all helped it on.

Over nine hundred dollars was handed in on Tag Day, nine hundred and eleven dollars.

How a lot of kind people did work for it! First, some of the directors of the Home made a business of it and showed themselves able field-marshals. They worked several days organizing the forces. Then on Saturday came the young ladies, in white dresses, wearing the pink chrysanthemum badges. Some quite young people were in this class, some not so young, but just as handsome. Now and then a young man with a flag shared the conflict. All were in it.

The collection on Sunday, Old People's Day, at the Congregational church, just after Tag Day, yielded the further sum of $52.33 in money for the Home for Aged People, beside some fruit and vegetables. Not bad for the first day after the great day.

A legacy of five hundred dollars to the Home, under the will of Mrs. Sarah S. Stanton, has just been paid by her executors, a considerate remembrance by that gracious and lamented lady.

Two dinners a week are given to the Home by our people at large, care being taken that no one be solicited for such a contribution oftener than once in about three years.

Thanks again for all these benefits helping to provide a good, reliable home for the homeless. Thanks, ladies and gentlemen, girls and boys.

It is now nearly fifteen years since the Home was founded. It has been a place of rest and comfort to many, and will yet be availed of by some who may be nearer us than we suppose. At present there are only four inmates, but the next guest may knock on any day. About fifteen hundred dollars a year supports the Home. A permanent fund is being accumulated by legacies, from the income of which in time it is hoped the maintenance may be largely defrayed, but for some years to come the daily responsibility is upon us all.

For the Directors,
ALFRED S. HALL, President.
HARRY C. SANBORN, Secretary.

BAZAAR OF NATIONS.

The Junior Charity Club of Boston will hold a Bazaar of Nations in Horticultural Hall, Boston, October 29, 30 and 31st, in aid of their Hospital Fund. The object of this organization is to aid the Woman's Charity Club in maintaining the Hospital on Parker Hill, Brookline, and assisting any other worthy cause that is called to their attention.

On Thursday evening at eight o'clock there will be a Pop Concert for which invitations have been issued to many prominent people. This evening promises great brilliancy. The Tenth Band Post Artillery Corps from Fort Banks have volunteered their services. This is the band chosen for the Peace Conference at Portsmouth.

Friday evening a fine vaudeville programme is prepared and Saturday evening will be the big Country Circus and Hallow'een Festival and the public are requested not to bring any food for the animals. Saturday afternoon is reserved for the children. The Black children of Cambridge will furnish the entertainment which they have kindly volunteered to do. All attendants must be in costume, representing some nation. The chairmen of the different countries are as follows:

Russian—Mrs. Chas. L. Purinton of Brookline.

Japanese—Mrs. E. B. Allen of Brookline.

Mexican—Miss Ethel King of Winthrop.

Italian—Mrs. Harrison DeWitt Learned of Newton.

Chinese—Miss Ava Treloar of Dorchester.

Ireland—Miss Isa Dewey of Cambridge.

Colonial—Mrs. C. P. Anderson of Somerville.

Holland—Mrs. Wm. Ball of Winthrop.

French—Miss Alice Blanchard of Boston.

Columbian—Mrs. Albert Daley of Dorchester.

Spanish—Miss Mollie Gould of Jamaica Plain.

United States—Miss Martha Ricker of Somerville.

Entertainment—Miss Mabel Perry of Arlington, assisted by Miss Susan Bowker of Brookline.

Russian tea room—Miss Elizabeth Lowe and Miss Bebe MacIntosh of Newton.

The whist room will open daily from 2 to 4.30. Tea room will open at 4. On Friday it is expected Lina Abarbawelle of the Merry Widow company will pour and on Saturday Mrs. George Hibbard, assisted by Mrs. Esther Francis Boland.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES.

The ladies of the church are enthusiastic as they make and execute plans for their fall work. If every lady in the parish is not at work, it is an oversight, and she is hereby requested to report for duty to the President, Mrs. George C. Ogden.

Do not forget the Rummage Sale next Wednesday, Oct. 28, at Waterfield Hall. Doors open at nine o'clock. Remember, that the choice of selection, is best in the morning.

The fair, which comes Dec 11 and 12, is being pushed with vigor. No stone is left unturned to make it a grand success. All are urged to "lend-a-hand," as this is the greatest effort, by the ladies, during the year.

The Epworth League are not idle, and their next rehearsal for the "Old Maids' Convention" comes next Monday evening. Parts are working out beautifully, and it is hoped that by next rehearsal, each part will be committed thoroughly. Only one more rehearsal. The date of the Old Maids' Convention is Nov. five. Place is the vestry.

Do not think that Junior League is the same as the Epworth League, as they too, are a real live department of the church work. The children under fourteen, directed by the pastor's wife, Mrs. John R. Chaffee, and assisted by Mrs. Nestor Davis, are building up strong Methodist characters for the coming generation. The practical enthusiastic leadership of Mrs. Chaffee and Mrs. Davis backed by strong Methodist parents makes for success.

For true happiness, send your children to the Junior League each Friday afternoon at four, in the Methodist Church parlors.

The morning and evening services last Sunday, were of unusual interest. We have never heard a more interesting children's candle sermon. The tall candle representing Christ, and numbers of smaller sized candles, representing the people of the earth who were finally lighted and warmed by Christ's light, moved the people in the audience to deep spiritual thought. It all goes to prove that adults as well as children, are greatly impressed by an object lesson.

In the evening the vestry was well filled as the pastor had annouced that he would speak on the life of Augustine. This is a series of lectures, five in number, which he will give at seven o'clock on Sunday evenings. Next Sunday evening he will lecture on, "Bernard of Clairvaux."

SPECIAL BOWLING TOURNAMENT.

In addition to the regular winter bowling tournament at the Calumet Club which started this week, several special tournaments are scheduled to be held until after Christmas.

On Saturdays, Nov. 7, 14, and 21, from 2 to 6 and 7.30 to 12 p. m., there will be a turkey roll. The entry fee is to be 25 cents for each three strings bowled. The whole amount of the entry fees will be expended in the purchase of turkeys, and the highest totals during the tournament will take the prizes. The contestants will be handicapped.

A special prize has been donated by Mr. Charles S. Tenney to be bowled for on Thanksgiving day, Nov. 26th. The hours set apart for the rolling are from 9 to 12, 1 to 6 and 7 30 to 11.

President of the Club, Wallace F. Flanders, has offered a special prize for bowling by the ladies of the families of members. Arrangements will be made for bowling by the ladies on Tuesday evenings during November and December. The ladies who enter this tournament will be given ratings by the bowling committee.

INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE RALLY.

There will be a rally of the Independence League party in the Town Hall this Saturday evening. Doors open at 7. The speakers will be: Hon. John A. Coulthurst, John A. Kenney, Cornelius J. Desmond, and C. O. Power—all prominent in the party.

GRADE CROSSING HEARING.

There will be a hearing on the grade crossing abolition in room 249, State House, on Saturday forenoon at 10 o'clock.

Mr Nelson H. Seelye will present a new two bridges plan at this hearing, which he claims has superior points over the other two bridges plans heretofore presented.

BOWLIING SEASON OPENS.

The Calumet Club started its bowling season this week with its regular winter tournament of Boston pins, fourteen teams entering to compete for the prizes. This is the largest entry in a tournament at the club for some years, and the interest in the games is expected to be very active during the winter. Eight prizes have been announced. George S. Littlefield, chairman of the Bowling Committee at the Club, has arranged the schedule of games for the tournament running to the middle of January.

Following is the makeup of teams ratings and schedule of games, etc.:

Rules to Govern Tournament

Games to begin at 8 o'clock, p. m.

No games to be postponed, and ratings to be taken in absence of any player.

Points to be counted under rules of Amateur Boston Pin League.

No team shall take more than one team prize and no individual shall take more than one individual prize.

Members who did not participate in last season's tournaments are given a temporary rating. At the end of five matches the Committee will give a permanent rating based upon actual bowling and the scores of all matches previously rolled will be revised accordingly.

Prizes for Tournament

PRIZES

1st—Team winning greatest number of points.
2nd—Team winning second greatest number of points.
3rd—Team making largest single string with handicap.
4th—Team making largest grand total pin fall with handicap.
5th—Individual highest three strings with handicap.
6th—Individual highest single string with handicap.
7th—Individual highest average with handicap.
A special prize for the individual making the largest grand total of pins without handicap, is offered from a special appropriation made by the Directors at the request of the Bowling Committee.

Winchester, Mass.

Dear Sirs: It's an old saying: the best advertisement is a pleased customer.

It happens to us continually in this way: A man buys Devoe for his house—he has painted it once in three years for a dog's age, and thinks he knows what he wants—buys 30 gallons, and has 10 left.

He sees right-off that 20 Devoe is as much as 30 of anything else. He likes that; it comes quick; it is a surprise; and he tell of it. The best advertisement is a pleased customer.

Three years roll round. There isn't a sign that his house needs paint; he don't paint it. Next year he don't paint it. This comes slow; it is a surprise; but he has got used to it. Still the best advertisement is a pleased customer.

Yours truly

BOSTON THEATRE.

Following the plan of presenting the latest successes, the attraction at the Boston Theatre next week, will be the 'Hypocrites," by Henry Arthur Jones, a play which has met with tremendous success. It was in the Hypocrites" that Jessie Millward made her great success. The action of the piece takes place in a small English village, where, with few exceptions, there is pitiable immorality. The exception to the rule is the Reverend Edgar Linnell, who is deeply stirred by the conditions, but when he attempts reform is met with such opposition that his living is threatened, and he is finally forced to acquiesce. Linnell pleads the cause with Wildmore, a man who has influence in the villiage, that an erring tenant should marry an erring woman, although she is not worthy. Later on in the play the same question comes up in connection with the son of Wildmore, who although engaged to marry, proved unfaithful to another woman. This instance brings the father to a realization of the responsibilities, and the play has a good ending.

TENTH ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Homer McIntosh celebrated their tenth wedding anniversary at their home, No. 534 Main street, last Friday evening. Many relatives and friends were present from Hyde Park, Somerville, East Boston, Wakefield, and this town.

The residence was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves. Pumpkin jack-o-lanterns were used for the table decorations. Musical selections were rendered by Mrs. William F. McCarthy and Mrs. McIntosh, after which refreshments were served. Much fun was occasioned by the many gifts of tin ware, and a delightful evening enjoyed by all present.

Our method of supplying your requirements in Furs has made The Dunlap-Cooke Canadian Furs famous as the Furs of Quality. The Canadian Climate produces the finest furs known to commerce, because of the long, cold winters. The fur-bearing animals of Canada are provided by nature with a coat that is warmer, finer and more lustrous than temperate climates can produce.

The Duty on Manufactured Canadian Furs is 35%—We receive our Canadian Furs in the Raw State Duty Free. We have our own fur stores in Canadian centres; here we receive the raw furs from the trappers. We are the only Canadian Fur concern with a store in the United States. In this respect the strength of our position is unequalled. When you buy direct from us you save middlemen's profits and secure skins taken in prime season from the best sections, because we know where and when to buy the best that Canada offers.

TRAFFIC DELAYED ON STEAM ROAD.

Traffic on the Woburn loop of the Boston & Maine Railroad was delayed for four hours Saturday afternoon when the Woburn shifting engine and a loaded freight car left the tracks near the Swanton street bridge. Conductor William True and Brakeman James Riley narrowly escaped injury. A wrecking train from Boston cleared the tracks in the afternoon.

Many people realize that they can get as good writing paper in Winchester as in Boston. Wilson's is the place.

We are, at the present time, the only Optical Experts in America who can examine an eye.

We mean exactly what we say.

It you have ever had your eyes tested for glasses, you know the methods used by people who claim to examine the eyes and fit glasses, and they all use the same methods, no matter where you go, the high priced Specialist or to the 5 and 10 cent stores. They use the same old test types hung on the wall, and try on a lot of glasses, asking you "Can you read this letter?" and "Does this line look blacker?" until you are so confused that you cannot tell which glasses are correct.

After your Optician does a lot of guessing and has your eyes all out of shape, you think you have been examined.

Think this over and you can readily see that you have been doing your own examining, and that is no doubt the reason you have had trouble to get glasses correct.

The Dammers Scientific Method is entirely different and is the only correct way to fit glasses.

NO DROPS USED. Those who have been examined for glasses by men who claim to examine eyes by the old, incorrect way, which is done by everyone who supplies glasses but us, will be agreeably surprised by our scientific and wonderful methods of fitting glasses.

We correct your eye defects by looking in the eyes, taking the exact scientific measurements of the focus and shape of the eyes.

NO QUESTIONS ASKED, no trying glasses on your face until we have determined your exact optical error.

This is absolutely the Highest Class work done in Fitting Glasses in America. Don't suffer with Headache.

We have produced astonishing results from brainfag, nervous debility, insomnia, dizziness, nausea, watery eyes, blurry vision and other troubles caused by eye-strain. We have corrected by the use of glasses cross eyes and Astigmatism by our scientific methods.

OLD PEOPLE'S DAY.

Last Sunday was an ideal day for observing the seventeenth annual Old People's Day at the Congregational Church. The weather was mild and balmy thus enabling many aged persons to attend the morning service. As is customary, the order of service was in keeping with the day, the pastor's subject being 'Opening the Old Wells,' Gen. xxvi: 18: while the hymns were the old familiar favorites, so dear to past generations. Mr. Alpheus Bowers who always contributes a hymn on these occasions, did so again this year, the title being "A Hymn of Gratitude," as follows:

Father, accept our grateful hymn of praise,
Which in Thy house with humble hearts we raise:
Thankful to Thee for Thy unfailing care,
Thy boundless love, in which we all may share.

These Autumn days with beauty are supplied,
And harvest fields are rich on every side,
Filling our hearts with gratitude to Thee,
Who giveth all things with a hand so free.

The year is passing swiftly on its way,
We cannot hold or check one fleeting day;
But we can love Thee, serve Thee and adore,
And of Thy grace partake in bounteous store.

Keep us dear Lord, more closely by Thy side,
We need Thee so, our wayward hearts to guide;
Lift us above our cares, that we may be,
Ready for heaven and happiness with Thee. Amen.

Autumn leaves, flowers, fruit and vegetables were the decorations. The weekly offering and collection was given to the Home for Aged People.

The Roll of Honor shows many changes during the past year caused by death and removal from town. Death claimed the following:

RENOVATING APPLE TREES.

In a recent issue of its monthly crop report the State Board of Agriculture includes an article on "Renovating Old Orchards," by Professor F. C. Sears, Professor of Pomology, at the Massachusetts Agricultural College. A copy of the report will be sent to any one applying to J. Lewis Ellsworth, Sec. State Board of Agriculture, State House, Boston, and those who wish may have their names placed on the permanent mailing list.

Prof. Sears says, in commencing the article: "There are undoubtedly thousands of old apple trees in Massachusetts some in orchards and others scattered about fields, which would pay good returns if they could be thoroughly 'renovated' and thereafter be given proper treatment. On the other hand, there are just as many, and probably far more, which would be more profitable on the woodpile than anywhere else. The first question, then, for one to decide, if he owns such trees or orchards, is 'Will it pay to make the attempt to get them into thrifty condition again?' In the writer's opinion this depend son four questions: 1, the age and vigor of the trees; 2, the stand of trees in the orchard; 3, the varieties; and 4, whether the San Jose' scale is in the orchard or the immediate vicinity of it."

After discussing these questions briefly but comprehensively, he proceeds as follows: "Having finally decided that the orchard is worth while, the work of renovating will fall naturally under the following heads: 1, cultivating; 2, pruning; 3, spraying; 4, fertilizing; 5, cover-crops; 6, grafting, arranged somewhat in the order of their importance, though of course this will vary greatly with different orchards, and though all will be needed to secure the best results."

Prof. Sears goes into a careful discussion of all of these topics, bringing to their consideration a wide experience and much careful study and observation. The article is illustrated with half tones, showing promising and unpromising types of trees for renovating, with directions as to cutting back and pruning the promising trees.

FOOD FAIR.

It would seem as if all New England will have gone to the great annual New England Food Fair at Mechanics building, Huntington avenue, Boston, the place where all the food fairs and expositions for over a quarter of a century in Boston have wisely been held.

One can get a faint idea of the character of the free "shows" when it is stated that among them are the splendid concerts, given twice daily, by the Mexican National band, expressly sent to Boston by President Diaz with his "greetings to the people of New England" and to keep the Mexican governments magnificent and elaborate $10,000 exhibit, good company. This Mexican exhibit occupies the stage and the first balcony of Grand Hall where the $100,000 Philippoteaux paintings of the life of U. S. Grant are on free exhibition.

The height of generosity seems outdone in the free performances of the Frank C Bostock consolidated trained wild animal arena.

In two moving picture theatres are shown "Paul Revere's Ride," the Harvard-Yale boat race, splendid views of scenes in the Yosemite Valley, the ostrich farms at Pasadena, and other places in California and a series of comic pictures, and everything is free.

DECLINED THE NOMINATION.

"Practical Politics" and other Boston papers state that Mr. Arthur E. Whitney of Winchester is the democratic candidate for representative for the 27th Middlesex district. This news item is erroneous though Mr. Whitney has been put to some trouble to "shake" the honor thrust upon him without his knowledge or consent by would be friends in Winchester and Medford. He knew nothing of the matter until notified by the Secretary of State as the convention officers held no communication with Mr. Whitney either before or after the convention. In order to get his name off the official ballot to be prepared by the state, it was necessary for Mr. Whitney to go before a justice of the peace and make a sworn statement to the Secretary of State divorcing himself from too close a connection with a too willing partner and positively declining to accept the nomination as made and sworn to by the convention officers.

Since filing the foregoing statement, Mr. Whitney has been again summoned by the Secretary of State to file a sworn statement made before a justice of the peace as to how much money he expended in obtaining his nomination, one copy to be filed with the Secretary and one with the Town Clerk of Winchester. It is safe to say that aside from the expense of correspondence with the Secretary of State, Mr. Whitney has incurred no liability under the "corrupt practices" act of 1907 in having the Democratic nomination for Representative thrust upon him "whether he would or no."

No doubt Mr. Whitney would make a good business representative for the district and would run well, especially in Winchester, but in common with many others, Mr. Whitney sees no necessity of political factions or parties having representatives in the legislature. In his opinion the office is a town office and a representative should represent the town and the business of the town, not the welfare of any political party. In olden times, representatives were chosen by the town as town officers and their services were paid for by the town. It should be so now as in the election of our town officers and then less attention would be paid to political matters and more to important business affairs which need attending to rather than the political welfare of any party or individual. For these reasons a great many good business men who would make good representatives decline party nominations, or do not receive them at all, or have the honor forced upon them as leaders of forlorn hopes, a position which no "practical politician" would allow himself to be drawn into for a moment. For all these reasons it is well that Mr. Whitney "wiggled out" of the nomination he was innocently drawn into by democratic politicians. At some future time when business methods are more popular in public estimation than political exigencies, business men may be more frequently sent to the Legislature than at present, then Mr. Whitney may receive a nomination which would be acceptable to him, as the Democratic nomination at Medford it seems was not.

57TH ANNIVERSARY.

The Woburn Journal is getting to be quite venerable as compared with the average age of newspapers. It is 57 years old today, (Oct. 16,) the first sheet having been pulled from the old Franklin handpress by Mr. Fowle, Editor and Proprietor, on Oct. 16, 1856. He has the first sheet now, and we have the original subscription list, each name in the subscriber's own hand writing. Occasionally an old one comes in and looks over the list. As his eyes run down the column he sighs, for he sees but few names the owners of which could respond to rollcall today, they having crossed the Great Divide, and are now on the other side. Although old, the Journal is still sprightly, and hardly ever loses a subscriber except by death from old age.—[Woburn Journal.

As our genial and long time friend Ex-Collector Aaron C. Bell, would say: The Journal is as lively as a cricket, and will be so for many years to come, under the able management of Editor Hobbs.

RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.

On Monday noon about quarter past twelve a market team belonging to J. Pollock of Burlington struck a tree in front of the Henry Johnson estate on Main street. When the team struck the tree a box fell off the load between the horses feet which started the animals. The driver H. T. Walker of Burlington, was unable to hold them, they pulling him down onto the shafts, he finally falling off at the Whitney shop and the wheels of the team going over him. He was not hit by the horses feet. The horses continued on until they struck a pole near the old school house shattering the shafts and smashing up the wagon considerably.

The horses were caught further up the street and were taken to Kelley's stable. Mr. Walker was badly bruised and his clothing torn. His left foot was also badly bruised. The doctors on examining him decided to send him home in the ambulance and telephoned to Dr. Kelley of Burlington who took charge of him.

At the October meeting of the New England Woman's Press Association, Wednesday, at the Vendome, Boston, music was furnished by Annie Soule Lewis and F. Percyval Lewis.

GEORGE W. BLANCHARD & CO.

A good instance of Lieutenant Governor Draper's "grit" while acting governor was furnished during the pendency of the fifty-six-hour law. Some of the Democrats who wanted to "put the governor in a hole" and make political capital, when the bill contained a fifty-four hour proviso, drew up a letter, addressed to the acting governor, insinuating that he was "holding up" the bill, because he was opposed to it Mr. Draper at once arose in a dignity which reminds one of that of the late Governor Greenhalge when the state house was invaded by a "Coxey's army" and plumply told the gorilla Democratic senators that it was quite outside their province to attempt to influence the executive and that he would deal with the bill when it came before him. It is needless to say that the bushwhacking senators withdrew and pulled the hole in after them.

If Mr. Vahey should "come to Hopedale" of course all the naughty pictures of the Republican candidate would be consigned to the back yards for the time being.

If Mr. Vahey will hurry and stir things up a bit perhaps he may get mentioned in the newspapers.

Mr. Vahey will now be anxious to effect a few little "mergers" of his own.

It is really touching to see the tender solicitude for the Massachusetts Democrats manifested by their party organs outside the state. Of course they will all send wreaths for the funeral.

Why do the Democratic papers shun the state campaign? Do they think it is loaded?

If you think money is being wasted on Beacon Hill vote for Mr. Draper, who is sure to watch for leaks and plug them up.

Mr. Vahey is on record as having done considerable "filibustering" in the house. Filibustering may sometimes suit partisan purposes, but it uses up quantities of good, valuable time and legislative time costs the citizens and taxpayers of the state good, hard money.

Imagine the enthusiasm of a certain class of Boston "statesmen" for Candidate Vahey!

Only a little cold in the head may be the beginning of an obstinate case of nasal catarrh. Drive out the invader with Ely's Cream Balm applied straight to the inflamed stuffed up air-passages. Price 50c. If you prefer to use an atomizer, ask for Liquid Cream Balm. It has all the good qualities of the solid form of this remedy and will rid you of catarrh or hay fever. No cocaine to breed a dreadful habit. No mercury to dry out the secretion. Price 75c., with spraying tube. All druggists, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren street, New York.

But two more opportunities are offered to those persons who desire to have their names placed upon the voting list—this evening from 7 to 8 o'clock, and tomorrow (Saturday) from noon until 10 p. m. at the Town Hall. Be sure and register so that you can vote on election day.

Pleasing to Suburban Editors.

It is always a pleasure to publishers of suburban papers to learn that one of their fellow members has been chosen by his townspeople to fill a public office. But no doubt it would be a double pleasure for these same publishers to be accorded the privilege of voting for one of their number, especially in the case of George C. Fairbanks of the Natick Bulletin who has been nominated by the Republicans of that town for Representative. His voice has always been raised in favor of good citizenship, and outspoken efforts along the lines of a better and a purer Natick. As president of the Massachusetts Press Association his advice has been elevating to the suburban or country press. His townspeople as well as his numerous brother editors always know where to find him, and it elected to the Legislature Natick will certainly be the gainer.

Mrs. Richard Taylor of Border road was pleasantly surprised Friday evening by a visit from her Sabbath School class of young ladies. The occasion marked the first anniversary of her marriage and the young ladies presented her with a beautiful framed picture of "The Angelus." A social time and refreshments were enjoyed.

Newsy Paragraphs.

The 10th Band of the Post Artillery Corps of the United States Army of Fort Banks volunteers its services for the Junior Charity Club Girls' Pop Concert at the opening night, Thursday, Oct. 29, at 8 p. m. at Horticultural Hall. This band of 24 pieces played for the Peace Concert at Portsmouth, N. H., and is considered one of the best in the United States.

Mr. George R. Nugent, when coming out from Boston in his automobile one night last week, failed to see a turn in the road at the bend below the old pumping station, West Medford and ran the car into the marsh. Four horses were required to pull it out and considerable damage resulted. Fortunately Mr. Nugent escaped unhurt.

A freight train broke apart on the crossing shortly before six o'clock on Wednesday morning, leaving three cars in the centre. Word was telephoned to Walnut Hill and the train backed up and took the cars. On the same morning the locomotive hauling the 9 o'clock express from Boston blew out a couple of tubes in its boiler at North Winchester, delaying the through outward trains until after 10 o'clock.

That Winchester is becoming popular as a residential town is evidenced by the large number of new and costly residences that are being built, as well as in the great demand for rents. There are at the present time in the neighborhood of 20 residences being built, most of them in the westerly section of the town, costing from $8000 to $10000. The real estate men complain that there is a dearth of houses of the middle class and applicants are being turned away every day, unable to find what they want, but are still anxious to get a residence here.

The Winchester Brass Band is planning a concert to be given in the near future.

Waterfield Lodge, I. O. O. F., is preparing to observe its fourteenth anniversary on the evening of Monday, November 10. A committee has the matter in charge and will provide an entertainment, the details of which have not yet been announced.

The teachers and officers of the First Congregational Sunday School were entertained last evening at the home of Dea. George S. Cabot, superintendent of the school.

Mrs. Edith Pettingill and daughters of Arlington have taken a house on Lawson road, which is now occupied by them. Madam Hicks with whom Mrs. Pettingill and family have resided for several years in the mansion house on Pleasant street, Arlington, will also make her future home at Winchester.

HIGHER CANDLE POWER STREET LIGHTS.

Special high candle street lights can now be had where municipalities desire them for special lighting.

These lamps are of 80 candle power and are extremely desirable for lighting public squares or other points where more light is required. They are also very useful where lamps are spread greater distances apart than ordinarily.

In such cases they tend to secure a more uniform and satisfactory lighting.

The cost is proportionately LESS than for 60 candle power lamps.

George Wright, the famous ball player and head of the firm of Wright & Ditson visited the Winchester Country Club Wednesday and played over the course for the first time. He was delighted with its condition and the fine view it commands.

On Wednesday evening a boy giving his name as Alfred Slaughnessy of Lake avenue, while racing with an electric car ran in front of an automobile on Pleasant street. The boy was struck by the auto, and according to the driver of the car he was struck hard, but picked himself up apparently unhurt. The automobile was owned by Alex. McLeod of North Andover. Later it was found that every tooth in the boy's head was loosened, and also that he was badly bruised about the head and legs

On Tuesday evening as Messrs. Oren C. Sanborn and H. L. Larrabee were travelling in Mr. Sanborn's automobile over the same stretch of road near West Medford that Messrs. R. H. Sherman and G. R. Nugent experienced accidents on latt week, they had a very narrow escape from being struck head-on by a runaway horse. It appears that an automobile had collided with a buggy just ahead of them. As the driver of the automobile was a doctor, he took charge of the injured occupant of the buggy. Had the horse struck Mr. Sanborn's car, the speed of the animal added to that of the auto would have thrown him directly on top of the two gentlemen, probably severly injuring them.

Dr. Clarence E. Ordway and Mr. J. W. Russell, Jr., have had some very good luck at partridge shooting lately.

That Selectman Frank W. Winn's name does not appear on the warrant for the coming election is due to the fact that this gentleman is up in the Maine woods. This is the first time he has missed a meeting of the Board of Selectmen since he became a member.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Peppard of Mystic avenue gave a party on Wednesday night in observance of the seventeenth birthday of their daughter, Jessie. About twenty friends of the young lady were present and a very enjoyable evening was passed with games and piano selections by Miss Sadie Felber and solos by Mrs. William Schultz, accompanied by Miss Peppard. During the evening refreshments were served by Young Alarming conditions confront the dairymen of this section. The unprecedented dreuth of the past season has so shortened feed of all kinds that many life-long producers of milk in all parts of New England are being forced to consider the sale of their herds rather than to continue in so unprofitable an enterprise. It is rumored that the price of all dairy products must advance or a famine along these lines will ensue.

The first ladies' night at the Calumet Club this winter will occur on Tuesday evening. It is the desire of the officers that there be a large attendance to meet the many new members who have joined the club during the summer. Poole's orchestra will furnish the music for the dancing, and prizes will be awarded winners of the whist.

Mr. Lewis Parkhurst is sick at his home with typhoid fever. His condition was reported yesterday as being as good as could be expected, showing improvement over that earlier in the week.

Jackson & Co

ESTABLISHED 1864.

In selecting furs about which your personal knowledge is necessarily limited it is always safest to purchase from a responsible dealer who has a reputation earned by years of testing to maintain, and who does not desire and cannot afford to treat you unfairly.

For nearly fifty years we have been established in Boston as manufacturers of High Grade Furs, collecting the skins from all over the world and making them into every conceivable kind of fur attire.

This long experience in satisfying the needs of the most discriminating persons, has taught us how to give the largest possible value for every dollar expended with us.

All of our garments are fashioned after the latest Paris and London styles and are guaranteed in every respect to give perfect satisfaction, and to be superior to other fur garments when price, quality and workmanship are considered.

This is why shrewd fur buyers prefer to deal with a long established house whose entire business is centered in one location and whose workrooms are always open to inspection.

All we ask is for you to call and then decide where to purchase.

A NEW RAILROAD CROSSING AT BELMONT.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Our neighbor, the town of Belmont, has just come into possession of a new overhead railroad crossing which seems to please everybody. We wish every citizen of Winchester would inspect it. The railroad tracks have been elevated and the square or crossing depressed, each in proper proportion. A beautiful stone arch bridge (not such homely iron bridges as the opposition threw on screens at Winchester town meetings) carries four railroad tracks over the street. Water in the depression is well taken care of although quite a large brook runs near the crossing. Beautiful banks, park-like spaces and shrubbery on each side of the railroad and extending from it for many feet make the center of Belmont more beautiful than it was before the grade crossing was eliminated. A new gothic stone station of beautiful design and covered with a red tiled roof fits into the landscape as naturally as if it always belonged there. The whole landscape looks like a bit of old England, railroad station and all. Foot subways under the railroad afford short cuts to foot travellers without making use of the bridge.

The Belmont situation, as regards its railroad crossing, was similar to present Winchester conditions, the crossing being situated at the lowest part of the town and cutting directly across the town square. If the plan of the Winchester committee of fifteen had been received and considered a little more patiently, (not to say politely) by the town and some modifications made in the original plan, Winchester might now be as sure of as good a crossing as Belmont possesses. Certainly the committee's plan was deserving of more careful consideration than it received, for almost the same plan at Belmont has proved successful. Such a plan is much more practical than any scheme which requires the lifting up of such a territory as the whole of Winchester Square to such an extent as contemplated by the plan voted for by the town. If we have got to have our crossing eliminated, certainly the Belmont plan has much to recommend it and its good points show to better advantage now it is completed than when the same plan was submitted on paper to the town of Winchester, and it was rejected without the least attempt to modify or improve it. In the case of Winchester, the Belmont plan might be improved by building more than one arch, thus giving the square a more open appearance, but as it is, the work is a great success and speaks for itself much better than any one can speak for it.

ARTHUR E. WHITNEY.

WINCHESTER WINS.

The Winchester high school foot-ball team defeated Arlington high on Manchester field last Friday afternoon by the score of 6 to 0. The home team kept the visitors on the jump about all the time and kept the ball in their territory. Four times during the first half Arlington held the home team for downs on their ten yard line and then punted out of danger. In the second half Winchester came back strong and tore through Arlington's line for five and seven yards at a time until the ball was on the twenty yard line, and then Sharon broke through the line and made a touch down, with Marshall as his interference. Not once was the home teams goal in danger. All the Winchester players played well, while Buckley was Arlington's mainstay.

The lineup:

Touch down made by Sharon; goal from touch down Marshall; Referee, Mobbs; Umpire, Guyer; Linesmen, Thompson and White; Timer, Badger; 15 and 20 minute halves.

W. H. S. NOTES.

At a meeting of the athletic association on last Monday, George Foley was elected base ball captain.

The foot ball team is rapidly rounding into shape, and will try to give a good account of itself when it plays Woburn High School, Friday afternoon on Manchester Field. Last Wednesday the team won from the Winchester A. A. which was composed mostly of former high school players by the score of 5 to 0.

Dorothy Wellington has been elected captain of the girls basket-ball team of the class of 1910.

Last Tuesday Dean Blanchard was elected captain of the 1911 hockey team.

John Collins 1912 has been elected captain of his class basket-ball team.

PARENTS WHO ARE AFRAID.

Dr. Liberty H. Bailey, who is Chairman of the Commission of Country Life recently appointed by President Roosevelt, has an important article in Suburban Life for November, on the importance of teaching children to learn to appreciate the things of the out-of-doors. In the course of the article he says: "If parents are afraid of rain and thunder, afraid to soil their clothes, dread to walk in a swamp, are scared of mice and bugs and snakes, shudder at the dark, see no beauty in things that are not pretty and striking, and are upset by trifling inconveniences, it will be the greatest wonder if their children turn out to be nature lovers."

The story of reaching a man's heart through his stomach is old, but nevertheless true.

It is sometimes hard to reach a man's pocketbook, but every article purchased at a grocers touches a pocketbook. Is it worth while to look at your grocer's bill and see if a profitable saving can be made? To write briefly, a call at the store will show convincingly of a saving of dollars in your grocer's bill.

COUNTRY CLUB TEAM LOST.

The Country Club of Brookline won the team championship of Massachusetts Wednesday at the Myopia Hunt Club course, winning seven out of a possible nine points in the finals with the Winchester Country Club team.

The Winchester team was captained by G. M. Brooks, and his team-mates were I. W. Small, Hal McCall, H. T. Bond, D. N. Skilling, jr., and E. R. Rooney.

Foursomes were played in the morning, and the Brookline team made a clean sweep.

P. W. Whittemore and H. R. Johnston the Country, defeated I. W. Small and G. M. Brooks, Winchester, 4 up and 3 to play; T. G. Stevenson and H. Selfridge, Country, defeated Hal McCall and H. T. Bond, Winchester, 5 up and 4 to play; A. Carnegie, 2d, and G. F. Willett, Country, defeated D. N. Skillings and E. R. Rooney, Winchester, 5 up and 3 to play.

Winchester had better fortune in the afternoon and won two out of the six matches and made the scoring for the afternoon 7 to 2 in favor of the Country club team.

T. G. Stevenson, Country Club, defeated Hal McCall, Winchester, 5 up and 3 to play; H. Selfridge, Country, won from E. R. Rooney, Winchester, 3 up and 2 to play; D. N. Skillings, Winchester, defeated G. F. Willet, Country, 1 up; Andrew Carnegie, 2d, Country, defeated G. M. Brooks, 6 up and 5 to play; Capt. Whittemore, Country, defeated I. W. Small, Winchester, 5 up and 4 to play; H. T. Bond Winchester, defeated Hugo R. Johnstone 2 up and 1 to play.

The morning play gave three points to the Country and the afternoon added four more while Winchester took two points in the afternoon the championship going to the Brookline Club 7 to 2.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

Further evidence of the enterprise of Messrs. Gulesian and Craig in their management of the Castle Square Theatre is apparent from the announcement that "The Admirable Crichton" is to be produced there next week.

The cast of this highly amusing play will add not a little to its humor. Mr. Craig will appear as Crichton, with Miss Mary Young as Tweeny, Miss Mary Hall as Lady Mary, Mabel Colcord as the Countess of Brocklehurst, Theodore Friebus as Rev. John Treherne, Donald Meek as Hon. Ernest Woolley, George Hassell as The Earl of Loam and William Evarts as Tomposett.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Mr. W. H. W. Bicknell entertained recently at luncheon at his studio, the Countess d'Arso Corsi of England who is in this country making a study of American factory conditions.

Mr. Robert W. Fernald returned on Tuesday from Montana after an absence of six months, part of which time was spent in Iowa.

The Central Employment Office is open for business at 153 Washington street, Winchester, and will furnish all kinds of domestic help.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR MR. SHERMAN.

Mr. Roland H. Sherman, of Everett avenue, son of Judge Edgar Sherman of the superior court, has been confined to his home as a result of a harrowing experience with his automobile last week.

Mr. Sherman started at 7 a. m. Saturday morning to motor from Boston to Winchester.

The machine was traveling at a comparatively low rate of speed on the road in the vicinity of the old pumping station at West Medford when it struck a hummock which caused it to bound against a brick wall at one side of the road. In endeavoring to clear this obstruction the machine ran into a ditch and turned turtle completely.

Mr. Sherman had no chance to jump and found himself pinned under the ponderous machine.

It was impossible for him to move. He shouted himself hoarse and struggled vainly to get free. Then to his horror the lamp near which he was resting and which was overturned began to burn.

He succeeded in rolling several feet away from the fire the smoke of which was suffocating, and he choked and coughed in his effort to breathe. He expected every minute that the tank would explode.

He continued to struggle toward freedom, and after fully three quarters of an hour succeeded in squeezing his head and shoulders out from under the car into the cool air. He stuck there for some time longer, while the fire underneath burned his clothing.

At last he was free and as he struggled to his feet he saw several people who had been aroused by his cries and the spluttering of the motor. The strain had been too much for his nerves and they were obliged to assist him to the house.

The thought of what he suffered in that hour is still sufficient to make him hysterical, and the doctor has forbidden his talking about the matter, recommending that he be kept as quiet as possible for some time. The car was but slightly damaged.

THE NOVEMBER METROPOLITAN.

"The Firing Line of a National Campaign" by John R. Winchell, the leading article in the November Metropolitan Magazine is a timely and interesting paper which carries the reader behind the scenes of a great presidential fight and shows him the inner workings of the National Committees. "Speed on the Land, On the Sea, and in the Air" is a valuable contribution by Charles H. Cochrane, showing how the world must go faster as its activities broaden. Brander Matthews discusses "The Play and the Plain People." H. N. D. Peirce, United States Minister to Norway, writes entertainingly of the strange land to which his diplomatic travels have taken him. Eustace Miles, the famous English expert on exercise and diet, contributes a valuable paper on "The Way to Rest" which he thinks of particular importance to Americans.

Among the strong short stories in this uncommonly interesting number are, "Saint Luke's Summer" by Mary Cholmondeley, "A Perfect Guard" by R. E. Vernede, "Convincing Mr. Whipple," by Frederick Walworth Brown, "The Game with the Blues" by Lucy Pratt, "The Intruder" by Roland Ashford Phillips, and "At the Top ot the Bow" by Clinton Dangerfield.

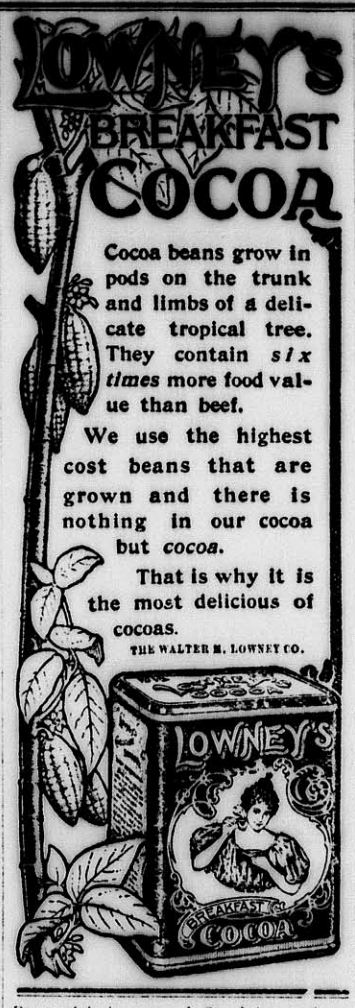
Exhibition of photographs, loaned by The Library Art Club. New Brunswick, Gaspé peninsula and Halifax. Starting at St. Stephen, opposite Calais, Maine, this set illustrates a trip through New Brunswick, by way of St. John and up the beautiful St. John River. From Grand Falls a descent is made by the Restigouche to the Baie des Chaleurs, followed by some pictures of the wonderful scenery at the extremity of Gaspé Peninsula. Returning to New Brunswick the eastern coast is followed to Moncton and the extraordinary rocks at Hopewell Cape, and the collection ends with a few views ot Halifax.



KEITH'S THEATRE.

After having introduced Annette Kellermann to the patrons ot Keiths in one of the most novel acts ever devised, and creating a sensation, next week sees not only Miss Kellermann on the bill, but another attraction—Eva Tanquay.

She dances and she sings and has a great number of imitators. They all imitate but none can duplicate Eva Tanguay.

On this same bill will be still another headline feature, no less a one than Clayton White and Marie Stuart, who are appearing in their slang class is which they have made famous, "Cherie." For this week also Melville Ellis has been engaged, the most popular of all entertainers with the piano. Others on the bill will be the Artois Brothers with a bar act. Leo Donnelly in a new specialty; the Picaro Brothers and a number of other attractions to be announced later.

The Lawrence Telegram says that a Massachusetts the most fatuous rainbow-chaser does not expect the state to go for Bryan. But aside from that, it is of the utmost importance that it should go for Draper by a handsome majority and that the legislature should be of the decided Republican complexion which will make it efficient in staying Governor Draper's hands in the work of an economical and salutary conduct of all the detail of state administration. This fact should not be lost sight of for a moment in the interest naturally felt in the national campaign.

The Boston Globe finds that in many states the voters are discussing state and national issues separately and says that Massachusetts has as good reason as any other state for giving special consideration to state issues. While we can hardly see but there should be harmony between both discussions, the Republicans will welcome any discussion of state issues strictly which can be suggested. If there is any state in which the Republicans have reason to be proud of their state administration it is in Massachusetts.

It is up to the young man of Massachusetts, about to cast his first vote, to vote upon full full information. If he does, he will vote with the Republican party of progress, rather than with the Democratic party of erraticism, retrogression and decadence. He has only to read the record. The story of the Democratic party for half a century is as plethoric with black marks as the weekly report card of a bad boy at school.

Mr. Vahey's attempt to make Lieutenant Governor Draper a sponsor or an apologist for graft will fall flat upon all fair-minded citizens. He is not that sort of man. As Whittier once wrote of another eminent citizen: "There is nothing base or small or craven in his soul's broad plan."

It ought to be a sufficient answer to any intimation that Mr. Draper is in any way inimical to labor measures, that he signed most of those which were passed by the last legislature and vetoed none.

Mr. Vahey is achieveing a high measure of success imitating Mrs. Partington and her broom.

Perhaps Mr. Vahey's drum corps is practicing; it doesn't seem ready to perform yet.

The Democratic policy seems to be to damn Mr. Vahey with faint praise.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. W. C. T. U. NOTES.

Reports of the sixth International Tuberculosis Congress in Washington are interesting to all. In the reports and papers read much emphasis was given to preventative measures.

Surgeon General Sternberg in the opening of the exhibit by which the modern methods of combatting the disease, the progress made were illustrated by charts and maps and models, said: "It has become apparent that tuberculosis is a preventable disease, and it is easy to point out the means of prevention. To secure the enforcement of the measures necessary, however, will require the united efforts of sanitarians, physicians, social workers, church organizations, fraternal associations, teachers and the educated classes generally."

It is interesting to note that the study of hospital cases reveals the fact that the alcohol and tobacco user falls an easy prey to tuberculosis germs.

Dr. Lawrence Flick head of the Phipps Institute for the study, treatment and prevention of tuberculosis, says that the table of results points to deductions which are in harmony with what consumption specialists have had reason to suspect for sometime, namely, that in the development of the disease alcoholism is a very unfavorable factor. Both in the favorable and unfavorable results the advantage is on the side of the non-alcoholic almost to the extent of 100 per cent.

In regard to tobacco study showed that "better results were obtained in patients who did not use tobacco than in those who did use it." "The preposterous claim," continued Dr. Flick, "that tobacco is a preventive of tuberculosis implantation cannot be maintained in the presence of statistics here given of a large number of tobacco users who have developed the disease. More than two thirds of the males who applied for treatment used tobacco in one form or another."

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portions of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

This woman says that sick women should not fail to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she did.

Mrs. A. Gregory, of 2355 Lawrence St., Denver, Col., writes

"I was practically an invalid for six years, on account of female troubles. I underwent an operation by the doctor's advice, but in a few months I was worse than before. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it restored me to perfect health, such as I have not enjoyed in many years. Any woman suffering as I did with backache, bearing-down pains, and periodic pains, should not fail to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Telephone Talks

Keep in touch with the world — and see to it that the world may keep in touch with you.

Party-Liners And the Golden Rule

Party line telephone subscribers virtually are co-tenants. They jointly pay for a single telephone line.

If they were co-tenants of a building they would be careful not to infringe upon the rights of others. That same regard for the equities should keep them from infringing by appropriating to themselves more telephone service than can be exacted as their fair share of the capacity of that line.

Lengthy conversations on unimportant matters, the prattling intercourse of children, phonograph concerts, and the like—these sometimes congest party lines and give cause for protest from other tenants in common.

A party line telephone has been likened to a spur track on a main line of railroad. But there is this important qualification—when the telephone spur track is in use, the entire main line is closed to traffic, not merely to the other spur tracks on the line, but also to incoming trains consigned to any part of the line.

Ordinary regard for the principle of the Golden Rule will do more to avert party line difficulties than all the rules any telephone company may promulgate.

One of the pleasant features of the Food Fair at Mechanic's Building on Monday was the presence of large numbers of children of various charitable institutions in Boston to whom the management had kindly sent passes. The large delegation from the Little Wanderer's Home were among the audience during the presentation of the moving pictures of Paul Revere's Ride and their rapture was surely a pleasure to witness. It was a good lesson in patriotism too, and one could not help speculating on the future of those bright eyed boys and girls so impressionable open to good as to evil influences and so sorely needing the love and care of a real home.

A double-track location for the new street railway through the Middlesex Fells, along the shores of Spot Pond, has been granted the Boston & Northern by the Metropolitan park commission. Under the terms of the franchise the B. & N. must have a single track line running within a year from the date of the road's acceptance, paying to the state $1 per year for 10 years. After 10 years the road will pay a sum to be agreed upon by its officials and park commissioners The location has not yet been accepted by the B. & N.

WOBURN CONFERENCE.

The regular fall meeting of the Woburn Conference was held on Tuesday, Oct. 27, with the First Congregational Church of Winchester. It is several years since this church last entertained the people of the conference. The Woburn Conference of Congregational Churches was organized April 28, 1852, and includes in its membership the churches of Bedford, Billerica, Burlington, Carlisle, Lexington, Malden, Medford, Melrose, Reading, North Reading, Stoneham, Wakefield, Wilmington, Winchester and Woburn. In this group are twenty five churches with a total of 5800 members. These conferences are largely for spiritual uplift, for helpful fellowship of the churches, and for the consideration of the immediate and urgent needs of the neighborhood of churches. Meetings of the Woburn Conference are held in the spring and fall. In each church, the pastor, Sunday-school superintendent and president of the Y. P. S. C. E. are ex-officio delegates, and, besides these, each church is entitled to additional delegates in proportion to their membership. The delegates to the conference, however, form a comparatively small portion of the audience. The meetings are usually attended by large numbers of the members of the churches, as the addresses and discussions are not so much concerned with business matters of dry detail, as they are with the great practical needs of religious life. The arrangements for the entertainment of the conference were under the immediate care of the church committee. The Christian Endeavor room of the church was the reception room and had been carefully arranged by the ladies of the church, under Mrs. Frederick H. Means of the decoration committee.

Beautiful rugs covered the floor, comfortable chairs were placed in the room, and flowers increased the attractiveness. The large vestry was filled with tables for the supper and the adjoining room had to be annexed and likewise supplied with tables. The day being fair, a very large number were in attendance, and, while of course, the immediate duty was the entertainment of the duly accredited delegates, it was proposed to provide supper for every guest from out of-town churches.

As visitors arrived at the church, the members of the Hospitality Committee were waiting at the door to greet them with a handshake and a word of welcome. This was cordially done by Mr. and Mrs. Charles E Swett, Dr. and Mrs. Clarence J. Allen and Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Baldwin. Rev. Charles F. Carter of Lexington was moderator, and Rev. David C. Torrey of Bedford, scribe of the conference, which was opened with a devotional service of prayer and praise conducted by Rev. John Wild of South Medford. This was followed by such details of organization as were necessary. Rev. D. Augustine Newton, as pastor of the inviting church, voiced for himself and his people their cordial welcome to the visiting guests. Rev. A. E. Dunning, D. D., of Boston, editor of the "Congregationalist" gave a report from the International Council recently held in London.

The rest of the time of the conference was occupied with the addresses upon the general topic of the conference, viz.: "The Opportunity of the Church."

Rev. Stephen A. Norton, D. D., of Woburn portrayed that "opportunity" as seen in the Plan of the Master, bringing the modern Church face to face with the original idea of the Church as obtained from the divine author. Mrs. Burt Leon Yorke, the wife of the pastor of the West Medford church, gave an exceedingly interesting talk on Bible Study in the Sunday School and interspersed her words on Bible study with the effective telling of Bible stories by way of illustration.

Rev. Charles F. Carter of Lexington followed with a careful presentation of the present opportunity of the church in the interesting work of its healing ministry, concerning which so much is being said at the present time. His address was altogether sympathetic with this new conception of the ministry of the Christian church to the sick. Mrs. Martha E. S. Curtis of the "Little Hill" church of Burlington followed with an address upon the opportunity of the Country Parish with scattered membership, and the moving away of the young, and Rev. John Paisley of the church at Melrose Highlands set forth the peculiar problems of the Suburban Center, with its increasing foreign population, and the absence of its men so much of the time in the great city. But to offset this great problem he set forth what might be and ought to be recognized by the suburban church as its great opportunity to become the religious, the social, the ethical and civic center of suburban influence. Nor did he forget to speak of the immigrants from other lands who are not only filling the great cities, but pressing also into the suburbs. The desire of helpfulness which was the key-note of all the addresses was further emphasized in the report of a special committee with reference to plans for helping the struggling church at South Medford to do the larger work for which its position fits it.

At 5.30 a recess was taken for the collation. All out-of-town guests were given tickets to the supper tables. For the convenience of Winchester people, those who preferred to remain rather than go to their homes for supper were allowed to stay upon paying the price per plate which was charged the church by the caterer. At the tables were seated 427 guests from out of town. Caterer Dill of Medford had been engaged by the committee to furnish the food, though many of the ladies of the church brought extra supplies of cake. Each table was supervised by a lady of the church, and she provided waiters for her table from the young ladies of the congregation.

The evening session was begun by an organ recital by Miss Jessie P. Marshall, the organist of the church. The devotional and praise service was conducted by Rev. William I. Boicourt of Montvale. An anthem was sung by the choir. Scripture reading, prayer and singing followed, and then the three speakers of the evening continued the topic of the day, treating the opportunity of the church in Reform Movements, in Social Service, and in the Winning of Men, the speaker on the first of these three being Mr. Warren F. Spaulding of Cambridge, the second, Rev. Arthur S. Beale, who has recently become pastor of the church in Stoneham, and the third, Rev. Frank S. Hunnewell of Reading.

These held the interest of the people to the end, and prepared the way for the solemn and impressive communion service, which was conducted by Rev. H. H. French, D.D., of Malden, and Rev. Geo. M. Butler of Medford. After this beautiful service the conference closed with the benediction. Ample car arrangements had been secured by the committee to carry the people in various directions. Altogether it was a noteworthy conference, as to weather, attendance and the interest manifested.

Committee of arrangements—Rev. D. Augustine Newton, Rev. Charles A. S. Dwight, Dea. Charles E. Swett.

The church appointed the following committee—To engage caterer and make all necessary arrangements, Mr Harrison Parker. Finance committee, Messrs. Henry C. Ordway, Samuel J. Elder, Arthur W. Hale, E. Alden Bigelow, Eben Caldwell. Hospitality committee, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Swett, Mr. and Mrs. John K. Murdock, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Cabot, Mr and Mrs Edward L. Baldwin, Dr. and Mrs. Clarence J. Allen. Ticket committee, Messrs. F. E. H. Heath, Frank E. Rowe, F. V. Wooster, William Adriance, Roland E. Simonds. Care of Horses and Vehicles—Messrs. Daniel Kelley, Webster Hawes, J. W. Cameron, George H. Hamilton. Decoration Committee—Mrs. Frederick H. Means. General Committee on Collation, Mrs. Albert F. Blaisdell, Mrs. Preston Pond, Miss Katherine Pond.

HANDICRAFT SOCIETY.

The Handicraft Society inaugurated its new regime of monthly meetings, Friday afternoon, October 23d, with a tea and textile exhibit, and a large attendance testified to the success of the occasion. The exhibit was in charge of Mrs. Chas. D. Jenkins who worked indefatigably in procuring specimens of hand-woven work, and the unique and beautiful collection, arranged with artistic skill, that adorned and transformed the walls of the society's room, showed the happy result of her efforts.

Among the articles exhibited were exquisite portieres, and mats, from the Blind Asylum, and from Miss Lalley of Cambridge, two handsome spreads from Mrs. Anthony Kelley, priceless old sheets and towels loaned by Mrs. Joshua Coit, Mrs. Charles West and Miss Pressey, and articles woven in the Azores from Miss Joy, and an interesting donkey-blanket made by an old woman.

The society's room presented a charming appearance, for besides the textile display were two tea-tables set with flowers and dainty linen, and presided over by Mrs. Rufus Crowell and Mrs. Anthony Kelley. The members of the Social Committee who graciously received the guests were Mrs. Sylvester Taylor, Mrs. Allan Boone and Mrs. Frederick Means.

Altogether the afternoon was a complete success, and the members of the society hail this new regime in a spirit quite unlike that of the woman who said she "did not like these new ovations!"

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES.

The Ladies Aid Society are well satisfied with the results of their Rummage Sale which was held on Wednesday of this week, in Waterfield Hall. They cleared above all expenses, the sum of one hundred dollars. Sober thought and hard work, make for success.

The list of committees was as follows: Chairman in general charge: Mrs. Edward L. Dunning; Men's Clothing, Mrs. R. M. Armstrong, Mrs. H. Hovey; Women's clothing, Mrs. John Mason, Mrs. James Johnson, Mrs. Herbert Cook, Mrs. Ida Purrington. Women's shoes and underwear, Mrs. J. R. Chaffee, Mrs. Lena Roberts. Miscellaneous table, Mrs. W. F. Fitch, Mrs. William Dotton. Furniture, Horatio Hovey. Men's and women's hats, Mrs. Thomas Bulmer, Mrs. Edward Robie. Men's shoes and children's clothing, Jennie Sands, Anna Murphy, Miss Dodd. Collectors, Maynard Johnson, George Stearns. General assistant, Mr. Foster. Cashier, Mrs. Irving Johnson. Mr. Reuben Hawes furnished express team for the day.

The Epworth League have only one more rehearsal for the "Old Maid's Convention." It is hoped that every one having any part in the affair, will surely be present. The last rehearsal will occur on Monday evening, Nov. 2nd. We hope that the public will remember the date of the entertainment. It is Thursday evening, Nov. fifth.

Rev. Dillon Bronson, D. D., formerly pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Brookline, who is to preach next Sunday morning, is a very attractive speaker.

VESPER SERVICE.

For the monthly vesper service at the First Congregational church at 4.30 p. m. Sunday the choir will have the assistance of Master Travis G. Walsh, Soprano soloist of the Church of the Advent, Boston.

The order of service will contain the following musical selections:

Prelude "March Triomphale" Dubois.
Magnificat in F" Clough Leighton.
(Chorus)
"O for the Wings of a Dove" Mendelssohn-Bartholdy.
(Master Walsh.)
"Consider and Hear Me" Carl Pflueger.
(Chorus.)
Offertory-"Contilena" Demarest.
"Ave Maria" Chas. Gounod.
(Master Walsh.)
"My Heavenly Home is Bright and Fair" Proctor.
(Quartette.)
Postlude- "Marche Solemnelle" Chas. Gounod.

A cordial invitation to attend this service is extended to all.

For the vesper service on Dec. 6, the choir of the First Congregational Church will render a considerable portion of the oratorio Elijah by Mendelssohn.

THE FORTNIGHTLY.

Mrs. Mabel Loomis Todd's Lecture Before the Members.

Mrs. Todd gave a very entertaining lecture last Monday on "Panama and the Canal."

She was one of a party of astronomers who were going to South America to make some observations in regard to Mars, and stopped at Panama on their way down in May, and again on their return north in October.

Mrs. Todd was full of enthusiasm in regard to the great work that is being accomplished in the construction of this wonderful canal, as well as the picturesqueness and tropical charm of the surrounding country. It is in her opinion the greatest of all achievements, except, the building of the Pyramids. Having a special car placed at their disposal, the party were able to acquaint themselves with all that is being, and has been accomplished in this stupendous feat of engineering. Over 30,000 persons are constantly employed, and the work is progressing at a wonderfully rapid rate. To appreciate this, one must actually see what is being done. It so easy to stay at home and criticize what is going on thousands of miles away.

Mrs. Todd spoke of our indebtedness to the French for the work they had done on the canal before it came into our possession. De Lesseps had been so successful in the construction of the Suez Canal that he did not forsee the difficulties to be presented by the Panama Canal, the latter offering complications not encountered in the former. Mrs Todd said that, after all the talk about graft, she wished to state emphatically that the French had been very honorable in all their transactions, even to having every engine or other piece of machinery sold by them to the Americans thoroughly olled and ready for use. The French entered upon this undertaking with most enthusiastic devotion, and did not relinquish it till many of their number had died by disease, for want of better sanitary arrangements. This matter of sanitation was attended to at once when the project was transferred to the Americans. By careful study and experiment, it was discovered that yellow fever—that fatal scourge—was communicated by mosquitoes. So the task of destroying the breeding grounds of mosquitoes was undertaken with success; and when every mosquitoe had been exterminated the yellow fever entirely disappeared. Now the climate is not only delightful, but healthful.

Mrs. Todd dwelt on the beauty and picturesqueness of the houses built by the French. Their hospitals too, are in good condition, and still used by the Americans.

She mentioned the discussion as to whether the canal should be a sea level or a lock canal, and the final decision that the latter was a necessity. The waters of the Pacific Ocean being higher than those of the Atlantic Ocean proved a serious obstacle to a sea-level canal; but an insurmountable obstacle was offered in the Chagres River, a miniature Niagara, which when swollen by the rainy season, would have rushed into the works and destroyed everything. When the lock system was decided on, it was also decided that there should be three locks, and these close together, instead of at intervals. These three locks lift up the ships 30 miles.

There are various social strata among the men who work on the canal, consequently among their wives; and clubs for all classes of both men and women are abundant. The club rooms are prettily decorated with palms, and often with the American flag, which latter is extensively used for decorations in many ways. These clubs have been of much value in their bearing on the labor question.

Everyone in Panama is devoted to the progress of work on the canal, to the exclusion of other occupations. Few are willing to undertake the cultivation of fruit or vegetables, even on the exceedingly prolific soil. These, as well as fish, which are abundant in both the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, also meats, are mostly brought down from New York.

In four or five years, said Mrs. Todd, America is going to become the parent of one of the most wonderful exploits that the world has ever known.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB.

The Winchester Boat Club is to be closed for the season on November 1st. Members of the Club who desire to enter the building after that date must apply to Mr. Ralph S. Vinal, 46 Glen road. The directors have decided to prosecute persons to the fullest extent of the law who are found guilty of breaking and entering the club house.

At the meeting of the directors held on last Friday evening five new members were elected to the club. This makes the year past the largest in point of number of members elected since the club was organized.

Mrs. Elmer Randlett has returned from a visit to Colebrook, N. H.

GRADE CROSSING.

Protracted Hearing May Come to a close Saturday.

After about three years of hearings the matter of abolishing the crossing is drawing to an end, and in all probability the next hearing, which is to take place tomorrow, will be the last. Counsel are now being heard, and when the Boston & Maine has stated its position and Counsel for the town has been heard, the evidence will be all in, so far as concerns the Special Commission having the hearing in charge. The closing up of the hearings does not necessarily mean that the end of the matter is in sight. Far from it. The Commissioners have yet to decide that the abolition of the crossing is a necessity, a question that many men think should have been decided at the commencement. If they should deem the separation of the two lines of travel necessary, then they will decide on the method, and finally send in a report to the justice of the Superior Court. Should this august body after studying the report and the voluminous testimony presented at the many hearings, concur with the Commissioners, then engineers plans will have to be prepared, and after this is done proposals sent out for doing the work. All this will take a long time, so that it may be two or three years before actual work is commenced.

At the hearing last Saturday at the State House all the Commissioners were present, also all the Counsel for the different interests and a large delegation of Winchester citizens, including Selectmen Dwinell, Richards and Barnard, Counsel Joslin, J. A. Downs, A. E. Whitney, Geo. L. Huntress, A. S. Hall, I. T. Guild, J. H. Carter, R. S. Vinal, G. A. Woods, A. R. Pike, N. H. Seelye, Stephen Thompson, G. P. Parker and F. M. White.

Mr. N. H. Seeley presented a new two bridge plan which he explained at length, but offered no evidence as to the probable cost, only that it would be less than the Guild plan, as it did not interfere with so much valuable business property.

Mr. Burdett, Counsel for the Boston & Northern electric road, then stated at length his opinion of the different plans presented and their cost, and finally stated that his preference was for the Vinal single bridge plan at the station. The plan that ought to be adopted he said was the one that will reasonably accommodate the public at a reasonable cost. He was opposed to extravagant expenditure for the elimination of the crossing.

The admission by Mr. Burdett after his severe condemnation of this plan at a hearing held last spring, was surprising to those present. It will be remembered that at that hearing his objection to this plan was because it would divert the cars from a direct line of travel, that it would cause for all time a serious loss of time, and that the B. & N. would strongly object to it for these reasons. Furthermore he stated that in order to have direct lines for its through cars, the B. & N. would be willing to spend considerable money. Since making that statement Mr. Burdett has evidently changed his mind, as he stated Saturday that the loss of time in "looping the loop" would be inconsequential. But back of it all, it was clear that his preference now for the Vinal plan was because it was the least expensive of all those submitted. He did not believe, however, that there was any crying need for the abolition of the crossing, that there were scores more dangerous in the State, and that the expenditure of from $300,000 to $400,000 for the elimination of one crossing was altogether too much.

Counsel for the Commonwealth presented a brief in tavor of the single bridge plan presented at the last hearing and prepared by the State.

Alfred S. Hall, Esq., in brief remarks urged the adoption of the Guild plan. If it did not meet with the approval of the Commission, then he suggested the Redfern two bridge plan as the next best.

One o'clock having arrived the hearing was adjourned to Saturday forenoon at 9.30, at room 249 State House, when closing arguments will be made by Mr. Coolidge of the Boston & Maine, Ralph E. Joslin, Counsel for the town, and probably others.

What impression Mr. Seeley's plan will have on the Commission, if any, is a matter for doubt. The scheme had been carefully thought out, and no doubt has a great deal to recommend it, but that it was not accompanied by the probable cost, may cause its rejection.

Up to the time of Mr. Lewis Parkhurst's sickness, it was expected that he would appear in advocacy of the Redfern two bridges plan, but this is now out of the question, so that in all probability this excellent scheme will have no advocate at the closing hearing outside of Mr. Hall's statement that it was his second choice.

Miss Delia B. Nunley, sister of the wife of Rev. Mr. Smith, pastor of St. John's Baptist Church, Woburn, died at the home of her sister on Florence street, Winchester, Tuesday morning, aged 28 years.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

At the meeting of the local union held on Friday last Mrs. Horatio N. Hovey, vice-president, had charge of the meeting. Besides the usual routine business, reports of delegates to the county and state conventions were read, as well as the quarterly reports of the officers and superintendents of departments. Mrs. George H. Hamilton was chosen secretary for the remainder of the year to take the place of Mrs. Rowe.

Mrs. Hamilton reported the making of a half-dozen bed pads for the Francis E. Willard settlement.

In the absence of Mrs. Rowe, of the Flower and Fruit Mission, contributions for the Thanksgiving box may be sent to Mrs. F. B. Tracy, 16 Mystic avenue, any time before Nov. 19. Jelly, canned or preserved fruit, fresh fruit, or other delicacies will be acceptable, as will money in lieu of other things.

Reports from Denver say that the Massachusetts delegation found snow awaiting them on their arrival at the convention city.

CALUMET CLUB NOTES.

Election returns will be received at the Calumet Club on the night of November 3rd. Arrangements have been made for a private wire for the same complete returns as are given in Boston. Popular music will be furnished by an orchestra and refreshments will be served.

On every Tuesday evening during the season, commencing November 10th, all the privileges of the club will be extended to the wives of members and to ladies of their immediate families.

The following prizes are offered by the President to be bowled for by the ladies on Tuesday evenings during November and December:

1st, for highest single string.
2nd, for largest number of strikes.
3rd, for largest number of spares.

PARISH OF THE EPIPHANY.

The Epiphany Circle, and the Choir Club resume their meetings in November.

It is the wish and suggestion of the Rector that next Sunday, Nov. 1, being All Saints' Day, should be made a Fall Rally day for the whole parish. Every member of the parish is asked to make a careful plan to be present at least at one of the services of that day.

The rector will be at Stoneham Sunday morning at All Saints Mission for the service of the Holy Communion at 9 a. m.

The Woman's Guild meet next Tuesday at the usual hour at Mrs. Weeks' in Rangeley. The meeting is in charge of the Church Periodical Club Committee and Miss Ward, who is the head of this department in Massachusetts, is to speak.

The regular anniversary of the Woman's Auxiliary comes next week Wednesday and the meetings and speakers will be announced at the church and at the Guild.

Winchester Public Library.

OCT. 26-NOV. 14, 1908.

Exhibition of Photopraphs loaned by The Library Art Club. The Yosemite Valley. The Yosemite Valley was explored by white men in 1851, and in 1855 the first party of tourists entered it. It is nearly in the centre of California, north and south, and 150 miles east of San Francisco. It is almost level, one-half to one mile wide, and seven miles in length, walled in almost completely by cliffs of sheer ascent, belonging to mountains rising from 3,000 to 6,000 feet above its floor. The Merced River, 80 feet wide, flows through it, fed by numerous waterfalls, any one of which in Europe would be of world-wide fame. The height of the mountains given on these photographs is generally that above the floor of the valley, which is about 4000 feet above the sea.

BOY STRUCK BY AUTO WEDNESDAY.

On Wednesday afternoon shortly before 4 o'clock, James Callahan, the seven year old son of Timothy H. Callahan of 35 Swanton street, was struck by an automobile and badly bruised. The boy was chasing after an electric car on Washington street near Swanton, and ran from behind it directly in front of the auto. He was thrown a considerable distance and when picked up was thought to have been badly injured. The driver of the automobile, who came from Malden, stopped his car and took the boy to his home. The police were notified and a physician called. Beyond being badly bruised about the back and hips the boy did not appear to be injured.

CARD OF THANKS.

We desire to express our heartfelt thanks to the many friends of both ourselves and our son for their acts of kindness and sympathy in our recent bereavement.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN A. HARROLD.

LIVINGSTONE-FISHER.

The beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Fisher, 60 Highland avenue was the scene of a very pretty wedding ceremony Tuesday evening when their daughter, Miss Lillian Mabel Fisher was united in marriage to Alexander Revere Livingstone, son of Mr and Mrs. Alex. Livingstone of 29 Cliff street, Arlington Heights.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. William I. Lawrance of the Unitarian Church, the couple standing beneath an arch of hydrangeas. Mr. Walter E. Fisher, brother of the bride was best man. The maid of honor was Miss Clara J. Livingstone, sister of the groom, and the bridesmaids were Miss Grace Packer of Cambridge and Miss Mabel Wingate of this town. The ushers were Mr. Clarence G. Parsons and Mr. Vernon Sloane of Arlington Heights and Mr. Hubert Godfrey of Everett.

The bride was gowned in white marquisette over heavy white silk, empire style, trimmed with princess lace and folds of satin. Her tulle veil was caught up with white rose buds and she carried a bouquet of bride's roses. The maid of honor wore pink satin with embroidery and lace. She carried daybreak pinks and wore a wreath of flowers in her hair. The bridesmaids were gowned in white satin, carrying daybreak pinks and wearing wreaths of ribbon and flowers.

Following the ceremony there was a reception from 8 until 10 o'clock, Mr. and Mrs. Livingstone being assisted in receiving by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Fisher and Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Livingstone.

The rooms were most tastefully decorated with autumn leaves and foliage, the parlor in which the ceremony and reception took place, being decorated with hydrangeas and festoons of button chrysanthemums and the library with blueberry foliage, the hall with oak leaves, barberry and bayberry, and the dining room where refreshments were served, with the same foliage, the effect being unusually attractive and pleasing. During the evening music was given by an orchestra.

The wedding gifts were numerous and included a great variety of hand-painted china, gold and silver tableware, several old-fashioned looking-glasses and other household articles which were heirlooms highly prized. There were also an old-fashioned hand-made rug, made by the bride's grandmother when over 90 years of age. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsomely engraved gold watch and chain.

The bride and groom left in an automobile after the reception for a wedding journey and after their return will reside on West street, Arlington Heights, where they will receive their friends after Jan. 1.

JOHN H. CASS.

Mr. John H. Cass aged 62 years, died at the [illegible] Mrs. [illegible], of Glen road, on Wednesday. Mr. Cass came to Winchester from Chicago, two weeks ago, suffering a shock shortly after his arrival which resulted in his death. He had made his home for the greater part in Chicago, although spending some time in Winchester.

Mr. Cass was born in Charlestown, Mass., his parents being George N. and Almira (Plummer) Cass. He was a member of Columbia Lodge of Masons of Boston, was a Shriner, and had taken the 32nd degree. He leaves no immediate relatives other than Mrs. Ladd.

Brief services are to be held on Saturday afternoon at Mrs. Ladd's home on Glen road, after which the remains will be taken to Mt. Auburn and interred in the Masonic lot with the service of that body.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

October 26th, 1908.

Board met at 7.30 p. m. Present, Messrs. Dwinell, Barnard and Winn.

Voted, on petition of the Edison Company for location of one pole, corner of Sheffield road and Church street, that hearing to be held Monday, November 2nd, at 8 p. m.

Voted, to acknowledge letter from Charles A. Taylor, (Steeple Charlie) of Leominster, Mass., and say we will have nothing for him until after the March meeting.

Received check for $325 from John S. Blank for lowering of grade of sidewalk on Park avenue.

Adjourned at 9.30 p. m.

OPENING LADIES' NIGHT.

The opening ladies' night at the Calumet Club on Tuesday evening proved a decided success. About one hundred members and ladies were present, and the dancing and whist was greatly enjoyed. At the whist the prizes were taken as follows: First ladies, Mrs. Albert A. Sargent; second, Mrs. F. M. Russell; first gentleman's, Mr. Sewall E. Newman; second, Mr. Anthony Kelley. The prizes were a cut glass dish, a glass almond set, umbrella and bridge whist set. Poole's orchestra furnished the music for the dancing and during the evening refreshments were served.

GUESTS OF EDISON CO.

The city government of Woburn, the Selectmen of Stoneham and Winchester, and invited guests were entertained by the Edison Co. Wednesday. Lunch at the Edison building on Boylston street, an inspection of the plants on Atlantic avenue and L. street, a taxicab ride through Boston's park system in the afternoon and a banquet and a visit to one of the theaters in the evening rounded out a very pleasant day.

Further particulars of the visit will be given next week.

CHRISTION SCIENCE LECTURE.

At the Christian Science lecture in the Town Hall last week Thursday evening. Mr. Henry C. Nickerson in introducing the lecturer, spoke in part as follows:

Friends:—In behalf of the local Christian Science Church I bid you a most cordial welcome. It is our practice, as many of you know, to annually give a lecture on Christian Science. The subject is of steadily growing interest to the public. The reason is because it meets our needs—a religion that is practical—appeals to humanity.

We give these lectures that the public may have a more intelligent and accurate understanding of Christian Science.

Our lecturer this evening was a pioneer worker in the South. About 20 years ago she was healed of chronic invalidism of many years standing, through Christian Science and she consecrated her life unreservedly to the cause of Christian Science, becoming a student and devoted follower of Mrs. Eddy, and has labored successfully as practitioner, reader, teacher and lecturer.

I have pleasure in introducing Mrs Sue Harper Mimms,' C. S. D., of Atlanta, Ga., a member of the Christian Science Board of Leadership of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston.

Mrs. Mimms said in part:

Mrs. Mims' Address.

"It is sometimes said that Christian Science is a beautiful religion, but it is too transcendental for me. Is it not something that transcends this poor fleeting material existence that humanity longs for and needs? Yes, Christian Science is transcendental, because never was such a transcendentialist as Jesus.

"Take for instance those two statements, 'Before Abraham was, I am,' and 'Glory thou me, oh Father, with thine own self, with the glory which I had with Thee, before the world was.' Those two statements spiritually understood and held in thought will heal any disease on earth. As we dwell on them do they not absolutely blot out this poor material sense of being or belief of life apart from God, and reveal the ideal man's indissoluble unity with his Maker, as the expression of divine glory, his divine principle, eternal life and love that one thought will and does transcend every human limitation? Christian Science is Jesus' transcendentialism made practical as He made it.

Sublime and Powerful.

"Jesus' sublime logic is equally simple and powerful. He reasoned absolutely from the heads of one spirit—one Father, Mother, Cause, Creator, Principle. He applied His divine logic of perfect cause and perfect effect, perfect God, and perfect man, to all error. He knew that the fountain can rise no higher than its source, that from God, the divine father, 'cometh every good and perfect gift,' St. James declares. We know that man cannot reach his perfect spiritual being on the false basis of material origin or evolution, any more than discord could express harmony, or flesh express spirit, with which it is ever at war. He came to reveal man's infinite possibilities when endured with a true knowledge of God's and man's own individual being as a son of God.

"Now since the great transcendental did glimpse and positive of spiritual truth—why was it not made practical, to heal and bless humanity? Simply because they did not follow it to its logical deduction, inevitable conclusion: that if the spiritual is the only real, then matter, its conditions and phenomena must be unreal, the seen and temporal, as Paul designates it, and admonishes us to 'look not at the seen and temporal, but to contemplate the unseen and eternal.

God is a Spirit

"All Christians do unite on the definition of God, as spirit, all power, presence and omniscience, then wherein is the difference between other bodies of Christians and Christian Science. Simply in logical, intelligent applicaton and utilization of this truth. For instance, imagine that we all stand together on this sublime platform or statement of God's allness, all presence and all power. Anon there presents itself to consciousness—the appearance of sin, suffering, disease, death—the very opposites of God. The unscientific or illogical Christian immediately accepts as true this temporal phenomenon and filled with fear or grief, rushes for the physician or some material remedy, loses sight of the divine remedy ever at hand. The Christian Scientist shutting his eyes to this material evidence or physical testimony says, with Paul 'Let God be true, and every man (mortal man) a liar.'

"Standing firmly on his platform with the logical, intelligent conclusion that if God is a divine, everpresence, or as scriptures declare, 'A God at hand,' then this seeming contradictory evidence cannot be true. This denial of evil and recognition of God is the simple process which heals the sick, cleanses the leper, raises the dead. This method was Jesus' own method. This makes the difference between a theoretical, men-healing Christianity and Christian science or practical Christianity.

Jesus Is Revealed.

"The last few centuries' research and experiment have so enlarged the human mind to grasp a sublime sense of the reign of law, universal, infinite, omnipotent—even the brilliant knight errant of the skies, the wandering comet, is seen to be governed by this law. When the splendor of this view is attained and this liberated and enlarged vision is asked to accept a God, who suspends or annuls his own law to rescue his own creations, it naturally rebels; but Christian Science reveals Jesus, as he declared himself, 'I am come not to destroy the law, but to fulfill the law.' Thus Jesus, central figure of all history, the example and examplar for all time, redeeming humanity by the utilization of God's own perfect law, converting the soul, changing the material to the spiritual sense of being, converts to our sacred cause many of the noblest, most intellectual and spiritual men and women on earth today.

Mrs. Eddy's Therapeutics.

"Mrs. Eddy's therapeutics are purely spiritual, cleansing from sickness by cleansing from sin. Her book, 'Science and Health,' is the key to the scriptures, illuming them, and explaining Jesus' scientific method. The perusal of this glorious 'little book' has healed thousands by opening the spiritual senses to a higher glimpse of God and man in the divine realities of being.

"Who else on earth today has written a book that has healed thousands, thousands, thousands of sin, disease, even of so-called incurable diseases and death? None other than Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science, who from the sublime heights of her spiritual vision is keeping prayerful and loving watch over a world that through her sublime discovery is even now budding into the full flower and fruitage of a triumphant and scientific Christianity."

WINCHESTER 21 WOBURN 0.

The Winchester High football team defeated Woburn High last Friday afternoon on Manchester Field by the score of 21 to 0. The backfield of the home team worked like one machine and with the help of the line to e through Woburn's line as if it was made of paper. Three touchdowns were made in rapid succession towards the end of the first half and one was made in the second with several substitutes playing. Woburn was outplayed in all stages of the game except punting and in that they had the better of it. The Winchester line played hard and Woburn could not make any gains through it, and on some attemps were thrown back for a loss. Sharon played his usual dashing game and made three of the four touchdowns. Sheridan also played well, several times breaking through and nailing the man for a loss. Bean played the best game for Woburn.

SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED.

The vocal normal department of the New England Conservatory of Music last week awarded six free vocal scholarships in voice culture. There were 200 applications for the coveted prizes. Of the six successful contestants, two came from Europe.

Two conditions of the scholarships required that applicants must be of limited means and have a decided musical ability. Two voice lessons a week are granted the successful students for a period of one year.

Among the honored few was Howard Snelling of 7 Lakeview road, this town, who sang the youth part in "Elijah" at Symphony Hall, with the Handel and Haydn Society a few years ago.

Letter to James McLaughlin.

Winchester, Mass.

Dear Sir: Here's a paint that's being sold to bargain-hunters:

10 per cent lead
50 " " zinc
20 " " barytes
20 " " whiting

Barytes and whiting are sand and whitewash, not paint.

Some people must like gold bricks. The name of that paint is ——"pure lead and zinc." The dealer who sells it says it's as good as Devoe.

Yours truly

In selecting furs about which your personal knowledge is necessarily limited it is always safest to purchase from a responsible dealer who has a reputation earned by years of testing to maintain, and who does not desire and cannot afford to treat you unfairly.

For nearly fifty years we have been established in Boston as manufacturers of High Grade Furs, collecting the skins from all over the world and making them into every conceivable kind of fur attire.

This long experience in satisfying the needs of the most discriminating persons, has taught us how to give the largest possible value for every dollar expended with us.

All of our garments are fashioned after the latest Paris and London styles and are guaranteed in every respect to give perfect satisfaction, and to be superior to other fur garments when price, quality and workmanship are considered.

This is why shrewd fur buyers prefer to deal with a long established house whose entire business is centered in one location and whose workrooms are always open to inspection.

All we ask is for you to call and then decide where to purchase.

Our method of supplying your requirements in Furs has made The Dunlap-Cooke Canadian Furs famous as the Furs of Quality. The Canadian Climate produces the finest furs known to commerce, because of the long, cold winters. The fur-bearing animals of Canada are provided by nature with a coat that is warmer, finer and more lustrous than temperate climates can produce.

The Duty on Manufactured Canadian Furs is 35%—We receive our Canadian Furs in the Raw State Duty Free. We have our own fur stores in Canadian centres; here we receive the raw furs from the trappers. We are the only Canadian Fur concern with a store in the United States. In this respect the strength of our position is unequalled. When you buy direct from us you save middlemen's profits and secure skins taken in prime season from the best sections, because we know where and when to buy the best that Canada offers.

We are, at the present time, the only Optical Experts in America who can examine an eye.

We mean exactly what we say.

If you have ever had your eyes tested for glasses, you know the methods used by people who claim to examine the eyes and fit glasses, and they all use the same methods, no matter where you go, the high priced Specialist or to the 5 and 10 cent stores. They use the same old testypes hung on the wall, and try on a lot of glasses, asking you "Can you read this letter?" and "Does this line look blacker?" until you are so confused that you cannot tell which glasses are correct.

After your Optician does a lot of guessing and has your eyes all out of shape, you think you have been examined.

Think this over and you can readily see that you have been doing your own examining, and that is no doubt the reason you have had trouble to get glasses correct.

The Dammers Scientific Method is entirely different and is the only correct way to fit glasses.

NO DROPS USED. Those who have been examined for glasses by men who claim to examine eyes by the old, incorrect way, which is done by everyone who supplies glasses but us, will be agreeably surprised by our scientific and wonderful methods of fitting glasses.

We correct your eye defects by looking in the eyes, taking the exact scientific measurements of the focus and shape of the eyes.

NO QUESTIONS ASKED, no trying glasses on your face until we have determined your exact optical error.

This is absolutely the Highest Class work done in Fitting Glasses in America. Don't suffer with Headache.

We have produced astonishing results from brainfag, nervous debility, insomnia dizziness, nausea, watery eyes, blurry vision and other troubles caused by eye strain. We have corrected by the use of glasses cross eyes and Astigmatism by our scientific methods.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The latest of the recognized theatrical stars to leave the legitimate stage for vaudeville is that highly popular actress, Viginia Harned, who is to play her first engagement at Keith's the coming week. Supported by a capable company, Miss Harned is to present a playlet from her own pen, called "The Idol of the Hour."

Annette Kellerman commences the third and last week of a really sensationally successful engagement, next Monday. She has shown herself possessed of wonderful popularity and decided strength as an out-of-the-ordinary attraction.

"La Petite Revue" is the title given by Charles Lovenberg to a vocal comedietta that is one of the hits of the season. It is based upon an old idea—the puppet show—most artistically developed.

Julius Tannen returns after an absence of more than a year. His bright line of work and clever bits of mimicry have made him a firm favorite.

The Six American Dancers, an act that stands in a class by itself; Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Barry and company in Mr Barry's new rural skit, "At Hensfoot Corner," the best vehicle they have ever had; Sam Elton, "The Man Who Made the Shah Laugh," a most amusing comedy juggler; Harry Bree, vocal comedian; Ina Claire a very clever comedienne and mimic and new Kinetograph pictures will round out a most attractive offering.

BOSTON THEATRE.

For election week at the Boston Theatre, the attraction will be "The County Chairman," by George Ade, which is one of the very best works of the famous humorist in many respects.

For this occasion there will be special engagements for several of the important parts. "The County Chairman" is not all politics for it has the usual love story. The big scenes of the play are the election and the receiving of the returns. It is one of the most successful plays that has been produced in recent years, and at the Boston Theatre special arrangements are being made for a grand production which will in many respects outrival the original.

All the members of the company will have important parts, including Wilson Melrose, Eleanor Gordon, Frank Losee, Gertrude Binley, Mary Sanders, Rose Morison, Walter Walker, Dudley Hawley, Beverly West, William Hasson and Henry Edwardes.

Election night returns will be read from the stage.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

Joseph Brooks will present Lillian Russell at the Hollis Street Theatre, Boston, for a limited engagement of two weeks commencing Monday, November 2nd, in the racing comedy success "Wildfire" by George Broadhurst and George V. Hobart.

It will be recalled that Miss Russell made an unusual hit in this play in Boston last season. Since then she has scored the success of her career in New York where her work in "Wildfire" proved a revelation. Previous contracts that could not be cancelled forced Miss Russell out of New York at the height of her run and she comes direct to Boston to resume the success she made at the Hollis last winter.

Miss Russell's play "Wildfire" is exceptional in that it combines a refined home atmosphere with the intense action encountered on a metropolitan race track and is realistic in both instances. It is dramatic, possesses a world of comedy and is held together by an appealing love story. Miss Russell displays some wonderful gowns of the Directoire pattern. Her supporting company is exceptionally strong and a fine production of "Wildfire" completes the bill. Thurston Hall, a Winchester boy is Miss Russell's leading man.

The best of fire apparatus often fails in an emergency. The only safe way is to keep well insured. See Geo. Adams Woods about a policy.

BAY STATE POLITICS

The Campaign Shows Enthusiasm For the Whole Ticket

WILL BOSTON GO FOR TAFT?

Some Predict That Independence League Is Making a Strong Fight In State—Gompers Labor Campaign Fails Flat

The campaign has opened with considerable enthusiasm. The first Republican rally was held at Wayland with a large gathering. The applause showed that there was no particular apathy lurking in that vicinity. The Republican rallies since then have been equally enthusiastic and well attended. As a campaign speaker Lieutenant Governor Draper is showing excellent ability. The talk of a plain business man certainly appeals to the thinking people of the commonwealth.

The Democrats also, and the Independence League, have held ratification meetings with good attendance at each. There is a tendency this year among the voters to hear what is to be said on every side of the political question.

Undoubtedly all the parties are more or less handicapped by the lack of funds. The campaign contributions of the Republican end, at any rate, have been very seriously cut, and many who usually contribute liberally are either not contributing at all or have cut their gifts in halves. In a presidential year the greater part of what Massachusetts contributes goes to the national committee and very little usually finds its way back into the hands of the Republican state committee. This year more than any other year it is felt that the needs of the party are in the western states rather than in the east.

The Independence League is making quite a vigorous campaign. William N. Osgood, its candidate for governor, was for many years a leading member of the Democratic party and once was a candidate on the state ticket of that party for secretary of the commonwealth. He afterwards trained for a while in the ranks of the Republican party, but his restless soul could not be satisfied with long abiding in one political organization, and he drifted about until finally he became affiliated with the League. He is a lawyer and a fair speaker, and it is possible that he may secure a considerable vote.

Little Vahey Enthusiasm

There is not such a tremendous wave of enthusiasm following in the wake of the Vahey campaign as there might be under ordinary circumstances. Mr. Vahey is regarded as a tolerably estimable gentleman who has made the practice of law a business ever since he left school. He does not have, however, the ardent support even of his own party, and it seems to be certain that the Republican candidate will receive thousands of Democratic votes on the 3rd of November next. Mr. Draper has made such an admirable official as acting governor and has conducted the office in such a splendid business way that he has won the confidence of the people, regardless of their party affiliations. His evident intention to check any tendency toward extravagance on the part of the commonwealth has made him hosts of friends among the taxpayers of the state. With him the administration of the state finances is a plain business proposition. Under his leadership no expense will be incurred which is not justified by conditions. The advantage of having, in the governor's chair, a man who has had a thorough business training is herein notably demonstrated.

It is significant of the drift of things to note that the Boston Herald is not supporting the candidacy of Mr. Vahey. In an editorial article The Herald states that Mr. Draper's "record of public service offers no opportunity for attack. To the evidence of ability shown in his personal business enterprises has been added the service of three years as lieutenant governor, during which time he has been called to active service in the executive chair. His purpose to apply principles of business prudence to public administration has been shown; his courage and the strength of his convictions have been tested. He has been tried and not found wanting." It is as handsome an endorsement as anyone could wish, and it states no more and no less than the truth.

Will Boston Go For Taft?

The progress of the campaign indicates clearly that Judge Taft, the Republican candidate for president, will have a very large vote in this state. There are some who are sufficiently sanguine as to believe that he will come close to carrying the Democratic city of Boston. It may be said here that these prophets are men who have had long political experience in Boston affairs. They may be mistaken, but they certainly are not merely guessing. They find a great army of Democrats who refuse to vote again for Mr. Bryan and who are awaiting an opportunity to cast a vote for Mr. Taft.

The campaign of President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor does not seem to be meeting with great success in Massachusetts. A great number of labor leaders deprecate the position he has taken and the attempt he has made to drag organized labor into partisan politics and to attach the American Federation of Labor to the Democratic procession. In a recent letter, Norman E. McPhail, president of the Boston Typographical Union, declares that "in my opinion, the vote of ized labor in this country, as a body, will not, should not, and cannot be delivered to any one party by any man or set of men. To allow such a thing would be suicidal to the labor movement of the country." Terence V. Powderly, for many years the head of the Knights of Labor in this country and one of the most upright and most respected labor leaders that ever held such a position, has declared over and over again similar sentiments and condemned any effort to turn over the votes of organized labor to any political party. The effort of Mr. Gompers will fail because it ought to fail. It was a most unwise move on his part to start out on such a mission as he has attempted.

The Democratic Dilemma

The state has been watching with considerable interest the action of the Democrats in the fifth congressional district, where Congressman Butler Ames is a candidate for re-election. It must be admitted that the endorsement of Mr. Ames by the Democratic district convention was a good deal of a surprise. It was, of course, generally believed that the district was safely Republican, owing to the hold upon it which Congressman Ames has secured by his course in congress. It was hardly expected, however, that the Democratic district convention would standing the record he has made as a standing the record he has made, as a friend of the people and a worker for the interests of his district.

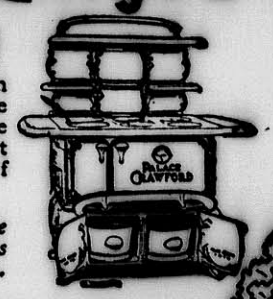
There are other men, however, who do not consider themselves straight Democrats who have been similarly honored by the Democratic party. One of those is Ferdinand Strauss of Boston, who has declined to serve on the Democratic ticket as a candidate for presidential elector. Mr. Strauss has sometimes voted with the Democracy, but this is not one of those years. In his letter declining to serve he states that he is an ardent admirer of Judge William H. Taft, and that he will vote for him at this election, in preference to Mr. Bryan. Another man who has declined a nomination for the position of presidential elector is Charles S. Davis of Plymouth, who does not propose to vote for Bryan anyway.

Only a little cold in the head may be the beginning of an obstinate case of nasal catarrh. Drive out the invader with Ely's Cream Balm applied straight to the inflamed stuffed up air-passages. Price 50c. If you prefer to use an atomizer, ask for Liquid Cream Balm. It has all the good qualities of the solid form of this remedy and will rid you of catarrh or hay fever. No cocaine to breed a dreadful habit. No mercury to dry out the secretion. Price 75c., with spraying tube. All druggists, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren street, New York.

Crawford Cooking-Ranges

Our New Range a Winner!

The new range that we introduced last year has won all hearts. The old End Hearth is gone—there is more room on top—the ashes fall into a Hod far below the fire, making their removal easy and the grate to last longer. The Ash Hod when emptied is returned full of coal. Three sizes, "Palace," "Castle," "Fortress."



All the famous Crawford features are present: Single Damper, Patented Grate, Cup-Joint Oven Flues, Asbestos Backed Oven, Improved Oven Indicator. Booklet free.

Is it to be a Single Bridge.

The State and the Boston & Northern have stated that they favor a single bridge at the station as a met[illegible] of abolishing the grade [illegible] The Boston & Maine [illegible]ess its opinion, through [illegible] the hearing to be held tomo[illegible] [illegible]noon at the State House. [illegible] two former interests have stat[illegible] [illegible] opposi. tion to the Guild plan because of its cost. It begins to look as if all the interested parties, with the exception of the town, will advo[illegible] the single bridge scheme at th[illegible] station, and they will do so for the reason that it is the least expensive.

It also looks as if the Guild plan would not be adopted because of the expense, therefore the STAR would suggest that a united effort be made in favor of the Redfern two bridges scheme, for if this is not done, in our opinion the town will be obliged to get along with a single bridge at the station. It is a matter for regret that there is no one at the closing hearings to represent the Redfern plan, now that Mr. Lewis Parkhurst, its staunch supporter, lies ill at his home. Of the many gentlemen who favor this scheme, it is a pity that there is not some one willing to attend the closing hearing and speak for its adoption.

THE FORTNIGHTLY.

The Fortnightly met in the Town Hall last Monday afternoon. At the business meeting the minutes of the last meeting were read and names of all new members announced. The treasurer's report was read and notice was given that on or before Monday, November 9, all membership dues must be paid. The Philanthropy committee gave notice that the tickets for the lectures by Dr. Leon H. Vincent, are now ready for sale. Dates—Nov. 4 and 18 and December 2.

Miss M. Alice Mason, chairman of the Dramatic Committee, said rehearsals are being held for the Drama "Midsummer Night's Dream" which is to be presented in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening December 8. Tickets one dollar, seventy-five and fifty cents.

Mrs. Blaisdell, chairman of Household Economics, said a class in cooking is being formed and would like to have all ladies who care to join send in their names as soon as possible.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Miss Virginia K. Chandler, physical instructor in the public schools, has sent her resignation to the School Committee on account of poor health. The resignation of Miss Elizabeth Robertson of the 8th grade at the Wadleigh school has also been received for the same reason.

Five new cases of scarlet fever have been reported in the Rumford school district this week. The cases are all of a mild nature. The epidemic of this disease is taken care of much better under the present method of keeping the school open than it could be by closing it, as all absent scholars are looked up by the secretary of the Board of Health. By this method several cases have been found which were without medical attention, and if their discovery had not been made, and the children been allowed to mingle with others, the disease would undoubtedly have spread to a much greater extent.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

William Gillette's greatest play is "Secret Service," and the news of its revival at the Castle Square next week will delight the many lovers of romantic drama. It is now some ten years since "Secret Service" was first produced with William Gillette in the leading role, and it has been played thousands of times throughout this country. "Secret Service" will be carefully staged at the Castle Square, the scenery will accurately represent the South during the Civil War, and as much of its dramatic effect depends upon the rapidity of its action, nothing will be left undone by Mr. Parke, the stage director, towards a complete and effective production. In the role of the hero-spy Captain Thorne will be John Craig. Edith Varney will be played by Minnette Cleveland, with George Hassell as Brigadier General Nelson Randolph, Donald Meek as Wilfred Varney, Theodore Friebus as Mr. Benton Arrelsford, Thomas Carrigan as Henry Dumont, Mabel Colcord as Mrs. General Varney, Gertrude Shirley as Miss Kittredge and Mary Young as Caroline Mitford.

The week after next the John Craig Stock Company will appear at the Castle Square in "Brown of Harvard."

OBSERVATIONS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Shall the people rule? They shall and they will when they know enough. When they know enough to call the "Bosses" bluffs and cut away from them. When they recognize that men elected by their votes to represent them make the laws. When they know enough to follow up their representatives after they have gone into legislative session and know who they train with and what they do there. When they recognize that politics in its true sense is statesmanship, the management of public affairs. When they are less selfish and more vigilant—then will the people rule and not till then.

If there is truth in what the press reports about Republican candidates being in many cases elected or defeated, accordingly, as they pledge themselves or not to a certain candidate for the presiding of the senate for the next session, then the first action after the general court convenes should be to investigate this matter. This is a serious matter and calls for attention.

Another Step in Cheaper Lighting

Friday, October 30, 1908

First

The cost of electric lighting in Greater Boston was cut from 15c to 12c per thousand last July. This alone was a reduction of 20%.

Second

The High Candle Power Tungsten lamp came next, with a saving of over one-half the electricity consumed. Appreciating this great advantage, already 90% of our customers using high candle power lamps have equipped themselves with the Tungsten.

Third

The demand for these lamps has been so great that they are now produced in large quantities and the manufacturers have reduced the prices very materially.

Fourth And Best of All

The Tungsten lamps can now be supplied in 20-candle power size.

Beginning today, 20-candle power Tungsten lamps will be for sale that use only one-half the current of the old 16-candle power size, although giving 25 per cent. more Light.

REDUCED PRICES ON TUNGSTEN LAMPS

These Prices Are Less Than the Market Rate

20 Candle Power 60 Cents Not Previously Manufactured.
32 Candle Power 75 Cents - Former Price $1.00
50 Candle Power 90 Cents - Former Price $1.10
80 Candle Power $1.10 - - Former Price $1.25

Old lamps must be given in exchange, except on new installations.

With Tungsten Lamps at the lowered cost
With smaller candle power lamps now available
With the Electric Light rate cut down 1-5 to 12c

WINTER BOWLING TOURNAMENT.

With the fourteen teams in the winter tournament at the Calumet club actively engaged in rolling their matches the club alleys have taken on a mid-winter aspect, and are crowded every evening. The interest in the tournament appears to be keener than ever before and the teams are starting off closely bunched.

Dr. Orion Kelley leads in the individual single with 122, rolled on Monday evening, and both he and Mr. Henry Weed have rolled a 305 total.

Teams I and K lead the tournament on games with 7 won and 1 lost.

Hon. Eben S. Draper Fit For the Governor's Chair.

EBEN S. DRAPER, the Republican candidate for governor, stands out as eminently one of the best types of the civilization and spirit of Massachusetts so far as it can be illustrated in the individual. Born on her soil, educated in her schools, from earliest manhood closely identified with one of her leading industries, thoroughly in touch with her institutions, devoted to her history and traditions, he is keenly alive to everything which makes for her development. Both by nature and training he is an ideal man to represent the honor and dignity of the commonwealth of Massachusetts in the office of governor. He is, moreover, a man of culture, a lover of literature and art—a man whom the cares of a busy industrial and commercial life have not hindered from refreshing and endowing his mind with the things which make for mental breadth and refinement. Study and reading he has supplemented by extensive travel, and, like all Americans who travel with their eyes and ears open and their minds in a state of constant receptivity as well, has absorbed broad ideas from a wide world, and no public question which may be submitted to him comes with its claim for attention to a man who is hedged about by a "pent-up Utica" of prejudice.

HE IS QUICK TO PERCEIVE, CAREFUL IN ANALYZATION, COGENT AND SOUND IN REASONING, DELIBERATIVE IN JUDGMENT, AND, WHEN HIS WAY IS MADE CLEAR TO HIS MIND AND CONSCIENCE, FEARLESS IN PURSUING IT.

During the period of his incumbency of the executive chair in the absence of Governor Guild the people of the state have come to know him for themselves and there has been no day but he has gained in their confidence and esteem and in their belief that he was "the right man in the right place," and that they do think so will be generally attested when the votes are counted on the night of November 3.

THE LABOR QUESTION

Republican Legislatures Always Conserved Wage Earners

Looking facts squarely in the face, the workingman of this state cannot fail to be convinced that in any inclination he may feel toward yielding to persuasion to vote for Mr. Valley from a mere labor, non-partisan standpoint, he is influenced more by apparent or actual temporary depression in general or in his own branch of trade than by any evidence of anything the Democratic party of this or any other state has ever done for labor, except in the way of glittering promises. But any intelligent worker, if he reflects, will see for himself that the multitude of labor laws for his protection and all which stand on the statute books of Massachusetts have been placed there by Republican legislatures and signed by Republican governors. Massachusetts is the banner state for sanitary labor laws.

It is notably the Democratic states of the south where labor is ess hampered, where beneficial labor laws are conspicuous for their absence. Does the workingman of Massachusetts want to set Democratic campaign oratory over against the voluminous array of Republican performance crystalized into law, all passed by Republican legislators? Does he believe for a moment that the Republican party, which has set up for him and children a Gibraltar of protection, is going to turn back upon itself and an honorable record in this regard and be his enemy in the future? Or does he believe, as he must, that the same humane and liberal and helpful policy toward the men who give the state its industrial prosperity and distinction will naturally and logically and consistently be maintained in the future by the party which inaugurated it? If the Republican party had ever been a foe to the workingman or niggardly in its support of beneficial laws, there might be a shadow of reason for criticism of it and for credence for Democratic pretension. But the contrary is the unassailable fact and there can be no argument to controvert it. We believe that the Massachusetts workingman, on election day, will by his vote "speak well of the bridge which has carried him safely over," as it will continue doing just as long as he trusts to it.

Strange, isn't it, that Republican legislatures should pass voluminous laws for the betterment of the condition of labor and workingmen be living every day under their beneficent operation, and then when some clap-trap Democratic spouter comes along and tells them that the Republican party is their enemy and oppressor men can be found who will give them even a respectful hearing? And yet it is the cold fact that cheeky Democratic orators will stand up in the face of the liberal labor code of Massachusetts, passed by successive Republican legislators, and coolly tell an audience that there is no hope for them in this life except by going back on the party which has enacted all these laws and voting for the Democratic will-do-all-sorts-of-things-for you sometime.

Mr. Valley probably wishes that his prospects were as gilded as is the big dome.

Oh, no! Mr. Valley isn't making a "whirlwind" campaign. He is only "sowing to the wind;" he will reap the "whirlwind" in November.

It has been reported that Mr. Draper would be satisfied with 50,000 plurality. Why not make it 75,000 or 100,000 and surprise him?

THE LOCAL PAPER.

In an editorial headed "Advertising in Local Newspapers—Intelligent Advertisers Should Not Neglect It—Great Power in the Local Press," the Boston American of Sept. 12 makes the pertinent remark, "A good saying to bear in mind is this: Repetition is Reputation."

Continuing, the editorial says:

"The intelligent advertiser will, under no circumstances, neglect the importance of the local paper, daily, Sunday or weekly. Every man who sells goods, every man who tries to convince his fellow man, knows how important the personal equation is. If you wanted to sell a man a coat, and you could get that man's intimate friend to go and talk to him about the coat, your sale would be almost assured.

"The local newspaper is the intimate friend of the people you are trying to reach in each locality. You may advertise in the big monthlies spread all over the country: you may have your pictures beautifully done in colors and half-tone.

"You may advertise in the few great metropolitan newspapers and break ground in a big way. But you cannot get all the results unless you bring to your aid the daily association of the local editor with his local reader.

"It is important to emphasize this point, because of the importance of supporting local newspaper enterprises, and of rewarding adequately the work done by the local editor and his staff. You cannot keep this country in order, you cannot regulate or keep down its finely organized rascality unless you have in every little town, and, if possible, in every village, the local editor who is a moral policeman, using publicity as his club.

"If you kill off the local editor by neglecting his advertising columns you deprive his locality and the country at large of the most important feature of public defence and good government. You harm the community as you would harm the farmers if you went systematically to work starving their watchdogs to death.

"The local editors are the watchdogs of the local neighborhoods, and in addition to that they are the real defenders of the public: they do a work that a handful of metropolitan newspapers cannot pretend to do. Fortunately they give you a good return for your advertising investment when you advertise with them wisely, and they will grow in power and prosperity with the growth of intelligent advertising."

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

What Is the Demand?

Mr. Vahey, Democratic candidate for governor, and the few prominent adherents whom he is able to summon to his aid, are exceedingly sensitive, and even touchy, because in this campaign the Republicans are having so much to say about matters affecting the general, or presidential election. They say that what they want is for the Republicans to drop all this and discuss "state issues" with Mr. Vahey. Well, what are the "issues" as to the state, that are so patently engrossing that they overshadow the more general ones of the presidential canvass? The first "issue" which Mr. Vahey trotted out was a personal one affecting his Republican opponent, Mr. Draper. He made certain irresponsible charges against the lieutenant governor and named certain people as being those who could substantiate them for him. Mr. Draper promptly met Mr. Vahey's allegations, showing them to not have even the semblance of truth, and the witnesses upon whom Mr. Vahey relied as promptly corroborated him, leaving Mr. Vahey's charges to fall to the ground by their own weight. Now he wants to discuss the "lobby." But the lobby isn't an "issue." Nobody who represents the Republican party wants the lobby any more than Mr. Vahey. Certainly Mr. Draper does not and it is beyond cavil that he would be fully as efficacious in restraining its undesirable activities as Mr. Vahey would or could be. If Mr. Vahey be so anxious to discuss state issues why does he not present some? Abuse of Mr. Draper, or the unfounded criticism which virtually amounts to abuse is not an issue.

It is small wonder that the Democrats, either by Mr. Vahey or others, should show a disposition to avoid national issues. Massachusetts is so clearly a Republican state that there would be small comfort to be derived from discussing them; and in the absence of any state issues which may properly be called such, it looks very much as if Mr. Vahey were really "talking against time."

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portions of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

NATURE AND A WOMAN'S WORK

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

Nature and a woman's work combined have produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers they relied upon the roots and herbs of the field to cure disease and mitigate suffering.

The Indians on our Western Plains to-day can produce roots and herbs for every ailment, and cure diseases that baffle the most skilled physicians who have spent years in the study of drugs.

From the roots and herbs of the field Lydia E. Pinkham more than thirty years ago gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills, more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is now recognized as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

Telephone Talks

Keep in touch with the world — and see to it that the world may keep in touch with you.

Party-Liners And the Golden Rule

Party line telephone subscribers virtually are cotenants They jointly pay for a single telephone line.

If they were cotenants of a building they would be careful not to infringe upon the rights of others. That same regard for the equities should keep them from infringing by appropriating to themselves more telephone service than can be exacted as their fair share of the capacity of that line.

Lengthy conversations on unimportant matters, the prattling intercourse of children, phonograph concerts, and the like—these sometimes congest party lines and give cause for protest from other tenants in common.

A party line telephone has been likened to a spur track on a main line of railroad. But there is this important qualification—when the telephone spur track is in use, the entire main line is closed to traffic, not merely to the other spur tracks on the line, but also to incoming trains consigned to any part of the line.

Ordinary regard for the principle of the Golden Rule will do more to avert party line difficulties than all the rules any telephone company may promulgate.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

A still alarm of fire on Sunday night from the residence of Mr. F. H. Learned on Lebanon street called the department out for an hour's work extinguishing a blaze in a large tree. It seems that during the afternoon boys built a fire in a cavity of the tree, going off and leaving it. The fire burned until the tree was completely ablaze and finally fell, which set the grass and underbrush. An hour's work with the chemicals was necessary to to put it out.

On Tuesday evening when Mrs. I. W. Smith of Woburn was leaving the conference at the Congregational church she lost a valuable diamond ring from her finger. The loss was not discovered until the lady had reached the centre, and she immediately retraced her steps hoping to find it. Considerable time was spent in searching without results and the police were notified. Officer McCauley and Mr. Westley Ewell, janitor of the church, secured lanterns and continued to look for it. Mr. Ewell finally found the ring by the Water Dept. Shop on Vine street, and officer McCauley took it to Mrs. Smith's house in Woburn, where he was rewarded by a gift of $2.

After the Dartmouth Musical Clubs' Concert on November 12th, the floor will be cleared for dancing. For the benefit of out of town patrons, a special car will run to Arlington at 12.10.

The annual Autumn Party by the employees of the W. P. Haley & Sons factory in Lyceum Hall, Friday evening, was a success, judging from the large number of young people attending. The hall was prettily decorated with autumn leaves and foliage, and dancing was enjoyed until 2 o'clock, to music furnished by Hern's Tremont Orchestra. The committee in charge were, Maurice W. Haley, Thomas F. Riley, James E Haggerty, Thomas F. Hamilton.

On Monday afternoon as the shifting engine was pushing a string of empty cars over the crossing in the centre a piece of a truck fell beneath the wheels. Iron rods attached to it dragged it as far as the switch for the Woburn tracks, where it became wedged between the rails. Two cars were thrown off the tracks and the switch badly damaged. The train crew replaced the cars with about twenty minutes work and traffic was not delayed, although the broken switch gave considerable trouble until evening, when it was repaired.

On Tuesday evening a few minutes after nine o'clock a false alarm of fire was rung in from Box 36. This was the boldest offence yet of the person or persons who are calling out the department so much lately with false alarms, as the box is situated on a much travelled street directly beneath an arc light, and was probably in full view of a number of persons.

FROM THE FILES OF THE FORTNIGHTLY.

No. 1.

With the club now numbering 400, 250 members of which know nothing of the history of the club even 10 years ago, it has seemed desirable that an account be published to "explain somewhat the character of the organization and the motives which led to its formation." From some of the year books and from annual reports the following is culled:

"It was on the afternoon of Dec 19, 1881, that 22 ladies met at the house of Mrs Nowell to concert measures for bringing forward in a tangible shape some plan for the formation of a woman's club in which mutual good should be aimed at, and the mental, moral, and physical improvement of its members promoted It was also hoped that if the projected organization should grow and strengthen, its influence might be extended beyond its own members, and that from it might emanate broad and practical benefits which should tend to the general elevation of the community in which we live.

"At the second meeting held Dec 27, the club was organized with 22 members, adopting with a few changes the constitution and by-laws of the Home Club of East Boston, whose president was present at the meeting and gave an account of the working of her own club.

"After considerable discussion the new association assumed the name 'The Fortnightly.' At this period women's clubs were comparatively rare, only two prominent ones existing in Boston and its immediate neighborhood. The first officers, therefore, came to the work without much knowledge of the practical details envolved in it, and without any experience. Being warmly seconded by the club at large, they developed a policy which interpreted in its largest sense Article II of the Constitution. This article states that 'the aim of this association is to become an organized social center for united thought and action.'"

The Fortnightly was most fortunate in its first President, Mrs. Ann B. Winsor, who served the club seven years until her removal from town in 1889. The resolutions adopted at that time well express the universal sentiment:

"Her wise and strong leadership made the club a marked success both intellectually and socially. By her influence it has been stimulated not only to work for its own pleasure and growth, but to become a centre of usefulness for the community. In any good which it may accomplish hereafter the impulse given by her hand will be felt. Whatever may be the future of this club, we feel that the foundations have been well laid by one whose intellectual ability, catholic spirit and genial courtesy have made her an object of respect and love to every member of The Fortnightly."

"The effort to expand and enrich the life of woman found sympathy among the townspeople and enlisted in the membership of the club a large representation of the intellectual and moral force of the town. Its number at the end of twelve years was 143, only 41 of whom are members at the present time.

"The question of the comparative advantage of having the papers prepared by members of the club, or presented by speakers from outside was in the early days much discussed. For two reasons it seemed desirable to do as much home work as was practicable; first, the small means of the club made it impossible to command paid speakers from abroad; in the second place, studying any subject sufficiently to provide an afternoon's entertainment was felt to be a useful means of awakening thought not only upon that subject but upon many others. The first year and a half, therefore, half the meetings were provided for within the club. After that time a reasonable number of Home Afternoons were presented to the club.

In 1886 the club was divided into sections, each section being assigned as aid to each committee to facilitate the work and increase the interest in subjects to be brought before each meeting. Classes were formed and much interest shown, especially in the Literature Group and that of History and travel.

In 1892 the tenth anniversary was celebrated in the form of a midwinter festival in the same year a loan needlework exhibition was held.

Very early in its existence The Fortnightly began to seek active and direct methods of improving the condition of the community. It had not been in existence two months when it arranged for a course of four popular lectures on scientific subjects by Professor Osbun of Salem

"In 1886 lectures were given by two of the physicians of Winchester on the lines laid down by the Emergency and Hygiene Society of Massachusetts, a paying class in the spring being followed by a free class in the autumn. Lectures were also given by these physicians on Home Nursing. For several years a committee of The Fortnightly aided the trustees of the Public Library in selecting suitable juvenile literature and fiction. The help of this committee was gratefully acknowledged in the annual report of the trustees. Beside its work through its Industrial and Educational Committees, the club has at different times co-operated with the Law and Order League, with the Women's Christian Temperance Union, and the Winchester Union in their efforts for temperance, and in aid of the poor of Winchester. Steps were also taken for the removal of objectionable literature from the counters of shops whose owners willingly agreed to the suggestions of The Fortnightly in that matter. Some unsuccessful plans of helpful work from time to time were suggested in the meetings. Among them a scheme for establishing a Coffee-House as a temperance measure, and another for a Cottage Hospital were two which occupied much time and thought of the club, but which were in the end reluctantly abandoned."

"Less than three months from The Fortnightly's first meeting the Committee on Education invited Mr. Hubbard of the State Board to speak on the 'Public Instruction of Our Children' and the club held an extra meeting on the evening of March 11, 1882, to which citizens were invited for the purpose of hearing him. Here was the entering wedge, which was followed up by successive efforts on the part of the club, repeatedly urging the subject on the attention of the citizens which resulted in the appointment of a Supt. of Schools.

"At the Annual Meeting in May 1884, the first suggestion was made that the club should take an active interest in the introduction of Industrial training into the public schools and also in the establishment of an evening schools for adults. The latter suggestion was carried out the next winter, the School Committee paying the salary of a master for four months, while The Fortnightly, aided by the Baptist Society provided for the other expenses and supplied volunteer teachers. The experiment proved so satisfactorily the need for an evening school that the School Committee took entire charge of it the next winter, the town having appropriated money for the purpose. Members of The Fortnightly continuing to show their interest by attending as volunteer teachers. This school was continued for a few months each winter until 1891."

"The matter of Industrial Education also received the attention of the Club, and an effort to replace in the schools the drawing that had been unaccountably dropped and also to introduce sewing was successful.

In June, 1885, a special meeting was called of The Fortnightly to consider the matter of Manual Training. The next winter, 1885-1886 a room was hired and fitted up with carpenters' benches to accommodate fifteen boys for an evening industrial class ot carpentry, which met alternately with a Sewing Class. The fee for these lessons was put very low, ten cents each, and in order to help pay expenses a Carpentry class was received on Saturday afternoons at a higher price 25c each. There were two evening classes of 15 boys each, and more applicants who could not be admitted. These classes were very successful and resulted ultimately, after several years of effort, in having the fifteen sets of tools bought by the town and in establishing firmly the system of Manual Training.

For several years, cooking classes were maintained by The Fortnightly, until their utensils were accepted by the School Committee and for some time cooking was a part of the school curriculum. It is to be regretted that it has since been dropped.

"It is true," says the report of 1893 "that to the earnest and indefatigable efforts of the Industrial Committee of The Fortnightly is due the early establishment of Industrial Training in all its features." This committee from 1885 to 1889 worked in season and out of season, through evil report and good report, against obstacles of prejudice and poverty, to convince and persuade the public and the authorities of the importance of this education and with signal wisdom and untiring devotion themselves tried the experiments in advance, and proved by ocular demostration the practicability of their schemes."

"The next educational work of The Fortnightly was in the direction of Physical Training. In 1889-90 two classes twice a week each were maintained in Harmony Hall for eighteen weeks Among the class for ladies were eleven teachers from the public schools, sent by the School Committee. The club in 1892 lent its influence to a movement to establish a public Kindergarten.

SCHOOL SAVINGS.

The school savings scheme started last week in the fourth and fifth grades of the Chapin, Rumford and Washington schools, promises to be very successful. For the first week ninety-seven pupils in the Chapin building out of a possible 133 in the grades mentioned, deposited $14.46 nineteen pupils in the Rumford out of a possible 42, deposited $3.43 and twenty-six pupils in the Washington out of a possible fifty-one, deposited $3.30.

Edna Reichenbacker of the fourth grade in the Rumford and Leo Swymer of the fifth grade in the Chapin are the first to start accounts in Winchester Savings Bank as a direct result of this plan.

Miss Mary A. Lyons, Principal of the Chapin building, Miss Mary F. Riley, Principal of the Rumford school, and Miss Mary H. Barr, Principal of the Washington have inspired among their pupils so much enthusiasm over the general idea that the pupils in other buildings are asking when they may have the same opportunity.

THE FORTNIGHTLY.

The Fortnightly meeting next Monday promises to be a very enjoyable one. The club magazine by club members is always very entertaining and there will be an exhibition of work from the summer playroom—especially baskets, of which there are many—but in different shapes and material than in former years, and much better work is shown in many of them. It is hoped every lady will buy one.

GRADE CROSSING.

Final Hearing Before Commissioners last Saturday.

The final hearing before the special Commission on abolishing the crossing was held at the State House last Saturday forenoon. The question will later come before the Railroad Commission and then go to the final tribunal, the Superior Court. The Commission has dozens of plans to consider and reams of testimony to ponder over, before it will decide on a plan. It may not favor any of the plans presented at the hearing but may have an engineer prepare an entirely new one for them. Considerable time may elapse before the matter reaches the Railroad Commission, but when it does this Board will not waste much time in reaching a decision. Then there will be another delay before the court takes action—how long no one would care to say. So don't expect to see the crossing eliminated right away.

Alfred S. Hall, Esq., was the first to address the commission, and he laid particular stress on the value of the Common, the greater part of which is included in the taking called for by the Commonwealth's single bridge plan. Its valuation he said, was between $200,000 and $300,000. This valuation should, he claimed, enter into the cost if this plan was adopted. The whole Common would have to be taken, as the amount of land left would be insignificant. He said that infringing on the Common would be detrimental to the town, while the proposed single bridge would result in severe injury to existing business property.

Mr. W. H. Coolidge, counsel for the Boston & Maine, said that the killed and injured in the State during the past year on the steam roads were 45; on the highways, 1645; by automobiles, 49 killed and 500 injured—which only went to show that the steam roads did not cause as many accidents as other agencies. He suggested that this be considered carefully in the elimination of the crossing, and in the amount of money to be expended. He did not believe that $400,000 should be spent to give Winchester an aesthetic grade crossing elimination, when $200,000 would be all that was necessary to answer all the public necessities, and furthermore the railroad should not be compelled to pay 65 per cent. of the cost of a scheme designed to improve conditions in Winchester. He had no objection to the town desiring improvements, but it should pay for them. To raise the streets at the centre of town and build a bridge over the tracks, he said, would cost over $400,000; the Redfern two bridges plan $300,000; the single bridge plans about $200,000 each. If over $200,000 is expended, the railroad should not be required to pay in excess of that amount. He ridiculed the idea that the vote of 200 to 5 in favor of the Guild plan reflected the opinion of the voters of Winchester.

The street and steam roads are not in condition financially to warrant the expenditure of unnecessary money that will not result in improving traffic and more freight and passengers. Mr. Coolidge said that if the Commission should decide that the elimination of the crossing was a public necessity, then they should go ahead, and do it. Mr. Coolidge in his remarks of ten minutes did not express a preference for any particular scheme.

Ralph E. Joslin, Esq., counsel for the town, believed that if the crossing was one that should be abolished that it ought to be done in a proper way, even if it cost considerable money.

The Guild or Selectmen's plan he considered as the best scheme, and he believed that in the end would be found the cheapest, even if it was the most expensive of those presented. A single bridge at the station would be a detriment to the town, and if by accident the bridge was closed transit between the two sides of the town would be cut off, except by way of the bridges at Bacon and Swanton streets. He was opposed to the ruthless destruction of the Common as suggested in the single bridge plan advocated by the Commonwealth. Mr. Joslin's summing up of his side of the case was clear and logical, nothing concealed or distorted—and showed careful study of the whole situation.

Counsel for the State believed that the Boston & Northern should pay its full share of the expense—15 per cent.—as the State would derive no benefit from abolishing the crossing.

Mr. Burdette, counsel for the B. & N., thought that the State, with the exception of the Boston & Maine, had the greatest interest in the matter. Main street was a through State highway, and so, too, was the highway from Arlington to Reading and they belonged to the people of the entire State. This crossing was not to be abolished because of accidents due to his road, as none had ever happened here. Therefore he thought that his road should only be assessed 5 per cent. and the State for its full share.

The hearing then closed.

GAIN IS STEADY.

The local national bank was examined by National Bank Examiner Pepper Monday. This was his first bank to examine under the new rules of the Comptroller which went into effect on that day, the principal features being to convene the directors and have them answer twenty-nine questions. These questions are intended to find out what the directors know of the bank's affairs and to see if they know what the duties of a director are.

The bank shows a steady gain both in its earnings and deposits, as can be seen on another page. Many of our townspeople remember the days when we had no bank here and appreciate the work it is doing. Clean bills are brought to town and the old mutilated sent out. Coin in large amounts are brought here to keep the trade supplied; drafts and notes are sent here for collection, and above all things, but not appreciated, is the fact that scores of checks are daily cashed for those who keep all or most of their funds where it is not convenient to get at. It takes time and expense to collect checks to say nothing of the risk. A check drawn on a good bank is not always a good check, but many are offended if you do not think so. Our town is growing fast, many new people are coming here, let them open accounts and come in touch with the machinery of the town.

CARRIED INTO COURT.

J A. Laraway & Co., applied to the Inspector of plumbing for a permit to do a job of plumbing on Oct 23, and the Inspector refused to grant him one, because of a disagreement between this firm and the Board of Health regarding pipe used on a job a few weeks ago. As a result of this refusal to grant a permit, the Inspector received the following written on a postal card.

Office of J. A. Laraway & Co.
Dear Sir:— The work at No. 7 Stratford road, for which you refused permit is complete according to our application of Oct. 23. Kindly examine same.
J. A. LARAWAY & Co.

At a meeting of the Board of Health he'd last Friday evening the action of Laraway & Co. in doing the work after a permit had been refused, it was decided to swear out a warrant against the firm and this was done by Chairman Ives and Secretary Allen last Saturday. The outcome of this case is being watched with a great deal of interest by the plumbers in town.

The case came up in Court at Woburn Tuesday forenoon and Mr. Laraway pleaded not guilty and, his lawyer not being present, he asked for a continuance of the case. There being no objection to this on the part of Counsel for the Board of Health, the case was continued to Saturday forenoon before the same court

"MY MARYLAND."

The writer on Tuesday evening was privileged to witness the election returns at the invitation of the Republican Club at Tremont Temple. It was an event in one's life to be a part of that great assembly, all intent upon the screen which depicted the returns which mean so much to the national life. A most dramatic moment occurred when the announcement was made that Maryland went for Taft by 25,000. Men hushed their applause to read, "The band will play 'My Maryland,' and the audience are requested to sing it." Obediently the great audience rose to its feet and line by line, led by the orchestra, sang the stirring words so dear to the Southern heart. And one felt that North and South, East and West, were no more divided by party lines. Maryland to each meant his own dear State, loyal to American traditions and ideals. It detracted nothing from that moment to learn the next day that the little Southern State fell slightly below the first estimate.

Twice after that the audience were requested to sing, led by the orchestra: "The Star Spangled Banner" and "America." It may not have been musical, but it was patriotic and thrilling.

MISS CHAPIN'S PUBLIC BEQUESTS.

Several public bequests are contained in the will of Miss Elizabeth Dwight Chapin, filed last week Thursday in the Middlesex Probate Court, East Cambridge. The will is dated Sept. 14, 1900, and leaves the balance of the estate to relatives after these bequests have been taken out: $150 to the town of Winchester for the perpetual care of her lot in Wildwood Cemetery; $1000 to the Massachusetts Home Missionary Society; $1000 to the Women's Board of Missions allied to the A. B. C. for F. M.; $500 to the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals; $1000 to the Winchester Home for Aged; $1000 to the Visiting Nurse Association of Winchester; $500 to the Western Missionary Society of the First Congregational Church, Winchester.

THE ELECTION.

Taft and Republican Ticket Receives a Big Vote.

Republican by a big majority straight through the ticket was the result of the Presidential election in Winchester for 1908. From the opening of the polls until their close the Republican voters were greatly in the majority. The total vote cast was 1299. This was below the estimate of almost everyone, as it was generally thought that the heavy vote of 1004 would at least be equalled. The vote ran about the same until the closing hour, when it took a decided drop, although the noon vote was also somewhat smaller.

The comparison of the voting by hours with 1904 was as follows;

6 a. m.	211
6.30	100
7	180	158
7.30	310
8	470	448
8.30	640	700
9	768	761
9.30	839
10	886	856
11	962	924
12 m.	1013	985
1 p. m.	1095	1110
2	1171	1203
3	1239	1245
4.30	1299	1351

The voting throughout the forenoon was very steady, and lacked the short rushes of previous years. For the first time in many years the ballot box registered the correct number of ballots cast at all times throughout the day. The ballot was a big one, but the tellers made quick work of counting it, and Selectman Dwinell was able to announce the results shortly after the close or the polls.

The tellers and ballot clerks who served were: Edwin Robinson, John F. O'Connor, Wm. F. Fitch, Wm. H. Vayo, Sewall E. Newman, T. Price Wilson, James W. O'Connor, Dr. Chas. F. McCarthy, Geo. H. Eustis, Louis N. Walling, Robt. Sullivan and Wm. Adriance.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY.

A very enjoyable evening was passed at the Hallowee'n party given by Mr. and Mrs. H. Douglas Campbell and Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Stephenson at the home of the Stephenson's on Woodside road. The house was attractively decorated with autumn leaves and jack 'o lanterns, and the evening passed in playing games appropriate to the occasion, singing, dancing, roasting marshmallows and chestnuts. A collation was served. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wright, Mr. and Mrs. George Willey, Mr. and Mrs. William Berry, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Hunt, Miss Hunt, Miss Isabel Hunt, Mr. Richard Hunt, Mr. Lambert Hunt, Mr. Charles Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Pushee, Mr. and Mrs. John Watters, Mr. and Mrs. George Whittington, Mr. and Mrs. George Bean, Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson.

BANK OFFICERS ELECTED.

At the annual meeting of the shareholders of the Co-operative Bank, held in the banking rooms in Lyceum Building, Monday evening, the following officers were elected:

President and Director—Howard D. Nash.

Vice President and Director—George A. Fernald.

Secretary, Treasurer and Director—Thomas B. Cotter.

Directors—John Challis, James J. Fitzgerald, Alexander Foster, jr., William B. French, Charles A. Gleason, Theodore C. Hurd, Francis J. O'Hara, Thomas S. Spurr, Samuel S. Symmes, Nathan H. Taylor.

Auditors—D. W. Pratt, W. H. Herrick, H. C. Robinson.

W. H. S. NOTES.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Athletic Association on last Tuesday a motion was made that there should be a certain officer who should keep a record of all the athletic contests of the school and the names of the persons who took part in the contests. The motion is now on the table where it must remain for a week and then may be decided upon. Leon Tuck 1910 was elected captain of the hockey team

Mr. William M. Hurd, Mr. Harold V. Hovey and Mr. Harold T. Webber have been appointed graduate advisors of the Athletic association.

SOCIAL FOR FATHERS.

There will be a social for you at the High School Assembly Hall on Tuesday evening, Nov. 17 (week after next) from 7.30 to 9.30. The teachers of your children wish to meet you. Please bring the mothers, and come early.

There will be music and refreshments, and a very short speech by a very interesting speaker on a subject you will enjoy. Look for another notice in next week's STAR.

EDISON CO. ENTERTAIN

Officials and Representative Men from Woburn, Stoneham and Winchester.

No doubt the members of Woburn's City Government, the Selectmen of Stoneham and Winchester and other gentlemen from these places were as much surprised at what they saw at the large plant of the Edison Co. last week as was a town father from Norwood on his trip of inspection several weeks ago. Norwood had but a short time before become a customer of the Edison Co. and also arranged for a contract for a number of years, so this Selectman was anxious to see what particular part of the large plant on L street, South Boston, was being devoted to making electric current for Norwood. Expressing his desire to one of the officials, he was taken to a room in which there was a long row of lockers about a foot in width and three feet in heighth, one of which the attendant opened disclosing a number of small cables. The Norwood man was then told that his town was hitched onto one of the cables and that it transmitted light, power and heat to his balliwick. The man was taken aback and appeared to be non plussed, but soon recovering himself he said, "Norwood is not so important a place as I had always supposed it was." This must also have been the conclusion arrived at by the 80 odd visitors as they interestedly inspected the immense plant last week.

The Edison people want to become familiar with their customers, so that there may be a general good understanding. Thirty-one cities and towns are supplied by the company, covering an area of 466 square miles, the longest distance from the L street station being 43 miles. In this extensive district there are 26,265 customers, and the Edison officials are trying to become acquainted with them all, and furthermore the general manager, Mr. Atkins, says he means to give the smallest user of electricity as much consideration as the largest customers. For some time the company has been showing representatives from groups of towns over the plants and giving them royal entertainment. Some one may ask if this is good policy. It is, for it not only makes many friends but it brings more customers and more business, and the latter is what the Edison people are after, and they are getting it, too, by leaps and bounds. Only a few years ago a representative of the STAR visited the L street station. Last week's inspection showed that the capacity of the plant had nearly doubled, and further that additional engines were being installed. The great advances that are being continually made in electrical machinery are such that what was the most up-to-date a few years ago is to day very nearly unprofitable to use. On Atlantic avenue is the auxiliary station. It represents the third generation in the life of electric lighting. Only for about one month a year (December) and then only for a few hours in the evening, is the Atlantic avenue station in use. At that time of the year there is a big demand from the shopping district for electric signs and other display purposes. The big building is filled with ponderous generators—nearly a dozen of them—and yet the latest machine just put in at the L street station, now almost ready to start, will furnish as much horse power as the entire equipment at the Atlantic avenue station. It is an immense turbine of the latest make and capable of exerting over 16,000 horse power. This is only one of the surprising things learned by a visit to these stations.

Last week the guests from Woburn, Stoneham and Winchester met at noon at the Edison building on Boylston street.

At one o'clock lunch was served, after which the party was divided into groups of four and to each group was assigned an Edison boy—as Mr. Atkins, the general superintendent, calls them—who was to spare no pains to show their charges everything and explain all the intricate details of making electricity. The "boys" not only did all this, but proved themselves to be the "best fellows" imaginable. Taxicabs were then taken for the Atlantic avenue station, and after inspection, the big L street plant was visited. The coal field so-called was first visited, the storage capacity being 70,000 tons. It may be said here that about 600 tons of coal are consumed each day.

Coal from the barges at the wharf passes by means of coal belts to the storage yard from the wharf at the rate of 400 tons an hour. When needed the coal is hoisted by a big clam shell scoop, holding two tons, to the upper part of the building where it is dumped into bins and automatically fed to the furnaces, a travelling crane making this perfectly feasible.

A remarkable thing, is the small number of employees seen. Two long rows of furnaces facing each other, will see less than a half dozen men tending to them. The reason for this is that coal is fed by gravity to the furnaces, while the stoking of the fires is done by machinery.

Labor-saving devices are seen throughout the plant, and the users of electricity are getting the benefit in lower rates than generally prevail throughout this country. An attempt to give a technical description of the L street station would result in failure, and furthermore readers of the STAR would not be enlightened one bit by any such attempt. A few figures can, however, be given. At the Atlantic avenue station the horse power is 16,200; in 50 watt equivalents, 208,000; and at L street 57,000 horse power and 740,000 watt equivalents. Number of motors in use by customers 40,678, of arc lamps 10,268, incandescent lamps 1,024,026, with a total of 50 watt equivalents connected of 1,747,161. The total normal capacity of all generating apparatus for one hour in 50 watt equivalents is 1,114,000.

A banquet was scheduled for six o'clock, and as there were two hours remaining after inspecting the stations, the taxicabs took the visitors for a spin over Boston's matchless park system, and brought them back to the Edison building in good season for the excellent dinner.

When cigars had been lighted, Mr. W. H. Atkins, the general manager, in welcoming his guests, said that he was glad to become personally acquainted with so many representative men of Woburn, Stoneham and Winchester, and then proceeded to speak in part as follows:

"I want to state very briefly our motive in entertaining the people of our suburban districts, (as this is one of several gatherings of a similar character from the different districts in our territory.) In the early days of the Edison Company, it was of course, very much smaller than at the present date, and it was our privilege to personally know a very large majority of our customers. Now that the engineering problems resulting from the taking on of our suburban territory are all worked out and require less of our time, we are desirous of getting better acquainted with the people who represent the business life of this newly acquired territory. Again, we are equally anxious that the men prominent in local affairs should become acquainted with the Edison system, as we know they cannot fail to realize that the facilities resulting from the combination of the various municipalities requiring electric service, and the concentration of capital and experienced minds, brings about much better results for the municipalities served than could ever be expected from several small electric companies operating in their respective communities.

"In exactly the same way that Winchester, for instance, has benefited in the past by the fact that Woburn and Stoneham were served from the same source of supply, so will greater benefits accrue to the municipalities represented by you gentlemen here today by reason of your having been joined together with the other thirty odd municipalities supplied by the Edison Company. I do not make this entirely as a prediction, as I am sure that you have not failed to notice in the past few years many improvements which have resulted since the Edison Company entered your section, such as for instance, consolidation of pole lines, leaving fewer poles in the streets, the rebuilding of existing lines and the condition of the poles and lines generally, upon which a great deal of money has been spent and which cannot fail to show a great improvement.

"The closing down of the Woburn station and the supplying of your section from Boston is a great advantage to you, and this is practically on the eve of taking place.

"The handsome incandescent street fixtures shown here to-day, which were designed especially for us, is another evidence along these lines; and when you realize that no other electric lighting company in the state has as yet abandoned the old type which has been in use for many, many years, I think you will fully appreciate that this is a real benefit.

"To come to the cost to you for the service, the prices for street lighting are very much lower than those which obtained at the time of our introduction to your municipalities and are appreciably lower than that which obtains with your sister communities for service from other sources. The cost of commercial and residential lighting has been reduced fifty per cent in the last three years, and comparisons will reveal the fact that in the majority of instances it is lower than that charged elsewhere.

"There is no reason why there should not be as great advantages accruing to you in the future on account of your being supplied with Edison service as there have been in the past; as I am sure that you must agree with me, as a result of your observations today, that the evolution of the electric light and power industry is too rapid to ever expect to get the best results from the service when supplied from a small organization for a comparative small community.

"I have already spoken at too great length and must plead guilty to having introduced a little 'shop talk,' for which I apologize.

"I trust that the balance of the evening will be one of pleasure to you, and I wish to thank you on behalf of myself and my associates, for the privilege you have given us today of meeting with you and becoming better acquainted."

The officers of the company and their guests then went to the Colonial Theatre.

Ely's Cream Balm has been tried and not found wanting in thousands of homes all over the country. It has won a place in the family medicine closet among the reliable household remedies, where it is kept at hand for use in treating cold in the head just as soon as some member of the household begins the preliminary sneezing or snuffling. It gives immediate relief and a day or two's treatment will put a stop to a cold which might, if not checked, become chronic and run into a bad case of catarrh

THE ELECTION.

In 1900 the vote for Presidential electors was: McKinley 792, Bryan 333; the total vote being 1229.

In 1904 it was: Roosevelt 885, Parker 324; the total vote was 1351.

This year the total number of votes cast was 1299—Taft 922, Bryan 294.

The vote for Governor in 1907 was: Guild 569, Whitney 165; total vote 971. This year, Draper 829, Vahey 291.

Congressman McCall led the ticket Tuesday with 949 votes.

Bryan's strength showed quite a falling off since 1900, when his vote was 333, as this election he had but 294.

Frank E. Barnard, Esq., for Representative, received the third highest vote—868—and no doubt this gentleman feels quite proud of this fact.

The strength of the Independence League Party is seen in the 52 votes for Carey for Governor. Hisgen, the Presidential candidate receiving 38.

We are, at the present time, the only Optical Experts in America who can examine an eye.

We mean exactly what we say.

If you have ever had your eyes tested for glasses, you know the methods used by people who claim to examine the eyes and fit glasses, and they all use the same methods, no matter where you go, the high priced Specialist or to the 5 and 10 cent stores. They use the same old test-types hung on the wall, and try on a lot of glasses, asking you "Can you read this letter?" and "Does this line look blacker?" until you are so confused that you cannot tell which glasses are correct.

After your Optician does a lot of guessing and has your eyes all out of shape, you think you have been examined.

Think this over and you can readily see that you have been doing your own examining, and that is no doubt the reason you have had trouble to get glasses correct.

The Dammers Scientific Method is entirely different and is the only correct way to fit glasses.

NO DROPS USED. Those who have been examined for glasses by men who claim to examine eyes by the old, incorrect way, which is done by everyone who supplies glasses but us, will be agreeably surprised by our scientific and wonderful methods of fitting glasses.

We correct your eye defects by looking in the eyes, taking the exact scientific measurements of the focus and shape of the eyes.

NO QUESTIONS ASKED, no trying glasses on your face until we have determined your exact optical error.

This is absolutely the Highest Class work done in Fitting Glasses in America. Don't suffer with Headache.

We have produced astonishing results from brainfag, nervous debility, insomnia dizziness, nausea, watery eyes, blurry vision and other troubles caused by eye-strain. We have corrected by the use of glasses cross eyes and Astigmatism by our scientific methods.

WINCHESTER COMMON AND VILLAGE SQUARE.

The open territory now included in Winchester common, the adjacent railroad location and village square was first possessed by Edward Converse as recorded in the Charlestown Book of Possessions, 1638. The locality was called Waterfield, a part of Charlestown. Converse also owned the adjacent "corne mill" as well as much other land adjoining present Winchester center. At the time of his death the Converse estate included three houses, one occupied by himself and the other two by his sons Samuel and Josiah. The homestead was situated on the east side of Main street next to the present Whitney mill stream and dam. Another house was situated near Park and Main streets and the third house on Church street nearly opposite the entrance to Rangeley. In Edward Converse will recorded at Cambridge (1639) he devised as follows regarding present Winchester common then lying between his three houses: "all that land that lyeth common between the houses, my will is that it shall ly common for perpetuality. By the terms of this will, it is plain to see why for almost two hundred years the Converse family preserved an open space in present Winchester center. But at last new comers and new owners disregarded the Edward Converse easement in favor of the general public or at least in favor of those who bought Converse land abutting the open space which Converse willed to lie open forever. When the Boston & Lowell railroad was built in 1830-36, it purchased the ancient Converse property then owned by the last Winchester landowning descendant of the Converse family, Abel Richardson, thus becoming possessed of what is now Winchester center. The railroad company took what it wanted for its location and sold the balance to Samuel S. Richardson. Mr. Richardson sold off from time to time the old Converse land, but that part comprising the present common was never built upon and remained substantially open for many years being mostly used for a common and playground. In the course of time a portion of it was fenced in 'though most of the town boys had no scruples about breaking down the fence and using the enclosure as it always had been used. Many "old boys" privately approved such procedure, but at last the town was aroused to the necessity of obtaining a better title to the land than the public seemed to possess. After many stormy town meetings and much opposition from those who claimed that the owners of the property had no good title to it, the town voted to pay Samuel S. Richardson and Stephen Cutter $7000, for their respective rights in the property. This vote was passed in 1867, forty years ago. More than this amount was spent in grading, curbing and putting the Common in its present finished condition.

In regard to the eight streets which center in or cross Winchester Square, all but one (Railroad avenue) have been widened at various times at their junction with each other or the square, at much expense to the town. The effect of this has been to enlarge the square from time to time and make it more convenient for public use.

Present Church street was first laid out by the Selectmen of Woburn in 1846 as a way of access to the Converse "corne mill," also as a way to the west side plains where many cattle were pastured. The street was laid out from the "King's Ford" (the present site of the Whitney mill stream and dam) to "Plain street" now Cambridge street. It was called "Drivers Lane." It has been widened and relocated several times, the last expensive improvement taking place in 1870 at which time thirty five feet in width was taken from the common at the square and added to the street, thus making the square more open than before. (See Winchester Highway Plans, No. 114-6.)

Main street was laid out for public use in 1660 by a committee of six men from Woburn, Medford and Charlestown, though the way had probably been in use for many previous years. It was laid out "fully four rods wide" (sixty-six feet) its whole length from Woburn Meeting House to Mystic Bridge in Medford. Since the original lay-out, Main street has been relocated and rebuilt many times at great expense to the town, the last lay-out being in 1890. This last improvement cost the town about $30,000 and the County $8000. At this time the present Langley building was cut off eight feet at its easterly corner, thus enlarging the square on its southerly side as well as widening the street. (Winchester Highway plans Nos. 102-5 and 106 5.)

Pleasant street is an old highway laid out for public use by the selectmen of Woburn in 1846, about ten years after the county commissioners decreed the abolishment of present Winchester grade crossing on petition of the Boston and Lowell railroad. This is why Pleasant street is not mentioned or considered in that still-born abolition. This street was last widened by the County Commissioners on petition of citizens of Winchester in 1872. It proved a very costly improvement as buildings had to be moved at the junction of the street and the square. Thirty-five feet in width was taken on the southerly side of the street next to the square and seven feet on the northerly side. The general effect of this widening was to make the square more open and commodious. (Winchester Highway plans No. 606-K.)

Park street is an old town way, last widened and improved by the town in 1873 when it was widened twenty-five feet at its northerly entrance into the square and six feet on the opposite side. (Winchester Highway Plans No. 149.)

Thompson street was widened and rebuilt in 1883 and 1884. About one thousand square feet was added to the width of this street at its easterly end near the square, thus enlarging the square to that extent.

Common street, extending from Church street to the railroad station, thence to the square, was laid out wholly to accommodate the railroad company when the present station was moved from its former location on the north side of the square, next to Railroad avenue, to its present situation, a much longer distance from the crossing, in order that trains might not block the square while making stops at the old station. No street or way of any kind led to the new location but the town liberally laid out and built Common street wholly at its own expense, taking the land from its Common and receiving no compensation for it. The amount of land taken was 35,825 feet. The street was laid out by the town in 1872 at the time the railroad station was moved. The building of this street added to the capacity of the square at its southerly side though at the expense of reducing the area of the common. Walnut street extension from Main street to the railroad station was also newly laid out and built wholly at the expense of the town to make a way from the easterly part of the town to the new station. It cost the town about $16,000 as an expensive bridge had to be built, and now maintained at much yearly cost to the town. (Winchester Highway Plans, Nos. 16, 74, 91.)

Common street extension, a short street or way connecting Park street with Church street between the White Building and the railroad location, now forming the westerly side of the square, was last improved and widened by the town in 1898. 4500 square feet was added to the area of the square on its westerly side by this alteration, thus giving much needed room for electric car tracks. (Winchester Highway Plans No. 15.)

The above Historical facts, all taken from public records, plainly prove that Winchester as a town, has carefully preserved and improved her ancient common, public square and streets centering in the square at great cost to herself. The records emphasize the fact that the citizens of Winchester highly prize their common and all open spaces at the center of the town and will not give up or curtail their present limited area excepting in the case of some great public necessity not yet in sight. This is the meaning of the vote passed at a late town meeting stating in plain terms that in the abolition of the grade crossing, any railroad bridge crossing under or over the square must extend the whole length of the square and not cut off a part of it. The town knew what it was doing in this respect as the final vote of the town not only specified the length of the bridge but plainly indicated that the town would not put up with any scheme of a new crossing in the railroad location sixty-six feet wide, right through the square, thus leaving but a small irregular remnant of its former size on each side of the square, not connected together for teams except by making a long journey up or down and around the railroad tracks. That such a proceeding would spoil the center of the town is clearly the opinion of a great majority of the citizens of Winchester.

ARTHUR E. WHITNEY.

(The above article was originally written to supply data for Town Counsel, Mr. Joslin, to make use of to whatever extent he thought best in his argument before the grade crossing commission on Saturday last, urging on behalf of the town that the present crossing, ancient common and adjacent streets be not curtailed in size or injured in any way by proposed plans looking to their being taken even in part. By consent of all the interested attorneys, the whole paper was put into the case as a part of the evidence. By favor of Mr. Joslin and Mr. Whitney the STAR prints the article as a valuabe historical account of the formation of Winchester center and its present surroundings. Editor.)

TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL.

The erection of the new tuberculosis hospital to be built by the state at North Reading will be commenced right away.

The location is off Main street, the main thoroughfare from Reading to Andover, about half a mile south of the foot of Martin's pond.

The plans comprehend eight buildings. The administration and domestic buildings are each to be three stories high, and of attractive design. All others will be one story. There are to be two hospital buildings, four shacks with open wards facing south and living rooms.

The buildings are of good size, covering in all over 30,000 square feet of the amply sufficient tract acquired for the purpose by the State.

The place is accessible by electrics and steam road.

MRS. ELIZABETH B. FARNSWORTH.

Mrs. Elizabeth Brown Farnsworth, aged 80 years, died at the home of her brother, Mr. Caleb H. Newcomb of Hancock street, on Monday. The cause of her death was paralysis, she suffering a shock some fifteen months ago. She was born in Worcester, Mass., her parents being Caleb and Hannah (Brown) Newcomb. In addition to her brother she leaves a sister, Mrs. J. H. Webb of Salem, and two step children—Mrs. H. D. Thaxter of Roxbury and Mr. William L. Farnsworth of Boston. She was a member of the Theosophical Society of Boston.

Funeral services were held from Mr. Newcomb's home on Hancock street on Wednesday afternoon.

The remains were taken to Salem and interred in Harmony Grove.

BOSTON THEATRE.

For the week of November 9th, the Boston Theatre will have an attraction that will lend itself particularly to the great stage of that theatre, with all the beautiful stage settings that have now become associated with it, and it will be particularly notable, for the play is one in which Frank Losee made one of his greatest hits. This will be Paul Kester's dramatization of "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," the novel by Charles Major which gained such wide popularity. It also affords Miss Gordon an opportunity to appear in one of those emotional parts in which she has won such distinction.

It promises to be one of the best melodrama of the kind ever put on by a stock company, and already the greatest interest has been manifested. In "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," the stock company has a piece which will appeal particularly to the patrons.

STRAND MAGAZINE.

The contents of the Strand Magazine for November are as varied and interesting as usual. The fiction includes a weirdly dramatic story by Morley Roberts entitled "The Fog;" a true story by Georges Dupuy, called "The Monster of Patridge Creek"; "Corporal Sam," a story dealing with the army by "Q"; "The First Stone," by Fred M. White, "The Girl in the Light Blue Dress," by Richard Marsh, and continuation of "Salthaven," the amusing serial by W. W. Jacobs, and "The House of Arden," by E. Nesbit.

The articles are very entertaining and treat of "English Homes and Gardens" (Cawdor Castle), "Up the Schreckhorn in a Storm," "The Comic Side of Crime," by Harry Furniss; "My African Journey," by Winston Churchill, M. P., and an appreciative and fully illustrated paper on the Eccentric Art of Mr. S. H. Sime. The colored section is devoted to "The Ideal of Child-Beauty of Different Nations," and gives some very beautiful portraits in duotone depicting representative types of American, English, French, Italian, Japanese, Hungarian and Dutch children.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The regular meeting of the Winchester Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held Friday, November 13, at 3 p. m., in the vestry of the Congregational Church. A portion of the meeting will be devoted to the memory of Mrs. Saunders whose recent death took from the Union a member long interested in the work. All are welcome.

The recent address of President Eliot of Harvard in which he comes out so strongly for total abstinence and no license in general has awakened great interest everywhere. Even in the midst of the thunders of the closing days of the campaign it has made considerable noise and the papers have given it in full and commented upon it. It is note-worthy in many respects and chiefly because it was in no way necessary for him to take such advanced ground except to express his deep conviction. He says he has always tried to maintain an open mind and he certainly has had every opportunity to examine every argument usually brought forward in opposition to his present position.

Members of the Union are again asked to remember the box for the Flower and Fruit Mission and send in their contributions and those of other friends if possible in order that Winchester may maintain its reputation for generosity.

Broke the Record.

The local Co-operative Bank smashed all records this month when it issued 1000 shares. The previous record was 600 shares. The large increase is an indication that the people are becoming acquainted with this method of saving and home getting. The Bank is ably and conservatively managed and its investments are made with care and discrimination. Those persons who are anxious to own a home should inquire into its working—Mr. T. B. Cotter, the secretary, will give freely of the information.

Republican Victory.

Massachusetts, as usual, went strongly Republican Tuesday, the entire ticket being elected. Bryanism is a dead issue, as was apparant by his overwhelming defeat throughout the country. The Independence League and Socialism did not cut much of a figure, and as far as the Democratic party is concerned it appears to be on the down grade.

The election of Mr. Taft means four years of prosperity and harmony throughout the country. He has all of President Roosevelt's ability, but without his impetuosity. The big stick will now have a softer side, but it will be wielded with firmness and justice to all.

MRS. CHESTER P. DODGE.

Great sympathy is expressed with Mr. Chester P. Dodge of 109 Highland avenue, whose wife passed away on Thursday morning. A week ago Tuesday a little girl was born to Mrs. Dodge. At that time the condition of both mother and child was normal, but after a brief interval Mrs. Dodge's state became such as to cause her friends serious apprehension. In spite of the most earnest efforts it proved impossible to check the progress of the disease, and a fatal result could not be averted.

Mrs. Dodge's death has caused deep sorrow throughout the neighborhood where she resided, and also in Quincy and in Gloucester, in both of which cities she was well known as a resident before coming to Winchester. She was a devoted mother to her family, of notably sweet and kindly disposition and will be greatly missed.

Mrs. Dodge was 31 years of age, and had been a resident of Winchester for five years. She was born in Pittsfield, N. H., the daughter of Mr. Joseph M. Cummings. Besides her husband she leaves five children, her parents and two sisters—Mrs. A. E. Sproul of Quincy and Mrs. Jennie S. Morrison of Pittsfield, N. H.

The funeral will be on Saturday at 11.30 a. m., at the home, Rev. William I. Lawrance, pastor of the Unitarian Church, officiating. The interment will be at Rockport, Mass.

News has reached Winchester of the recent death by drowning of Mr. Fred J. Miller, whose wife was formerly Miss Amanda Holton of this town. The accident occured at his home at Camp Tenderfoot, Waters Meet, Mich. Mrs. Miller has much sympathy, inasmuch as her first husband was also drowned in the same lake. The body has been recovered.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

The Winchester Brass Band, under the management of Geo. Bigley, will give a vocal and instrumental concert in the Town Hall on the second week in December. Old Farmer's Almanacs for 1909—Wilson the Stationer. tf

Messrs. A. C. & A. E. Richardson are building a new milk house on their farm at the Highlands which will probably be the best equipped both from a sanitary and utilitary standpoint of any in this section.

Are you one of the many who sometimes desires a pencil when at home, and while you have many—too many—you have none with a point? If so bring them all down to Wilson the Stationer and let him sharpen them for you.

The prizes for the winter bowling at the Calumet Club are on exhibition at the club house. They consist of cut glass water bottles and dishes, carving sets, steins, etc.

Papers have passed through the office of Sewall E. Newman in the sale of lot 20 Lakeview road. Mr. Chas. D. Jenkins of Winchester buying of Mrs. Margaret G. Kimball. Mr. Jenkins expects to build during the coming year.

Dr. M. A. Cummings has gone on a few week's vacation in Maine.

Mr. Edwin Rooney made a total of 338 for 3 strings at the Calumet Club last night. The scores being 115-120 103.

Mrs. Robert F. Whitney slipped on a rug at her home on Lawrence street yesterday and fractured an ankle.

Mr. Arthur Winn has arranged with the Edison Company to furnish electric lighting service in the new house at 15 Fairmount street. Mr. J. H. McEwen has also arranged for the Edison service at 11 Fairmount street.

Dr. Lewis, dentist and Mr. Frank Winn, selectman, have returned from a successful hunting trip spent at Island Falls, Me. They report the weather extremely warm but both brought home some fine specimens.

Just as Mr. James H. Gerlach of Everett avenue stepped out of his door last evening with his wife, intending to make a call, he was confronted by 30 odd friends from Cambridge, Boston, Somerville and Winchester who had been quietly waiting on his spacious porch for a favorable moment to surprise him. They succeeded admirably. Mr. Gerlach realized very fully and very quickly that it was the evening of his birthday. With hearty congratulations and much merry-making the visitors took possession of the house and a good old fashioned evening of games and music was thoroughly enjoyed, with a collation at the close by Covel.

Mr. John Campbell, manager of the special service department of the Edison Co., has taken the Mills house on Euclid avenue. He comes here from Chelsea. Mr. Campbell is a former president of the Electric Auditing Co. of Boston. George Adams Woods was the agent.

Bernard F. Mathews, son of Mr. Mathews the hair dresser, has been presented with a watch fob by his schoolmates on his leaving Woburn to take up his residence in Winchester.

J. Howell Crosby's majority for Senator in this district was 3735.

Mr. Samuel J. Elder's name has been mentioned for Attorney General of the United States. His loyalty and adherence to Mr. Taft entitles him to generous consideration. Best of all, Mr. Elder has the ability to fill the office.

OUR HOLIDAY DEPREDATIONS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

To the youth of today the observance of a holiday, in any form appears to be but a license for the willful destruction of property, both of a private and public nature, and is the signal for the commitment of numerous acts of petty depredations. This is our judgement after witnessing the acts of malicious mischief and vandalism enacted in this town of late years on any day of a holiday nature.

A few years ago the 4th of July was observed by the youth as the day set apart for the robbing of garden hose, fruit and flowers, the removal of gates, fences, signs, and carriages from private grounds, breaking of glass and many other depredations. Today it needs but the name of a festive occasion of any nature to be seized upon as a license for carrying out a hundred petty acts of malicious mischief.

With the observance of Hal'o'een last week but a single act of the many need be mentioned to show the spirit of our youth of today. A gentleman of this town had placed on his lawn an ornamental vase of much value, a vase which had a history dating back a hundred years to his own knowledge and which was probably made at a much more remote period. This vase had been greatly admired by many lovers of objects of art, including our former townsman Edmund H. Garrett. Boys, or rather young men, which they resembled in stature if not in years, tipped over this vase and smashed it into a hundred pieces.

To the observant mind it would seem to be the fault of the parents of these youths, that allows the increase in these acts of vandalism. The youths come of good families. The mischief cannot be laid at the door of the hoodlum, but distinctly to the youth of the better class. While the police use every endeavour to stop this vandalism, these youthful offenders are much more difficult to deal with than older criminals, and unless the parents are willing to take matters into their own hands the trouble will undoubtedly increase to serious proportions.

REFORM.

BAPTIST CHURCH SOCIAL.

The opening fall social of the First Baptist Church was held last evening and was in charge of the social committee of the church and Young People's Society. A progressive conversational game started the entertainment in which everyone became acquainted. An apple contest followed in which the company was divided into groups, each group guessing the name of its apple and composing a poem descriptive of it. The Russet group won the Big Apple Pie for having the best poem, and the Gravenstein group came next with the Little Apple Pie. The remaining groups enjoyed No Apple Pie. Several of these groups, however, received honorable mention. A company of ghosts then gave a pantomime of the Battle of Blenheim. Typical Hallowe'en refreshments of pumpkin pie, doughnuts and coffee were served. The social was largely attended and proved to be unusually enjoyable. The committee in charge were as follows:

Church Committee—Mrs. J. L. Tufts, chairman, Mrs. S. D. Leland, Mrs. D. C. Linscott, jr., Mrs. Newton Shultis, Mrs. J. S. Blank, jr.

Young People's Committee—Mr. H. S. Palmer, chairman, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hersey, Miss Clara Macdonald, Miss Helen M. Palmer.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

November 2d, 1908.

Board met at 7.30 p. m. All Present.

W. J. Stevenson of Winchester Park street was present in regard to acceptance of said street. Referred to Supt. of Streets for estimate as to lowest cost to put street in acceptable condition.

Voted to write Lexing on Flagstaff Co. that we have decided not to have the topmast of the flagstaff lowered this season.

Received letter from John L. Ayer asking for gravel on sidewalk corner of Church and Cambridge streets and upon Cambridge street. Referred to Supt. of Streets to do.

Voted to write Geo. C. Odgen that estimate of cost of putting in drainage on Ogden avenue was $350.00 and on receipt of check for that amount work will be done. This estimate is based on the understanding that work is to be done at once or not until next spring.

Voted that on petition of the Edison Company for location of one pole on Norwood street, that hearing to be held on Monday evening Nov. 16th at 8 p. m.

Warrants drawn for $223.08 and $71.08.60.

Adjourned at 9.45 p. m.

G. H. LOCHMAN, Clerk.

OBSERVATIONS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

When a political party in four successive presidential elections can carry practically none but states held together by a race issue there must either be something wrong with that party or else the nation's affairs are pretty well managed by the party in power. Which is it? But we know from experience how quickly and decidedly the country can shift about in two years. Now let us wait and see what will be done in revising the tariff. That is the problem confronting the G. O. P.

Now that the hearings have been closed, what will the next move on the grade crossing abolition be. I will venture the prediction that the Commission will put on its own engineer to make another plan and then submit it to the town. While we are waiting for the crossings at the centre and the station to be abolished conditions should be made much safer than they are now, as they could be without much expense. A subway should be built at the station and the tracks fenced off there and the gates and their operation at the centre much changed. Some lives would in all probability be saved thereby.

There was quite a kindergarten on how to mark the ballots inside of the rail election day.

PARISH OF THE EPIPHANY.

The annual convention of the Sunday School Union is to be held Wednesday, November 11th. Meetings are to be at St. Paul's Church, Boston, and at the Y. M. C. A. Hall. The Bishop is the preacher at 10 a. m. at St. Paul's, the business meeting is at 11 a. m., the conferences are in the afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. Hall beginning at 3 p. m. At the evening service at St. Paul's Church at 8 there is to be an address by the Rev. Philip M. Rhinelander.

The first Sunday in Advent, November 29th, at 4.15 p. m. there will be a service of Infant Baptism. Parents having children to be baptized are asked to bring them, if possible, for this service.

ESTABLISHED 1854.

In selecting furs about which your personal knowledge is necessarily limited it is always safest to purchase from a responsible dealer who has a reputation earned by years of testing to maintain, and who does not desire and cannot afford to treat you unfairly.

For nearly fifty years we have been established in Boston as manufacturers of High Grade Furs, collecting the skins from all over the world and making them into every conceivable kind of fur attire.

This long experience in satisfying the needs of the most discriminating persons, has taught us how to give the largest possible value for every dollar expended with us.

All of our garments are fashioned after the latest Paris and London styles and are guaranteed in every respect to give perfect satisfaction, and to be superior to other fur garments when price, quality and workmanship are considered.

This is why shrewd fur buyers prefer to deal with a long established house whose entire business is centered in one location and whose workrooms are always open to inspection.

All we ask is for you to call and then decide where to purchase.

WINTER BOWLING TOURNAMENT.

Team I now holds the lead in the winter Bowling Tournament alone, having broken the tie with Team K by winning four straight to the latter's three. Teams B and N are still eligible for tieing the leader provided they can each win in straight games.

The single string was again raised during the week; this time by Wilson, to 124. He also raised the total to 321. Team A raised the high single to 505 and total to 1431.

THE FIRST OF THE VINCENT LECTURES.

On the afternoon of Wednesday, Nov. 4, occurred the first of the lectures arranged by The Fortnightly for its philanthropies. A small but exceedingly appreciative audience greeted Mr. Leon H. Vincent on his first appearance in Winchester and one cannot speak too highly of the excellence of the lecture. The subject, Franklin, particularly considered as a man of letters was especially happy, replete with humor, and delicate in discrimination showed Mr. Vincent at his very best. He passed rapidly over the well known facts of the great philosopher's early years and lingered especially upon the literary work which he divided into four classes. First maxims and proverbs, these including mainly those found in Poor Richard's Almanac. He styled him especially the master of condensed wit. Second—philosophical and educational tales of which "Too dear for your whistle" and "An Axe to Grind" are instances. Third—political papers and fourth the inimitable autobiography. This last shows Franklin absolutely at his best, was written in age and is the flower of his work.

The books which seem to have influenced Franklin most in the formation of his style are the Spectator, Bunyan's and Pilgrim's Progress. He often refers to his "old friend, honest John."

In characterizing Franklin, as his other qualifications than those of a man of letters, Mr. Vincent finds him showing a tremendous audacity, as in his experiments with the kite, an enormous amount of practical business knowledge. He calls him the first of a long line of American humorists of whom Mark Twain is a distinguised member and striking a note of sophistication which is later elaborated by the genius of Irving, Cooper, Poe, Bancroft, Prescott, Motley and Parkman.

One may expect in Mr. Vincent's next lecture, in which one of the shining ones of the middle of the last century—Hawthorne—is to be considered, a rare treat. It is particularly to be regretted that more of the gentlemen of the town can not avail themselves of the opportunity to listen to this delightful speaker, as the keen wit and solid philosophy of his lecture would particularly appeal to the trained minds of many of our leading citizens.

The next lecture will occur on Wednesday, Nov. 18, at the same hour.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

There will be amusement and laughter next week at the Castle Square for the play will be that delightful comedy "The Man on the Box."

"The Man on the Box" is a play of continuous humor, and it will be cast at the Castle Square so as to bring out the liveliest of comic effects and the most abundant humor. Mr. Craig will appear as Lieutenant Robert Worburton, and Miss Mary Young as Betty Annesley, while the other leading roles will be filled with Miss Cleveland as Mrs. Conway, Miss Colcord as Cora, Miss Tallman as Nancy, Mr. Friebus as Count Karloff, Mr. Meek as Magistrate Watts, Mr. Evarts as Col. Annesley, Mr. Hassell as Col. Frank Raleigh, and Mr. Ashley as Chas. Henderson.

The box office is now open the entire day and evening, and many are taking advantage of the subscription system, whereby they may secure the same seats week after week for the entire season.

In opening a new grocery store in Winchester on a cash system, a few doubtful people say it cannot be run successfully, but this store is to be different from the ordinary grocers.

When you have a charge account you buy more goods, but you have a longer bill at the end of the month.

By buying for cash you save a large bill and purchase your goods at a saving.

New faces are each week proving this statement.

We are at the beginning of the greatest buying season of the year and we believe people will buy if they are satisfied that they receive full value for their money. We are trying to sell the best goods at the lowest possible prices.

WINCHESTER 55 STONEHAM 0.

Winchester High foot-ball team outplayed Stoneham High on Manchester field, Saturday afternoon by the score of 55 to 0. The team work of Winchester was the best shown this year and Stoneham was unable to stop the onslaught. Many times the backs were pulled along by the linemen with several of the visitors holding on to them. Not once during the game did Stoneham make a final down. Several times Winchester kicked off to Stoneham, held them for downs and then rushed the ball across the goal line. Tuck did some fine work getting two field goals from the thirty-five yard line, one being in the last ten seconds of play. Collins kicked goals in good style missing only one. Kelley played the best game for Stoneham.

SHOWS ITS POPULARITY.

The National Bank has made a record for deposits, for on November 2, they reached the large sum of $265,647.76. This is but an indication of the popularity of this bank among the residents, many of whom find it much better and safer to make purchases by check than to carry around a roll of bills with the danger of loss through having pockets picked and other causes. The standing of the bank can be found on page five, and all who read it will admit that the showing is a most excellent one.

Why not buy a home as many buy furniture—a little down and a little every month? Let me explain plan. George Adams Woods.

MUSICAL RECITAL AT HIGH SCHOOL.

The first of a series of musical recitals will be given in the Assembly Hall at the High School Building on Wednesday Nov. 11 at 10.15 a. m.

The recital will be given by the Dodge Trio and the selections will be taken from the works of Saint Saëns.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

William Frederick Dodge of Allston, who has been appointed leader of the Boston municipal band by the music trustees, to succeed Albert M. Kanrich, is known in musical circles all over this country.

He comes from an exceptionally talented musical family, has studied under such well-known musicians as Emil Mollenhauer, Felix Winternitz and Jacques Hoffman, and is eminently fitted for the new position.

Mr. Dodge has had considerable experience as a conductor and violinist, at one time being leading violinist of the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra, and last season as violin soloist of the Boston municipal band.

He declined a flattering offer from the Detroit Symphony orchestra to act as concert master, in order that he might accept his present appointment.

He is a thoroughly finished musician and his figure, which is of striking appearance, has become familiar to Bostonians.

MRS. EDGAR A. HOLBROOK.

Mrs. Alice M. Holbrook, widow of the late Edgar A. Holbrook, died on Tuesday at the home of her mother, Mrs. Kelfern, at Norwich, Conn. She had been ill for several years, suffering from a complication of diseases. She was 58 years of age.

Mrs. Holbrook resided in this town for many years, and enjoyed a large circle of friends here. She was a member of the First Baptist Church. Other than her mother she leaves no immediate relatives.

Services were held at the grave in Wildwood cemetery yesterday, conducted by Rev. Henry E. Hodge.

PHARAOH THE OPPRESSOR.

This Is the Rameses Who Looms Over the Egypt of Today.

Like a cloud, a great golden cloud, a glory impending that will not, cannot, be dissolved into the ether, he (Rameses) loomed over the Egypt that is dead; he looms over the Egypt of today. Everywhere you meet his traces; everywhere you hear his name. You say to a tall young Egyptian, "How big you are growing, Hassan!"

He answers, 'Come back next year, my gentleman, and I shall be like Rameses the Great."

Or you ask of the boatman who rows you, "How can you pull all day against the current of the Nile?" And he smiles, and, lifting his brown arm, he says to you, "Look; I am as strong as Rameses the Great."

This familiar fame comes down through some 3,220 years. Carved upon limestone and granite, now it seems engraven also on every Egyptian heart that beats not only with the movement of shadoof or is not buried in the black soil fertilized by Hapi Thus can inordinate vanity prolong the true triumph of genius and impress its own view of itself upon the minds of millions. This Rameses is believed to be the pharaoh who oppressed the children of Israel.—Robert Hichens in Century.

CONCERT BY DARTMOUTH COLLEGE MUSICAL CLUBS.

The Dartmouth College Glee and Mandolin Clubs will give but one concert outside of Boston this fall and it happens that Winchester will receive that favor Thursday, November the twelfth, in the Town Hall. This concert was secured for Winchester on the strength of the support and appreciation of the concerts of the Musical Clubs of former years in this town, as is stated in The Dartmouth of Oct. 30th, "the fact that Winchester is a strong Dartmouth town, promises to make the affair a success," and it is hoped that a bigger audience than ever before will be present on this occasion to fulfill the expections of the Dartmouth Clubs and enjoy the excellent concert that they always offer.

The program presented is different in a number of ways from those of previous years. The selections are more varied and their presentation is made very effective by some recent innovations. The Clubs are very strong as has been shown by their trials in Hanover where the student body is very enthusiastic in their support.

The Dartmouth Musical Clubs, comprising about fifty members, is the largest that has ever visited Winchester but it will contain a number of old faces Morton Hull, the leader of the Glee Club, is well known to Winchester people, as is Mr. Daniel Watson, the leader of the Mandolin Club, and others.

After the Concert the floor will be cleared and dancing will be enjoyed until 12 o'clock. For the accommodation of our out-of-town patrons, a special car will leave for Arlington at 12.10.

The following program will be presented:

Still Susceptible.

He was a nervous, fidgety young man, and he looked with considerable apprehension at the woman next him, who held a baby, its face covered with a thick veil. The baby gave now and then a sharp cry, which the woman evidently tried to suppress.

At last, after many anxious glances, the young man spoke.

"Has—has that baby any—anything contagious?" he asked.

The woman looked at him with a mixture of scorn and pity.

"'Twouldn't be for most folks," she said in a clear, carrying tone, "but maybe 'twould for you. He's teething."

The Adventurous Feline.

"Hello! Is this the electric company? Do you take cats down? Yes, cats! One is on a pole and crying just terribly. She must have been up there a week, for she's just as thin— What? Oh, this is Fifty-ninth avenue! A big dog is barking at her, too, and she— What street? Why, I don't know. I don't live on this street, do I? Oh, yes, of course! Bristol street, the druggist says. Oh, will you? You are so good! And a man just said she is playing with the transformer and might short circuit herself or something. Well, thank you very much. I am so glad! Goodby!"—Success Magazine.

A Doubtful Proposition.

"Should a man go to college after fifty?"

"Well, he might pass muster at tennis," answered the expert. "But a man can't expect to do much in baseball or football at that age."—Pittsburg Post.

No Change.

"Do you think the world is growing worse?"

"Dunno as 'tis," responded the old man. "They're tellin' the very fish stories I heard when I was a boy."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Had we not faults of our own we should take less pleasure in complaining of others.—Fenelon.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portions of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

This woman says that sick women should not fail to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she did.

Mrs. A. Gregory, of 2355 Lawrence St., Denver, Col., writes

"I was practically an invalid for six years, on account of female troubles. I underwent an operation by the doctor's advice, but in a few months I was worse than before. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it restored me to perfect health, such as I have not enjoyed in many years. Any woman suffering as I did with backache, bearing-down pains, and periodic pains, should not fail to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

GROWING OLD.

A LITTLE more tired at close of day,
A little less anxious to have our way,
A little less ready to scold and blame,
A little more care for a brother's name,
And so we are nearing the journey's end,
Where time and eternity meet and blend

A little less care for bonds and gold,
A little more zest in the days of old,
A broader view and a saner mind,
And a little more love for all mankind,
And so we are faring a-down the way
That leads to the gates of a better day.

A little more love for the friends of youth,
A little less zeal for established truth,
A little more charity in our views,
A little less thirst for the daily news,
And so we are folding our tents away
And passing in silence at close of day.

A little more leisure to sit and dream,
A little more real the things unseen,
A little nearer to those ahead,
With visions of those long loved and dead,
And so we are going where all must go—
To the place the living may never know.

A little more laughter, a few more tears,
And we shall have told our increasing years.
The book is closed, and the prayers are said,
And we are a part of the countless dead.
Thrice happy, then, if some soul can say,
"I live because he has passed my way."

—Rollin J. Wells.

SELF APPROVAL.

DO what thy manhood bids thee do;
From none but self expect applause.
He noblest lives and noblest dies who makes and keeps his self made laws.

—Burton.

RESISTANCE.

RESISTANCE to its pinions light
Uplifts the bird in airy flight.
Resistance to the winged soul
Uplifts it to the lofty goal.

—John B. Tabb.

Postmaster Not to Be Hurried.

A nobleman's new land agent and steward, who went to live on the estates about fifteen miles from Granada, sent letters to the village postoffice every day for three weeks, but got no replies. Thinking this very strange he rode over to the village and interviewed the postmaster.

"Oh," exclaimed the postmaster, "you are the new agent on the ducal estates! Well, your letters are all safe. The villagers rarely write letters, and as I have to ride on my donkey four miles to the railway station to catch the mail train you don't suppose for one moment, do you, that I am going to undertake this pilgrimage every day with your stupid letters? I have them all here in a broken jug, and when the jug gets full I shall take a ride to the station and post the whole lot at once."

Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate.

By virtue and in execution of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Gardner W. Spencer to Winthrop Pattee dated March 18, 1903, and recorded with Middlesex (South District) Deeds, Book 3395, Page 445, and for breach of the conditions therein contained and for the purpose of foreclosing the same will be sold at public auction upon the premises described in said mortgage on all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed and therein substantially described as follows:

MONDAY, the 30th day of November, 1908, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon,

A certain lot of land with the buildings thereon, situated in the Town of Winchester, Massachusetts, being No. 8 1-2 on a plan of land in Winchester, Mass., belonging to F. L. Ferguson, Ernest Bowditch, Engineer, dated October 14th, 1901, and bounded and described as follows: Commencing on Maxwell Road at the Northwesterly corner of the granted premises; thence running Southeasterly on lot No. 8 on said plan one hundred (100) feet; thence continuing on in the same line and on that part of lot No. 10 on said plan which is not herein conveyed, six (6) feet; thence running Southwesterly on those parts of lots Nos. 10 and 9 on said plan which are not herein conveyed, seventy-four (74) feet to Maxwell Road; thence running Northwesterly on said Maxwell Road four and 1-10 (4.1) feet to said lot No. 8 1-2 on said plan; thence continuing on on the same straight line on said Maxwell Road fifty-seven and 9-10 (57.9) feet to a point as shown on said plan; thence first in a general Northwesterly direction and then in a general northerly direction on a curved line as shown on said plan fifty-nine and 62-100 (59.62) feet to the point of beginning, and containing 4,619 square feet, more or less. Said granted premises comprise lot 8 1-2 and also a strip of land as shown on said plan on the Southeasterly side of said lot above described, said strip being a part of lots 9 and 10 and taken therefrom and added to said lot No. 8 1-2. Said lots 8 1-2, 9 and 10 are also the same as shown on said plan and are the same premises as were conveyed to me by Albert E. Pond by his deed dated March 1st, 1903, recorded with Middlesex (South District) Deeds, Book 3395, Page 445.

Said premises will be sold subject to a prior mortgage of $3000 and subject to all unpaid interest, taxes and assessments. $100 required at time of sale, balance in ten days.

The Ear of the business and social world is attuned to the sound of the "Bell."

If you would command the world's attention—RING!

"Be Sure You're Right, etc."

Ever notice what queer pranks in transposing figures your mind will play?

Take three numbers—1468, 1546, 6428, for example. Now dismiss them from your mind for a minute and then try to recall them.

How easily you wonder whether it wasn't "1648," or "1456" or "6248!"

That's one reason why telephone subscribers are asked to consult the directory before giving a number—because this peculiar psychological trait is almost certain to lead to "wrong number" calls.

Such calls are not merely an annoyance but an economic waste. They abuse the patience of the person thus needlessly disturbed: they consume (instead of save) the time of the caller: and they burden the Telephone Company with a double operating expense.

Another reason why the directory should be consulted is found in the fact that telephone numbers occasionally are changed.

If you take pains to ascertain the correct number desired, and then pronounce it distinctly, in 999 instances out of 1000 you will get the correct connection.

The New England Telephone and Telegraph Company is one link in the chain of the great "Bell System," and in the states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts is connected with 300,000 telephones.

RENT WASTE

It is said that 20 per cent. or one-fifth of a man's earnings is a fair allowance for rent.

Perhaps the rent you pay is not so large a percentage of your income; perhaps it is more. At any rate why not save that expense, or a large proportion of it, by purchasng a home?

Buy one on the Co-operative plan and pay for it a little at a time. You've no idea how easy I can "let you in."

IS THERE ANY REASON

Why you should not have confidence in Winchester's growth and the increase of real estate values here?

Winchester will keep on growing for generations to come. That means a steady rise in the value of Winchester property.

Don't you owe it to yourself and those depending upon you to consider this matter of real estate investment?

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

On complaint of the Automobile Association against Howard Snelling of Winchester and C. O. Ellingwood of Malden, the board has suspended the license of Snelling to operate motor vehicles for 30 days. This case was the collision of two automobiles on Wyoming avenue, Malden The board finds that Snelling had pulled his automobile in behind a tip cart with high sides going in the direction he was. He saw the other automobile coming on Pleasant street: but he did not see it turn into Wyoming avenue because the sides of the cart ahead of him obscured his view. On turning out from behind the cart, he saw the other automobile coming and turning sharply to the left instead of stopping getting behind the team again or turning to the right. In consequence the cars came together. The accident was slight as both operators had come to nearly a stop.

Last Saturday, Hallowe'en, the halyards of the Wyman school, were tied far up the pole by Custodian Nichols with the aid of a ladder, so that the boys would not cut them on that evening. The boys succeeded in doing so, however, and now it will cost the town three or four dollars to hire a man to put in new ropes. The boy who cut the halyards has been found. It seems that in school Tuesday forenoon, one of the teachers was explaining to the scholars the great annoyance that the cutting of the halyards had caused When through her lecture, one little fellow jumped up and excitedly exclaimed, "Teacher, I know who did it; it was Sammy——, and my brother was with him."

Dr. Henry L. Houghton and family leave town next week to take up their residence in Boston for the winter.

On Monday noon the fire department was called to the residence of Mr. E. J. Johnson on Highland avenue for a fire in the cellar. Wood piled too close to a chimney flue was the cause. The blaze was quickly extinguished with hand chemicals and beyond that done by the smoke no damage was done. The alarm was rung in from Box 66, but owing to a disarrangment of the box, only gave the number correctly on one round. Just previous to the alarm the department was sent out to answer a still alarm for a brush fire at the rear of the Kimball estate on Wildwood street.

The people of the Second Congregational Church had the great pleasure last Sunday morning of listening to the Rev. Dr. Julius Soper, for some thirty years a missionary of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Japan, who gave a very interesting account of missionary work in the kingdom of the Mikado since the days of Perry to the present time, according full credit to Christianity for supplying the impulse to this remarkable development among the Japanese. Dr. Soper did not take extreme views either in condemnation or praise of the "little brown men," and deprecated any "jingo" talk on either side, likely if unchecked, some time to provoke a war between Japan and America. He also addressed the Sunday school and the Primary Department, and his visit will be long remembered.

VOL. XXVIII. NO. 19. WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1908. PRICE, FIVE CENTS

FROM THE FILES OF THE FORTNIGHTLY.

No. 2.

In May, 1892, "in accordance with the request of the School Committee, a loan exhibition of needlework was held in the Town Hall under the auspices of The Fortnightly. Specimens of work from all grades of the public schools formed the nucleus of the exhibition, which also contained examples of ancient and modern needlework of all kinds.

Citizens of the town, teachers and pupils from the schools and representatives of Federated Clubs were present, and the occasion proved agreeable socially as well as valuable as an exposition in the line of manual training.

A pleasing feature at this time was a note of acknowledgement from the School Board following this exhibition On motion of Mr. Suter it was unanimously voted:

"That the Secretary express the cordial thanks of this Board to the President and other members of The Fortnightly for their intelligent interest in the Manual Training Departments of the public schools, its appreciation of their pioneer efforts therein, and the value of their continued moral support, cooperating with the efforts of the committee to place the schools of Winchester in a satisfactory condition."

It is a satisfaction to record that The Fortnightly took a most active part in raising funds for the New England Hospital, holding an exhition and sale for that purpose.

In 1884 we find articles with about $260 contributed to the Hospital treasury. In 1887 another gift to the same cause was made and again in 1890. It is a gratification to remember that our Club had a hand in helping that most splendid work in its exceedingly modest beginning

In 1889 came the resignation of Mrs. Winsor, who had served the Club as President from the start The annual report of that year expresses the universal sorrow at being compelled to accept her resignation, and the feeling that her presence was essential to the life of the Club. But very sensibly they realized that if the association ever had a call to be its sphere of usefulness depended upon no one person, but that its truest interests called for the active interest and intelligent efforts of all the 113 women who then constituted the Fortnightly. I copy a paragraph of that report which seems to express much:

"Happily for the Club, dissension and unfriendly disagreement are unknown among us. Let us hope such will always be the record, and that as in the past, the wide diversity of opinion upon all subjects may find free expression, subject only to the restraints of courtesy and toleration."

The Fortnightly was fortunate in securing as its second President Mrs. Catherine A. Folsom, who had been one of the most active members from the start and by her ability and wise leadership carried on the good work begun so favorably. In her welcoming address to the Club she briefly reviewed the past work, and in referring to the loss of Mrs Winsor expressed the thought that appreciation of her value could be best shown by faithful and interested work in the Club for which she had labored so many years. In the three years of Mrs. Folsom's administration we see no diminution of interest, and a steady increase in members. In 1890 a convention of women's clubs was held in New York to which Mrs. Wilson was sent as delegate from The Fortnightly. At that meeting the National Federation was formed. The Fortnightly during the year voting to join. This action marks an era in women's clubs

At this period arose the great interest felt in Physical Culture and good work was done by a Gymnasium Committee, a course being especially maintained to which the public school teachers were admitted with a view to using the knowledge thus acquired in the work with the children under their care.

About 1892-93 we find agitation beginning in regard to the formation of a State Federation. The Fortnightly discussed this matter at great length and in 1896 became a part of the State organization. In 1893 the club was represented by an exhibit at the World's Fair.

At the opening of the Home for the Aged in Winchester the records show that The Fortnightly appropriated from the treasury a sum of money sufficient to furnish the dining room and china closet At a later date a sum was appropriated to replenish the china.

In 1892 Mrs. Dresser became third president and later her removal from town preventing her acceptance of the office of President a second term, Mrs. Gregory became the fourth President of the Club. Her removal from town at the beginning of her second year necessitated some plan for securing a presiding officer. As the year's work was largely planned, it was thought wise not to accept Mrs. Gregory's resignation but to place the affairs of the club in the hands of the Vice-presidents. During the whole year, Mrs. Punchard, 1st Vice-President, occupied the chair. The Club gave evidence of their appreciation of their absent president by a gift of Chamber's Encyclopaedia.

During this period, great attention was given to group work, one most fascinating study being France, and we find speakers taking up various phases in the life of our sister republic. Dr. Baneaud, President of the Board of Education of France spoke on Education in France, particularizing its advantages for women.

The Art Group devoted their winter to the study of Architecture and Art in France, Mr. Holt giving a talk on the subject every second week. The Domestic Economy Committee devoted an afternoon to the elucidation of Domestic Economy in Paris The Literature Group provided an afternoon's entertainment at which one wishes she might have been present—a paper on Madame De Rambouillet by Mrs. Shattuck, one on Madame De Stael by Mrs Elder, one on Madame Mohl by Mrs. Sherman—surely most interesting subjects in most able hands. At a later meeting of the same winter Madame Harney of the Isle of Guernesy, at whose home Victor Hugo had been entertained during his exile from France gave personal reminiscences of the great author, and from such intimate acquaintance did she draw her material, which was presented with the grace of a true French gentlewoman. It is pleasant to note that on this occasion guests from neighboring clubs were welcomed. The leaven of the Federation was working. The Clubs were learning to combine the grace of hospitality with the desire to share valued privileges with others, which is the test of true culture.

MRS. CATHERINE A. FOLSOM
Second President of The Fortnightly.

MRS. CHARLES A. LANE.

Mrs Bessie Louise (Johnson), wife of Mr. Charles A. Lane of Glen road, passed away at the Charlesgate Hospital last evening. On Tuesday Mrs. Lane underwent an operation, performed by Dr. Mumford, and although this was successfully performed, pneumonia germs were in her system and the disease developed Wednesday, affecting one lung, and ultimately causing her death.

Her husband has the sympathy of all, and the sudden news of her death comes as a great shock to the hosts of friends. Born in Nahant of Franklin E. and Harriet (Whitney) Johnson, Mrs. Lane had made Winchester her home for about 18 years.

She was prominently connected with the First Congregational Church, The Fortnightly, Home for Aged People and other town organizations. She leaves her husband and three children—Roland P., Constance and Franklin J. Her father also survives her. Particularly sad is the fact that yesterday was her 46th birthday.

The funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 30 at the Congregational Church. The interment will be in Wildwoood Cemetery.

MISS SARAH A. BOWSER.

Miss Sarah Allen Bowser, aged 70 years died at the home of her sister, Miss Fannie J. Bowser, No. 15 Winthrop street, Monday morning. She had resided in this town for the past 20 years, was born at Sackville, N. B., and leaves three sisters and four brothers. For a number of years she had been an invalid.

Funeral services were held from the residence on Wednesday afternoon at 2.30, conducted by Rev. John R. Chaffee, pastor of the Methodist Church, of which the deceased was a member. The burial was in Wildwood Cemetery.

THE FATHERS' AND MOTHERS' SCHOOL SOCIAL.

At the High School Assembly Hall, on Tuesday evening, November 17th, from 7 30 to 10, an opportunity will be given to the fathers especially, to meet socially, the teachers of their children. All the schools from High to Kindergarten will be represented. There will be music, refreshments, and a ten minute address by Miss Jane Brownlee of Toledo, Ohio, and lecturer on the practical matters of school life. No one can afford to lose this chance to hear Miss Brownlee.

Please extend this notice among your neighbors, and come early. The teachers will be ready to receive.

MISS BROWN'S SONG RECITAL.

Dorothy Temple Brown, soprano, gave a song recital last Wednesday night in the small Town Hall, assisted by Mrs. Bernice Akins Mallory, of Hartford, pianiste; Miss Helen Reynolds, violiniste, of the Reynolds Trio in Boston; Miss Margaret Gorham and Mrs. J. Churchill Hindes, acccompanists.

Miss Brown and her fellow artistes woke Winchester up to the fact that it can appreciate a really good musikfest. The town also realized that it owns a real live artist in the person of Miss Brown and that those of her townspeople who wish to hear her sing will soon be obliged to travel to the Metropolitan opera stage to do so.

Miss Brown inherits the best traditions of a school of singing that even in modern es imation, and certainly in the history of vocal art, occupies the premier place. It really seems remarkable that a Massachusetts girl named Brown should possess the same warm temperament that makes such magnetic singers of the Italians, but it was perfectly demonstrated by the young singer's achievements of the wonderfully dramatic passages in Handel's aria from "Giulio Cesare,"—the "Piangero la sorte mia"—and the flowing lyric measures of Veracini's "La Pastorella." In the latter especially, did Miss Brown secure that warm and velvety tone the quality of which is more like a rose petal than any thing else. This is what has been handed down to her from the school of Patti, Parepa Rosa, Albani and Sontag by her mother and her grandmother who was Sabrina H. Dow, one of the three pupils to which the great Cesare Badiali limited himself. Mrs. Dow, who was a fine artiste and an authority upon the art of singing, refused an offer by Badiali to sing with him in Europe, preferring her own home life. Her daughter, Mrs. Eva A. Brown, herself a musician of rare talents and the composer of more than forty songs, a volume containing some of which is published, has been the untiring teacher of her daughter.

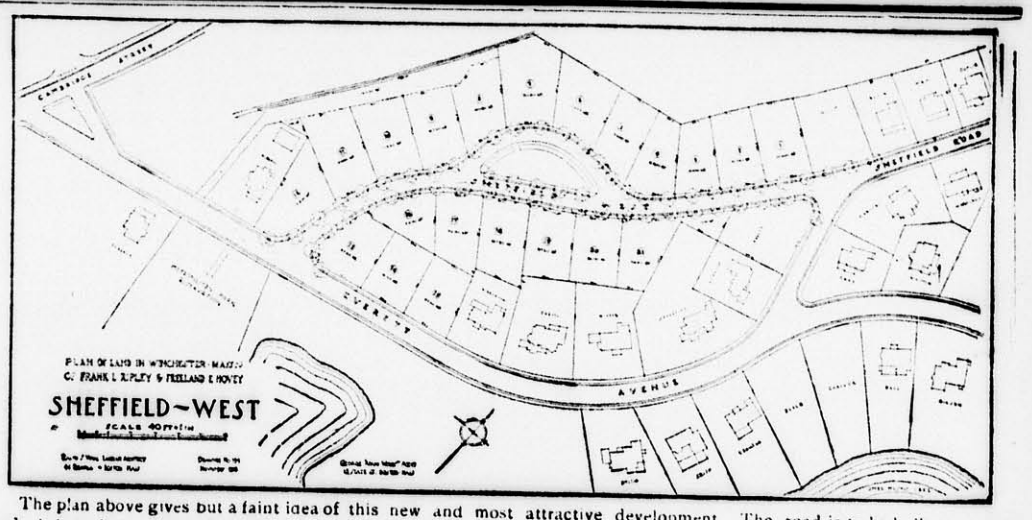
The songs on the programme covered a wide range of artistic expression. The first couplet, "Mutil" by Coleridge-Taylor and "To Phylida" by Del Riego were in direct contrast. The sustained tone in the first song showed what good staying power Miss Brown has in her voice: the second exhibited her extensive range and a very pleasing quality in the upper register which many sopranos fail to get. "O Fair, Sweet Face," was written by Miss Brown's mother, and is one of her collections of "Elizabethan Lyrics." This song together with "The Minstrel and His Fiddle" by Spohr further confirmed Miss Brown's title to dramatic power and good tone production. Schuett's "Zu der Rose, zu dem Weine" and Schumann's "Frulinzsuacht" were sung with true appreciation of the beauty of the German lyric, distinguished not so much by its passion of the heart as is in the Italian aria, for instance, but more by a passion of the mind everywhere characteristic of Teutonic music and expressed in its best vigor by Richard Wagner. Miss Brown caught this tentonic spirit excellently although she is temperamentally of the Italian school. Again in the "Herbet frulingslied und Frulingslied" of O. Weil she showed the same adaptability and masterful interpretation. Probably her best success was made in her last number, the Shadow Song from Meyerbeer's opera "The Purdon of Ploemel."

As has been said Miss Brown has an asset belonging to few American singers. Not merely has she a voice, big soul-inspiring commanding vibrous with thought and feeling, but she has that indescribable thing—temperament. American audiences are often indifferent to the soul in a singer's personality until he or she comes much heralded from Europe where they have known temperament for centuries. But where voice and temperament are united success cannot be denied.

Mrs. Mallary who opened the program is an excellent pianiste whose style is convincing and charming. Her numbers Handel's Fugue with variation by Arthur Bird: Pizzicato from opus No. 57 by Glouzognoff, a nocturne by Karpoff; a sketch, opus VII, No. 3 by Edward B. Hill, and Saint-Saens "Allegro Apassionato," opus 70 were well received. Her interpretation of the Allegro was specially happy.

Miss Reynolds is also a capable artiste. Her tone is all that could be wished for, her bowing true and masterful, she played with a pure and sincere style several interesting numbers. Several obligatos for Miss Brown, particularly in the Weil number, were excellent. Her solo numbers were Wagner's very well known "Traume" and "Albumblatt," and Wienowski's "Romance at Rondeau." To Miss Gorham and Mrs. Hindes is due much of the concert's success for their competent support as accompanists.

R. L. L.



The plan above gives but a faint idea of this new and most attractive development. The road is to be built on an even grade, it is to be 40 feet wide in the main and 30 feet wide around the park. It is to have a 24 foot gravel macadam roadway with 5 foot of crushed stone sidewalks and 3 foot loam spaces: curbs are to be laid at corners. The park is to be grassed with attractive detail development, and good sized trees are to be set out where shown on plan. Sewer, water and gas are to be laid and electric lighting installed. The lots are to be evenly graded throughout, loamed and seeded. George Adams Woods, who has charge of the development, will be glad to furnish full particulars, restrictions, prices and all details.

WISTARIA CLUB DANCING PARTY.

The first Dancing Party given by the members of the Wistaria Club, and one of the prettiest ever held in town, was that of Monday evening in Lyceum Hall. Fully two hundred couples were present, including about fifty members of Bunker Hill Council, K. of C. of Charlestown.

The hall was beautifully decorated with festoons of lavendar and green, while baskets of Wistaria were suspended from the centre chandeliers. On the stage were banks of palms, behind which were hidden the orchestra.

The members of the Club were gowned in white and carried lavendar chrysanthemums.

The party also comprised friends of the young ladies from Woburn, Medford, Stoneham, Wakefield, and Cambridge.

During intermission a concert was given, which included solos by Mr. W. Rogers, Mr. J. J. Walsh, Mr. D. M. Bressinan, and readings by Mr. Ducey of Charlestown.

The floor was in charge of Miss Amy G. Noonan, Directress, Annie A. Glendon, assistant, and Lillian J. Kane. Mary G. Boyle, Helen M. Sullivan, Edith I. Curry, Katherine L. Maguire, Mary E. Cosgrove, Catherine E. Kenney, Etta T. Heavey, aids.

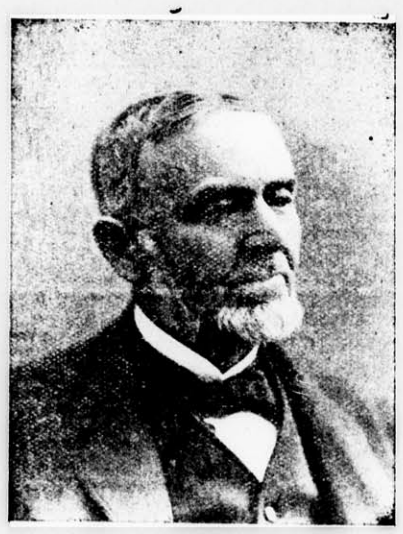
ON THE ALLEYS.

At the first of the informal ladies evenings recently innagurated at the Calumet Club, a number of the lady members of the families of the club members enjoyed the bowling. President Wallace F. Flanders has offered three prizes for these evenings during Nov. and Dec. for the ladies making the best string, the largest number of strikes and the largest number of spares. On Tuesday evening Mrs. W. F. Flanders rolled a string of 89, the highest of the evening. In addition to this she made one strike and one spare. Mrs. J. C. Hindes was recorded with one spare and Mrs. T. Price Wilson a strike and two spares.

The first date for the Turkey Roll at the Calumet Club was last Saturday evening, and some very good scores were made. The turkeys will go to the rollers making the highest three string total, and the following scores have been made:

George S. Littlefield	314
N. H. Taylor	300
Vincent Farnsworth	304
J. A. Caldwell	298
G. H. Lochman	297
G. M. Farnsworth	296
G. W. Fitch	295

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Comins of Wildwood street returned last week from a stay at Sargentville, Me.



MARSHALL SYMMES

Who is 92 years of age, was the oldest person to vote on election day last week. He has always voted the Republican ticket since that party was formed.

INTERESTING HALLOWE'EN PARTY.

The entertainments given by the Winchester Teacher's Club have always been of a most interesting nature, and to those of their guests who are privileged to be the parents of children under their charge, the fact has brought home very markedly the ability of the town's teaching staff. Probably the best of their efforts yet were displayed at the Hallowe'en party given by them last Friday night in the Assembly Hall of the High School, and a large number of guests thoroughly enjoyed the affair.

At their arrival the guests were greeted by a ghost in the darkened hall, conducted in silence to the dressing rooms, and then to the assembly hall, also darkened. Before each was seated he was invited to take the arm of a most realistic skeleton for escort, but few cared to avail themselves of the privilege—if privilege it was.

The program opened with progressive Hallowe'en games and stunts, 12 tables enjoying them. At their end the hall was again darkened while a ghost told a most harrowing and blood-curdling story, which finished with a piercing shriek. This was heartily encored. After more games, a witch, most appropriately costumed, appeared on the stage and told fortunes at a cauldron. After making the brew of snakes, spiders and many strange herbs, she brought out the fortune, which apeared to be pieces of paper, read only by holding over the flame of the candle, Refreshments followed of brown bread, sandwiches, apple and nut salad and cider. The decorations were unique and called forth many comments of appreciation. The stage was fronted with a row of grinning and grotesque jack'o'lanterns, with the witches' cauldron suspended from its tripod in the centre. The curtain had been lowered and decorated with six beautiful black cats, which were certainly works of art. The refreshment table was decorated with fruit, with a magnificent center piece of a great branch of a tree, the ends of which held twelve candles.

The committee having charge were: Mrs. Holcombe, Supervisor of Sewing, chairman; assistants, Miss Riley, Miss Barr, Miss Harriman, Miss Hopkins, Miss Taylor, Miss Symmes, Miss Todd, Miss Twombly and Miss Dodge.

DEER KILLED BY TRAIN.

On Wednesday afternoon a large buck, weighing about 260 pounds was struck by a train at the rear of the Brooks estate, near the park police rest house on the boulevard, and killed. The animal had its shoulder and several ribs broken, and was badly crushed. Word was telephoned to the State Fish and Game Commission and a warden came out and took care of the carcass — and incidentally several fine steaks. The buck and a doe have been living on the Brooks estate during the summer and have been seen a number of times.

ROSE—MARTIN.

On Tuesday evening at the first Congregational Church occurred the wedding of Miss Grace Maude Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Martin of Church street, and Dr. William Henry Rose, son of Mrs. Emma C. Rose of Elm street, Worcester. The event was significant as the most important of the early winter weddings and was attended by a large gathering of acquaintances and members of the two families.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. Augustine Newton, pastor of the church, at 7 30. The wedding party included Miss Edna K. Anthony of Worcester, maid of honor; Miss Anna E. Sibley, Miss Amy P. Harden and Miss Elsie Martin, all of Chelsea, and Miss Mabel Mackay of Worcester, who were the bridesmaids, and two little flower girls, Miss Rosamond and Miss Dorothy Martin, nieces of the bride. The best man was Dr. Foster H. Carey of Worcester.

The bride was most becomingly gowned in white satin, trimmed with duchess and point lace, court train, and her veil was caught with orange blossoms. Miss Anthony, the maid of honor, wore a dress of pale green chiffon cloth, accordeon plaited, and trimmed with duchess lace and gold thread applique. She carried a bouquet of white chrsanthemums. The four bridesmaids were gowned alike in corn color messaline dresses, trimmed with filet lace, and carried bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums. The little flower girls were dressed in white lace and muslin with white sashes, and carried baskets of yellow marguerites.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the receiving party including Mr. and Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Rose. The residence was decorated with a profusion of palms and cut flowers, with the general tone of the hall in red, the dining room in pink and the library in yellow, red roses, pinks and chrysanthemums predominating in the flowers used. The library was used for the receiving. Mrs. Martin wore a champagne colored gown, embroidered in silk and trimmed with duchess lace. Mrs. Rose wore a very handsome gown of gray, trimmed with lace.

The gifts of the bride to her attendants, were very handsome, that of the maid of honor being a gold bracelet studded with amethysts, to the bridesmaids gold bracelets, and the flower girls were the recipients of gold pins with pearls.

The ushers at both church and reception were Doctors Philemon Truesdale of Fall River, Edward H. Makey of Clinton and Messrs. John H. Badger of Boston, J. Stanley Rose of Worcester, Archibald T. Martin of Yonkers on Hudson, N. Y., and Edward M. Dodge of Worcester.

Dr. and Mrs. Rose will reside on June street, Worcester, Mass., where they will be at home after December first.

RELIC OF THE INDIANS.

Mr. James Johnston the contractor, found an old flint Indian tomahawk head while excavating the ground at the corner of Everett avenue and Sheffield road last Friday. It was unearthed under about a foot of soil and must have lain there for many years—how long no one would care to predict. It certainly was before the white man settled here and when this locality was inhabited entirely by the red men. The flint head is a little over five inches in length and at its axe-shaped end is a trifle over two inches in breadth. This end is quite sharp and will freely cut now. The other end is shaped down to a sharp point. This head securely fastened by thongs in the middle to a stout handle is a formidable battle axe, and whether it was ever so actually used is only conjecture. The surface of the flint is roughed over so as to keep the throngs from slipping when fastened to the handle.

Mr. Johnston has placed the head in the window of Wilson's store for a few days for the inspection of the people.

WINNING HOME.

The above picture shows a group of Winning Home boys enjoying a ride with one of the gentle farm horses who seems to enjoy the picnic as much as the boys. The past summer, as for the previous two summers, the trustees of the Winning Home worked in conjunction with the South End House Association of Boston and made use of the farm during the summer months for a vacation home for poor children from the tenement house district in the South End of Boston. The Winning Farm is located partly in Winchester and partly in Lexington and Woburn, so that the board of trustees contain three members from each of those places. The Winchester members are John L. Ayer, Edward H. Stone and Daniel W. Pratt. We feel that this work is a most excellent one and does a great deal of good for those poor children.

The following clipping is from The South Bay Union Bulletin, a publication issued by the South End Home Association:

WINNING FARM.

Ninety-eight girls this summer in groups of eighteen or nineteen, et joyed the usual stay of ten days at Winning Farm. On its arrival each group was greeted by Miss Borroughs, the matron, and after the unpacking of suit cases and parcels, the children were ready for what proved to be the most novel part of the outing, namely, the taking of their weight. At the end of their stay they were weighed again, and in almost every case a marked gain was noted. Many of the girls were found to be heavier by seven or eight pounds. They had undergone a physical examination before leaving for the farm which was also an innovation. Thus more attention than ever before was given to the general health of the children in order that the greatest benefit possible might be gained from these days in the country.

Besides these ninety-eight girls, thirty-seven boys were at the farm in two groups. The first group went shortly after school closed, and the second group just before school opened. The Fourth of July celebration and the picnic in Shaker Glen were the big events for the first group. On the Fourth of July, fire-crackers were going off all day, and in the evening there were fire works. The boys who went out in September had a special event also.

During the week they built a bonfire which was lighted off on Saturday evening. After dancing around it and roasting corn in the embers, they returned to the play-room where an informal entertainment of recitation and songs was given by some of their number. That afternoon the boys had visited the house in Lexington in which Hancock and Adams were warned by Paul Revere of the approach of the British. Another day, some of the boys went over the battle field and the old cemetery. The night before they returned to Boston a pillow fight was held.

It is well within reason to say that in every respect this was the most successful season at the farm.

PARISH OF THE EPIPHANY.

The first meeting for the season of the Epiphany Circle will be held next Monday at the Choir Room at 3 p. m. It will be a recreation meeting. All girls of 10 years of age are eligible.

The Woman's Guild will hold its regular meeting Tuesday afternoon November 17, at the usual hour at Mrs. A. S Higgins', Church street. The meeting is in charge of the Current Events Committee.

The Choir Club will meet Wednesday evening at the choir room at 7.30. Mr. Norton is director of the club. Members of the choir are members of the club as are also ex members of the choir, who have sung in the choir within the last two years.

A week from Sunday, November 22, will be Sunday School Visiting Day. Parents of pupils in the school and members of the parish generally are ask to remember this day and to visit the school.

The new window which is being placed this week is to be dedicated at the morning service Sunday, November 22nd.

OUR MACADAMIZED ROAD FIASCO.

The magnificent macadamized roads of Europe are the admiration of all Americans who have had an opportunity to make use of them. Scientifically constructed and most diligently repaired and maintained, they provide to day, as they have provided in many cases for centuries, a smooth, hard, and well-drained surface, which never varies in its excellence from season to season, or from year to year.

Here in the United States the art of macadamized roadbuilding, at least on a scale of any magnitude, is of comparatively recent date. Such roads as we have constructed have been built, as a rule, under experienced engineers and according to those principles which have been so thoroughly tested in Europe. Generally, our new roads, on their completion, are of excellent quality. The work is so well done that there is no reason why, with proper maintenance, they should not show the same wearing qualities as similar roads abroad.

As a matter of fact, in the majority of cases, our roads after a single season's wear, began to show serious signs of going to pieces, and frequently, after two or three seasons' wear have lapsed into a condition that is little better than that of a common country dirt road. If the top dressing has not disappeared entirely, it will be found in the shape of a deep layer of dust and fine stone at each side of the roadway; the stripped surface will be worn more or less deeply into ruts or hammered into hollows; and not infrequently the underlying courses of large broken stone and rock will be clearly discernible.

Why do American macadam roads go to pieces so swiftly, while those in Europe maintain their fine surface indefinitely? The answer is to be found in the fact that in Europe they have a careful system of road maintenance, and in the United States we have none, or practically none. European roadbuilders and supervisors or whatever they may be called, clearly understand that there is no engineering work that depends more absolutely for its integrity and permanence upon careful attention and upkeep than does a macadamized highway. They understand moreover, that there is no work of the kind in which the old adage, "a stitch in time saves nine," is more true than in this; and, consequently, their system of road maintenance involves a constant and careful inspection, and the immediate repair of any spot in the road, however small, that shows incipient signs of breaking down. Hence the work of keeping up the European roads is being done all the time; in many places; and by a large army of individual laborers. The solitary road repairer, with his wheelbarrow, pick and shovel, and little pile of broken stone and top dressing, is a familiar sight. It is his duty to inspect daily his own section. On detecting a a low spot where water might collect (the genesis of the American "chuckhole,") he makes immediate repairs.

Here, in the United States, we know little or nothing of such road maintenance as this. No sooner is a stretch of new road accepted and paid for, than it is left to the tender mercies of the traffic and the weather. Incipient ruts and hollows, instead of receiving the immediate care of the road mender, are allowed to remain full of the standing water of the last rainstorm, and are quickly depened and widened by the wear of the passing traffic. When the work of destruction has proceeded unhindered to a certain stage of ruin, the road is given a wholesale repair (sic) by dumping upon it a few hundred tons of top dressing, which is left to be crushed down into the irregular and ragged surface beneath by such hap-hazard rolling as may be given by passing traffic.

In the present campaign of "good roads" education, more attention should be paid to the vital function of road maintenance. Our present practice of building a first-class road and then letting it go to ruin as fast as wind, weather and traffic can wreck it, is the height of folly and extravagance. — [Scientific American.

TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Massachusetts Commission on Hospitals for Consumptives has secured sites for the three hospitals it is to build. These three sites are at North Reading, Lakeville and Westfield. Each hospital will hold 150 patients. Ground has been broken for the North Reading, or Martin's Brook Sanitorium, which will be ready for occupancy next summer: plans are now being made for the hospital at Lakeville, and work on the Westfield hospital will be taken up soon.

All this means that probably within a year there will be at the disposal of the state 450 beds for consumptives in addition to those already available at the State Sanitorium at Rutland and at the State Hospital at Tewksbury. It is of the utmost importance that each city and town throughout Massachusetts should have accurate knowledge of all cases of tuberculosis in each district, especially as regards those most dangerous advanced cases, which are such a menace to the health and life of a community. It is the object of this commission to provide a place where such advanced and moderately advanced cases of consumption can be properly treated. It will be impossible to do this without the hearty co-operation and support of all cities and towns in Massachusetts, represented by local Boards of Health, the medical profession and anti-tuberculosis associations and committees.

Many cities have already taken steps to obtain this knowledge. In the northern part of the state excellent work along this line has been done by tuberculosis associations at Andover, Lawrence, Haverhill, Salem and Woburn. In the southern districts Fall River and New Bedford are very active, while in the western part of the state, Worcester, Fitchburg, Springfield, Holyoke and Northampton are striking examples of effective organization against this disease.

The Commission building these hospitals does not wish to limit its labors to the one end of erecting these three institutions. It stands ready to give advice and information in regard to the formation of associations, day camps, tuberculosis classes, how to secure the traveling tuberculosis exhibit, etc., and will welcome inquiries of all kinds on this subject at its offices at 3 Joy Street, Boston.

Ely's Cream Balm has been tried and not found wanting in thousands of homes all over the country. It has won a place in the family medicine closet among the reliable household remedies, where it is kept at hand for use in treating cold in the head just as soon as some member of the household begins the preliminary sneezing or sniffling. It gives immediate relief and a day or two's treatment will put a stop to a cold which might, if not checked, become chronic and run into a bad case of catarrh

Our method of supplying your requirements in Furs has made The Dunlap-Cooke Canadian Furs famous as the Furs of Quality. The Canadian Climate produces the finest furs known to commerce, because of the long, cold winters. The fur-bearing animals of Canada are provided by nature with a coat that is warmer, finer and more lustrous than temperate climates can produce.

The Duty on Manufactured Canadian Furs is 35%—We receive our Canadian Furs in the Raw State Duty Free. We have our own fur stores in Canadian centres; here we receive the raw furs from the trappers. We are the only Canadian Fur concern with a store in the United States. In this respect the strength of our position is unequalled. When you buy direct from us you save middlemen's profits and secure skins taken in prime season from the best sections, because we know where and when to buy the best that Canada offers.

The stereopticon lecture at the Congregational church on Sunday evening by Mr. Roy B. Guild of Boston on "The Man from Italy and His Companions," proved to be one of the best of a like nature given in town for years. It was greatly enjoyed by an audience of almost 140 persons. The lecture was greatly enhanced by the remarkably fine views which were shown.

We are, at the present time, the only Optical Experts in America who can examine an eye.

We mean exactly what we say.

It you have ever had your eyes tested for glasses, you know the methods used by people who claim to examine the eyes and fit glasses, and they all use the same methods, no matter where you go, the high priced Specialist or to the 5 and 10 cent stores. They use the same old test-types hung on the wall, and try on a lot of glasses, asking you "Can you read this letter?" and "Does this line look blacker?" until you are so confused that you cannot tell which glasses are correct.

After your Optician does a lot of guessing and has your eyes all out of shape, you think you have been examined.

Think this over and you can readily see that you have been doing your own examining, and that is no doubt the reason you have had trouble to get glasses correct.

The Dammers Scientific Method is entirely different and is the only correct way to fit glasses.

NO DROPS USED. Those who have been examined for glasses by men who claim to examine eyes by the old, incorrect way, which is done by everyone who supplies glasses but us, will be agreeably surprised by our scientific and wonderful methods of fitting glasses.

We correct your eye defects by looking in the eyes, taking the exact scientific measurements of the focus and shape of the eyes.

NO QUESTIONS ASKED, no trying glasses on your face until we have determined your exact optical error.

This is absolutely the Highest Class work done in Fitting Glasses in America. Don't suffer with Headache.

We have produced astonishing results from brainfag, nervous debility, insomnia dizziness, nausea, watery eyes, blurry vision and other troubles caused by eye-strain. We have corrected by the use of glasses cross eyes and Astigmatism by our scientific methods.

BOSTON'S WINTER GARDEN.

Immense New Amusement Enterprise in Park Square Coliseum.

A great amusement enterprise of a type new to Boston will be opened to the public in the Park Square Coliseum Monday Nov. 16. It will be known as the Winter Garden. Although the features will be high class, they will be of popular character. A special effort will be made to cater to ladies and children, and the best of order will be maintained at all times. Sunday excepted, the garden will be open from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. daily.

The garden will retain the magnifient decorations, and with $5000 worth of modifications and improvements, the same electrical effects, as a setting for the various theatres, amusement features and fifty concessions of various kinds throughout the vast auditorum, and the ten-lap bicycle track that will encircle them.

Though it is yet too early to catalogue the imposing number of attractions that the garden—the largest indoor one in the world—will contain, it may be said that among them will be a one-ring circus, with the best of the big top and sawdust performers, a moving picture show that seats 1500, and Williard's famous $15,000 Temple of Music.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The season at Keith's Theatre is becoming notable for the large number of prominent theatrical and operatic stars that are heading the bills. Virginia Harned and Zelie de Lussan being followed by Thomas E. Shea, the tragedian. Mr. Shea has been for years one of the most popular actors appearing before the public, and few men have had a greater following. He will make his first vaudeville performances in Boston, November 16th, in a condensed version of "The Bells."

The surrounding bill will be equally strong, among the leading features being the Elinore Sisters, Kate Elinore, the girl with the green gloves. Rosina Casselli and her midget dogs are also on the bill.

A new feature will be "The Gainsboro Girl," a beautiful young woman with an act that is a decided novelty. Others are Barry and Wolford in a singing sketch; Chassino; the Zanettos. The bill will also include Sam Williams in a pianologue, Maybelle Perkins and the special Keiths show of moving picture, solos and current events.

BOSTON THEATRE.

Of the many successes of that brilliant playwright, Henry Arthur Jones, none have met with greater favor on this side of the water than "The Liars," which was first produced in this country by Mr. Frohman with a company headed by John Drew. It is one of those bright comedies with an endless chain of amusing situations that appeal to all classes, and at the same time teaches a lesson.

One of the best scenes of the play, is a dinner party which is arranged for the indiscrete wife and her lover, but which is so worked up that nearly all the characters in the piece are at the table, and all have difficulty in explaining their presence. The result is a succession of lies, that fully justifies the author in giving the piece its name. Altogether it is one of the very best comedies of recent years, one in which the Boston Theatre Stock Company will be seen to excellent advantage with Wilson Melrose and Miss Eleanor Gordon in the leading parts.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

Members and friends of the Union are again reminded to send contributions for the Thanksgiving box to Mrs. Tracy, 16 Mystic avenue before November 20.

Miss Elizabeth Gordon the new acting president of the State W. C. T. U. during the absence of Mrs. Katherine Lente Stevenson on her missionary tour of the world, is now busy at work formulating the work for the coming year. She is a sister of Miss Anne Gordon, long Francis E. Willard's right hand helper, and has been active in the work for years so is not taking up a new task. There has never been a year of greater encouragement for temperance advocates and Miss Gordon is full of enthusiasm.

Bishop Lawrence at the annual meeting of the Church Temperance Society at Trinity Church Boston spoke of the sad deterioration of the English race due to the excessive use of liquor, physical and mental degeneracy being very evident as well as increasing temperance sentiment among the thinking people there as elsewhere.

AN APPRECIATION.

Mrs. Angeletta Wilson Richardson wife of Rev. M. L. Richardson of Montague, Mass., died in Montague, Oct. 4. It was the end of a life of more than forty years of great usefulness in the world and the church. She was a woman of superior personality, of rare physical beauty and dignity, with a queenly deportment which commanded the respect and won the admiration of all who knew her. In early life, she was a teacher of tact and success. For several years she was Preceptress of the Academy in her native town, Litchfield, Maine. She was a "born teacher," and to the present time at the reunions of its students of fifty years ago, she is proudly remembered as "Queen Angeletta." As a pastor's wife for so many years, she was, in the fullest sense, "a helpmate," faithful, gentle, bright, loving and true, one who, by her natural gifts and culture, was qualified to fill and adorn any position to which she was called. In the responsibility, burdens, and sorrows of the home and the parish, she was a tower of strength.

She was buried in Sturbridge, where her husband was pastor for twenty-one years. The tears and tokens of esteem from the people among whom she had lived were a most delightful revelation of her place in their hearts. As one who, more than fifty years ago, had the delight of being one of her admiring pupils, and who, since then, has been permitted to enjoy her friendship, with quite the tenderness of a brother's and sister's affection, I place this little wreath of sweet memory and affection upon her grave.—Dr. Smith Baker, Lowell Mass., in "The Advance."

Rev. Mr. Richardson passed his youth in Winchester and is remembered by the older residents.

GEORGE S. HOLDEN.

Mr. George Silvester Holden, a well known resident of this town, passed away at a sanitarium in Westboro on Monday. Mr. Holden had been an invalid for three years and during the past two of which he had been away from home. On Friday of last week he had a shock of paralysis and it was seen that his death was but a matter of a few days. He was 51 years of age.

During his eight years of residence in town Mr. Holden made many friends. He was previously an active member of the Winchester Country and Boat Clubs, and the Calumet Club. He was born in Malden, his parents being Webster D. and Louisa (Silvester) Holden. In business he was associated with his brother, Charles P. Holden, in the sale of printing machinery. He leaves his wife, Ida D. and his brother.

Funeral services of a private nature were held at his late residence on Glen road Thursday afternoon at 2.30 conducted by Rev. Henry E. Hodge, pastor of the Baptist Church. The burial was in Wildwood cemetery.

CLANG OF THE CAR.

The following was clipped from the Boston Transcript of Nov. 7:

Dear Listener—Your graphic description in a recent issue, of "the blatant out, the startling incongruity" of Cambridge's otherwise restfully quiet condition can scarcely fail to have struck many responsive chords among the multitude of Boston's suburbanites. These have, indeed, only too many opportunities of studying the deafening roar of electric street cars, a remarkable feature of the situation being that the evil is frequently acute along semi-rural roads, free from the aggravating reverberation due to tall and continuous buildings on either side.

The present writer was strongly impressed by that part of your contributor's notes in which he depicted the idea of imminent invasion of the observer's domicile by passing cars—imagination becoming too powerful for reason in spite of long habituation to successive cacophonus visitations. The same sense of impending final disaster oppresses the one as the other, and were the matter in any respect a joke, the unfailing recurrence of the impression would not be without its ludicrous side. There are, of course, variations in the intensity of the horror, just as cars are lightly or heavily loaded, as speed is high or low or as roadbed and car equipment deviate more or less from the standard of perfection attainable in every-day operation. But the general effect is alway the same, a marked feature being the total or proximate obliteration of the trolley's cheerful crescendo and its hopeless subordination to the nerve-racking and peace-destroying roar and clang of the car.

If one may discuss causes and remedies in the same breath, it may be said that while defective roadbeds are the most obvious among the former, it may still be doubted whether alleviation is to be sought mainly along that line—no pun being intended. It would manifestly be unreasonable to exact from suburban companies, some of them maintaining with difficulty an unstable financial equilibrium, any approach to such a type of track as is being placed on the surface of Washington street, Boston. But this is an added reason for attaching greater importance to the construction and equipment of the cars, and especially to such points as those emphasized by The Listener in his references to the New York ordinances applying to traffic noises.

Apart from such obvious remedies as securing a more frequent and effective overhauling of the motor mechanism of each car, the writer ventures to inquire whether the experiment of hanging a continuous apron of canvas, enclosing the entire space below the car floor, has ever been tried as a means of confining a large part of the irreducible minimum of noise to the precincts of the car itself. Far more important, however, is the need for interested local authorities to attach more stringent conditions to the renewal of franchises as these approach their termination. As essential preliminary hereto is the collection, by each town and city, of information as to what is being done elsewhere in a matter vitally effecting the comfort of citizens and the value of real estate. VIATOR.

Winchester, Nov. 6, 1908.

CHAMBER CONCERT.

Friday evening Nov. 6th, a large and enthusiastic audience, gathered in Lyceum Hall to hear a most enjoyable Chamber Concert. The occasion was the first appearance in Winchester of Mrs. Jessie Hatch Symonds, violinist, who is one of Mr. Loeffler's most talented pupils. Mrs. Symonds' finished technique, and rare artistic ability, have made her well known in many cities. She was assisted by Miss Edith Thompson, pianist and Mr. Earl Cartwright, baritone. The concert was opened with the Greig Sonate opus 13 which was rendered by Mrs. Symonds and Miss Thompson in a truly musical manner. In the Bruch Concerto and in her other numbers Mrs. Symonds played with great breadth and beauty of tone, as well as warmth of temperament.

The Barcarolle No. 4 and Valse Caprice by Rubenstien were played by Miss Thompson in a thoroughly charming way; and as an encore she gave an exquisite cradle song by Hiller. A feature of the program was the delightful rendering of two groups of songs by Mr. Earl Cartwright who possesses a magnificent baritone voice: He was ably accompanied by Mr. J. Arthur Colburn. The concert was so successful that many of those present are hoping for the pleasure of hearing these artists again. The following was the program given:

It has been decided by the District Commissioners of Washington to break up the strict isolation of John R. Early, the leper, and permit him to live with his family in a small brick house near the Washington workhouse grounds. He will be under the same roof with his family, but it will be so arranged that they can live entirely apart. "If this is done, the welfare of the public and of Early and his family will be duly safeguarded," declared Health Officer Woodward, "and Early can cease to be a dependant on the District and can support himself and his wife and child from his pension money, which is $72 a month." Mr. Early, it will be remembered, for a time lived in Winchester, being married here.

Gompers and the Labor Vote.

Mr. Gompers is now trying to make good with labor organizations for his attempt to deliver the labor vote to Bryan. Organized labor is one thing, but when any officer of that organization thinks he can swing it into politics he will find that he has made a big mistake. No doubt Mr. Gompers has now come to that conclusion.

Praises Cannon.

Congressman McCall as the guest of the Beacon Club at its dinner last Saturday handsomely praised Speaker Cannon for his work in Congress. The Speaker is the creature of the House of Representatives, and if its members did not believe in him they would not elect him to that important office. If he is a Czar, as some newspapers claim, Congressman McCall would be among the first to denounce him.

Col. Benton at the dinner introduced Mr. McCall as New England's greatest congressman, and he would begin work Tuesday as a member of the ways and means committee of Congress on a revision of the tariff, and that as an able New Englander he might be expected to look well after the interests of this section.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES.

It is very gratifying to note that the special efforts to raise money by the Ladies' Aid Society and Epworth League have been very successful this fall. Aside from the monetary consideration, the "Old Maid's Convention," which was held last week produced a wonderfully good feeling among the young people. When the mass of the people stand together, success attends any of their undertakings. These smaller successes lead up now to the greatest effort of the year by the entire church and their friends, led by the Ladies' Aid. "What can I do to make the fair a success?" First, fill your mind with the plans. Knowledge is power. Ask each one with whom you speak, if they are going to the fair. Tell them where you will meet them and the time. Perhaps just inside the door would do. The very least you can do is to be enthusiastic.

"Savonarola," the fourth in a series of five Sunday evening lectures given by the pastor, was uplifting to both mind and heart, and those who have attended these lectures return to their homes well satisfied with their effort. One must be fed in order to grow. We hope that the increasing attendance at these lectures will encourage the pastor to undertake still another series. Next Sunday evening is the last. Subject, "Joan of Arc." Let us fill the vestry.

The Methodist Church and friends are pleased to learn of the steady advance and popularity of Miss Jean MacLellan and Mr. Henry Buell, whose latest success in the First Baptist Church in Beverly, is recorded in the Beverly Times as follows:

The new quartette has already received very favorable criticism, and it would be difficult indeed to find many voices blending in such perfect harmony. Miss MacLellan, the soprano, is already well known in the musical world about Greater Boston as a remarkably sweet singer, while the other members of the quartette are favorably received whenever they sing.

P. E. Langeley, Tufts '12—has been inniated into the Alpha Omicron Pi.

PLEASING RECITAL.

The Lewis piano duet recital last Monday evening in Woburn Unitarian Vestry was attended by invited guests and other music lovers from Winchester and Woburn. The former being much delayed by cars, the music was deterred until their arrival. In the interim, Mr. Lewis gave an explanatory historical and analytical talk about the program and the composers.

The duets displayed a wide variety in effect, two being transcriptions of famous orchestral masterpieces. The Grieg selections, peculiarly colored by frequent use of the minor mode, exhibited characteristic melody and rhythm. The audience was delighted by Gottschalk's hymn tune like harmonies and brilliant but dainty embelishments. Mrs. Jackson's artistic and effective rendering of various songs gave great pleasure.

CORRECTION.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Kindly correct a few typographical errors in last week's article entitled "Winchester Common and Village Square."

Edward Converse will is dated 1659, not 1636. He willed that the common land should "ly open for perpetuity," not perpetuality.

Present Church street is the oldest laid out street in Winchester according to the record. It was laid out as "Driver's Lane" from the "King's Ford to Playne street" (not Plain street) in 1646, not 1846.

W. H. S. NOTES.

Sunday morning at a meeting of the Athletic association, it was voted that the association should have another office added to its staff called assistant secretary. His duty is to keep a record of all athletic contests, the contestants, and the names of those who win the insignia. Edmund Cottle was elected to fill the new office. John Sheriden was elected captain of the track team.

At a meeting Monday morning of the class of 1909 Russell Keehn, Joan Newell and Ralph Cowdry were elected to be the senior representatives of the play committee. On the same day 1910 elected Emma Farnsworth, Eleanor Briggs and Theodore Main as the Junior members of the committee.

Mr. Hall of Fenwick road has very kindly consented to coach the class plays.

Friday afternoon on Manchester Field Winchester High plays Chelsea High.

WINCHESTER, Mass., Nov. 4, 1908.

TO THE BOARD OF SELECTMEN OF THE TOWN OF WINCHESTER:

RESPECTFELLY REPRESENT the undersigned that they are desirious of laying out and constructing a street or way over land owned by them in said Town of Winchester, said proposed road or way running from Sheffield Road to Everett Avenue, in accordance with the plans thereof submitted herewith.

WHEREFORE they ask that said plans may be approved by your Board acting as a Board of Survey under and in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 191 of the Acts of the year 1907.

FRANK L. RIPLEY,
FREELAND E. HOVEY.

IN BOARD OF SELECTMEN OF TOWN OF WINCHESTER.

Nov. 9, 1908.

Upon the foregoing petition it is ORDERED that a public hearing be given at the office of said Board on Monday, the twenty-third day of November, 1908, at eight o'clock in the afternoon, notice of said hearing to be published in the Winchester Star for two weeks preceding said hearing in accordance with the requirements of the Acts of 1907, Chapter 191.

By order of the Board of Selectmen of Winchester,

A true copy.

ATTEST:

GEORGE H. LOCHMAN, Clerk.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

MIDDLESEX, ss.

PROBATE COURT.

To the devisees, legatees, and all other persons interested in the estate of Jacob C. Stanton, late of Winchester, in said County, deceased, testate:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court to grant a letter of administration with the will annexed, on the estate of said deceased not already administered, to Henry P. Ayer of Newton in the County of Middlesex, without requiring sureties on his bond, or to some other suitable person.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Cambridge, in said County of Middlesex, on the thirtie h day of November, A. D. 1908, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Winchester Star, a newspaper published in Winchester, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court, and by mailing post-paid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all devisees and legatees named in said will, seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, CHARLES J. McINTIRE, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this twelfth day of November, in the year one thousand nine hundred and eight.

THE FORTNIGHTLY.

"Original Magazine" Provides a Delightful Afternoon.

A delightful and varied program was offered for the "Original Magazine" at The Fortnightly, November ninth.

The Managing Editor, Mrs. Mabel G. Nichols, made a few happy introductory remarks, and then Miss Carolyn D. Nutt sang, in a sweet, girlish voice, a charming song, "My Jacqueminot," and responded to an encore with a tender Scotch song.

No. 1 of the Magazine was an editorial by Mrs. Carrie F. Wheeler, and it contained many searching truths, and rang with earnestness. Mrs. Wheeler accentuated the need of fellowship in the club, the dropping-off of the trivial, the cultivation of vital force as the keynote of success, and she quoted the words, "not what you give, but what you share," as typifying the true club spirit.

No. 2 was entitled "A Vacation Experience," by Mrs. Delia R. Hall, and it carried us from the little red school-house of youth to Brussels, and out to the field of Waterloo, and told many interesting things.

No. 3, "Lines to a Bone from Waterloo," by Mrs. Fannie L. Parker, was a clever bit of rhyme delightfully read by Mrs. Stella Root.

No. 4, a story, "The Vindication of a Club Woman," by Mrs. Susan W. Dwight, was a playful satire on the former primitive view of club life, and on a rural mothers' meeting conducted by spinsters. The conversion of the community through the influence of a strong, womanly clubwoman was brightly told.

No. 5, "The Quebec Tercentenary," by Mrs. Wegia H. Tracy, was a masterly paper, written as only an eye-witness, with the trained "pen of a ready writer" could write. It is impossible to reproduce here the wealth of detail given by Mrs. Tracy, who said the pageant was the finest ever given on this continent. The final ceremonies, from the chimes of the Basilica, calling the faithful to prayer, the celebration of the mass on the Plains of Abraham, the ball, the gardens of the Bishop's palace open for the first time in a hundred years, and the singing of "God Save the King," all beggared description.

No. 6, "Our Vacation Playroom," by Mrs. Grace Stone, told of the progress in the work of the school, and appealed to all who have the welfare of the poor children at heart.

Miss Nutt then sang a plaintive "Irish Love Song," and was warmly applauded.

No. 7, "Women's Clubs in Mexico," by Mrs. Katherine W. Herron, carried us far from the New England atmosphere, into the beautiful climate of some cities of Mexico, where clubs of all kinds, but the Woman's Club, per se, seem to abound. Mrs. Herron spoke sympathetically of conditions that exist, and said that soon the Mexican will have her club, like the American, for after all, the same ambitions inspire al women.

No 8, "Side Lights on the Biennial," by Dr. Adeline B. Church, was an amusing talk on some aspects of the Federation, with an eulogy of Mrs. Decker.

No. 10, and last, "Puzzle Page," by Mrs. Eugenia E. Young, was a humorous account of her experiences as a "Baggage" assistant in the recent biennial, with stories and anecdotes interspersed.

Altogether the program was unusually enjoyable, and sincere thanks are due Mrs. Mabel Nichols, Managing Editor.

At a meeting of The Fortnightly last Monday the minutes of the last meeting were read and the names of applicants who have been voted in, were read and placed on the waiting list. All ladies wishing to join a class in cooking or embroidery are requested to send in their names at once.

Mention was made of the Vincent lectures Nov. 18 and Dec. 2.

It was announced that Mrs. Harriet B. Wills has been made an Hononary members of The Fortnightly. The club owes much to this lady, whose musical ability is well known and who has always given willingly and generously of her time and talent whenever she has been asked to help.

Mrs. Mary A. Blaisdell read a very interesting report of the State Federation meeting at Bridgewater to which she was a delegate.

It was voted "to make the next meeting Nov. 23, an open meeting, with tickets at 50c each for all except club members." Because of a slight technicality, this vote is cancelled.

This meeting will not be open to the public, but any member of the club who wishes to bring a guest to hear Marshall Darrach, on that afternoon, can do so by paying the customary fee.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

November 9th, 1908.

Board met at 7.30 p. m. All present.

Voted to grant an auctioneer's license to John T. Cosgrove for one year on payment of the usual fee of $2.

Received letter from Alfred Clarke expressing appreciation of light placed on Sheffield road near Church street. Placed on file.

Received report from Chief of Police for month of October, together with list of defective lights. Placed on file.

On request of Blank Bros. for concrete sidewalk on Park avenue, it was voted to do nothing until next spring, in order that sidewalk just built may properly settle.

Voted to request the committee of five on electric lighting to meet with the Selectmen on Wednesday evening, November 18th, next, at 7.30.

Signed petition of Edison Company for relocation of one pole on Everett avenue.

Warrants drawn for $1589.03 and $910.71.

Adjourned at 9.45 p. m.

G. H. LOCHMAN, Clerk.

A VISIT TO THE HOME.

A number of the ladies of the Bethany society took their work and paid a visit Thursday to the Home for Aged People. Each guest carried a box of good things for lunch and plenty extra to leave at the Home. Mrs. Whitford, the matron, entered into the spirit of the occasion and had decorated the dining-room and table in a very pretty and cheerful manner. Mrs. Rice, president of the society, presided at the dinner, which was the most important feature of the day, and had a pleasant surprise for each of the members of the Home, in the form of a pie with a white satin streamer reaching to each plate, and as the ribbon was pulled, it brought forth a box containing a flag, teddy bear and box of sweets. This made lots of merriment for all.

Mrs. Louis Claflin and Mrs. Henry Smalley read selections appropriate to the occasion and Mrs. Rice made a pleasant speech. The ladies parted at an early hour and were earnestly solicited to come again soon. About twenty attended.

SPECIAL LAMPS FREE

Edison customers can now get the special Round Bulb or Tubular-shaped Incandescent Electric Lamps FREE in exchange for other lamps.

This puts these lamps on the same basis as the ordinary lamps we have so long given free.

The excess exchange charge was Round Bulbs—5 cents; Tubular Lamps—10 cents. NOW they are FREE.

These lamps are not as economical as the common lamps—much less so than the Tungsten lamps.

They are good, however, for special purposes,—decorations, etc.

THE EDISON ELECTRIC ILLUMINATING COMPANY

Oxford 3300, Collect 39 Boylston Street, Boston

Jackson & Co

ESTABLISHED 1854.

In selecting furs about which your personal knowledge is necessarily limited it is always safest to purchase from a responsible dealer who has a reputation earned by years of testing to maintain, and who does not desire and cannot afford to treat you unfairly.

For nearly fifty years we have been established in Boston as manufacturers of High Grade Furs, collecting the skins from all over the world and making them into every conceivable kind of fur attire.

This long experience in satisfying the needs of the most discriminating persons, has taught us how to give the largest possible value for every dollar expended with us.

All of our garments are fashioned after the latest Paris and London styles and are guaranteed in every respect to give perfect satisfaction, and to be superior to other fur garments when price, quality and workmanship are considered.

This is why shrewd fur buyers prefer to deal with a long established house whose entire business is centered in one location and whose workrooms are always open to inspection.

All we ask is for you to call and then decide where to purchase.

WINTER BOWLING TOURNAMENT.

The games of the week in the Winter tournament at the Calumet club have resulted in Team I still holding first place although by dropping one point in a tie with Team F it gives Team K a chance to catch it by a win of four straight. The high single was again raised, this time by Barrett, who rolled 125 with a total of 315, the latter giving him high total with handicap.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

Geo. Adams Woods has sold for the Newton Centre Savings Bank the 14-room house and 12,000 feet of land on the corner of the Mystic Valley Parkway and Lloyd street, formerly owned and occupied by the late Howard T. Dickson, to James H. Pickering who is to make extensive alterations and who buys for investment.

Through the same office, Mr. Charles Mills has rented his 12-room house at 8 Euclid avenue to John Campbell of the Edison Company.

The same broker has agreements signed for the sale of two lots on Sheffield road for Ripley & Hovey, the names of the purchasers being withheld until papers are passed.

Geo. Adams Woods has sold for Mrs. Lillie Henderson lot 7 on Everett avenue near the corner of Cambridge street and containing 18,630 square feet.

Mrs. Henderson has bought under same agreement 9 room house and 9304 square feet of land at 93 Cambridge street of C. H. Lewis, and will occupy it.

43rd ANNUAL MEETING.

The 43rd annual meeting of the Winchester Unitarian Society was held at the church last evening. EVERETT 28 WINCHESTER 5

Everett High defeated Winchester High on Glendale Park, Everett, last Thursday afternoon, by the score of 28 to 5. Brickley, the all interscholastic halfback for the past two years spoiled Winchester's chances for the victory by his long runs for touchdowns which kind of took the life right out of the Winchester team. The Winchester line held like a wall and Brickley was the only man who could gain anything and most of those were end runs. The second half Winchester rushed the ball through their heavy opponents the whole length of the field twice and were then penalized on Everett's five yard line which spoiled all chances for a touchdown. Everett scored only during the second half and that was on a long forward pass. Brickley excelled for Everett while Sharon did some fine line bucking and Hurd played a good game for Winchester, running his team in fine style.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

College life is always attractive to the outsider, and it is for that reason that "Brown of Harvard" has won such a success on the stage. It will be given next week at the Castle Square by the John Craig Stock Company, and it promises to attract both who know well the life at the college on the Charles, and those who have heard much about it.

The stage settings will show pictorially the attractive scenes in and around Harvard, and there will be a cast selected under William Parker's direction to do the play full justice. In the title role Donald Meek will appear, and in the other roles will be included Mr. Friebus as Gerald Thorne, Mr. Evarts as "Bud" Hall, Mr. Hassell as Claxton Madden, Miss Cleveland as Marion Thorne, Miss Colcord as Mrs. Kenyon, Miss Tallman as Edith Sinclair and Miss Mary Young as Evelyn Kenyon.

For the benefit of our customers we have installed one of the new Carter's public fountain pen fillers. Come in and have your pen filled free with the best Carter's ink. Wilson the Stationer. tf

COLONIAL THEATRE.

That admirable actor, Otis Skinner, has achieved a very genuine and emphatic success with his new play, "The Honor of the Family," at the beautiful Colonial Theatre in Boston, where he is attracting large and fashionable audiences. Mr. Skinner's success is all the more gratifying because it has been honestly earned. No actor before the public is more sincerely devoted to his art and more painstaking in perfecting every detail of his production.

Not only is "The Honor of the Family" admirable in respect to the work of the star, but all of the companion players in the supporting company contribute to an even and harmonious representation. Albert Garcia Andrews, who was for fifteen years prominent in the support of Richard Mansfield, gives a most graphic study of the sexagenarian celibate. Miss Percy Haswell is the leading woman in Mr. Skinner's organization this season.

There will be a special Thanksgiving Day matinee at the Colonial.

Mortgagees' Sale of Real Estate.

INSIDE A SUBMARINE

You Are Greeted by a Deafening, Ear Splitting Racket.

WORSE THAN A BOILER SHOP.

To Make Yourself Heard at All You Must Shout Into the Ear of a Companion—The Economy of Space and the Simplicity of Arrangements.

Climbing down ten rungs of an iron ladder into the interior of a submarine is like going into a boiler shop where there is one continuous, deafening, ear splitting racket like a dozen trip hammers chattering a tattoo amid a grind and rumble and thump of machinery as if especially designed to burst your eardrums.

At first the noise in that narrowly confined space is painful and bewildering. To make yourself at all heard you must shout into the ear of a companion. So intense is the strain, says a writer in St. Nicholas, that you marvel how day in and day out human ears can withstand the ordeal.

You find yourself inside what seems an enormous steel cigar painted a neat pearl gray, a color which is serviceable and does not dazzle the eye. Light comes to you partly through portholes and in part from incandescent lamps placed fore and aft in the darker parts of the hull.

You have expected, of course, to land in a tangle of whirling machinery that fills the inside of the boat from stem to stern, threatening with every revolution to take an arm or a leg off. Instead the first thing you see is an uninterrupted "working space," or deck, measuring 7 by 25 or 30 feet.

At the stern, far in the background, are the machines and engines. In fact this section of the vessel is nothing but machinery, a rumbling mass of silvery steel and glittering brass revolving at the rate of 500 times a minute, so compact that you wonder how the various parts can turn without conflicting or how it is possible for human hands to squeeze through the maze to oil the machinery.

But this economy of space is as nothing to what you will see. The floor you stand on is a cover for the cells of the storage batteries wherein is pent up the electricity with which your boat will propel herself when she runs submerged. The walls amidships and the space in the bow are gigantic ballast tanks to be filled with water that will. These are tool boxes and hinged bunks for the crew to sleep in.

The four torpedoes, measuring sixteen feet three inches long, eighteen inches in diameter and weighing 1,500 pounds each, are lashed end for end in pairs at either side, and directly over these are tool boxes and hinged bunks for the crew to sleep in.

The very air which is taken along to keep life in you in case the boat should be detained beneath the surface longer than usual is compressed in a steel cylinder 2,000 pounds per square inch, a pressure so intense that were the cylinder to spring a leak no larger than a pin hole and were the tiny stream of escaping air to strike a human being it would penetrate him through and through and drill a hole through an inch thick board behind him.

And yet everything about the interior arrangements of this boat is so simple that you can see at a glance its purpose. Away forward, where the tip of the cigar comes to a point, are the two torpedo tubes out of which the gunner will send his deadly projectiles seething beneath the waters at the rate of 35 knots an hour against an unsuspecting hull.

Directly under the conning tower is a platform, three feet square and elevated three feet from the deck, upon which the captain stands, head and shoulders extending into the tower, so that while at his post he is visible to the crew only from the waist line down, and at the feet of the captain and on a level with his platform is stationed another of the officers, in charge of the wheel that controls the diving rudders and the gauges that register the angle of ascent and decline and show how deep the boat is down.

The two officers are in personal communication, so that in case of heart disease or other mishap either can jump to the other man's place.

Time to Wake.

Judge Wheaton A. Gray was once harangue by the prosecuting counsel on a warm day at the end of a long harangue by the prosecuting counsel he noticed one of the jurymen asleep. As soon as the argument was completed the judge addressed the jury in this peculiar manner: "Gentlemen of the jury, the prosecuting attorney has completed his argument. Wake up and listen to the instructions of the court."—San Francisco Argonaut.

One Was Enough.

"Dad," said the white faced lad, "how many cigars does it take to hurt a boy?"

"How many have you smoked?"

"One."

"That's the number," said dad, and, taking down the strap from behind the door, he soon convinced the boy that he was right.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Common.

"They are quite ordinary people, aren't they?"

"Yes—keep their engagements, eat plain food, pay their bills and all that sort of thing."—Life.

The world has not yet learned the riches of frugality.—Cicero.

STATE RAILWAYS IN JAPAN.

Loss of Taxes and Poor Service Cause Public Dissatisfaction.

A special correspondent of the New York Evening Post writes from Tokyo in regard to the railways, which are now practically all in the hands of the state. The official report for 1907 shows that the receipts exceeded the operating expenses by only 17,230,786 yen. As the interest on the bonds is 24,000,000 yen this means a net loss for the year of nearly 7,000,000 yen ($3,500,000). To this loss must also be added the loss of taxes to the amount of 5,500,000 yen formerly paid by the railroad companies. The writer continues:

"At present the various municipalities that formerly were accustomed to depend largely for revenue on the taxes received from railways are suddenly deprived of this source of income and find themselves in rather straitened circumstances. Not unnaturally these are agitating the proposal that the authorities should allow them to levy local taxes especially on railway stations, but it appears altogether unlikely that the government will acquiesce in the proposition.

"Moreover, the authorities are charged with a lamentable lack of official capacity in the management of the railways. There are too many officials and too much red tape. Cars are said to be neither so clean nor so comfortable as under the regime of the private companies. There are constant complaints that the trains do not run on time and that no one assumes any responsibility therefor. Accidents, too, are alarmingly on the increase. Ticket agents refuse to furnish change, the applicant being referred to a money changer outside, an official who charges a snug percentage for breaking a note.

"More serious still, large quantities of freight are piling up all along the lines, and merchants as well as shippers generally are put to needless loss and inconvenience. The government is accused of mixing up the railway accounts with the national budget in such a manner that the public cannot follow the financial progress of the enterprise. During the last session of the diet an extensively signed petition was presented to that body from the leading men of the nation praying that the railway accounts be kept separate from the national budget, after the manner of a private corporation. The government, however, has shown no disposition to put itself in the light of a private railway company responsible for profit and loss to interested stockholders."

The Shadow of Socialism.

The tendency of municipal ownership to extend beyond the field of public utilities into the realm of ordinary business is illustrated by protests from widely separated localities.

In Seattle a dealer in electrical supplies has filed a petition asking that the city be restrained from competing with him, alleging that the sale or lease by the city of fixtures and other materials is not permitted by its charter. He holds that the competition is unfair because the city makes no profit on its transactions.

In Leeds, England, the Master Builders' association has made a report advocating the abolition of the city works department, in which it submits that "the true interests of the workmen are not advanced and that municipal trading of this character is most unfair to private traders, that its continuance is against public policy, and last, but not least, that it is indefensible on financial grounds."

Municipal ownership in England has already driven hundreds of private firms out of business, and the people are awakening to the fact that further extension of municipal trading means socialism pure and simple.

City Forbids Gas Stoves.

President Foote of the Morristown (N. J.) Gas company is again trying to persuade the common council of Madison to grant his company the right to distribute gas there. Madison adjoins Morristown directly to the east. It has been a long struggle to get this permission, for such has been asked for, to the writer's knowledge, for twenty years. The scheme was always nonsuited, the objection being that Madison owns a municipally operated electric lighting plant. The last attempt, however, seems to have a fair chance of success, since Mr. Foote and associates are willing to agree that gas shall only be used for heating, cooking and power purposes.—American Gas Light Journal.

The gas company would have got its franchise long ago if the electric plant had been owned by a company instead of by the city. Think of a place where a city monopoly deprives all the women of modern appliances for cooking!

A False Premise.

Advocates of municipal ownership point to the high character of the governing bodies of British cities as a proof that municipal ownership draws men of standing into public life and purifies city government. The fact is just the reverse. The best men in British cities were in their councils before municipal ownership was undertaken to any considerable extent, while the later tendency has been to eliminate such men partly because they cannot afford the time necessary to the proper management of such undertakings and partly because they are opposed for re-election by their subordinates.

Not Exempt From Taxation.

The supreme court of Vermont has just decided that a municipal lighting plant that furnishes commercial service or that supplies street lights to another town is not exempt from taxation. This decision is in line with those of other states.

THE PARTING OF LAUNCELOT AND GUINEVERE.

INTO a high walled nunnery had fled
Queen Guinevere, amid the shade to weep
And to repent mid solemn boughs and love
The cold globe of the moon, but now as she Meekly the scarcely breathing garden walked
She saw and stood and swooned at Launcelot.
Who burned in sudden steel like a blue flame
Amid the cloister Then, when she revived,
He came and looked on her. In the dark place
So pale her beauty was, the sweetness such,
That he half closed his eyes and deeply breathed.
And as he gazed there came into his mind
That night of May, with pulsing stars, the strange
Perfumed darkness and delicious guilt
In silent hour, but at the last he said,
"Suffer me, lady, but to kiss thy lips
Once and to go away forevermore."
But she replied. "Nay, I beseech thee go!
Sweet were those kisses in the deep of night,
But from those kisses is this ruin come.
Sweet was thy touch, but now I wail at it.
And I have hope to see the face of Christ.
Many are saints in heaven who sinned as I."
Then said he, "Since it is thy will I go."
But those who stood around could scarce endure
To see the dolor of these two, for he
Swooned in his burning armor to her face,
And both cried out as at the touch of spears
And as two trees at midnight when the breeze
Comes over them now to each other bend
And now withdraw, so mournfully these two
Still drooped together and still drew apart.
Then like one dead her ladies bore away
The heavy queen, and Launcelot went out
And through a forest weeping rode all night.

THE LANGUAGE PUZZLE.

China's Forty Thousand Signs and Symbols to Perplex the Linguist.

The language known as Wen-li is the medium by which the classical books of China have been handed down. It is par excellence the written language of China, but it is not generally understood by the great mass of the people. The spoken language—namely, Mandarin—may also be written, and there is a good deal of colloquial literature in Mandarin. Versions of the Bible in the local patois have also been produced in several districts of the southwest, where the dialects are very numerous and diverse.

In the Chinese written language there are over 40,000 distinct characters or symbols, and this vast number is being constantly increased by the addition of new characters to represent new scientific words and modern ideas.

Although the Chinese are considered a literary people and have naturally a desire for education, yet owing to the extreme difficulty of mastering the Chinese characters it is estimated that only one in ten of the population can read or write.—Contemporary Review.

Storm Talk.

"Shipwreck affects people in odd ways," said the captain, beaming brightly on the two rows of ladies at his table in the saloon.

The wind roared, a great wave shook the boat, and a matron, with a low cry, received a plate of hot soup in her lap.

"An Indian colonel," the captain resumed, "rushed to the bathroom when his boat sprung aleak and drowned himself in the tub out of sheer terror.

"There was an Anglo-Indian actor who broke a pretty girl's leg by hurling his heavy cabin trunk down into the lifeboat on her. Of course we slung the trunk overboard at once, but there was the broken leg, not so easy to get rid of.

"Some men in a wreck proceed to get drunk. They think if they secretly drink a lot they'll appear very game. The result is that when the rescuing party arrives these men are lying paralyzed about the deck."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portions of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

HOUSE WORK

Thousands of American women in our homes are daily sacrificing their lives to duty.

In order to keep the home neat and pretty, the children well dressed and tidy, women overdo. A female weakness or displacement is often brought on and they suffer in silence, drifting along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have help to overcome the pains and aches which daily make life a burden.

It is to these faithful women that comes as a boon and a blessing, as it did to Mrs. F. Ellsworth, of Mayville, N. Y., and to Mrs. W. P. Boyd, of Beaver Falls, Pa., who say:

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

"I was not able to do my own work, owing to the female trouble from which I suffered. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me wonderfully, and I am so well that I can do as big a day's work as I ever did. I wish every sick woman would try it.

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate.

By virtue and in execution of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Gardner W. Spencer to Winthrop Pattee dated March 1st, 1903, and recorded with Middlesex (South District) Deeds, Book 3332, Page 425, and for breach of the conditions therein contained and for the purpose of foreclosing the same will be sold at public auction upon the premises described in said mortgage on all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed and therein substantially described as follows:

MONDAY, the 30th day of November, 1908, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon,

A certain lot of land with the buildings thereon, situated in the Town of Winchester, Massachusetts, being No. 8 1-2 on a plan of land in Winchester, Mass., belonging to F. L. Ferguson, Ernest Bowditch, Engineer, dated October 14th, 1901, and bounded and described as follows: Commencing on Maxwell Road at the Northwesterly corner of the granted premises; thence running Southeasterly on lot No. 8 on said plan one hundred (100) feet; thence continuing on in the same line and on that part of lot No. 10 on said plan which is not herein conveyed, six (6) feet; thence running Southwesterly on those parts of lots Nos. 10 and 9 on said plan which are not herein conveyed, seventy-four (74) feet to Maxwell Road; thence running Northwesterly on said Maxwell Road four and 1-10 (4.1) feet to said lot No. 8 1-2 on said plan; thence continuing on on the same straight line on said Maxwell Road fifty-seven and 9-10 (57.9) feet to a point as shown on said plan; thence first in a general Northwesterly direction and then in a general northerly direction on a curved line as shown on said plan fifty-nine and 62 100 (59.62) feet to the point of beginning, and containing 4,619 square feet, more or less. Said granted premises comprise lot 8 1-2 and also a strip of land as shown on said plan on the Southeasterly side of said lot above described, said strip being a part of lots 9 and 10 and taken therefrom and added to said lot No. 8 1-2. Said lots 8 1-2, 9 and 10 are also the same as shown on said plan and are the same premises as were conveyed to me by Albert E. Pond by his deed dated March 1st, 1903, recorded with Middlesex (South District) Deeds, Book 3395, Page 345.

Said premises will be sold subject to a prior mortgage of $3000 and subject to all unpaid interest, taxes and assessments. $100 required at time of sale, balance in ten days.

IS TRADE DULL?
Try an advertisement in the STAR

The Ear of the business and social world is attuned to the sound of the "Bell."

If you would command the world's attention—RING!

"Be Sure You're Right, etc."

Ever notice what queer pranks in transposing figures your mind will play?

Take three numbers—1468, 1546, 6428, for example. Now dismiss them from your mind for a minute and then try to recall them.

How easily you wonder whether it wasn't "1648," or "1456" or "6248!"

That's one reason why telephone subscribers are asked to consult the directory before giving a number—because this peculiar psychological trait is almost certain to lead to "wrong number" calls.

Such calls are not merely an annoyance but an economic waste. They abuse the patience of the person thus needlessly disturbed: they consume (instead of save) the time of the caller: and they burden the Telephone Company with a double operating expense.

Another reason why the directory should be consulted is found in the fact that telephone numbers occasionally are changed.

If you take pains to ascertain the correct number desired, and then pronounce it distinctly, in 999 instances out of 1000 you will get the correct connection.

The New England Telephone and Telegraph Company is one link in the chain of the great "Bell System," and in the states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts is connected with 300,000 telephones.

Legitimate Realty Investments Versus "Sure Things"

A "sure thing," an "inside tip," has ruined more men than almost anything else. A man committed suicide in New York not long ago because he lost everything on an "inside tip." He thought he was going to make a big fortune: but, instead of that, the stock he bought went down, his margins were completely wiped out, and he found himself penniless.—Orison Swett Marden in "Success" Magazine.

FROM THE FILES OF THE FORTNIGHTLY.

No 3

A question that agitated the Club at this and at previous times, as it has ever been a present and insistent problem, was that of a local habitation. Nothing has ever been felt to be in the least adequate to the needs of The Fortnightly. At the time of the building of the Calumet Club House a committee of The Fortnightly was appointed for the purpose of conference with the men's club in the endeavor to arrive at some agreement for mutual advantage, but nothing came of it. The Baptist and Methodist vestries were in turn suggested but no arrangement could be entered into. During the administration of Mrs. Wilson, the 5th president, a building fund was started, in the hope of being able to add to it materially as the needs of the club should point to the desirability of a club home of its own, however modest.

MARY STONE GREGORY
Fourth President of The Fortnightly.

While Mrs. Punchard, the sixth president, occupied the chair, in 1897, began the agitation in favor of a Vacation Playroom, which resulted in the Club appropriating $50 "to furnish a Vacation Playroom for the younger children of the town." Mrs. Dorsey and Mrs. Barta had the matter in charge and arranged an "International Doll Exhibition," which added very materially to the funds available for the purpose. This cause has never been abandoned and recent years have proven even more successful than in earlier days, as experience has taught what to do and what to leave undone. Mrs. Dorsey's interest and help has from the first been invaluable, and has shown no variableness or diminution in any way. To her consistent loyalty to this cause much of its success has been due Mrs. Stone has been actively interested in the work for the past three years and has given most generously of her time and strength towards making the Playroom a success.

We are again glad to note that in 1898 a special meeting of The Fortnightly was called in the G. A. R. Hall to consider the subject of "District Nursing" with a view to establishing such a system in our town. The following program was offered: "District Nursing as done from the Waltham Hospital," Dr. Alfred Worcester; "The Chicago Visiting Nurse Association," Mrs. W. P. Conger; "District Nursing from a Nurse's Point of View," Miss I. L. Strong; "The Boston Instructive Nursing Association," Miss Emily G. Denny; "The Newton District Nursing Association," Mrs. M. F. Coolidge. Remarks were made by Dr. Houghton, Dr. A. B. Church, Mrs. Dorsey and Miss Richards showing the need of such nurses in Winchester.

This meeting resulted in the formation of the Visiting Nurse Association which has since maintained itself as an independent organization and of whose splendid work Winchester is so justly proud.

In 1899 Mrs. Electa Sherman became The Fortnightly's seventh president. On March 19th, an interesting meeting of The Fortnightly was held to consider the proprosed action of the town in abolishing kindergarten and manual training from the public schools. There were about 150 women present, and discussion was most earnest as to the desirability of these branches in the educational system of our town.

Organization as a potent means of upholding and sustaining the school system was urged upon all those present. A number of ladies testified to the benefits of kindergarten teaching. Statements were made that boys and girls so educated became better men and women through the upbuilding of character, that crime was less manifest in the communities where it is taught, it made a foundation and built up self-control. Sewing, cooking and sloyd were also urged upon these grounds. Among the speakers were Mrs. Dorsey, Mrs. Harrison Parker, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. C. E. Corey, Mrs. Blaisdell, Dr. Adaline Church, Mr. James Nowell and Mr. Suter.

As a direct outcome of this meeting the March Town Meeting of the year 1900 was the largest in the history of the town. We quote from the STAR of that date as to the numbers and history of that meeting:

A NOTABLE TOWN MEETING.

It will be many a day before a scene is witnessed at a Town Meeting similar to that of last Tuesday evening, and it was a singular meeting in more ways than one. The complete filling of the hall with citizens, the crowding of both galleries and the stage with ladies and their occupancy of the small Town Hall to the exclusion of voters were things never before seen at a Winchester town meeting and probably never will be again. Probably there is not a town in the state where the inhabitants are better informed on kindergarten and manual training than in Winchester. Every scrap of information has been eagerly used and the conflicting views of writers absorbed, so that both sides of the question received a good airing.

For the first time in many years a minister opened the meeting with prayer, the Rev. Mr. Lawrance being called upon by the moderator, Mr. Russell.

FUNERAL OF MRS. CHARLES A. LANE.

Impressive funeral services were held over the remains of the late Bessie Louise (Johnston,) wife of Charles A Lane, at the First Congregational Church on Sunday afternoon. The attendance was such as to fill the large auditorium of the edifice, the hosts of friends of the deceased paying a last tribute to the love and esteem in which she was held. The services were conducted by Rev. D. Augustine Newton, pastor of the church, and were of a simple nature. The usual remarks attendant upon such an occasion were omitted and in their stead a poem, written by Alpheus Bowers, was read. The verses portrayed the life of the deceased in a touching and graphic manner. The selections "Lead Kindly Light" and "My Heavenly Home" were sung during the service by the church quartette.

The bearers were Messrs. George A. Burgess, E. Henry Stone, George B. Lawrence, Fred A. Bradford, E. Alden Bigelow and Justin L. Parker.

The floral tributes were most profuse, the casket resting amid a vertitable bed of flowers. At the conclusion of the services the remains were intered in Wildwood. The ushers were Messrs. James H. Gerlach, Edgar M. Young, Charles T. Whitten and Nathan H. Taylor.

Following is the poem:

IN MEMORIAM.

A loving wife and mother
Is quietly sleeping here,
A friend whose loving kindness
Sought many a heart to cheer.
The beauty of her living,
Her modesty in giving,
Made those who knew her, trust her,
Feeling she was sincere.

Kindness filled all her being.
They know who loved her best,
For in her daily living
Was many a sad one blest,
Eager to lift the burden,
Helping where there was need,
The very act of being kind,
To her was a blessed creed.

Her life grew bright with her mission,
Led upward by God's kind care,
And the blessing that comes from each kindly act,
Seemed to make her face more fair.
Devotion seemed her purpose
In every act of life,
Thus making a loving mother
And a most faithful wife.

Our hearts are o'erwhelmed with sorrow,
Our eyes with tears are dim,
But Christ will not leave us comfortless,
If fully we trust in Him.
He called her home on her birthday,
To dwell in His mansion fair,
And we know she heard the message
For the faithful who enter there.

And in the Heavenly mansion
She will not be far away,
But will watch o'er her loved one's here below,
In the same kind, tender way,
While the memory of her previous life
Will linger from year to year,
A sacred treasure to those on earth,
Who loved and held her dear.

—Alpheus Bowers.

FOURTEENTH ANNIVERSARY.

Waterfield Lodge of Odd Fellows observed its 14th anniversary in Harmony Hall, Monday evening, about 150 members, friends and ladies being present to help along the joyous event. At eight o'clock an excellent banquet was served, and an hour later an entertainment was given that proved very enjoyable. There were songs by Master Leslie Johnson who has a remarkably sweet voice, and by Miss Daisie MacLellan, piano selections by Master Halford Ambler, fancy dancing and readings by Miss White of Lynn, and songs by the America Quartette of Boston. Mr. George L. Dunham was chairman of the committee of arrangements and to him and his able assistants is due one of the pleasantest anniversaries in the history of the Lodge.

FESTIVAL OF HOLIDAYS.

This last week has seen great progress, in the working out of the plans of the two days Fair to be held on December ten and eleven. The date has not been given in print before. The Fair is to be known as the "Festival of Holidays" and much time has been given to booths representing: Christmas, New Year's, Fourth of July, Labor Day, and Thanksgiving. The color schemes of the different booths, are those generally used on the respective holidays. This makes a gay and pleasing variety of decoration.

Never before has the place of holding this Fair been in print. The Methodist Church Vestry is the place. Those who come with a purpose to buy Christmas gifts will surely be satisfied with the great variety of articles on sale. Do not let anything but Thanksgiving day interfere with your purpose to work for, and attend the Festival of Holidays.

There will be an entertainment both afternoon and evening of each day. Admission ten cents.

TURKEY ROLL.

The second Saturday of the turkey roll at the Calumet Club resulted in the betterment of all the leading scores made the Saturday previous, and the final roll this week will probably result in even better scores. The turkeys are to go to the bowlers making the highest three string totals.

The leading rollers and their scores follow:

T. Price Wilson	328
J. A. Caldwell	326
Geo. W. Fitch	321
Geo. S. Littlefield	318

MINDFUL EVEN OF A CHILD.

During the late presidential campaign Jeanette Poirier, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Poirier of Church street, became an ardent admirer of William Jennings Bryan, the Democratic nominee for President. So interested did the young sire became that she read every scrap she saw in the newspapers relating to Mr. Bryan, and when the announcement of his defeat was made known her grief was genuine and deep. Her feelings were such that she sent a letter to Mr. Bryan conveying her sorrow at his failure to be elected. Last Saturday she received the following letter, which is an indication as to why the Great Commoner is held in such great esteem by the people of the United States:

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 11, 1908.

Jeannette Poirier, Winchester, Mass.

Dear Jeannette,—Your letter is at hand. I appreciate your kind words. The love and lovalty of the people who have supported me is worth more than any office, and I trust that I may be able to so act in the future as not to forfeit the good will that has been so generally expressed by yourself and others.

Very truly yours,
W. J. Bryan.

FOUND DROWNED IN MILL POND.

John Rooney, aged 44, a freight handler in the employ of the B. & M. R. R., was found in the mill pond north of the centre at a few minutes before eight o'clock yesterday morning. He was discovered by the crew of the Woburn shifter. The body was in about two feet of water, near the second culvert in the pond between the main line and the Woburn loop.

The police were notified and they took charge of the remains, removing them to Cosgrove's undertaking rooms. How the accident occurred is not known, but the body had been in the water all night as it was encased in the ice.

Rooney leaves a wife and four children. He had been a freight handler for the B. & M. for the past 25 years and a resident of Winchester three years.

THE FORTNIGHTLY.

Regular meeting of The Fortnightly on Monday, Nov. 23. Marshall Darrach in "Twelfth Night." Attention is called to the intermission of three weeks between this meeting and the next which will occur December 14.

Mrs. Lucinda E. Mason, mother of Mr John N. Mason, observed her 79th birthday on Saturday at her home on Mt. Pleasant street. She received many beautiful flowers and tokens from her friends in remembrance of the occasion and was honored at dinner by the presence of her three daughters, Mrs. E. Henry Stone, Mrs. Walter H. Marsh and Mrs. Joel M. Leonard of Melrose, and her neice, Mrs. Fred Rogers of Brockton. Mrs. Mason has made her home in this town for 45 years.

VINCENT LECTURES.

The second of Dr. Vincent's charming talks on American men of letters took place in the Town Hall on Wednesday afternoon, Nathaniel Hawthorne being the subject considered. He spoke of his boyhood, spent in the atmosphere of unassuaged sorrow, as his mother became a widow at the age of 28, and from that time withdrew entirely from the world, seeing almost no one, even having her meals served in her own room. Hawthorne's great physical beauty was dwelt on somewhat at length. Bayard Taylor said of his eyes that they really flashed. He was 5-10 in height, broad shouldered and well developed in every way. His marriage with Miss Sophia Peabody was an ideal one. Of rare loviiness of character, she had a brilliancy of intellect that eminently qualified her for companionship with that remarkable genius. Dr. Vincent dwelt much upon the duality of Hawthorne's nature—the quality which made him a perfect husband, able to cook his own and his wife's breakfast if need be, and yet to command that delicacy of touch and exquisite phrasing which make his fiction first among the masterpieces of American literature. Mention was also made of the gems of realism occurring in The Blithdale Romance, House of Seven Gables and Marble Faun.

Hawthorne was classed as a writer of romances but romances with close touches of realism and as the greatest of the great American Trio of which Irving and Poe are the other distinguished members. During the three years of his service in the Custom House at Salem his writing entirely ceased, and when in the course of political events his position was taken from him, his wife consoled him with the cheerful reminder that now he could write the story that has been "growing in your head." And with true witely devotion she supported the family by painting camoric lamp shades while that transcendent pearl of literature, "The Scarlet Letter," was taking tangible form. When it was completed the modest author confided it to James T. Fields, the publisher, with the remark "Here, take it. It is either very good or very bad." But we to whom the story of Hester Prynne's great sin, so paintully expiated, of Arthur Dimmesdale's tortured soul, pursued by the Nemesis of his unpunished crime, have been household words from childhood, feel utterly grateful for the gift to the world of this marvellous book which should have been prefaced as written by Nathaniel Hawthorne, but with the indispensable assistance of a devoted wife.

The distinguished literary critic Leslie Stefiens calls certain passages of this great book Shakesperean, in the way in which Hawthorne "cuts down into the depths of life," and another has called him the purest-souled and best of our prose poets.

The three books which Dr. Vincent recommended as a help in the study of this great master were The Letters of N. Hawthorne by his son, his biography by Henry James, and one by Prof. Woodbury, all of which are in the Public Library.

THE COUNTRY MINISTER.

Bachelor Club Play Great Success.

A big audience greeted the production of A Country Minister, given by the Bachelor Club in the Town Hall on Wednesday night. The successful play of last year given by this club served to pave the way to popularity, and The Country Minister was finely given before a most enthusiastic audience. Without exception the entire cast was remarkably well played. The action was the smoothest for any amateur performance given in town in late years, while the playing time and short waits between the acts showed careful management.

The characters were remarkably well assigned, and some of the young actors surprised even their closest friends by their adaptability to their part. Probably the favorite of the evening was Miss Mary Cassidy, whose portrayal of the undoubtedly difficult part of a New York "fresh air kid" was excellent. In the second act her song "Take Me Back to New York Town," made a great hit and was loudly encored. Miss Lillian McCarthy and Miss Agnes O'Leary have now appeared in Winchester a sufficient number of times as to make the show incomplete without them. Needless to say their work was of the best.

Clarence Mobbs, as Jud Pardoe, a counterfeiter and burglar, had a most difficult part for an amateur, but he carried it off like an old hand and gave one of the most finished portrayals of the evening. Peter W. Holland always gives an exhibition of first rate work, and it was fully up to the standard on Wednesday night.

Taken as a whole The Country Minister showed a great advance over Uncle Rube of last year, and the club should feel decidedly complaisant over its efforts. Charles J. Harrold, who again managed the production, staged a show which gave universal satisfaction, not only by the ability of the actors, but by its smoothness and in the assignment of parts. Mr. Harrold is today staging the best amateur shows given in this section, and the success of his play "Marion" given at Stoneham last week was another broad proof of his ability.

Following is the cast of characters:

A SENTRY BOX?

The grade crossing skirmish is quiet. During the summer I have sheltered the guardian of the crossing from the sun but just now am of no service. While the larger question rests, cannot some of the agitators start a movement for a Sentry Box if nothing larger can be obtained to protect the mentioned guardian. Have it on a swivel, then he can always be shielded from the wind. I am now only a

HASTINGS—SPAULDING.

Tuesday noon, November 17th, Miss Helen Everett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard H. Spaulding, of 27 Everett avenue, was married to Mr. Francis Hastings, Jr., of Brookline. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William I. Lawrance. A wedding breakfast followed the marriage.

BOARD OF HEALTH SUSTAINED

The case of the Board of Health vs Laraway & Co., for doing plumbing work without a license, came up in the court at Woburn last Saturday. Counsel for the defence having raised the point that the plumbing rules and regulations were defective in their wording, Judge Johnson took the matter under consideration. This week he fined Laraway & Co. $10. It is said the case will now be carried to the higher court.

THANKSGIVING VACATION.

The public schools in town will close for the usual Thanksgiving vacation on Wednesday noon, resuming on the following Monday morning.

FROM THE FILES OF THE FORTNIGHTLY.

After discussion of several minor questions, Rev. Joshua Coit offered the motion that $3000 be raised by taxation in addition to the sum already appropriated for the schools, to be expended for teaching kindergartens and manual training in the public schools. Mr. W. B. French then took the floor and made a masterly address in favor of kindergartens and manual training. The schools should be allowed to develop and make our children useful men and women. Education should not be for only a part of the boy or girl but for their whole development. They should be taught to see clearly the whole of the outside world and not a part of it. Have the children see and know about things physical, mental and moral, and then give expression to them by the hand. Kindergarten sharpens the powers of observation, teaches obedience, makes better scholars. Letters from teachers received by Mr. French claimed that these pupils were all promoted, some receiving a double promotion, and they were better scholars and more tractable.

Mr. A. E. Whitney then offered an amendment to Mr. Coit's motion "that no part of the $3000 be expended in educating children under five years of age." In support of this amendment Mr. Whitney claimed that children under five should not be in school. They were being taught too young, it was an injury to the brain, and he read extracts from an eminent physician to the effect that to educate under eight years was injurious.

Mr. Frank F. Carpenter said that the development of kindergarten and manual training prevented cramming. It is the interested right of every child that he should receive the best education. Teach him to use his hands and eyes, to handle tools and distinguish colors. These are not hobbies. He read letters from presidents Eliot, Capen and Miss Hazard, president of Wellesley college, speaking in strong terms of these studies, and that to abandon them would be a step backward. The age advocated by these educators was from 3 1-2 years up.

Mr. M. B. May said that if the 5 year limit prevailed that it would throw out of school 116 children. That was the most selfish vote ever offered in this town, he said. The age limit should be left to the parents of the children. Mr. Frank E. Rowe and Mr. J. F. Dorsey, spoke against the amendment, mostly on the age limit.

Hon. A. B. Coffin said that some years ago he was opposed to teaching children under five years of age, but he did not look with disfavor on kindergartens. He had carefully read Froebel's work and he could find no reference to age. Froebel says "Live with your children." It costs $22 each to teach children in the 1st and second grade while in the Wyman school each kindergarten scholar cost the town $30. Children under five years of age should not be taught in the public school. In reply to Mr. French he claimed that the teachers were not going to write letters opposing kindergartens when they knew that the Committee were in favor of them. A teacher in a Winchester school had told him that kindergarten children when they came into her room were unruly and hard to teach. The school age in St. Louis, the home of the kindergarten was from 5 to 7 years.

Mr. Marshall Symmes thought the place for children under five years of age was at home with their mothers. He believed that the children were forced too much. The financial aspect should also be considered in view of the large debt of the town.

Mr. Lewis H. Dutton, Principal of the Hancock School in Boston, said he had been teaching in Boston for thirty years, had been in charge of the first public kindergarten in Boston, in which there are now eight classes and 350 scholars. He read a list of results which are to be expected from kindergarten training, and said, "Bear in mind, kindergarten is not education, it is development of the child." He concluded by declaring that 85 per cent. of the children get all their education in the kindergarten, primary and grammar grades, and that if economy was to be practiced, it should be at the high school end of the course.

Mr. Lewis Parkhurst felt a little timid in talking on a question that had brought almost all the citizens to the Town Hall. He said, "I am an old schoolmaster, I believe in the schools. But I am a citizen first, of Winchester. If these things are good, let us have them, if not vote them down, no matter whose theory is upset. He then took up sewing for boys and said his boy after a training (more or less) of two years, couldn't sew on a button so that it would stay long enough for him to thread a needle. It was unpractical to teach a boy sewing. He felt that cooking was taught at so early an age that when the girls arrived at a time when it would be a benefit, they had forgotten all about what was taught them. In the matter of carpentry the boys came and went as they pleased and they pleased to be lazy. That was bad. The time was wasted, could be better spent in learning the English language and to write and spell. He believed in kindergartens, but he was bitterly opposed to the extent it was being carried out. He felt that his child at 7 years of age could learn three times as fast as if he went in younger. It did not do to force a child too much as it would result in nervous exhaustion followed by prostration. He closed with an earnest protest allowing children under five years of age to enter the public schools.

Mr. W. H. J. Fitzgerald spoke for the common people who were most benefited by kindergartens. He was the father of a kindergarten boy, and expected at the meeting to hear a mass of arguments against this teaching but he had failed to hear anything substantial against it. Children that were born with silver spoons in their mouths were independent of what action the town took, but not so with the poor children.

After remarks by Judge Folsom, Mr. Elder, and W. L. Tuck in favor of the kindergarten, the amendment offered by Mr. Whitney was voted down, yeas, 136, nays, 380, and the original motion appropriating $3000 for kindergartens and manual training was then carried by a vote of 402 to 36.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The meeting of the local union last Friday was held in the Congregational Church vestry, Mrs. Lydia L. Blood, vice-president having charge. The usual devotional exercises were extended to include a memorial to the late Mrs. Malvina Saunders, read by Mrs. Blood, followed by testimonials to the faithfulness, loyalty, and generosity of the former member. In addition to the routine buiness a letter from the absent secretary, Mrs. A. A. Rowe was read, giving some incidents of her trip west to attend the national convention, and plans of work for the coming year were discussed informally. Mrs. Polly reported the recent conference of county officers which she attended as representative of the local organization.

The trend of public opinion in favor of temperance and even total abstinence is marked by the space given the subject in current periodicals. Compare the contents of the leading magazines with those of a few years ago and it is easily seen to be a live subject. As one man said not long ago, "We total abstainers no longer feel lonesome." Those interested in the subject will find plenty of food for thought in the series now offered in McClure's magazine and there are many other striking articles to be found elsewhere.

ITALIAN BADLY CUT.

On Friday afternoon two Italians became engaged in a cutting affray on Swanton street which nearly resulted in the death of one of them, Tom Ross, of this town. The victim was proceeding down Swanton street in company with Wm. Flaherty, and when near Beggs & Cobb's tannery was suddenly seized by a man who attempted to draw a knife across his throat. That Ross threw his head back and twisted in his assailant's grasp was the only thing that saved him. As it was he received a bad cut on the head and another on the neck. Had the knife varied a hair's breadth the jugular vein would have been severed and the man killed. It is now expected that he will recover.

From what can be learned of the affair it appears that the Italian who did the cutting, known as Lorenzo DeVitto and living in Boston, deliberately laid in wait for Ross intending to cut his throat and kill him. The trouble is said to have started in Boston earlier in the week. When DeVitto stabbed Ross he ran up Loring avenue, where a companion was waiting for him and then down the tracks to the centre, the police capturing him in Rangeley. The other man, pursued by Ross, ran towards Winchester Highlands. Ross chased him as far as J. H. Winn & Son's Watch Hand factory, where he fell exhausted from loss of blood, the man getting away. Ross was taken into the factory and Dr. Gale called, who patched him up and sent him to the hospital. Ross came near dying from loss of blood and his wounds required a large number of stitches.

The police are familiar with the name of the man who escaped and his capture is certain.

LADIES' WHIST.

The first ladies afternoon for the winter was held at the Calumet Club on Friday afternoon, the entertainment being bridge and whist. A large number of ladies attended and enjoyed the cards.

The hall was decorated for the occasion with college flags, red and blue Harvard and Yale flags being strung from the raftered ceiling, and the walls covered with the flags of various colleges, some of which were very elaborate, being of leather. The decorations were the prettiest seen in the hall for some time.

The prizes were taken as follows: Bridge—Mrs. C. H. Symmes, Mrs. R. E. Joslin, Mrs. Fred V. Wooster and Mrs. Roland H. Sherman. Whist—Mrs. T. Price Wilson and Mrs. Joshua Phippen.

Following the cards tea was served from tables arranged in the hall, Mrs. William M. Belcher and Mrs. George A. Fernald pouring. The committee in charge was Mrs. Wallace F. Flanders, Mrs. Roland H. Sherman, Mrs. J. Churchill Hindes, Mrs. Henry J. Olmsted and Miss Elizabeth Downs.

LAW OF THE ROAD.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It would assist the cause of "safety on our roads" if you would call the attention of your readers to Sec. 1 of Chap. 512, Acts of 1908, recently passed by the legislature and entitled "An Act Relative to the Law of the Road," as follows:

> Section 1. Whenever on any bridge or way, public or private, there is not an unobstructed view of the road for at least one hundred yards, the driver of every vehicle shall keep his vehicle on the right of the middle of the travelled part of the bridge or way, whenever it is safe and practicable so to do. (Section 2 provides a penalty.)

It is evident from investigation of many accidents on the road that a large number of them are caused by failure to observe the safe and sensible rule, which by this statute is made law of the Commonwealth, applying to the vast majority of situations, namely, "Keep on your own right hand side of the road."

Even in passing on the left of another vehicle going in the same direction, as provided for in Chapter 54 of the Revised Laws, a driver should have a clear road before leaving the right hand side.

By observing this law at all times, drivers of carriages and automobiles will not only save themselves from possible prosecution in the Courts, but will greatly add to their own safety and to the safety of other users of our roads.

Thanking you in advance, we are,

Very truly yours,

Safe Roads Automobile Association,

G. McC. SARGENT, Sec.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

A very strong programme has been arranged for Thanksgiving week at Keith's Theatre, the principal feature being Stella Mayhew in her latest songs. Miss Mayhew is now one of the most popular women entertainers in vaudeville.

A special extra performance will be given Thanksgiving morning beginning at ten o'clock and lasting until one.

The bill for the week will include many other strong features, for instance Novello's Circus with its great horde of elephants, one of the biggest acts of the kind ever introduced in vaudeville. Others are the Eight Madcaps, Walter Law & Co., in a sketch called "On the Threshold;" Phillipi Brothers, the eqilibrists; Lew Wells in a musical monologue and others to be announced.

THE DECEMBER METROPOLITAN.

The love letters of George Sand and Alfred de Musset disclosing the secret history of this dramatic and hitherto unexplained literary love affair are given to America through the Metropolitan Magazine. The first instalment appears in the Chrismas number. "The Real Panama and Its People" by Eleanor Yorke Bell, gives the reader the results of a careful study of Panama and its inhabitants and the conditions under which our men are working, simply telling facts without sensational charges such as have characterized the majority of the other articles on the canal. "The Christmas Hunting" by Charles Livingstone Bull, is a delightful recrudescence of the medieval atmosphere strikingly illustrated in color. Helen Zimmern writes on "some famous pictures and their romantic histories" which is a particularly pleasing article for the Christmas time.

Among the exceptionally good short stories in the Christmas number are: "The Arab" by Thornton Oakley; "The Drinkwater Romance" by Arthur Morrison; "Three Dollars and Hash" by Glen Ford Mott; "The Smart Set of Caribou Crossing" by Charles Frederick Holder, and "Applied Romance" by Wood Levette Wilson. There are many Christmas features.

BOSTON THEATRE.

For Thanksgiving week at the Boston Theatre, Mr. Keith has secured an attraction fully in keeping with the season, one that is always popular, in "Sky Farm," the rural drama by Edward Kidder, which had its first production at the Old Boston Museum. Since then it has been seen in Boston and always to crowded houses. It was one of the most popular of last season's successes as given by the stock company, and the present production will be on an even greater scale.

The stock company season is now at its height and every week is finding larger and more appreciative audiences at the Boston Theatre. The favorites of last year have won thousands of new friends, while the new comers, such as Miss Binley, Dudley Hawley and that sterling actor, Frank Losee, have firmly established themselves in the affections of the Boston audiences.

We do not encourage drinking, but if you will call at our store we will treat your fountain pen to a drink of prime Carter's fluid free. Wilson the Stationer. tf

WHY DON'T WE HAVE MORE FACTORIES HERE.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The location of any new factory in Winchester means an increase of population anywhere from half a dozen to a hundred or more. Such conditions make everybody happy because business increases and our town grows.

Why can't we keep them coming, or at least show a greater interest in trying to get them?

Such a locality as we have here is the best sort of a location.

The manufacturing concerns of Boston are in many cases moving their shops to the suburbs, and many new concerns are coming eastward to the seaboard. The conditions here are better by far than in the thickly settled city. We have all the advantages of life in the open, together with proximity to city life which is always such an attraction for employees.

Let us reverse the conditions. Keep the people who ordinarily flock from the city for rest and recreation permanently in our locality, and get them used to going into the city to see the sights and return to suburban homes for comfort.

Further, the advantages to the manufacturer are many.

He can have all of the suburban freedom in which to carry on his business, and this same condition operates to increase contentment, comfort and general welfare. Among other advantages to be enumerated are the following:

1. Cheap land or low rents.
2. Taxes on lower valuation.
3. Unlimited ground floor space.
4. More convenient workshop design.
5. More economical application of motive power.
6. Ample yards for storage, laying out of grounds, etc.
7. Ample space for enlargement of plant as business increases, with a minimum interference with the every day working conditions, and a maximum convenience for future work.
8. Avoidance of expensive and complicated methods of handling and storing raw material and finished goods.
9. Reduction in risk of fire, and consequently lower insurance rates.
10. More light and air.
11. More efficient labor.
12. Generally improved social and living conditions for employees.

Until within a few years the question of economical application of motive power for small factories and shops has kept many such concerns within the cities where they could secure their power from the lines of an electric lighting company; electric motor power being the efficient and economical form of drive they always wished to use. Now the Edison Electric Illuminating Company's service extends like a spider's web all over the suburban territory about Boston, and with the constant lowering of the rates for light and power this form of service is becoming more and more general in its use. We have this service here, and and its availibility is an important item for manufacturers.

It would seem worth while for our public spirited citizens to join in renewed effort to build up the manufacturing business here. We can take care of it nicely, the influx of population would be welcome, and every condition would make for comfort aud happiness.

A PROPOSITION WORTH DISCUSSION.

Senator Treadway suggests that cities and towns may, at some future time, bear a part of the election expenses of candidates. There's sense in the suggestion. The general feeling is that the election of a member of the legislature is a personal affair—the endeavor of the candidate to get a place, for the honor or the pay, or for both, and that he ought to pay the bills. That is a wrong view. An election is an affair of the people. They are interested in getting the man they want. They ought to pay a part, at least of the cost.

As the case now stands, the expenses are large, and the man without money has but little chance of getting a nomination or an election. Formerly the parties printed their own ballots. The cities and towns have assumed that expense, and there is no good reason for drawing the line there. There is as much argument for the assumption of other expenses as there is for printing the ballots. These expenses are now borne by a few people, and the motives of some of the givers are questionable. The proposition deserves discussion, anyway.—[Cambridge Chronicle.

PARISH OF THE EPIPHANY.

Thanksgiving Day there will be a service of the Holy Communion in our church at 9 a. m. The union service is to be held this year in the Methodist Church at 10.30 a. m. The preacher will be the Rev. Wm. I. Lawrence, pastor of the Unitarian Church.

A week from Sunday, November, 29th, will be the first Sunday in Advent. There will be a service of the Holy Communion at 8 a. m. in addition to the other services, and in the afternoon at 4.15 p. m. an opportunity for the Baptism of children.

Sunday will be Sunday School Visiting Day. Parents of pupils in the school and members of the parish generally are asked to remember this day and to visit the school.

The new window which was placed last week is to be dedicated at the morning service Sunday.

Crawford Cooking-Ranges

Our New Range a Winner!

The new range that we introduced last year has won all hearts. The old End Hearth is gone—there is more room on top—the ashes fall into a Hod far below the fire, making their removal easy and the grate to last longer. The Ash Hod when emptied is returned full of coal. Three sizes, "Palace," "Castle," "Fortress."

All the famous Crawford features are present: Single Damper, Patented Grate, Cup-Joint Oven Flues, Asbestos Backed Oven, Improved Oven Indicator. Booklet free.

Much Authority.

There is no board or department in town government that has as much authority as has the Board of Health. A great many people do not realize this. The trend is strongly toward improved conditions of living, and stringent laws are being enacted each year by the Legislature toward that end. The time is not far distant when every town will have a salaried agent of the Board of Health who will devote all of his time to remedying unsanitary conditions and seeing that the laws are lived up to. This agent should be the inspector of plumbing. Only a few years ago the Board of Health was granted but one or two hundred dollars for expenses. Now about ten times that sum is spent annually, and it is money well expended, for it tends towards longer life and happiness for all the people.

THANKSGIVING FOOTBALL.

The Winchester High School football team will end its schedule Thanksgiving Day morning with a game with an alumni team. Never before has Winchester High supported such a team as this year's. From a squad of inexperienced candidates they have been developed by the coaching of two former high school players, Minot Hurd and Harold T. Webber, who have worked hard to form an eleven which Winchester may be proud of. Although outweighed by nearly every team on its schedule, Winchester has not always been outplayed as the following scores show:

W. H. S. 0, Melrose H. S. 5; W. H. S. 6, Arlington 0; W. H. S. 22, Woburn H. S. 0; W. H. S. 57, Stoneham H. S. 0; W. H. S. 5, Everett H. S. 28; W. H. S. 28, Chelsea H. S. 0; W. H. S. 10, Arlington 11. Total, W. H. S. 118; Opponents 44.

There are three more games on the schedule yet to be played. It is hoped that every citizen who can will turn out to see the game. The game will start at ten o'clock. Reserved seats 25 cents.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

It is no exaggeration to say that "Are You A Mason?" is funnier than "The Man on the Box," and next week at the Castle Square we shall be able to test and to laugh at its comic scenes and characters. Its author, Leo Ditrichstein, is a born humorist and comedian, and in "Are You a Mason" he provides three hours of fun-making of the cleanest and most uproarious sort.

After a week's rest from acting, John Craig will be seen in the character of Frank Perry, the mythical mason, and he promises to give a genuinely funny and lively impersonation of character. The remainder of the cast has been arranged under the personal direction of William Parke, and Castle Square patrons will find that it contains all the favorite members of the John Craig Stock Company. Mr. Friebus will appear as Hamilton Travers, with Mr. Meek as George Fisher who masquerades in women's clothes is extremely funny. Mr. Evarts as Amos Bloodgood, Miss Kate Ryan as Lottie, Mr. Hassell as John Halton, and the ladies in the cast will be at their best, with Miss Minnette Cleveland as Annie Bloodgood, Catherine Talman as Lulu Bloodgood, Mable Colcord as Mrs. Caroline Bloodgood, and Mary Young as Eva (Mrs. Perry). "Are You A Mason?" will be played on the Castle Square stage for only one week.

W. H. S. NOTES.

At a meeting of the class of 1911 last Friday it was voted to send flowers to Constance Lane in token of their sympathy over the death of her mother.

The play committee has decided to have two short plays this year instead of one long one, as there is not time enough to learn long parts, the two plays chosen are A Box of Monkeys and Tommy's Wife. They will be given in the Town Hall, December 30th.

On Thursday noon as Mrs. George M. Byrne of Rangeley, accompanied by her riding master, was coming down Mt. Vernon street past the Wadleigh School the drums used to accompany the scholars marching to recess frightened her horse. The animal reared and threw himself over backward. Her companion leaped from his own horse and ran to her assistance. Fortunately she was able to spring from under the animal in time to avoid his falling upon her, and although somewhat shaken was unhurt. The two riderless horses galloped down through the centre, creating considerable excitement, they being caught later.

THE REMEDY SUGGESTED.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Your correspondent of Nov. 6th is quite correct. It has come to be the custom for many boys to feel that wanton destruction of property is their privilege on the evening preceding a holiday.

This is a wrong opinion. None of us approve of vandalism, but we say that "boys will be boys," that "we are glad that our boys would not do such things," that "we did not wish our boys to go out, but all the others were there and really you cannot keep a boy shut up all the time," and "when I was a boy I had some fun and I do not see," etc.

Now two things ought to be emphasized until public sentiment shall no longer permit outrage to be miscalled fun.

(1) The trouble comes from the mob spirit inevitable when boys are assembled after dark with no older persons to direct them. It is absolutely impossible for a group of boys repeatedly to indulge after dark in innocent pranks with no variation into vandalism. They may start all right, they may not always violate the rights of others, but from time to time they are certain to do wrong. It is the mob spirit and the only cure is to stay at home.

(2) This is the parents' responsibility, to keep their boys from the reasonable probability of mischief. They may be good boys, they will be good men, they have excellent home training, they make excellent promises. All these things may be true and in a crowd not one will count for anything. It is altogether likely that the parents of the boys who committed the depredations week before last thought that there could be no objection to their boys having some harmless fun. They did not realize that along with other boys from the best families in Winchester their sons would render themselves amenable to the law, and they do not now know that their sons took part in any infringement of the rights of others. What then can be done?

(1) Parents should keep their boys at home, particularly on evenings when the spirit of mischief is abroad.

(2) If property is damaged, the perpetrators, if known, should be punished in such fashion that future good conduct would be encouraged.

(3) In any case where boys are known to have made trouble, their parents should be required to make prompt restitution and should be required to give bonds to keep them at home on future similar occasions.

Rev. Frederick H. Means of Fairview terrace has accepted a pastorate at Madison, Me., in the Congregational church of that place, commencing his duties Jan. 1st. Rev. Mr. Means and his family will move to Madison, where they expect to make their home permanently.

OBSERVATIONS.

I hear that probably not a single member of the present Board of Selectmen will be a candidate for re-election. It is not at all surprising that members of this board should soon tire of serving, and this will continue until the archaic system under which they attempt to do business is changed, and it should be done next year, as the town's interests suffer from the present system.

The street railway switchman is supposed to be upon the easterly side of the railroad tracks when trains are passing, to help protect the public, but nobody appears to care to see that the rule is lived up to and it is continually violated. Three men on the westerly side of the crossing and none on the easterly side is a common occurrence. This is an important matter, but sadly neglected.

Well! What is the W. I. A. going to do this winter? Going to have any public meetings of any kind? This association thus far has been a great disappointment, the trouble being seemingly that it is opposed to publicity and desires to steer clear of the common people.

I was glad to see the new general clerk at the State House recently going through the tax commission office books for our assessors, seeking for intangible personal property that might have escaped us. Whether or not she landed any I don't know, but it was certainly high time our assessors looked it up, as many boards have done so for years, although we have not. It might be a good move for the chairman of the appropriations committee to appoint a sub committee upon assessing and take the general question up with the assessors. It certainly is one of the very important parts of public business.

The people should bear in mind that the cities and towns are political divisions of the Commonwealth, separated so for convenience of government, and that it is not only the right but the duty of the Commonwealth to see that its various divisions conduct their public affairs properly and for the general good, and it is nonsense to say that supervision is an interference with home rule. Publicity is what is needed.

It seems to be the general feeling that we should appropriate more money for street work next year and probably we will do so as conditions appear to be favorable, for while our debt payment next year will be $40,500.00, the following year it falls to $28,000.00, and none of the bonds issued next year would fall due till a year later—1910. We have been waiting for that period and the money can be expended to good advantage if we do not try to do too much street work in any one year. We shall have many other large appropriations to make of course, and must, so far as we can, spread our new debt thinly along so that the growth of the town will meet it and so keep down the tax rate. We must also carefully look ahead for all of those expensive things that are on the waiting list. A year to year policy will not do. Our debt Dec. 31, 1904, was $651,000; Dec. 31, this year, it will be down to $509,000, a reduction of nearly 22 per cent. in four years, and it will probably be gradually reduced in succeeding years.

The report circulated about town yesterday that Charles F. French had suddenly died appears to be a practical joke as Mr. French is in good health and spent yesterday afternoon in Boston.

THRIFT

The word "thrift" naturally associates itself in one's mind with the idea of owning a home.

Take the example of the Germans, of whom there are no more thrifty people in the world. They are not satisfied until they own a home of their own.

And after they have bought and paid for it, they begin laying up to invest in another piece of property, and so on. They apply the income from one investment toward another.

See me if you wish to make a profitable investment in a home.

Here is one. 9 rooms, 9,000 feet. Good repairs all improvements, excellent neighborhood, $4,500.

We have many more.

LAND COURT.

To the Lowell Five Cents Savings Bank, a duly existing corporation having its usual place of business in Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, and said Commonwealth; Horatio N. Bryer, Henry F. Bower, Ella F. Crosby and Ella K. Wilson of Winchester, in said County of Middlesex; Mary D. Myrick of Woburn, in said County of Middlesex, and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Viola Alice Richardson of said Winchester, to register and confirm her title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Winchester, bounded as follows: Easterly by Washington street 377.73 feet more or less; Northerly by land of Ella F. Crosby and Ella K. Wilson 110.43 feet more or less; Southerly by land of Mary D. Myrick formerly of Joseph Stone 126.36 feet more or less, and Westerly by the Abajonah River 330.3 feet; containing 403,796 square feet.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the fourteenth day of December, A. D. 1908, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, LEONARD A. JONES, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this nineteenth day of November in the year nineteen hundred and eight.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

Look out for your ash barrels! Charles Smith will keep them emptied and keep your cellar as clean as a kitchen floor. Will call as promptly for one barrel as for ten. Promptest and most capable ash man in town. Drop a postal to 47 Harvard St., or telephone 317-2 Winchester.

THE REYNOLDS TRIO.

All who had the genuine pleasure of hearing Miss Helen Reynolds, violisist, at Miss Brown's Concert last week, will be glad to know that there will be another opportunity of hearing her on Tuesday evening, January 12th, when the "Helen Reynolds Trio" will give a concert, assisted by Miss Dorothy Temple Brown.

All who heard Miss Reynolds were much impressed by the beauty of her playing and it is hoped that there will be a large audience to welcome her at her second appearance.

Miss Reynolds' playing of obligatos is ideal and this can be said of so few violinists that it is but just to give it special mention.

Miss Reynolds was for eight years a pupil of Miss Grebe, later studying in New York, Brussels and Berlin. She studied with Ysaye in Brussels and in Berlin with Joachim and Halir, having entered the Konigliche Hoshschule as one of six only out of forty-five candidates. Since her return to America she has met with much success both as solo and ensemble player and has continued her violin study with Mr. Willy Hess.

Miss Halliday is one of the most popular cellists in this section. Her study included three years in Berlin with several of the most noted masters.

She has played with success both in solo and ensemble for a number of years and has won an enviable place for herself.

Miss Gorham studied the piano with John Orth, Carl Faelton and Harold Bauer and has a wide experience in concert work, both as soloist and ensemble player and has appeared with the Boston Symphony and Kneisal Quartette with marked success.

LAKESIDE STABLE CHANGES HANDS.

Mr. Reuben C. Hawes, who has conducted the Lakeside Stable on Main street has leased the business, together with the buildings, to Mr. Max Bernstein of Malden. The new proprietor will continue to conduct the business as it has been, making it a hack, livery, boarding and sales stable. Mr. Hawes will devote his entire time to the undertaking business, and will continue his rooms in the Wentworth building under the firm name of Fessenden & Hawes.

For the benefit of our customers we have installed one of the new Carter's public fountain pen fillers. Come in and have your pen filled free with the best Carter's ink. Wilson the Stationer. tf

A satisfied customer whatever line of goods he buys generally comes again.

If a person is pleased with the goods the price is also taken into consideration.

And when the price and quality are right you are sure of another call from that customer.

We are making the acquaintance of the people of Winchester along these lines, first class goods at a moderate cost.

We are showing this week a very fine line of the Sunshine Biscuits; particularly fine are the new English style biscuits, which for crispness, a flavor which is distinct, and a quality which is not equalled today.

We have from the same bakery six varieties for the holidays which are especially attractive at this season of the year.

If you are fond of grape fruit, buy one half-dozen, or why not try an even dozen at a time, and sweeten them with sugar at five and one-half cents a pound.

A barrel will cost you less.

WINCHESTER WINS AGAIN.

Last Friday afternoon on Manchester Field Winchester High defeated Chelsea High 27 to 0. The home players seized every opportunity that was given, and inside of three minutes of play Winchester carried the ball over the line for a touchdown, which they got on Chelsea's fumble of the kickoff. Chelsea expected an easy game but found a very different proposition, as Winchester's offence had as much dash as was shown in the Everett game and the defence had improved somewhat. Tuck was a good ground gainer for Winchester and Hurd ran in punts finely. Cox and Brown put up a good game for Chelsea.

WINCHESTER LOSES.

Winchester High was defeated by Arlington High last Tuesday afternoon on Manchester Field by the score of 11 to 10. Arlington showed much improvement since the first time we played them, and was allert for everything. While Winchester seemed to be in a slump, and played the poorest game of the season Cameron was the bright star of the left side of the line, getting into all the plays anywhere near him. He was also good in receiving forward passes. One of them he ran 70 yards and was then tackled on Arlington's three yard line. Small did some good defensive work. H Pierce proved a good line backer for Arlington.

Jackson & Co

ESTABLISHED 1854.

In selecting furs about which your personal knowledge is necessarily limited it is always safest to purchase from a responsible dealer who has a reputation earned by years of testing to maintain, and who does not desire and cannot afford to treat you unfairly.

For nearly fifty years we have been established in Boston as manufacturers of High Grade Furs, collecting the skins from all over the world and making them into every conceivable kind of fur attire.

This long experience in satisfying the needs of the most discriminating persons, has taught us how to give the largest possible value for every dollar expended with us.

All of our garments are fashioned after the latest Paris and London styles and are guaranteed in every respect to give perfect satisfaction, and to be superior to other fur garments when price, quality and workmanship are considered.

This is why shrewd fur buyers prefer to deal with a long established house whose entire business is centered in one location and whose workrooms are always open to inspection.

All we ask is for you to call and then decide where to purchase.

The Kind of Boy He Was.

That Marshall Field of Chicago knew how to wrest victory from defeat and make stepping stones of stumbling blocks is shown by the following story told of him by a friend:

When a boy young Field went to a great merchant and asked, "Do you want a boy?" "Nobody wants a boy," replied the merchant. "Do you need a boy?" the boy persisted, not at all abashed. "Nobody needs a boy," was the reply. But he would not give up "Well, say, mister, do you have to have a boy?" "I think likely we do," replied the merchant, "and I rather think we will have to have a boy just like you."

Some Few Escaped.

"Oh, John," whimpered the wife as she seized the morning paper, "see what that editor has done with the account of our musicale! He has placed it alongside the column of death notices. It's a shame. And we had such prominent people as guests too."

"I suppose," said the husband wearily, "that the editor wishes to call attention to the fact that some people are more fortunate than others."—Bohemian Magazine.

A Town of Macs.

Scotsmen are remarkably successful as colonists. They are also very clannish. There are many prosperous settlements in Greater Britain where Caledonians largely predominate, but the names of these localities do not carry that fact on their face. Nobody, however, can be mistaken as to the prevailing nationality in "Macsville." This is a town in the Cobalt district of Nova Scotia. You will be perfectly safe in accosting anybody there thus: "I say, Mac."—London Chronicle.

EMPLOYEE STOCKHOLDERS.

A Boston Corporation Shares Its Profits With Its Employees.

Of the 6,086 preferred stockholders of the Massachusetts gas companies 650 are employees of the Boston Consolidated Gas company under the profit sharing plan, placed in operation two years ago at the time the sliding scale act was adopted.

Under the terms of the profit sharing plan any person who has been in the employ of the company for one year or more who is of good habits, faithful, energetic and honest is paid the same premium or dividend on the amount of his compensation that the stockholder receives as dividend on his investment—viz, as the Boston Consolidated Gas company paid 8 per cent on its stock in the June 30 fiscal year the employees received an addition of 8 per cent in their annual salary.

The amount set aside for employees is not paid in cash, but is credited to them, and when a sufficient sum accumulates to enable the purchase of one or more shares of the preferred stock of the Massachusetts gas companies the president is authorized to make the purchase. When this stock is once purchased it becomes the absolute property of the employee, and he has the right to do with it as he sees fit, but before selling it he must first notify the president of his intention to do so, and if there is any reason why he should sell it—because of the actual need of the money, for instance—he may dispose of it without restrictions. On the other hand, if in the opinion of the chief executive no good reason exists for disposing of the stock the employee may sell it, but he will be dropped from the profit sharers' list in the future. Provision is also made that any balance that is not used for the purchase of Massachusetts gas stock be placed to the credit of the employee on the books of the company at 4 per cent interest.

The object of this plan is to secure better results from employees and to encourage them to be frugal and economical. Every employee except the president is eligible as a profit sharer. In the past fiscal year the company paid about $45,000 in premiums to its employees.—Progressive Age.

EUROPEAN STREET RAILWAYS

Municipal Operation Is Resulting In Slow Development and Poor Service.

Under municipal operation, or the threat of it, the development of street railways in Europe has proceeded along different lines from those followed in this country. Here we have had a rapid extension of track into new and often temporarily unproductive territory, long hour service, high speed and free transfers. In Europe the track pushes slowly even into well settled suburbs, the hours of service are shorter, the cars are slow, and no transfers are given. The one advantage that the European has secured is a low fare for a short ride, and even this fare is not as low as appears on the surface on account of the higher value of money in Europe as measured in terms of wages. Briefly, however, it may be said that in Europe cheapness has been secured at the cost of quality of service. The same conditions are apparently resulting from the semi-municipal ownership which has just gone into effect in Cleveland. The people of this country want good service first of all, and they are willing and able to pay for it. With us cheapness is a secondary consideration, as any city will find to its sorrow if it secures cheapness at the cost of service.

A Bad Railway Wreck.

A recent issue of the London Engineer contains an account of a railway accident in Australia in which forty-eight persons were killed and 419 were injured. The Australian correspondent writes:

"After the accident the state of affairs was rendered more horrible by a fire which broke out. Unlike the American trains, Australian trains are not fitted with axes, hammers, jacks and such appliances to facilitate the removal of the victims after an accident, and a great deal of the trouble and even many of the deaths may be directly traced to the delay in extricating the sufferers from the burning debris.

"Not only is Victoria an example of a country where the railways are entirely owned and controlled by the state, but for many years it has been held up as a model of the advantages which follow that political system. At one time in this state of Victoria public safety was regarded as of greater consequence than revenue. Latterly, however, the local press has been complaining that too great economies are being practiced for safety."

Passing the Hat.

Arlington, O., is passing the hat for ten dollar subscriptions to a fund for putting down a gas well to secure fuel for the municipal electric plant, thus saving "the big coal bill that seems to be the only thing endangering the financial success of our municipal lighting system," as the Arlingtonian naively puts it.

Most plants, public or private, might easily attain financial success if it were not for the fuel bills and such other expenses. When the expected "success" of this plant is reported, the cost of the gas well will not appear.

The objection to municipal ownership in the United States is based on a disbelief that there would be either competency or honesty in the management.—San Francisco Chronicle.

The town clerk of Manchester, Mass., writes that at a special town meeting the citizens voted against purchasing the local electric plant.

HE ATE THE SOAP.

Garland Would Have Swallowed It If It Had Killed Him.

Augustus H. Garland, who was attorney general under President Cleveland, was very fond of practical jokes and during his term of service in the senate frequently turned the laugh on his colleagues. Senators Voorhees and Vest, with whom he was very friendly, finally determined to turn the tables. Mr. Garland had a habit, like Voorhees, of munching candy, and Vest and Voorhees made it up between them to take advantage of his fondness for sweets to play their trick. They had some tempting looking chocolate caramels prepared, with the interior filled with brown soap. These they took to the senate chamber, and Voorhees placed them on his desk. The lid being off, when Mr. Garland sauntered down the aisle he noticed them at once.

"What have you there, Dan?" he inquired.

Voorhees looked up carelessly from his writing and responded: "Caramels. Help yourself."

Garland needed no second invitation and, picking up two or three, placed one in his mouth. Steadily he chewed away, his face betraying no sign of the conflict within him. This alarmed Voorhees, who went to Vest's desk and said:

"He's eating them, Vest! What shall we do? The stuff will kill him sure!"

Senator Vest replied that it could do no more than make him sick. Garland swallowed the stuff, although he was foaming at the mouth from the soapsuds. He related the incident afterward with great gusto and said he would have swallowed it if it had killed him.

FLY FOGS IN INDIA.

A Plague That at Times Makes Life Unbearable In Calcutta.

One of the evils of Calcutta is the plague of green flies, from which the whole city suffers at certain times in the year. The happy hunting time of these minute insects is during the late autumn and early winter. They are a serious nuisance both in and out of doors. They wing their way through all the open doors into the houses and into every room, making life unbearable.

Like most insects, the little green flies have a great affection for the flame. On occasion the inhabitants have found it necessary to put out all the gaslights, even at a public dinner, and to take their meals practically in deep gloom, illuminated only by flickering candles.

Naturally it is not at all pleasant to go on eating with dense clouds of insects swarming overhead or, roasted to death, falling about one in pattering showers.

They seem to spring into existence from nowhere. Perhaps it is almost dusk when the lights of the street lamps are becoming visible. Then suddenly the air, which a moment before was quite clear, is full of myriads of green flies, drifting in misty patches and obscuring the street lamps.

Often the number of insects which have been scorched to death is so great that little heaps of them collect inside the lamps, while bucket loads have to be swept up from the roads next morning.—London Answers.

Judging a Melon.

Is there any way for a purchaser to tell a good melon without cutting and testing it? That is exactly what an expert melon grader is expected to do, to judge the flavor of the melon as well as the size. The best external indication in a netted Gem and melons of similar type is a golden greenish color, the melon being deeply ribbed and thickly overlaid with rather coarse gray netting, the edges of which rise perpendicularly from the surface. The melon should be heavy. There should be no ragged or broken stem to indicate that the melon was torn from the vine before it was ripe enough to part freely. If one follows these points he is pretty sure to get the perfection of melon produced by the quality of the seed planted. If the seed has come from a tasteless melon the result will be disappointing even with thorough culture and the best care in picking and shipping.—Baltimore American.

Bore and Critic Both.

Midnight came and still the bore remained.

"Do you like music?" asked the beautiful girl just to break the monotony.

"Passionately fond of it," replied the bore. "In fact, music will always carry me away."

She rushed over to the piano and played several popular airs.

"You are still here," she said, turning on the stool.

"Yes," yawned the bore.

"But I thought you said music always carried you away?"

"So I did—music!"—Dundee Advertiser.

The Value of a Good Memory.

If men only realized how great an asset in life is a retentive memory they would take care to see that their children's were properly trained. The simplest method consists in learning every day a few lines by heart. None of our faculties can be trained so easily as that of memory. — Stuttgart Familienblatt.

The Pantomime.

"Pop, what is a pantomime?"

"A pantomime is a piece in which no one speaks."

"I shouldn't think a piece with no women in it would be interesting."—Yonkers Statesman.

PARIS CABBIES.

The War of Words That Comes When They Block Each Other.

There is no more entertaining way to spend an idle hour in Paris than to get into a taxicab and instruct the driver to go along some street where you will be reasonably sure to get into a jam or to bump against another cab. The charm of the experience is, of course, enhanced by your ignorance of what the cabbies say.

Should your driver merely graze the wheels of another cab he will turn on his seat and yell mellifluously at the other driver, who in turn will shout back an assortment of vowels. But the best is a quarrel between two cabbies obstructing each other's way. The conversation, translated as nearly literally as is safe, goes in this wise:

"Sacred name! Why do you?"

"Holy blue! I do not!"

"Stomach on the ground! You have the face of an ox!"

"Blue stomach! Are you in chains?"

"A bas! Name of a dog!"

"Mon Dieu! Name of a pig!"

"Wow (or words to that effect! Name of a name!"

"A thousand deaths! Name of a name of a name!"

Now you begin to expect some doings. While you have not fully understood, you are satisfied that nothing but pistols and knives will wipe out the insults.

Unfortunately about this time the jam is untangled and you are allowed to drive away, but the other driver yells after yours:

"Aha! You are a little piece of brown soap!"

It seems that this expression is the "fighting name" in Paris. Were it not that your cabby owes a duty to you and must convey you to your destination you know by his facial expression that he would climb down and get that other cabby and muss up the city with him.

He contents himself with turning about and making a face in the direction of his enemy and of going through the motion of spitting at him.

Then he says "Yoop!" to the horse, and the war is over.—Chicago Post.

THATCHING.

The Ancient Art In the Low Countries and In England.

Once upon a time two amateur botanists were hunting bog mosses on Exmoor, on the confines of the land of Lorna Doone. About the hour of luncheon they found that their enthusiasm had led them far afield, a good hour and a half from the farmhouse which they had made their temporary headquarters. The only place which yielded promise of food was a shepherd's shack half a mile distant, so thither they went. That the shack, or, rather, its owner, a small, wiry, dark man with curly hair, could offer nothing better than brown bread, which was woefully "clit," or heavy, and raw onions is neither here nor there. The point was that the roof of the shack was artistically thatched with layers of plaited reeds.

"Feyther taught I th' way to do un," explained the shepherd, with an upward jerk of his thumb toward the roof. "An' his feyther taught 'im avore that, an' his feyther avore that, an' back an' back twill nobody can think."

"A hereditary art evidently," said one of the moss hunters to his companion. "But I never saw thatches like these outside of the Low Countries. Safe bet that this fellow is of Dutch descent." Then he said to the man of Devon, "And what is your name, may I ask?"

"Well," replied the shepherd, "most volk call I Van, but ma right name be Henry Van Torp. They do say that ma gurt-grandfeyther were a-vitin' against England an' were took prisoner an' married a Devon girl an' settled 'ereabout"—he indicated the southward sweep of the moor—"but these be a lot of voolish tales to ma thinkin'."—Craftsman.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portions of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Telephone Talks

A "prompt" answer turneth away wrath. You know how you feel when you are kept waiting at the telephone. Remember: Example is better than precept.

"No One on the Line"

It has been pointed out that there are three parties to a telephone conversation, namely the person calling, the operator, and, last but not least, the person called.

The operator has no authority to compel an answer to her summons. She simply forwards to your telephone a mechanical signal. Interpreted, this means "Some one desires to speak to you." It remains for you, the person called, to recognize this request.

There are two strong reasons why you should answer promptly, and both vitally concern you:

1. If you are slow in answering, the caller may hang up the telephone and assume that you are not accessible. Later, if you answer at you leisure, the operator can vouchsafe no information save that "there is no one on the line." Who called you? The operator probably does not know. Any operator in your exchange may have called you, rather than the operator specially assigned to answer your calls.

2. From the moment the operator calling you "plugs in" your line until she ceases her effort to attract your attention, your line is "busy" to all other callers.

If you are dilatory, therefore, you are obstructing your own service. You are also causing disappointment to your caller and annoyance to yourself.

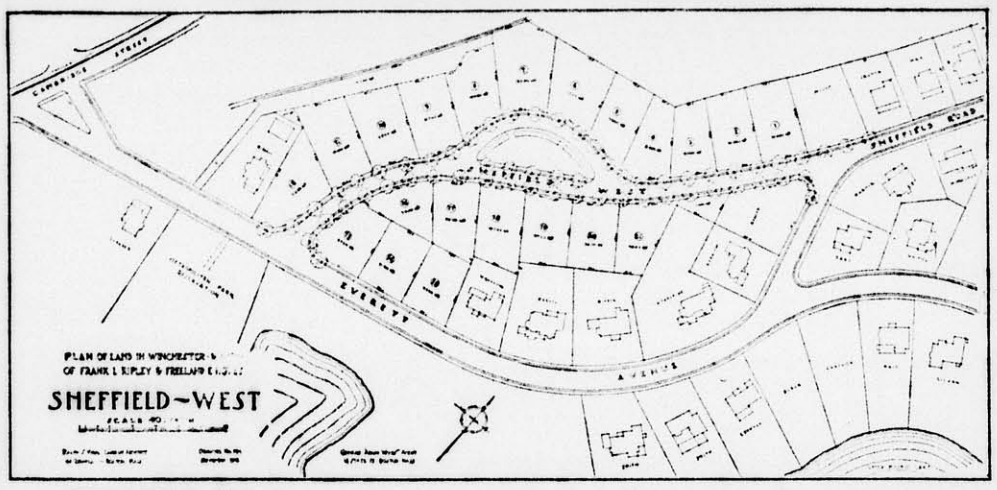
Sheffield West



SHEFFIELD WEST is a continuation of Sheffield Road and a direct thoroughfare between Arlington and Winchester. The development is thoroughly established by the houses built on Sheffield Road and Everett Avenue.

The road is to be built on an even grade, it is to be 40 feet wide in the main and 30 feet wide round the park, it is to have a 24-foot gravel macadam roadway with 5-foot crushed stone sidewalks and 3-foot loam spaces, curbs are to be laid at corners, the park is to be grassed with attractive detail development, and good sized trees are to be set out where shown on plan. Sewer, water and gas are to be laid and negotiations have already been entered into with the Edison Co. to arrange for the laying of its wires underground, in which case attractive ornamental posts for lighting will be installed. The lots are to be evenly graded throughout, and level with the street 40 feet back from it, they are to be covered with a 6-inch surface of loam and seeded, and stone bounds are to be set at the corner of each lot as soon as the rough grading is completed.

A contract has been made for building the road and grading the lots, and a good showing of progress made can already be seen. An arrangement with the Town has been completed to lay water and sewer pipes this Fall, and the street will be built, pipes laid and the lots graded before January 1, 1909 and the roadway surfaced as soon as the frost is out of the ground in the spring, so that Sheffield West will be complete in every way by the time houses started now are finished and will undoubtedly be accepted by the Town as a town way at that time.

The various uses to which the telephone is put could not, in all probability, be even guessed at by the statistian of that company. Last week a lady called up central, and asked "information" what the time of day was, as her clock had stopped. Election returns, fires, base ball, foot ball, yacht races, etc., etc., are cheerfully given by "information," but when it comes to correctly starting stopped clocks, there appears to be no end to the uses to which "information" can be put. A young girl in town a year or so ago used to recite her Greek to her teachers in Cambridge almost daily over the telephone.

A conductor on the Arlington-Stoneham electric nearly lost his equilibrium last week. A passenger tendered him a silver quarter and received back two dimes. The passenger handed the dimes back saying "Sometime ago while riding on your car, in making change for a dollar bill, you gave me back 20 cents too much, and it has worried me so much that I determined the first time I should meet you to give back the money." The conductor offered to give the man ten cents for cigars as a testimonial of his change of heart, but he declined to accept it.

SCHOOL SAVINGS.

The plan for encouraging school savings has been in operation for one month and the results are so encouraging that they may prove of interest to the citizens generally.

On Monday, November 23, 1908, the record was as follows:

	CHAPIN	RUMFORD	WASH'N
No. of pupils in grades concerned	131	39	49
No. of pupils having accounts	119	32	31
No. of pupils who have accounts in Winch'tr Savings Bank	19	5	6
Total amount deposited	$50 91	$19 03	$15 40
Withdrawn	0	0	.80
Amount in Savings Bank	22 00	8 00	7 00
Amount in sums of less than one dollar	28 91	11 03	7 60

The pupils who have opened accounts in the Winchester Savings Bank are as follows:

CHAPIN SCHOOL.

Henry Crampton
Edna Crawford
Edward Dronan
Joseph Duran
Luella Farrow
Charles Gainey
John Gainey
Mildred Gurney
Edward Haggerty
Edith Johnson
David McDonald
Mary McElhiney
Bernard McGurty
Mary McInnis
Frances Murphy
Jessie Nichols
Mary O'Melia
Elizabeth Robinovitz
Leo Swymer

RUMFORD SCHOOL

Viola Biswanger
Florence Dooley
Annie Doherty
Jack McKenzie
Christina O'Melia
Edna Reichenbacher

WASHINGTON SCHOOL.

Frank Hall
Ralph W. Hatch
Constance McIntosh
Edward Macmillan
Gladys Organ

A brief summary of the benefits to pupils resulting in operation may be of value. The pupil is given valuable training (1) In accuracy, neatness, and correct English in filling out his deposit slips; (2) In personal financial responsibility in keeping track of his school account and in keeping his bank book when obtained; (3) In knowing how to make a deposit in the savings bank; (4) In business forms; (5) In the saving of small sums, many deposits being for one or two cents.

The average amount deposited in each building per pupil registered is as follows:

Chapin	38 8 cents
Rumford	48.7 "
Washington	31.4 "

Generally speaking the money deposited has been earned by the pupil. It is no objection that this is not always the case, but the amounts previously earned by pupils was often spent on trivial things. A good work has begun and it should be extended.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES.

We wish to call attention to the omission in our ad on the first page of last week's edition, and announce that the Hallow'een booth will be in charge of Mrs. Roby, who will have a real witch to represent her table.

The ladies of the parish realize that two weeks is a very short time to carry out the plans now well in hand for the Fair, and the chairman of the various committees are constantly calling them together, to report progress. The program for both afternoon and evening of each day, is already prepared, and will appear in next week's edition. Be sure and look for it.

Remember, that there is only one more edition of the Winchester STAR before the Fair. If you want to know what the Methodist Church is doing—subscribe for the STAR. We shall have something in each week.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

"The House of a Thousand Candles" will have its first performance in Boston at the Castle Square Theatre next week. This famous novel by Meredith Nicholson has been made into an intensely interesting mystery-play by George Middleton, and it comes to Boston only a few months after its original production in New York.

The leading part of Bates the Butler will be played by Mr. Craig. Miss Mary Young will appear as Marian Devereux, the heroine, and the other roles will be taken by Mr. Hassell as John Glenarm, Mr. Friebus as Arthur Pickering, Mr. Evarts as John Marshal Glenarm, Mr. Meek as Larry Donovan, Miss Cleveland as Gladys Armstrong and Miss Colcord as Sister Theresa.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

November 23rd, 1908.

Board met at 7.30 p. m.

Present Messrs. Dwinell, Richards, Walling and Winn

Received letter from Miss Margaret T. French in regard to condition of floor of Town Hall. Voted to reply that the Board would do the best they could towards putting floor in proper condition.

A public hearing was given upon the petition of Frank L. Ripley and Freeland E. Hovey asking for the approval by this Board of the plan of a certain private way which said petitioners propose to build over land owned by them lying between Sheffield road and Everett avenue as fully approved by said plans.

R. E. Joslin appeared for the petitioners. No one appeared in opposition.

Upon consideration of said petition and the plan accompanying it it, was voted that said petition be granted and the plan of said proposed street be and hereby is approved.

Voted to instruct the Edison Company to install and maintain an incandescent light on Swanton street near entrance to freight yards, and to move light now on Swanton street near Loring avenue, to corner of Swanton street and Loring avenue, location to be given by the Town Engineer.

Voted to instruct the Edison Company to install and maintain an incandescent light on Grove street, location to be given by the Town Engineer.

Warrants drawn for $1577.26 and $1027.21.

Adjourned at 9.45 p. m.

JAMES MULLIGAN.

Mr. James Mulligan, father of Mrs. Edward Russell, an aged and respected citizen of this town, died very suddenly on Saturday morning at his home on Main street. Mr. Mulligan appeared in his usual good health upon rising in the morning and after breakfast went to the centre and purchased his morning paper. Upon his return he sat down in a chair and almost immediately passed away. The cause was apoplexy.

Mr. Mulligan had resided in this town for the past 55 years, was 72 years of age, and was born in Longford, Ire. He leaves besides his wife, Bridget (Devine), two daughters, Mrs. Edward Russell and Miss Margaret Mulligan.

He was connected for 45 years with the Clark & Smith lumber company, which started business in Cutter Village, this town, and later moved to Boston. He retired from business some years ago.

Funeral services were held from St. Mary's Church on Tuesday, high mass being celebrated by Fr. Francis E. Rogers. The interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

The pallbearers were: James Maguire, Michael E O'Leary, Edwin Murray, Jeremiah McCarthy, Dominick Mawn and Patrick Connors, all members of the Holy Name Society.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Our order of the imported Christmas cards for giving and acknowledging gifts has been received and is now on sale.

The demand for these cards could not be supplied last season. Although a much larger assortment is now on sale, it should be remembered that as the goods are imported it is not possible to restock, and an early selection is advised.

The Lamson Nature Print Company has granted us the courtesy of its first Christmas shipment in New England.

MELROSE 6 WINCHESTER 5

Melrose High defeated Winchester High on Manchester Field Friday afternoon by the score of 6 to 5. Melrose started in with a rush and scored the first touchdown in about ten minutes of play. Winchester awoke after they were scored upon, and started in with a determined hammering of the Melrose line and a forward pass now and then, which took the ball to the two yard line when it was lost on a fumble. Melrose punted out but Winchester rushed it back again and crossed the line. The position was bad to kick the goal and consequently failed to tie the score. The second half, the home team came back just as strong as the last part of the first and had Melrose playing on the defense practically all the time. Although Winchester had the ball three times on the visitor's ten yard line, luck was against them and failed to score.

The lineup:

MELROSE		WINCHESTER
Stantial (Dwight)	re	Collins
Conwall	rt	Small
Nickerson	rg	Gleadon
Peabody	c	Hamilton
Shumway	lg	Hudson
Milliken	lt	Main
Winship	le	Cameron

McDonald	fb	Sharon

Score: Melrose 6, Winchester 5. Touchdowns McDonald, Sharon. Goal from touchdown Wentworth. Umpire, Sleeper. Referee, Foster. Linesmen, Thompson, Curry and Grant. Timer, Badger. Time, 2 twenty minutes halves.

AN OBSTRUCTIONIST.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

That this Congressional district has been so long and so ably represented by one of its citizens must be a matter of pride to everyone in Winchester. Without doubt Mr. Samuel W. McCall may properly be considered a statesman of larger calibre than many of whom we know. He is independent, progressively conservative, or conservatively progressive, influenced by his calm judgment, profound regard for law, and his clear vision into the future rather than by the unreasoning impulses of the man of the street. So altho' one may not always agree with him one may be sure that "there is a reason" for his expressed opinions.

Under these circumstances it would be interesting to have a more definite understanding of the endorsement which he has recently given Speaker Cannon. The impression received by many of us who try to be Republicans from those publications usually considered as the best informed, has been that Mr. Cannon is officially not a conservative but an obstructionist, that he is without any other than purely partizan ideas, that properly speaking he has no ideals and that, personally, he is a rather vulgar individual. If these things are not true, if he is in the same class with Mr. McCall, we ought to know it, and the news should be spread abroad.

At present many self-respecting men who voted for Mr. Taft and Mr. McCall have been inclined to wish that Mr. Cannon's power in Congress could be eliminated and they have hoped that Mr. McCall's influence might if possible be exerted to this end.

Yours,

REPUBLICAN.

WOULD NOT REMOVE HAT.

The big hat created just a bit of excitement at the meeting of The Fortnightly Monday afternoon at the time of the reading by Marshall Darrach of "Twelfth Night." Those behind the cloud of millinery say that it was a big one which branched out in all directions, and remained in no fixed position, thus obscuring the view of all directly in the rear of it.

Noticing the discomfort of those ladies behind the beautiful headgear, a member of The Fortnightly asked the wearer if she would not remove it for the convenience of those persons sitting behind her. Once, twice, and thrice she was asked, it is said, but she flatly refused to remove the offending millinery, and thus the matter ended.

Later in the day members of The Fortnightly requested a member of the Board of Selectmen, to have the Board make a regulation compelling the removal of hats in the Town Hall at times of entertainment. The ladies were informed that the Board was powerless to do anything in the matter, and that the only way to bring about a reform was for the ladies to cause an article to be inserted in the town warrant which would compel the ladies to remove their hats or else on request leave the hall. Many cities and some towns have such an ordinance, and now it would not be surprising if at the next town meeting the citizens be asked to approve such a by-law for Winchester.

PRIZE COMPETITION.

The following prizes of Christmas money will be offered for the best essays setting forth the merits of Sheffield West written by grade pupils in the Winchester Public Schools:

1st	Prize	$10 00	in gold
2nd	"	$ 5 00	" "
5 prizes of		$ 1 00	each, for essays entitled to Honorable Mention.

Your essays should present the advantages of the lots on Sheffield West both as an investment and for residence purposes.

Each composition is limited to 500 words and must be mailed to reach my Boston office not later than December 10th. A committee of three competent and disinterested judges will be appointed after the close of the competition to decide which essays are entitled to the prizes. Enclose with your essay, on a separate piece of paper, your name and address so that the judges will be sure to arrive at their decision upon the merit of the work only. The essay winning first prize will be printed in the Winchester STAR.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The work of the flower mission is imperfectly understood, even by members of the W. C. T. U. The State superintendent, Mrs. S. W. Snipson, with her auxiliaries meet every Saturday during the summer at the headquarters in Congregational House and assort and arrange the flowers sent in by the local Unions, carrying them to the sick and poor in the congested districts, to the sailors' missions, jails, hospitals, etc. At Thanksgiving time fruit, both fresh and preserved, and other delicacies are distributed, and at Christmas there is another distribution. In addition throughout the year an effort is made to cheer and help the unfortunate who are found in this way. Supplies of various kinds as well as money are always needed, and as the work is all voluntary even a small contribution will do much to brighten lonely or sad lives.

It is hoped members of the local Union who did not contribute to the Thanksgiving box just sent will not fail to give either money or other things before Christmas. Mrs. A. E. Rowe is the local superintendent, but in her absence gifts may be sent to any of the Union officers or direct to headquarters, giving the Union.

THE OPEN CHURCH.

The Church of the Epiphany will hereafter be open every day from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. to all who may care to use it for prayer and for meditation and rest. On the book shelf at the west door will be found books of devotion, for the use of those who may wish to read. The open church is founded upon the faith that the church of the living God belongs to the people, who form it, and to whose service it is dedicated, as truly as it is consecrated to the worship of God. It is maintained in the faith that the House of God ought always to be open to all His children, and in the belief that His children will honor it and use it.

DELAYED AND PROMPT JUSTICE

Mr. Samuel J. Elder is to be commended for his persistent championship of swifter judical procedure in the courts, to be secured by reforms which judges lawyers, lawmakers and the public should set about effecting. "Delay of justice is injustice," and the moral effect of a verdict and sentence, following long after a crime, is a diminished one. What re-enforcement of respect for law and for courts comes with a case like that just seen in Chicago, where detection, confession, indictment, conviction and sentence all came within one day! It is the element of celerity and prompt meeting of evil with punitive sternness that makes lynch law so attractive to many, but not therefore right.—[Boston Herald.

HARRY C. MILLER.

Harry Carr Miller, son of Henry C. and Mary H. Miller, died at the Rutland sanitorium on Saturday last. The young man was taken sick in New York last May, and as he developed tuberculosis symptoms, he went to Rutland in the early summer. His condition was not of an alarming nature however. The latter part of last week he developed pneumonia and this, with a heart trouble, caused his death. His parents left Winchester a week previous to spend the winter in Florida and upon receiving news of his sickness hastened at once to return, but were not able to arrive before the end.

Mr. Miller was 33 years of age and born in Winchester, being well known among the younger townspeople.

Funeral services of a simple nature were held on Tuesday afternoon from the residence of Mr. Edward S. Barker on Church street, Rev. John W. Suter, rector of The Church of the Epiphany, officiating. The burial was in Oak Grove Cemetery, Medford.

IN MEMORIAM.

Harry Carr Miller, who passed to that land that knows no sorrow, came to Winchester thirty years ago to No. 77 Church street, and from there to his final home not made by hands.

Those who knew him say he was a fine young man, quiet and very good and truthful. It was my pleasure to know him for years and he leaves behind a "mark of sterling." God gave and God claims His own.

His family were in Florida when they received the sad message, but arrived too late, only to hear the sad tidings that he was gone.

At the services the I. O. O. F. were large in attendance and the Noble Grand with three others acted as pall bearers, and surely such an organization fulfills the mission. Flowers from friends were beautiful and profuse.

Rev. John W. Suter read the Episcopal service and read it with feeling, and made a deep impression on those who were in attendance. We offer to his father and mother our heartfelt sympathy in their sad loss.

We too shall come to the river side one by one,
We're nearing the water at eveningtide, one by one.
I can hear the noise of the dash of the stream now again,
O'er life's deep dream,
Sometimes the waves in ripples go one by one.

A FRIEND.

WILL NOT WAIT FOR PASSENGERS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

If the conductors on the electric cars were to show as much disregard of the public as the conductors on the Boston & Maine, what a cry would go up. Why should not the conductors of the steam road wait at least a fraction of a minute for would be passengers as well as those in charge of the electric cars.

Yesterday two elderly men were striving with might and main to take the five minutes of twelve train for Boston and when within a dozen feet or so of the last car the conductor signalled the engineer to proceed. The men got left and either had to wait over an hour for another train or else take the electrics. A short time ago a woman reached the train just as it had started. She attempted to get on, and the conductor pushed her away. Why, Mr. Editor, cannot the conductors use their eyes and wait a little bit occasionally and accommodate the people. Why the haste? I do not believe the management of the road intends that patrons should be treated in this manner or that it desires to drive the people to seek other means of transportation to the city. At the Boston station all persons within sight are given ample opportunity to get on board a train, but here in Winchester if you are not beside the train when it pulls in the conductor simply ignores you.

VICTIM.

TENNEY CUP.

Mr. Charles A. Baldwin was the winner of the Tenney cup at the Calumet club yesterday. The alleys were thronged with bowlers during the entire day. Many high scores were made. The cup was presented by Mr. Charles S. Tenney to be awarded to the club member rolling the highest three string total. It was of silver, gold lined, and stood almost 12 inches high. Mr. Baldwin rolled a total of 344.

A NEW SCHOOL BOARD.

At the March election there will be three vacancies to fill on the School Board—in fact a full Board will have to be elected. This will be because of the declination of Dr. Blaisdell to accept another term, he feeling that he cannot afford to take further time from his business. The Doctor has served six years. Rev. F. H. Means is to become the pastor of a church in Madison, Me., and in all probability will resign before the end of the year. This vacancy may be filled temporarily until the annual election. Mr. C. E. L. Wingate, the third member of the Board, is filling out the unexpired term of Mr. Odlin who has gone to Chicago, so that at the March meeting it will be necessary to again fill the position. Mr. Wingate will, no doubt, be willing to allow his name to be used for one of the vacancies, probably the three year term.

The citizens will have the important duty to perform of deciding on two entirely new men for the Board—one of the most important in town. The schools are now ably supervised and looked after closely by Supt. Herron, who is considered one of the ablest men who has ever filled this trying and particular position. Between now and the first of March, the citizens should consider the selection of the two men to fill the vacancies, and not leave the matter to the rush hours of the caucus.

THANKSGIVING SERVICE.

The Union Thanksgiving service, which was held at the Methodist Church Thursday morning, was largely attended, a goodly representation from the various denominations being present. The address, by Rev. William I. Lawrance, was ably given. The order of service consisted of responsive reading, led by Rev. Mr. Chaffee, prayer by Rev. Mr. Newton and reading of the scriptures by Rev. William Smith. The Governor's proclamation was read by Rev. Henry E. Hodge. Appropriate hymns, sung by the congregation, were supplemented with special music by a quartette consisting of Mr. A. P. Larsen of Somerville, Mrs. W. E. Miller, Mr. N. H. Seeley and Mr. N. W. Davis.

TRIOLET.

YOU lowered your eyes and whispered "No"
When first I came to woo.
You fain would jest with me, and so
You lowered your eyes and whispered "No."
But 'twas so soft and sweet and low
I dared to say, "Dost mean it, true?"
You lowered your eyes and whispered "No"
When first I came to woo.

A LITTLE DUTCH GARDEN.

I PASSED by a garden, a little Dutch garden,
Where useful and pretty things grew—
Heartsease and tomatoes and pinks and potatoes
And lilies and onions and rue.

I SAW in that garden, that little Dutch garden,
A chubby Dutch man with a spade
And a rosy Dutch frau with a shoe like a scow
And a flaxen haired little Dutch maid.

THERE grew in that garden, that little Dutch garden,
Blue flag flowers lovely and tall
And early blush roses and little pink posies,
But Gretchen was fairer than all.

MY heart's in that garden, that little Dutch garden.
It tumbled right in as I passed,
Mid 'wildering mazes of spinach and daisies,
And Gretchen is holding it fast.

HARPS HUNG UP IN BABYLON.

THE harps hung up in Babylon—
Their loosened strings rang on, sang on,
And cast their murmurs forth upon
The roll and roar of Babylon:
"Forget me, Lord, if I forget
Jerusalem for Babylon,
If I forget the vision set
High as the head of Lebanon
Is lifted over Syria yet,
If I forget and bow me down
To brutish gods of Babylon."

Two rivers to each other run
In the very midst of Babylon,
And swifter than their current fleets
The restless river of the streets
Of Babylon, of Babylon,
And Babylon's towers smite the sky,
But higher reeks to God most high
The smoke of her iniquity.
"But, oh, betwixt the green and blue
To walk the hills that once we knew
When you were pure and I was true"—
So rang the harps in Babylon—
"Or ere along the roads of stone
Had led us captive one by one
The subtle gods of Babylon."

The harps hung up in Babylon
Hung silent till the prophet dawn,
When Judah's feet the highway burned
Back to the holy hills returned
And shook their dust on Babylon.
In Zion's halls the wild harps rang,
To Zion's walls their smitten clang,
And, lo, of Babylon they sang!
They only sang of Babylon:
"Jehovah, round whose throne of awe
The vassal stars their orbits draw
Within the circle of thy law,
Canst thou make nothing what is done
Or cause thy servant to be one
That has not been in Babylon,
That has not known the power and pain
Of life poured out like driven rain?
I will go down and find again
My soul that's lost in Babylon."

Making American Opera Singers in America

Boston's New Opera Company Has Perfected a Plan to Obviate the Necessity of a Foreign Debut—Young Americans Must Begin at the Bottom, as Foreigners Do—Encouragement Is Also Given to American Musicians to Write Grand Operas—The Processes of Training for the Operatic Stage.

BOSTON, November 21, 1908—In Paris one finds the Conservatoire where young men and women of talent learn to sing operatic roles and l'Opera and l'Opera Comique where, when they are deemed competent, they are given trial in minor parts. It does not consort with French ideas of thoroughness for them to try to begin at the top. In this country for the first time a somewhat similar arrangement has just gone into effect. America henceforth will be self sufficient as regards opera. It will be possible for aspiring youth to begin at the bottom of the ladder and climb up—the only right way to get there. No more will it be obligatory on the candidate for operatic honors however or wherever trained—and it has for some years been possible to get as good instruction in singing in this country as anywhere else—to make a debut in some provincial European town at cost of from five hundred to five thousand dollars, spent in "seeing" everybody whose hand is outstretched to take American money.

It was bound to come—some simple workable plan by which it would be possible for young Americans, not only to learn the art of singing in this country, but to get their professional start without going abroad. It is through no accident that it has come as part of a broad scheme of allied institutions that embraces the newest and most comprehensive organization for presentation of grand opera and the oldest and largest school for study of professional music. Jointly and severally these institutions constitute such a university of musical art and science as has never before existed.

The Boston Opera House, representing the first American operatic undertaking that will be in any way like the local opera houses found in most large European cities, will be opened next September under the directorship of Henry Russell, lately impresario of the San Carlo Opera Company, and of the management of Ralph L. Flanders, manager of the New England Conservatory of Music. Finally, to complete the series of educational advantages in a single city along has come the opening of the Boston Opera Company's school of grand opera, affiliated with the Conservatory, but necessarily devoted to closer specialization than prevails in a conservatory of all the musical arts and sciences. This new school will be conducted upon the principles which govern the management and artistic organization of the leading opera houses of the world. At the same time it will insure to its students advantages of individual observation and assistance, of thorough training in every branch of operatic art, which are less easily obtained in an opera house under the exigencies of the constant public performance of a large repertory.

Supplementary to this thorough fundamental training, the school will offer the widest opportunity for private appearance under all other conditions of public production, through the frequent performance of entire operas in ensemble and with action, with costumes and scenery, with chorus and with orchestral accompaniment. The management will reserve the right to require such students as in its judgment are fully prepared, to appear with the Boston Opera Company or with the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York by virtue of the reciprocal arrangement existing between the two companies.

The work of the school will be carried out wholly on professional lines, and will include only those branches which bear directly upon the metier of the opera singer. The affiliation of the school with the New England Conservatory of Music, however, will provide convenient and ample opportunity for such special work in voice culture, languages and general theoretical branches as may be necessary to supplement the student's equipment and the work of the opera school.

A picture of the kind of proficiency aimed at in practical preparation for operatic work of this kind is presentable in a description of the methods by which, under the coaching of Arnaldo Conti, conductor of the opera company, and of Menotti Delfino, its regisseur, students are brought forward to the requisite technical proficiency.

"Carmen!" calls Signor Delfino and they all gather again upon the stage—one to play the piano, and others to take their parts, uncostumed but enthusiastic, in the scene that finally gives Escamillo, the young baritone from Iowa, the opportunity to sing from behind the scenes that thrilling "To-re-odor, en-gard de! Toreador! Toreador!"

And through it all runs Bizet's vibrating music, while among the young people the energetic but kindly leader circulates, now exulting in a pupil's success, now despairing, now frantically beating out the music with both hands to enforce better phrasing from Don Jose, lately of Kansas City, whose dash and brilliancy are tempered with a certain lack of thoroughness, or stopping the whole performance to criticise the acting of Micaela, a teacher of music in a Boston school, who is only too liable to hurt the effect of her really fine soprano voice by her Bostonese stiffness of carriage. Everybody is so earnest, and yet so jolly during the Thursday afternoon practice work. Of course there are hitches and interruptions, as at all rehearsals, but the scene goes through to its gruelling finish, with everybody on the stage so absorbed that no one has heard, floating through the window, that other less musical chorus from the ball grounds quarter of a mile distant where the Bean-eaters are taking a fall out of a club from another city.

These means by which candidates for operatic roles are led to a practical grasp on the classical operas are already pretty well established. European practice has made them traditional. A number of American music schools have had courses covering some of the work necessary.

The completeness of the scheme of the Boston Opera Company and its direct connection with a grand operatic organization is what makes it unique. There must be, of course, instruction in dramatic action, including physical development, plastique, gesture, pantomime and stage dancing, under the instructorship of the regisseur of the opera company with the help of other professionals of large experience in the stage management of opera. Students will receive assignments to the roles for which they seem to be naturally adapted, these to be selected from the standard Italian, French and German operas, under coaching that accords with the traditions of the greatest masters. Scenes from the operas will be prepared and thoroughly rehearsed in what is called an ensemble class, whose primary purpose is, as the name indicates, to get performers to work together. Ensemble work, it should be said parenthetically, has long been emphasized at the New England Conservatory of Music, every effort being made to render players of different instruments proficient in playing together. Coordination of efforts between singers and instrumentalists will, of course, be an important part of the work of the opera school. An effort will be made to maintain the chorus of the Boston Opera Company as a body of the highest efficiency. For its membership native American talent will be chosen as far as possible, though the voices of singers will have to be considered first and their ancestry afterwards.

How much better for young Americans it is to begin in minor operatic roles rather than to start in the more prominent and difficult parts as so many have done who have made European appearances—with the chances about a hundred to one that the first appearance would be the last—can be appreciated by anybody who understands what a course of hard, strenuous work lies before even the talented. So intelligent an observer of American conditions as Vincent D'Indy, the distinguished French composer, wrote not long ago that American aspirants for musical careers would be much better off if they had a chance by remaining at home to start in smaller capacities as orchestral players or chorus singers and thence gradually to work up by proving ability to the more important positions.

Successful candidates for the chorus class will be thoroughly and systematically trained in this class maintained by the Boston Opera Company, a condition of their admission being that if their progress during the year is satisfactory the Boston Opera Company is to have the right to contract for their services as members of its chorus. An orchestra of professional musicians will be organized and regularly rehearsed, which will accompany all complete performances of opera in the school, and also the ensemble class, as above noted.

Popular interest in grand opera is now, being stimulated in the United States by so many different agencies that the success of the new plan of operatic education is practically assured. The metropolis and New Orleans for many years were the only cities having permanent opera. The example of Boston will undoubtedly spread. Meantime the companies centering in New York are giving more and more attention to suiting the requirements of all classes and conditions of Americans instead of maintaining a show for the benefit of millionaires. In particular the Metropolitan Opera Company is just now arranging a scheme after the university extension idea, for cooperating with local organizations which wish to present any of the well known grand operas. Communities interested in amateur undertakings of the kind will be able to secure from New York expert advice, photographic records and stereopticon slides, costumes and other helps toward making serious study and performance of the great musical classics. This movement will certainly serve as a great stimulus to undertaking of professional operatic careers by young Americans who show talent at local affairs.

The performance of grand operas written by American musicians and the fact that a field in this direction is now open, will also help to stimulate national and patriotic interest and to encourage plans for severe musical education. Part of the scheme of the Boston Opera Company is to offer from time to time works by American composers which seem to the management to be artistically worthy. The Metropolitan Opera Company is adopting a similar policy. Arrangements have been made to produce this winter "The Pipe of Desire," by Frederick S. Converse, a one-act romantic grand opera which was first performed by a company composed of professionals and music students at the New England Conservatory in 1906. How little has heretofore been accomplished in this department of music by native Americans—owing in large part to lack of incentive—is shown by the circumstance that previous to this initial performance of Mr. Converse's work only three grand operas by American composers had ever been staged, and that two of these represented unsuccessful attempts made back in the middle of the nineteenth century at a time when music was not sufficiently advanced technically in the United States to permit of equalling European standards.

In the midst of the present widespread popular interest in operatic affairs it is expected that many of the younger school of composers, educated in our universities and schools of professional music, will turn their attention to writing works that will have dramatic as well as musical quality.

DIRECT NOMINATION LEGISLATION.

So widespread is the agitation for direct legislation that the committee will undoubtedly be confronted by a grist of direct nomination bills and out of them all it is practically certain that some sort of a measure will be involved. How sweeping this will be, whether it will only include the officers to be voted for throughout the commonwealth, or whether it will include all officers to be voted for at the state election, remains of course to be seen.

The mass of voters, however, will be dissatisfied unless some progress is made towards direct nomniations in Massachusetts. The recent contest in the republican party for the lieutenant governorship nomination has made many notable converts in this state to the direct nomination cause. At present there is no more urgent advocate of direct nominations in Massachusetts than Albert Perkins Langtry of Springfield, editor of the Springfield Union and secretary of the republican state committee. The strong advocacy of the proposition by Editor Langtry is regarded as especially significant because of his well-known intimacy with Sen. Crane and the position which he holds in the republican organization.—[Practical Politics.

BOSTON PIN LEAGUE.

Calumet secured a firmer hold on last place in the Boston Pin League on Monday night by dropping three more points. The game was rolled on the home alleys and Arlington Boat Club was the winning team. Calumet seems to be assuredn ow of capturing the end prize in the league, unless it should have the misfortune to win a match.

Weed and Kinsley rolled the highest scores for the Calumet team, the former putting up a remarkably good game.

Calumet rolls its next game on Monday evening at the Highland Club.

Charles B. Goodhue, the oldest motorman on the Arlington-Stoneham line, died recently at his home in Reading, and under escort of 75 electric railroad men he was laid to rest in Lakeside Cemetery, Wakefield. He had for 27 years been in the employ of the Boston & Northern as a motorman. He was faithful to his duties, a valued employe, and esteemed by all for his many genial qualities and fellowship. He is survived by a widow and eight children, all of whom are living. His age was 52 years, 2 months, 12 days.

THANKSGIVING TURKEY ROLL.

The recent Thanksgiving turkey roll at the Calumet Club was the most successful held in a number of years. This year the rolling was limited to Saturday afternoons and evenings for the three weeks previous to the holiday, and close onto a hundred tries were made, about $20 being expended for turkeys.

Nine birds were awarded, being purchased at wholesale prices through the assistance of Mr. Rufus L. Clark, the winners holding the highest three string totals rolled in the contest, this being with handicap.

The lucky rollers were as follows:

John A. Caldwell	340
James H. Gerlach	335
Charles S. Tenney	333
Charles E. Barrett	330
Elmer P. Randlett	332
Geo. H. Lochman	330

Football Season Here

During the month of October every eye is turned toward the oval

Our purpose in advertising in this space is to turn the eyes of everybody, during the whole year toward the "Oval". Of course we mean "Creamalt" - the oval loaf.

For beauty of shape and for delicious ness of flavor, you won't tackle anything in the class of Creamalt. It's the only "Oval" people never "kick" at. Game starts next time you eat.

NOVEMBER SOCIAL.

The November Social at the First Congregational Church last Thursday evening took the form of a musicale, and was much enjoyed by a large audience. Appreciation of the efforts of those who took part was manifest throughout the evening. The musicale was given by the Appleton Ladies' Quartette — Eleanor Fox-Allen, Edith Lamphrey-Underhill, Edith Louise-Munroe, Kathleen Russell-Cook, Mrs. F. C. Alexander, Accompanist; Miss Mathilde Johnson, Reader.

The following ladies had charge of the evening's entertainment and they are deserving of hearty commendation for their success:

Technical Swearing.

The late Sir John Millais was a very keen fisherman. He used to tell a story of an old man who was his attendant during a day's sport in the north of England. The old man was full of local gossip and small scandal, and where the natural supply failed him he was clearly able to manufacture enough of his own to go on with. "I were out with the bishop yesterday," said the old man, referring to a popular church dignitary, who is also a good fisherman. "Ah," replied Millais, "he's a good man!" "Well," continued the old fellow, "'e may be, but 'e do swear a bit when 'e's fishin'." "Oh, nonsense!" replied Millais. "I don't believe that." The old man insisted that he was right, however. "I'll give you an instance," he said. "I was standin' 'longside o' the bishop, same as I might be aside o' you, and 'e'd got a big fellow at the end of 'is line that was pretty nigh pullin' 'im off 'is feet, and I turns to 'is lordship and I says, ''E pulls —— 'ard, don't he?' and the bishop says, 'Yes, 'e do.' Well, now, ain't that swearin'?"—London M. A. P.

In the Depths of the Sea.

The quantity of light emitted by many minute deep sea animals is so great as to supply over definite areas of the sea bottom a sufficient illumination to render visible the colors of the animals themselves. Some cephalopods are furnished with apparatus which reflects the light from their phosphorescent bodies upon the sea bottom over which they float. This reflecting apparatus is spoken of as "an efficient bullseye lantern for use in hunting through the abysmal darkness."

Explanations In Order.

A man whose wife was extremely jealous planned a pleasant surprise for her in the form of a trip to New York to see "The Merry Widow" and wrote a friend in the city to let him know the earliest date for which he could secure seats. The next day when he was away from home the following telegram was delivered there, addressed to him, but opened by his wife:

"Nothing doing with the widow until the 10th. Will that suit you?"

Explanations were demanded.

As to a Courtship.

"He's telling everybody that she is his first love."

"And she?"

"She is confiding to a select few that he is her last chance."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

PARK THEATRE.

When I went into the Park Theatre last night it did not take me long to recognize that that playhouse has come into its own again, and musical comedy of the clean, fragrant and satisfactory kind will hold sway there for many weeks. At this house last night Charles Frohman's musical play, "Miss Hook of Holland," which ran nearly all last season in New York City, was the medium for introducing Frank Daniels, the funniest and most widely known of all the American laugh provokers. The title of the play has been changed by dropping the "Miss" and it is now called "Hook of Holland," but the quaint and pleasing book and the delightful songs remain unchanged.

Of all the charming and dainty musical shows which Charles Froham has given the public since he entered the field of theatrical management—and "The Three Little Maids," "The School Girls," and "The Little Cherub" will instantly come to the minds of all—in this connection none has made a stronger bid for popularity along these same lines than "Miss Hook of Holland."

But in addition to the merits of the music, even a stronger feature was the comic acting of the familiar Frank. He comes ambling on the stage in a grotesque make up, as the prosperous Dutchman in Holland, who owns a distillery and has a pretty daughter as dear to him as his money or the receipt for the manufacture of "Cream of the Sky."

Miss Christie MacDonald made a charming Sally Hook. Her tenderness and affection for her old father were really pretty and amusing, and the large company contains, besides Adele Rowland, Leslie Stiles, Glen White, Arthur Harrold, Will Danforth, William Kent, Tom Collins, Edward Burch, Edith Burch, Fluretta de Mar, Flossie Hope and Emily Lee.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

For an all round bill with every act a feature, it would be difficult to surpass that announced for Keith's Theatre, the week of November 30th, and there are other acts to be announced. One of the principals will be Rock and Fulton, those recent acquisitions from the legitimate stage, who come into vaudeville with an elaborate dancing act, in which Mr. Rock introduced the hypnotic dance which has become one of the biggest novelties in recent years. Also on this bill are Marcel's Living Art Studies, unquestionably the most remarkable series of tableaus representing famous pictures, statues and base reliefs that has ever been given to the public. The Six Musical Cuttys are known as the strongest musical team on the stage. Agnes Scott and Horace Wright are always welcome in that daintiest and prettiest of all singing sketches, entitled "The Wall Between.' Belle Blanche is also on the bill with her imitations. Sam J. Curtis will be seen in a comedy sketch. There are also Robert's Animals, Ryan and White, the singing and dancing team, Marcello and others to be announced.

BOSTON THEATRE.

One of the most remarkable successes will be presented at the Boston Theatre the week of November 30th, in "A Message from Mars."

The story shows the universal sign of selfishness as portrayed in Horace Parker, a wealthy, well born and well bred Englishman. He is both arrogant and extremely selfish when the play opens and has just broken off his engagement with a very sweet girl, whom he had refused to take to a ball. Soon after he falls asleep in his room and a terrible vision appears before him. It is a Martian who has been sent to earth for a small punishment, and is forbidden to return to Mars until he has made unselfish, the most selfish man in the world. He has found Parker, whom he takes in hand in the most amusing manner. Parker is finally reformed. The play is one that could not be well told in the compass of a small article, but it is one that must be seen to thoroughly enjoy it.

SUBURBAN LIFE FOR DECEMBER.

Being the Christmas number, the December Suburban Life naturally is replete with articles relating to the holidays. One of the most entertaining is a personal reminiscence by Clara Morris, the famous actress, entitled "My Best-Remembered Christmas."

O. P. Beckley writes on "Christmas Evergreens from the South," and T. D. Hatfield tells the Truth about the Christmas Rose."

"The Lonesomest Boy" is a charming Christmas sketch by Emma C. Dowd.

A timely and highly important contribution, entitled "Gifford Pinchot and the Country Life Commission," includes an interview by Edward I. Farrington with Mr. Pinchot.

"Don't Butcher Your Trees," by J. Horace McFarland, President of the American Civic Association, contains timely advice expressed in forceful language.

Other interesting articles are, "Long-Haired Cats of Royal Blood," "A Living from Two and a Half Acres," "A Suburban Bungalow," "New Things in the Way of Furniture," "Christmas in a New England Farmhouse," "Roadside Tire Repairs Abolished," "Country Games for Christmas Eve," "Simple rules for Poultry Feeding," "The Nuthatches' Lunch Counter," and "The Season's Christmas Books."

A VICTIM OF CIRCUMSTANCE.

HE wished to hold an office,
But that could never be.
The man without a country
Was better off than he.

HIS views upon all questions
Were eminently sound.
Their wisdom could be never
With candidacy crowned.

HIS public life was spotless,
His hearth a model sweet,
His bearing in a crisis
Appropriate and meet.

WHY could he not be chosen
To bear his party's torch?
He lived in an apartment
And hadn't any porch.

Business Good.

In our travels in the wholesale district of Boston, all concerned speak with enthusiasm of the improved business conditions. Would this have happened if Bryan had been elected?

Good Roads Pay.

Winchester has more macadamized road than any place in this vicinity, and citizens of neighboring towns interested in good roads have been waiting to hear the verdict as to the wisdom of putting so much money into the highways. Consideration should of course be given in the estimate of their influence in attracting new residents and in general civic improvement. An article on macadamized roads in the Winchester STAR is headed "Our Macadamized Road Fiasco." Will the STAR inform us whether this caption has a local application, and whether the Winchester policy is conceded a wise one?—[Reading Chronicle.

The words quoted above by our esteemed contemporary formed the caption to an article taken from the Scientific American. Bro. Twombly asks the STAR if "this caption has a local application, and whether the Winchester policy is conceded a wise one." We believe that the wisdom of spending considerable money annually in improved roads is clearly seen in the advanced position that Winchester has taken among the suburban towns as a place of residence. Good roads are as valuable an asset to a town as are its schools, water and sewerage systems. Well kept streets serve as a magnet to draw people to a city or town, and Winchester is getting its full share of people who believe in civic improvements. An up-to-date town requires money to keep it in condition, but the returns from the money invested clearly prove that it pays. Town business should be managed the same as business men conduct their private affairs. Shipshod methods are not attractive, and this applies to towns and cities as well as private enterprises. We believe that good roads have been to a great extent responsible for the prosperous and popular Winchester of today, and that it was one of the wisest steps ever taken by the town when it entered on an era of macadam streets.

Unreasonable Delay.

Pending the abolition of the crossing at the centre there is a long and constantly growing list of dogs being killed. The impatient dog sees an opening between two wheels of the car of a rapidly moving train and he makes a dash to get through, but before he does so the wheels catch him and he is done for. Some get hit by the locomotive and hurled to death. However, aside from the many dogs killed since the question of the abolition of the crossing was first taken up by the special commission some three years ago, no person has been killed, but there have been many narrow escapes. But dogs don't count in hastening the grade crossing question—it will require the sacrifice of lives more precious.

For three years all contemplated improvements in the centre have been held up and this, too, to say the least, is a serious matter. Owners wishing to improve their properties have not cared to do so pending a settlement of the matter. Once decide the question and these holders of real estate would be given a chance to erect new buildings or otherwise improve their holdings. They should not be kept on the ragged edge of uncertainity any longer. The National Bank, it is understood, would like to erect a handsome building for its banking business; the town desires to build a new fire station and take its men out of a building that is not fit for human habitation and which the Board of Health would be justified in ordering vacated. Then there is the treatment of the ponds and river, a matter which has been for a long time in the hands of a special committee. These are only a few of the important matters that are being held up. The delay in settling the grade crossing question is unreasonable and a reproach to the Commission who must be held responsible. The town from the first has been anxious to push the matter along as fast as possible, but the stumbling block is the method in vogue of stringing these hearings along as far as possible. A salaried and permanent State Commission would waste no time in deciding how crossings should be abolished. Three, four and five years are too long a time to wait to decide on a matter that could be settled by three able business men in six months.

Ancient Chains.

"Some authorities," says an English writer, "give the Britons credit for originating the cable chain because Julius Caesar is recorded as having been unable to cut the cables of the Gaul's vessels, 'as they were made of iron.' This may have been a chain in the present acceptation of the term, but it is doubtful, because the first patent for chainmaking was obtained in England in 1634 by a blacksmith named Philip White. The patent was for fourteen years, and in consideration of it White had to pay £5 in lawful money yearly 'at the exchequer, Westminster, att the Feast of the Blessed Virgyn and Saint Michell the Archangell by even and eual process.'

"His patent is described as follows: 'A way for the wearing of shipps with iron chaynes by finding out the true heating (prepareing and tempering of Lyron for that (purpose and that he hath nowe attayned to the true vse of the said chaynes and that the same wilbe for the great saveing of cordage and safety of shipners and will redound to good of our Comon Wealth.'"

Bread That Intoxicates.

In far eastern Russia, in that region which lies between the sea and the river called Mssuri, the humidity of the climate as well as of the soil is remarkable. Vegetation is here distinguished for its wondrous exuberance, to such an extent that the soil never dries up. The result is that the inhabitants in order to prevent putrefaction of the roots sow their corn upon a series of layers of the soil. Nevertheless in certain districts the humidity is so intense that there grows upon the ears of corn a kind of fungous matter made up of micro fungi. As a result of this sporadic excrescence the bread made from the corn in question gives all the results of an overdose of alcohol. In very humid climates the phenomenon is likewise known, though to nothing like the extent of eastern Siberia, where whole districts are affected by this strange kind of "alcoholized bread."

Shakespeare's Name.

It has often been a puzzle to students of Shakespeare why his name is spelled in so many different ways. Shakespeare himself is said to have signed his name on different occasions "Shakspeare" and "Shakespere," and learned disquisitions have been written to prove which is the proper spelling. None perhaps was more amusing than the "weather" reason given in 1851 by Albert Smith, who averred that he had found it in the Harleian manuscript. It was as follows:

How dyd Shakspeare spell hys name?
Ye weatherre mayde ye change, we saye.
So write it as ye please:
When ye sonne shone he mayde hys A;
When wette he took hys E'es.

OBSERVATIONS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The excellent piece on macadamized roads maintenance reprinted in the STAR November 13th from the Scientific American should be carefully read and digested by all interested in our roads. It hits the nail squarely on the head and will save us many dollars as well as give us better roads if we follow its advice.

Far more was brought about to improve the Winchester schools than what related to the kindergartens as a result of the town meeting referred to in last week's STAR. Those at the bottom of the movement believed the school committee had gone crazy, so to speak, over kindergartens to the neglect and injury of the other schools, particularly the grammar school, and the decided changes made sustained their contention. No motion was offered to abolish the kindergartens.

"Folded Umbrella" is hereby informed that on the request of the Selectmen in 1905 the Boston & Maine and Boston & Northern agreed upon a new crossing house to be used jointly, but as the B. & M. was not willing to build as aesthetic a structure as some of the Selectmen wanted the whole project fell through.

The effect of establishing factories here in all of its bearings is a broad one, but if anybody thinks it would not decidedly increase our tax rate he is away off, and we are too near Boston to get much trade from the employees in offset. Winchester will do better for all of us with a ten cent fare and without the factories.

I wonder if Senator Treadway thinks the Commonwealth should pay any part of the expenses incurred by the candidates for the presidency of the Senate in their recent protracted and peculiar contest? Some reform is needed there certainly.

Mr. J. O. Fagan in his talk at the city club last week said the railroad grade crossings were not properly protected. Well, whose fault is it? The law says the aldermen, selectmen or twenty legal voters may petition the railroad commission on anything connected with the operation or physical condition of railroads or street railways. It is also the duty of the commission to act of its own volition. The law is all right, the trouble is with the people, and their agents. Publicity and truth is all that is needed. How are you going to get it?

THE PLAY'S THE THING.

An event in the near future which is anticipated with great delight by all society in our town is the presentation of "Midsummer Night's Dream" on the evening of December eighth by members of The Fortnightly under the management of the Dramatic Committee of the Club. No pains have been spared to make the production a success. Mendelssohn's music is to be given by an orchestra of selected musicians under the able leadership of Mrs. W. A. Le Favour. That alone is sufficient to guarantee excellence in every way. The fairies of the play are represented by High School girls, puck alone being represented by outside talent.

The cast otherwise is uniformly good, and in some cases more than good, the lovers in the play doing of such a character as to make many professionals look to their laurels; in the comedy group, the parts of Pyramus and Thisbe are especially well taken, and the audience will find much to commend in the work of the minor characters of the play.

The staging will be under the direction of Mr. Dugan who needs no recommendation to the people of Winchester.

The coaching has been done by Mrs. Mary L. Robinson, who has given most generously of her time and talent. Nothing in recent years has called forth just the preparation that has been given to this most charming production of the great master, and anyone who fails to supply himself with a ticket at an early date will make a great mistake.

The management request that for the comfort of all present, ladies in the audience be prepared to remove their hats. As the hall will be darkened while the play is being presented patrons are requested to note that seats cannot be found while the curtain is raised.

The proceeds of the production are to be given to the philanthropies of The Fortnightly, of which The Vacation Playroom and a scholarship fund are the principal objects.

PARISH OF THE EPIPHANY.

The Epiphany Circle will meet next Monday afternoon at 3 in the choir room.

The Woman's Guild will meet next Tuesday afternoon at the usual hour with Mrs. Cleveland, Sheffield road. The meeting will be in charge of the Missions Committee. The speaker will be the Rev. A. D. Gring of Japan.

The first week in Advent beginning next Sunday has been set apart as a week of prayer. The Brotherhood of St. Andrew and the Brotherhoods of other churches have united in urging this observance upon the men of the church. Suggestions for the observance of the week have been sent through the parish, together with the parish calendar which has just been issued.

Some Famous Sallies.

Great men have been guilty of punning, and some of the most famous of these sallies have come down in history. There is something melancholy about the pun of Dr. Thomas Browne, who, having unsuccessfully courted a lady and being challenged to drink to her health, as had been his wont, replied, "I have toasted her many years, but I cannot make her Browne, so I will toast her no longer."

Sydney Smith's jest at the expense of Mrs. Grote had the salt of malice in it. She was famed for ill taste in dress, and as one day she swept by in an extraordinary headdress Smith pointed her out to a friend, saying, "That is the origin of the word 'grotesque.'"

Mrs. Grote, however, had her revenge. Sydney Smith's daughter married a Dr. Holland. When the latter was knighted some one mentioned his wife as Lady Holland. "Do you mean Lord Holland's wife?" asked the listener.

"No," replied Mrs. Grote. "This new Holland, whose capital is Sydney."

When the barrister Campbell married Miss Scarlett his friend explained his absence from court by telling the judge that Campbell was suffering from a bad attack of Scarlett fever.

Installments All Around.

Patient (gloomily)—I don't seem to be gaining very fast, doctor.

Doctor (cheerfully)—You can't expect to get well at one jump. You will have to regain your health gradually day by day—sort of on the installment plan, as it were.

Patient (brightening up)—Well, doctor, if this thing keeps on much longer I'm afraid that you will have to collect your bill in the same way.—Judge's Library.

Why They Objected.

"No," said the fireman, who represented the truck company that had refused to work with a colored truckman, "there is no race prejudice in it. But we certainly hate to work with a man whose face will look just as clean on the way home from a long fire fight as it did when we started, while we other chaps all look smudgy."—Judge's Library.

Not a New Species.

"Now, what shall we name the baby?" inquired the professor's wife.

"Why, this species has been named," answered the professor in astonishment. "This is a primate mammal, homo sapiens."—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Unsolved Problems.

The three great problems on the solution of which humanity is bent are the same that perplexed our ancestors—the immortality of the soul, perpetual motion and women's hats.—Paris Figaro.

It is unpleasant to turn back, even though it be to take the right way.—German Proverb.

His Harmless Candidate.

A Georgia farmer posted this sign on his front gate:

"Candidates Will Pass On. No Time to Talk to 'Em."

One morning his little boy shouted from the garden walk:

"There's one o' them canderdates here, and he says he'll come in anyhow!"

The man looked toward the gate and said:

"Let him in. There's no harm in him I know him. He's been runnin' ever since the war, jest to be a-runnin'. It runs in his blood, an' he can't help it!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

To the Honorable the Judges of the Land Court:

Respectfully represents Nora T. McCarthy, of Winchester in the County of Middlesex and said Commonwealth, that she is the owner in fee simple of a lot of land and the buildings thereon situated on Main street in said Winchester and described as follows:

"A certain parcel of land situated on Main street in said Winchester, bounded and described as follows: Easterly by said Main street about one hundred seven and 52-100 (107.52) feet; Southerly by land now or formerly of the Town of Winchester about two hundred nine and 4-100 (209.04) feet; Westerly by land of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts seventy-four and 35-100 (74.35) feet; and Northerly by land now or formerly of the First Congregational Society about two hundred thirty-six and 2-10 (236.2) feet. Containing about twenty thousand four hundred forty and 3-100 (20,440.03) square feet, be said measurements more or less or however otherwise bounded and described. Said premises are shown on a Plan of Land on Main street opposite junction of Washington street in said Winchester belonging to Henry F. Johnson, dated 1907, and duly recorded. Said premises are part of the same premises conveyed to Maria L. Johnson by deed of William P. Sargent dated September 1, 1866, and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book 994, Page 192."

That the recorded title of said real estate is encumbered by an undischarged mortgage covering said premises, given by one Francis H. Johnson and Maria L. Johnson in her own right to one William P. Sargent, dated September 1, 1866, and duly recorded with Middlesex Deeds, Book 994, Page 235;

That said mortgagor and those having her estate in said premises have had uninterrupted possession of said real estate for more than twenty years after the expiration of the time for the full performance of the conditions of said mortgage;

That no payment on account of the amount secured by said mortgage has been made and no act in recognition of its existence as a valid mortgage has been done within said twenty years, and your petitioner believes that said mortgage was long since paid, and by accident or misadvertence the discharge thereof has not been recorded in said Registry of Deeds;

WHEREFORE your petitioner prays that such notice may be ordered to be given to the representatives of said William P. Sargent and those interested in his estate and to all other persons interested in said estate as the Court may order; and the decree may be entered setting forth such findings of the Court in relation thereto and ordering that from and after such decree no action shall ever be brought by any person to claim a title under said mortgage, and that the said mortgage be released and cancelled upon the records.

By her attorneys,
PAUL & BARNARD.

LAND COURT.

Upon the foregoing petition, it is ordered that the petitioner give notice to all persons interested in said petition to appear before the Land Court, at Cambridge, within and for our said County of Middlesex, (where appearances and answers may be filed with Edwin O. Childs, Register of Deeds for the South Registry District of said Middlesex County, as Assistant Recorder of said Court) on the first Monday of January next, by causing a true and attested copy of said petition and this order to be published forthwith once a week for three successive weeks, in the Winchester Star, a newspaper published in Winchester, in said County of Middlesex, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before said first Monday of January next; by serving each known respondent within the Commonwealth with a like attested copy of said petition and order, fourteen days at least before said first Monday of January next; and by serving a like attested copy of said petition and order, by registered mail on each known respondent without the Commonwealth, as soon as may be, and in any event fourteen days at least before said first Monday of January next; that all respondents may then and there show cause why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

By the Court.

PROBATE COURT.

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin and all other persons interested in the estate of Bessie Louise Lane, late of Winchester, in said County deceased.

WHEREAS, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court, for Probate, by Charles Albert Lane who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to him, the executor therein named, without giving a surety on his official bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Cambridge, in said County of Middlesex, on the seventeenth day of December A. D. 1908, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Winchester Star, a newspaper published in Winchester, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court, and by mailing post-paid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, CHARLES J. McINTIRE, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this twenty fourth day of November, in the year one thousand nine hundred and eight.

ESTABLISHED 1854.

In selecting furs about which your personal knowledge is necessarily limited it is always safest to purchase from a responsible dealer who has a reputation earned by years of testing to maintain, and who does not desire and cannot afford to treat you unfairly.

For nearly fifty years we have been established in Boston as manufacturers of High Grade Furs, collecting the skins from all over the world and making them into every conceivable kind of fur attire.

This long experience in satisfying the needs of the most discriminating persons, has taught us how to give the largest possible value for every dollar expended with us.

All of our garments are fashioned after the latest Paris and London styles and are guaranteed in every respect to give perfect satisfaction, and to be superior to other fur garments when price, quality and workmanship are considered.

This is why shrewd fur buyers prefer to deal with a long established house whose entire business is centered in one location and whose workrooms are always open to inspection.

A WAR TRAGEDY.

Pathetic Incident at the Siege of Port Hudson.

At the siege at Port Hudson, La., there was one gun commanded by Alphonso Dubreuil. He was a young sugar planter who had opposed secession, but maintained that if Louisiana seceded he would go with his state. Dr. Chatrand, his neighbor, was a violent secessionist, and Dubreuil and the doctor's daughter Amelia were lovers. Louisiana seceded. Alphonso raised a company and proved so brave a Confederate that the doctor, who had opposed his daughter's marriage, readily consented, and the pair were married.

His bride was accorded special permission to go into the bomb proofs of the fort, where in comparative safety she could be near her husband. There she saw him operating his enormous gun, but her heart was torn with fear for his safety. Suddenly she became excited by the noise of firing and, rushing out from her place of safety, was struck by a piece of shell and fell back lifeless. Dubreuil ran to her side, saw death in her face and went back bravely to his gun.

The next morning was beautiful, and the sun shone gloriously. There was cessation of hostilities that the dead might be buried. Thus engaged, a request came from the enemy to allow the body of a young lady to pass through our lines. It was granted. The little cortege came, preceded by a military band playing a mournful dirge, and halted at the outpost. The old musket box used as a bier was accompanied by two ladies and several officers. One of the latter, a handsome young fellow with long hair, walked calmly and slowly, but his face betrayed the greatest grief. A detail of Confederate privates acted as pallbearers. Our men uncovered their heads.

All were blindfolded and led through our lines to the steamboat. They bade a last adieu to the dead bride and returned blindfolded.

It was the saddest sight I ever saw.—G. N. Saussy in Spare Moments.

ASLEEP UNDER WATER.

One of the Funny Incidents Possible In a Diver's Life.

As showing how much at home a man may be today under water I may relate an amusing story. Some months ago while a great battleship was at Malta one of the seamen divers went down to clear her propeller from some flotsam that had become entangled, and he failed to come up. It chanced that the rest of the battleship's divers were ashore, and grave concern was felt on the ironclad for the missing worker. Signals by telephone and life line were sent below without avail. In the launch above the throb-throb of the air pump's cylinders went on, but the attendants looked at one another in dismay, fearing some strange tragedy deep down in those heaving green seas.

The worst was feared when some big brushes and other tools came floating to the surface, and thereupon the navigating lieutenant sent ashore an urgent message for one of the other divers. The man came on board, dressed immediately and went below only to come up full of indignation.

"Why, that fellow's been asleep all this time!" he said wrathfully. It was true. The man had just had his lunch, and, finding the work much less serious than he had thought, he finished it in a few minutes and then sat comfortably on one of the giant blades of the battleship propeller and went to sleep with inquisitive fishes swarming around him, attracted by the dazzling searchlight on his breast. The officers were so amused at the occurrence that no punishment was inflicted on the lazy one.—St. Nicholas.

THE LOGIC OF FACTS.

Socialism Begins With "Public Utilities" and Then Throttles Private Business.

Its advocates say that municipal ownership is not socialism because it confines itself to public utilities. But that is a very elastic phrase which can easily be stretched to include any industry the profits of which appeal to public cupidity or the municipalization of which will make a taking "issue" for a political or journalistic demagogue. Everybody in Vienna drinks beer; brewing is a "public utility;" the city has invested $2,000,000 in a municipal brewery and another tidy sum in a municipal beer palace, so that the thirsty citizens may get his jag without being dependent upon private enterprise. Why not? Everybody in Vienna dies—ultimately. Another "public utility" is grasped by the growing army of city officials, and the leading undertaking establishments are bought out at a cost of $500,000. Again, why not? Although everybody in Vienna doesn't eat meat (the pay of minor city employees doesn't permit such a luxury), the retail butchers were discovered to be making a profit which might much better be in the city treasury than in private pockets. To think was to act, and Vienna became a purveyor of meat. When you mix government and business you get socialism, the degree of socialism depending only upon how much business you mix with your government, not what sort of business—"public utilities" or otherwise.

CORRUPTION THE DANGER.

English Expert Warns Against Too Many City Employees.

The real danger of municipal ownership is the danger of corruption. Men in all industries must frequently agitate for increase of pay. It is natural. You cannot blame them for doing so. But if men are constantly agitating for increase of pay it follows that their employers must constantly have thrown upon them the disagreeable task of refusing. Who in the council will refuse those demands? The conscientious man will be foremost in resisting unreasonable demands, and the inevitable result of his conduct will be that he will be remembered at the next election. The result will be that you will get a lowering in the tone of the body elected to the council, and you will have a lowering in the tone of the electors.

The men look for an increase of pay as a demand for justice. Everybody considers himself insufficiently paid. [Laughter.] They will come to regard their vote more and more as a private property and not as a public duty to be exercised in the interests of the whole of the state. And the more and more they cease to consider their vote in a public duty the more and more they will go down the hill on the path that leads in the end to direct and open corruption.—From Address Delivered by Major Leonard Darwin Before Canadian Club, Montreal.

Reaping the Whirlwind.

Wheeling, W. Va., has gone more deeply into municipal ownership than almost any other city in the United States. Some of its undertakings are in desperate need of reconstruction, but apparently nobody wants to lend it the necessary money, and no depreciation fund has been provided. The situation is thus described in the Municipal Journal and Engineer:

"As a result of inability to sell municipal improvement bonds, which have been authorized by citizens in a popular election, Wheeling finds itself in a very serious predicament. There were bids for but a little over $50,000 worth of the issues of $695,000, and it is likely that a new ordinance will have to be framed for resubmission to the people, entailing additional expense and necessarily retarding the work on the improvements. Bids had been advertised for, and but three were received. Two were from citizens who were willing to take a small amount at par. The third was from a Kansas City corporation, made with the proviso that all the contemplated work be awarded the company at a reasonable price."

Waste at Newcastle, Ind.

Municipal ownership of the water plant in this city has proved more expensive each year and has reached a point where radical steps must be taken by the city authorities. Since the failure of the gas wells owned by the city fuel bills have become an important item and the cost of operating the plant has largely increased.

Using water at a flat rate, consumers have become careless, with the result that thousands of gallons of water are wasted each month. The waste has become so wanton that several times this summer the city would have been in great danger had a serious fire broken out. The waste has also increased the operating expenses, more than three times as much water being pumped at the plant as is necessary.—Municipal Journal and Engineer.

A Vain Search.

Hudson, in this county, has done its own lighting for the past eleven years and run behind more than $2,000 a year in doing it. Like Wakefield, it has found a lighting plant a pretty expensive utility. There is nothing in the Hudson outfit to show that the grand deficit of $23,000 in the time mentioned has gone into the plant, and it is not easy for the townsmen to find where it has gone.—Lowell (Mass.) Citizen.

The municipal electricity undertakings of Brighton, England, caused a loss during the past year of about $18,000, bringing the losses for three years up to over $74,000.—St. Louis Times.

SUNSHINE.

A LITTLE gold amid the gray;
That's sunshine.
A little brightness on the way;
That's sunshine.
A little glimpsing of the blue,
A little widening of the view,
A little heaven breaking through;
That's sunshine.

A little looking for the light;
That's sunshine.
A little patience through the night;
That's sunshine.
A little bowing of the will
A little resting on the hill,
A little standing very still;
That's sunshine.

A little smiling through the tears;
That's sunshine.
A little faith behind the fears;
That's sunshine.
A little folding of the hand,
A little yielding of demand,
A little grace to understand;
That's sunshine.

SUPPOSE.

SUPPOSE your mind a garden were,
All ready for the spring,
And everything you planted there
Would soon be blossoming.

SUPPOSE that evil thoughts were weeds
That rankly grew apace
And every dream of selfish deeds
Should blossom in disgrace.

WHILE every impulse to be kind,
To ease some other's woes,
Should bud and blossom in your mind
A fair and fragrant rose.

SUPPOSE that every idle whim
And every thought of scorn
Should find its fruitage in a grim
And poison laden thorn.

WHILE every purpose to uplift
Your soul from sordid ways
Should blossom in a snow white drift
Of tender lily sprays.

'TIS surely with no danger fraught
Supposing things like this,
And maybe here's a seed of thought
To flower forth in bliss.

—John Kendrick Bangs.

IN LEAP YEAR.

HE loves me! He loves me not!
The wind blows cold! The wind blows hot!
I watch his lips, his eyes and nose
And wonder if I dare propose.
I wonder if he'd answer yes
And seal it with a warm caress,
Or would he tell me to see mother
Or volunteer to be my brother?

LAST night I took Jack unawares
And kissed him. We were on the stairs.
Of course he struggled and was fussed
Because his nice mustache was mussed,
But in his roguish eye the while
I saw the portent of a smile—
The pardon of the robber bold
Before the booty had grown cold.

HE always gladly wears my flowers
And lets me call and stay for hours,
And when at last I rise to go
He'll say, "Why do you hurry so?"
And every day I think I'll speak,
And put it off from week to week,
And watch his lips and eyes and nose,
And wonder if I dare propose.

ADAM AND EVE.

WHEN Adam was created
He dwelt in Eden's shade,
As Moses has related,
And soon a bride was made.

He had no conversation,
But seemed to be alone
Till to his admiration
He found he'd lost a bone.

Great was his exultation
When first he saw his bride;
Great was his elevation
To see her by his side.

He spoke as in a rapture,
"I know from whence she came;
From my left side extracted,
And woman is her name."

The woman she was taken
From under Adam's arm,
So she must be protected
From injury and harm.

The woman she was taken
From near to Adam's heart,
By which we are directed
That they must never part.

Likewise that he should love her
And treat her as a friend;
Prize nothing else above her
Till life shall have an end.

The woman was not taken
From Adam's head, we see,
So she is not to rule him,
The meaning seems to be.

ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL.

A BACHELOR sat in his chair, and he thought,
And he made up his mind that he wouldn't be caught.
And yet he wanted to do what he ought,
And he thought, and he thought, and he thought.

A LITTLE maid sat in her chair, and she thought,
And she made up her mind that she wouldn't be caught.
And yet she wanted to do what she ought,
And she thought, and she thought, and she thought.

A BACHELOR sat in a chair, and he thought,
And a little maid sat by him, just as she ought,
For, alas, they forgot about not being caught,
But they thought,
And they thought,
And they thought.

LOVE'S PATHWAY.

LOVE'S pathway is a winding trail,
Just wide enough for two to tread.
They wander far o'er hill and dale,
While Cupid wings his way o'erhead.

IF wayside brambles should annoy,
Their steps have strayed too far apart;
The way is but a lengthened joy
If lovers tread it heart to heart.

FOR those whose souls are pure and fine
Kind heaven a magic spell doth send,
For by some sorcery divine
Love's circling pathway has no end.

AH! WHY WILL MEN FORGET?

Millions a hero—princes were privileged
To kill, and numbers sanctified the crime.
Ah! Why will kings forget that they are men
And mean that they are brethren?

WEIGHT OF A HORSE.

Bad Guesses Made by Men Unskilled In Horseflesh.

Many people, even among those who frequently make use of horses, have little idea what an ordinary horse weighs and would have much difficulty to guess whether a given animal standing before their eyes weighed 500 or 1,500 pounds. Yet they would have no such difficulty with a man and probably be able to guess, especially if they were good Yankees, within ten or twenty pounds of his weight. The governments of Europe have long been purchasing and weighing horses for the military service and transferring them from carriage or draft employment to the various branches of cavalry and artillery. The animals are ordinarily assigned according to weight. The French military authorities find that an ordinary light carriage or riding horse, such as in the United States would be called a "good little buggy horse," weighs from 360 to 400 kilograms—say from 800 to 900 pounds. Such horses as these are assigned to the light cavalry corps. The next grade above, which in civil life passes as a "coupe horse," or carriage horse of medium weight, ranges in weight up to 480 kilograms, about 1,070 pounds. This horse goes to help mount the cavalry of the line.

Next come the fashionable "coach horses" of persons of luxury, which weigh from 500 to 580 kilograms, or from 1,000 to nearly 1,300 pounds. These horses go to serve the purpose of drill for the cavalry belonging to the reserve military forces. Above these there are still two grades of heavy horses. The first are those used for ordinary draft purposes and are commonly found drawing the omnibuses of Paris where such vehicles are still in use. These weigh from 1,100 to 1,500 pounds. The heaviest horses are the Clydesdales and Percherons, which are oxen in size and strength and which weigh from 600 to 800 and sometimes even up to 900 kilograms—that is, from 1,300 up to nearly 2,000 pounds. None of these Percherons of the heaviest weight are used in the military service, but some of the lighter ones are employed for draft and artillery purposes.—Buffalo Commercial.

AIDED HER RIVAL.

Romance of a London Society Leader and a Diamond Necklace.

The jewelers of Bond street could if they liked tell many an amazing story. There is no need to dilate on the fascination which scintillating gems exercise upon the feminine mind. That fascination is a fact and may serve to explain a mortal enmity which existed recently and probably still exists between two well known society leaders. To one of them a highly placed admirer mentioned his intention to purchase a diamond necklace. Knowing that the lady possessed more than a superficial knowledge of the value of stones, he begged her to select for him what he required. The price he was prepared to give was £1,500. The lady jumped to the conclusion that such a request could have but one meaning—viz, that she herself was to be the eventual recipient of the gift. She thereupon visited the jeweler's shop and inspected his stock, but at the price she was empowered to give saw nothing that particularly took her fancy. A fascinating piece of workmanship, however, did attract her, the price of which was 3,000 guineas. The desire to possess it became irresistible. She arranged with the jeweler to send the necklace to the purchaser and invoice it to him at the agreed upon price, while she gave her own check for the balance. Then she went home and awaited the arrival of the gift. Some days passed, but there was no appearance of the necklace. A horrible doubt which assailed her became certainty a day or two later when she saw the identical necklace she had helped to pay for sparkling on the neck of a younger and more beautiful rival.—Grand Magazine.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constutional disease, therefore requires constutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

This woman says Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved her life. Read her letter.

Mrs. T. C. Willadsen, of Manning, Iowa, writes

"I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved my life, and I cannot express my gratitude to you in words. For years I suffered with the worst forms of female complaints, continually doctoring and spending lots of money for medicine without help. I wrote you for advice, followed it as directed, and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has restored me to perfect health. Had it not been for you I should have been in my grave to-day. I wish every suffering woman would try it."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

LAND COURT.

To the Lowell Five Cents Savings Bank, a duly existing corporation having its usual place of business in Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, and said Commonwealth; Horatio N. Bryer, Henry F. Bower, Ella F. Crosby and Ella K. Wilson of Winchester, in said County of Middlesex; Mary D. Myrick of Woburn, in said County of Middlesex, and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Viola Alice Richardson of said Winchester, to register and confirm her title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Winchester, bounded as follows: Easterly by Washington street 377.73 feet more or less; Northerly by land of Ella F. Crosby and Ella K. Wilson 1110.43 feet more or less; Southerly by land of Mary D. Myrick formerly of Joseph Stone 1261.36 feet more or less; and Westerly by the Abajonah River 330.3 feet; containing 403,796 square feet.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the fourteenth day of December, A. D. 1908, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, LEONARD A. JONES, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this nineteenth day of November in the year nineteen hundred and eight.

Telephone Talks

A "prompt" answer turneth away wrath. You know how you feel when you are kept waiting at the telephone. Remember: Example is better than precept.

"No One on the Line"

It has been pointed out that there are three parties to a telephone conversation, namely the person calling, the operator, and, last but not least, the person called.

The operator has no authority to compel an answer to her summons. She simply forwards to your telephone a mechanical signal. Interpreted, this means "Some one desires to speak to you." It remains for you, the person called, to recognize this request.

There are two strong reasons why you should answer promptly, and both vitally concern you:

1. If you are slow in answering, the caller may hang up the telephone and assume that you are not accessible. Later, if you answer at you leisure, the operator can vouchsafe no information save that "there is no one on the line." Who called you? The operator probably does not know. Any operator in you exchange may have called you, rather than the operator specially assigned to answer your calls.

2. From the moment the operator calling you "plugs in" your line until she ceases her effort to attract your attention, your line is "busy" to all other callers.

If you are dilatory, therefore, you are obstructing your own service. You are also causing disappointment to your caller and annoyance to yourself.

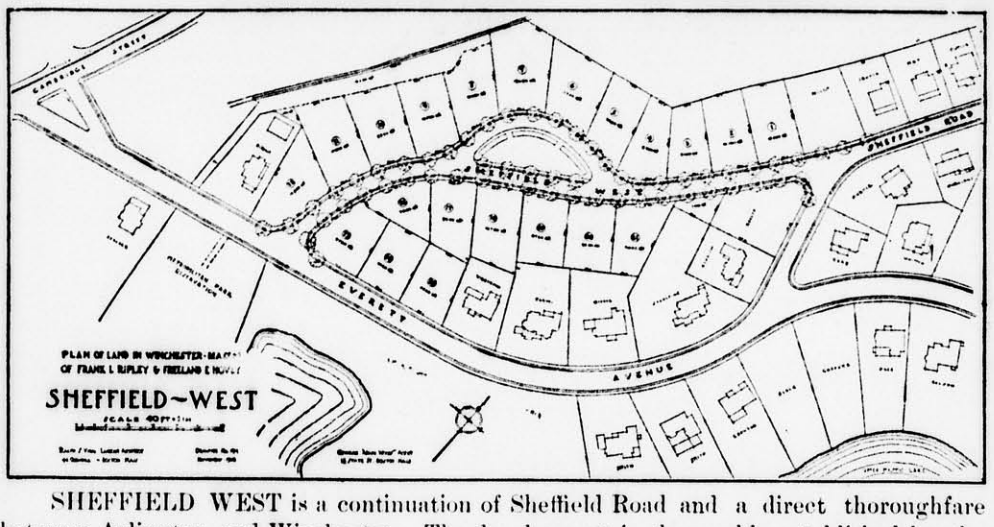
Sheffield West



SHEFFIELD WEST is a continuation of Sheffield Road and a direct thoroughfare between Arlington and Winchester. The development is thoroughly established by the houses built on Sheffield Road and Everett Avenue.

The road is to be built on an even grade, it is to be 40 feet wide in the main and 30 feet wide round the park, it is to have a 24-foot gravel macadam roadway with 5-foot crushed stone sidewalks and 3-foot loam spaces, curbs are to be laid at corners, the park is to be grassed with attractive detail development, and good sized trees are to be set out where shown on plan. Sewer, water and gas are to be laid and negotiations have already been entered into with the Edison Co. to arrange for the laying of its wires underground, in which case attractive ornamental posts for lighting will be installed. The lots are to be evenly graded throughout, and level with the street 40 feet back from it, they are to be covered with a 6-inch surface of loam and seeded, and stone bounds are to be set at the corner of each lot as soon as the rough grading is completed.

A contract has been made for building the road and grading the lots, and a good showing of progress made can already be seen. An arrangement with the Town has been completed to lay water and sewer pipes this Fall, and the street will be built, pipes laid and the lots graded before January 1, 1909 and the roadway surfaced as soon as the frost is out of the ground in the spring, so that Sheffield West will be complete in every way by the time houses started now are finished and will undoubtedly be accepted by the Town as a town way at that time.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

The census of children in Winchester on Sept. 1st, showed that there were 1765 from five to sixteen years of age and 1448 from five to fourteen. The figures of last year were 1686. The increase has not been up to the yearly average, which is from 7 to 8 per cent. From Sept. 1, 1907, to Sept. 1, 1908, there were 102 families that left town who took with them 139 children between the ages of five and sixteen. This was an unusually large number, and was caused by the removal of the United Shoe Machinery plant to Beverly—it might be said to be the last of the families residing here whose heads went with this concern to Beverly.

No doubt Charles F. French, engineer on the high service water supply system, was as much surprised to hear of his death last Thursday as was his numerous friends. On the noon of that day he was a passenger on an electric car on his way to Boston, and he never looked in more perfect health. How the story of his death originated no one seems to know, but it spread all over town, and people took it as an accepted fact that "Charles" had crossed over the river.

Mrs. Nathan H Taylor has been quite ill at her home. At present she is convalescing.

The orchestra will begin promptly at 7.45 on the evening of the presentation of a "Midsummer Night's Dream."

For the December vesper service at The First Congregational Church in rendering Elijah the choir will have the assistance of Mr. Robert C. Whitten, baritone, of the Second Church, Boston, who will sing the part of Elijah. Mr. John E. Daniels tenor of the Harvard Church, Brookline, will sing the part of Obadiah. A large part of this oratorio will be rendered including six of the principal choruses and all the important recitatives and arias. It is hoped to announce the program in full in next week's STAR.

Dr. Charles F. McCarthy will move into his new office at No. 452 Main street the first of next month. This is the former Henry F. Johnson estate.

Monday evening District Deputy W. S. Lister visited Waterfield Lodge of Odd Fellows and assisted in conferring the degrees on several candidates.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Dotten are the parents of a daughter, born Tuesday.

The very warm weather of Tuesday was most unusual for this season of the year and to see ladies and children enjoying sewing and games on their porches was a strange sight for the 24th of November.

Those pretty turkey place cards which you admired Thanksgiving day were purchased at Wilson the Stationers and painted by the children. We have made some more for Christmas which can be had at one cent each.

Mrs. Lillian Leslie Tower of Webster street has an article on the Dorothea Dix children in this month's Good Housekeeping under the title of "The lonely children of the stage."

Fish, mostly suckers have been coming down through the mill pond the past week, and men and boys have been snaring them in great quantities as they came through under the bridges on Pleasant and Main street. Many of the fish have died in the pond, and the cause of the unusual migration of the fish is a mystery. For several days the pond above the village has been alive with fish.

The Ladies' Friendly Society will hold a Luncheon-Sale on Thursday, Dec. 3, in Metcalf Hall. Luncheon served from twelve to two o'clock. A sale of aprons, fancy articles, and candy will be held in the Ladies' Parlor at the same time and continue through the afternoon. Tickets to the Luncheon twenty-five cents. Ice cream and cake ten cents extra.

Last week a pony belonging to Mr. Frank A. Cutting was shot while in the pasture at the rear of Mr. Cutting's house. The wound was apparently made by a small caliber rifle. Suspicion points to small boys in that neighborhood who are noticably careless in handling guns.

How Queen Bess Dined.

The setting out of the dinner of Queen Elizabeth was a ceremonious function. First came a gentleman with a rod, followed by a gentleman carrying a tablecloth, which, after they had knelt reverently three times, was spread upon the table. Then came two others, one with a rod, the other with a saltcellar, a plate and bread. They knelt three times, placed the things on the table, knelt again and retired. Next came a lady in waiting, followed by a second. The first lady, dressed in white, after kneeling three times, approached the table and solemnly rubbed the plates with the salt. Then entered twenty-four yeomen of the guard clad in scarlet and each carrying a dish of gold. These dishes were placed upon the table, while the lady taster gave to each of the guards a taste from the dish he had brought in for fear of possible poison. These guards were selected from the tallest and stoutest men in all England. At the close of this ceremony a number of unmarried ladies appeared and with great solemnity lifted the various dishes and carried them to the queen in her private apartments. The queen dined and supped alone, with few attendants, and it was seldom that any one was admitted at this time, and then only at the intercession of some one in power.

Coal Used by Romans.

It is believed by some historians that coal was used by the Romans on the continent and by the Britons on the island before the arrival of Caesar. As early as 1234 Henry III. granted a license to dig coal near Newcastle, but a few years later the use of coal was forbidden in London, the smoke being deemed prejudicial to public health. In 1306 the London gentry petitioned the king against its use, declaring that in spite of his royal order certain malicious persons persisted in burning it. Coals began to be brought from Newcastle to London in 1381, during the reign of Richard II. By the year 1400 coal was commonly burned in London as a fuel, though 200 years later, in the reign of Charles I., its use was far from being general throughout England. Anthracite coal, which, except the diamond, is the purest form of carbon known, was first used by a Connecticut blacksmith named Gore in 1768 and as a domestic fuel by Judge Jesse Fell of Wilkesbarre, Pa., in 1808.

A Defect.

A little girl was playing with a girl friend of her own age on the porch of her home. An elderly gentleman, her mother's father, and an elderly lady, her father's mother, were sitting on the porch talking pleasantly with each other. The little girl had often wished her grandparents were of the same name, like other children's grandparents. Presently the little guest remarked, "What a nice grandmother and grandfather you have!"

"Oh, yes," she said, with a sigh, "but they don't match."

An Explanation.

"How long has this restaurant been open?" asked the would be diner.

"Two years," said the proprietor.

"I am sorry I did not know it," said the guest. "I should be better off if I had come here then."

"Yes?" smiled the proprietor, very much pleased. "How is that?"

"I should probably have been served by this time if I had," said the guest, and the entente cordiale vanished.—Harper's Weekly.

VOL. XXVIII. NO. 22. WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1908. PRICE, FIVE CENTS

FROM THE FILES OF THE FORTNIGHTLY.

No 4

As we continue the perusal of the files of our club we notice sending books to a struggling little club in Dakota. It is pleasant to remember that we were mindful of those weaker than ourselves.

In January of her second term of office, Mrs. Sherman offered her resignation from the presidency as it was impossible for her to fill the position for the remainder of the year. The club voted not to accept her resignation but to relieve her from the care and responsibility of the office and appoint a President pro tem. Mrs. Punchard was so appointed, and most loyally and graciously again consented to help the club in its hour of need and occupied the chair for the remainder of the year.

Just at this time came again the agitation in regard to withdrawal from the General Federation, a proposition which has ever had staunch and able supporters, but after free and full discussion the club voted not to withdraw.

MRS. IDA L. RIPLEY
Eighth President of The Fortnightly.

In 1901 Mrs. Ripley became the 8th President of The Fortnightly. During the two years of her administration The Fortnightly moved on the even tenor of its way, carrying on the Vacation Playroom with much personal work by many members. An attempt was made to raise the annual dues, but the time was not then ripe for such action. As we run over the titles of lectures, some of them seem very attractive, "A Coaching Trip through the Lake Region," "The Social Secretary," "Moral Problems of George Eliot's Novels," "The Modern Novel and its relation to the Modern Woman," "Tolstoi and Russia." We note that several of our townsmen are among the club's speakers at this time, Rev. W. I. Lawrance, Dr D. C. Dennett and Mr. Theodore Hurd all giving interesting and valuable papers to the club, and at least twice the former president, Mrs Sherman, coming to the club as speaker of the afternoon.

The Club at this time voted to join the Consumer's League and a most interesting afternoon is remember when speakers gave the Club an account of the efforts made to have clothing made under conditions favorable to the life and health of those who work.

MRS. LENA R. WELLINGTON
Ninth President of The Fortnightly.

EDUCATION.

R. M. C.

Education does not come wholly from books. We gather information through the senses. This information becomes the object of thought. The process of thinking may be termed mental digestion—information being the food, and education the concrete result. As the digestion of our daily food gives us physical strength, so mental digestion gives us strength of mind, and ability to accomplish the higher purposes of life. The two processes are analogous, but not identical. Physical exercise creates a craving for food, so mental exercise creates a craving for knowledge.

The analogy might be carried one step further, and it would appear that the same law is operative in the spiritual world, for the promise of complete satisfaction comes only to those "who hunger and thirst after righteouness."

Education of mind and heart is the grand purpose of all our efforts in the training of our children. But we should not forget the law which must guide and control our efforts. Education is a product of self-activity. No parent or teacher can educate a child. He can advise, direct, furnish opportunity, but the child's own mind must seek out and grasp the material for thought, must subject it to a healthy thinking process by and through his own efforts, or no product worthy of the name of education will result. In other words, everyone must do his own thinking, or he will forever remain uneducated.

When parents and teachers understand and accept this law, the work of the school and the home will become more intelligent and satisfactory.

THAT SENTRY BOX.

Observations very kindly gives us some information. On another page we note the only recent accidents is to some very venturesome canines. There is the S. P. C. A.; also the S. P. C. C. How about the A. S. O. W. P. G. (aesthetic Selectmen of Winchester Protecters of Gatemen). When the zephyrs are whistling around so lively, it may be hard to distinguish their song from the "come ahead" signal of the gateman. Will there be danger of the zephyrs, while playing over and around the gateman so enchanting (benumbing) him that he cannot act promptly? As stated, I offer some protection from the suns rays, but cannot protect from north wind's chill, being only A FOLDED UMBRELLA.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Our order of the imported Christmas cards for giving and acknowledging gifts has been received and is now on sale.

The demand for these cards could not be supplied last season. Although a much larger assortment is now on sale, it should be remembered that as the goods are imported it is not possible to restock, and an early selection is advised.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES.

Arrangements have been completed for the "Festival Holidays," which is to be the leading attraction of the Ladies' Fair to be held in the church vestry Thursday and Friday, afternoon and evening, Dec. 10 and 11, and the entertainment in connection therewith promises to be of unusual interest as the committee has secured the services of Miss Ella Chamberlain, the well known whistling soloist, of Cambridge, and Dr. George S. Stiles, humorist and soloist of Somerville, both artists of exceptional talent in their respective lines. The program as arranged will be as follows:

December 10—Afternoon—(1) Parade of "Father Time," "Uncle Sam," "The Man with the Hoe," "John and Priscilla Alden" and "Santa Claus"; (2) Selection, "John Alden," by Alfred Dover; (3) Selection, "The Witch," by Miss Grace Snow; (4) Selection, "Uncle Sam," by Paul Roby. In the evening six selections will be rendered by Miss Chamberlain.

December 11—Afternoon—(1) Parade as above; (2) "Priscilla Alden," by Miss Ethel Shepherd; (3) "The Man with the Hoe," by Maynard Johnson; (4) "Father Time," selected; (5) "Santa Claus," selected. In the evening there will be two readings and two solos by Dr. Stiles.

The pianist for the afternoons will be Miss Grace Snow, and for the evenings Miss Hattie Snow. There will be an intermission of at least five minutes between each number, and at the extremely low price of admission a large attendance is anticipated.

SELECTIONS FROM "ELIJAH"

Important Vesper Service to be Held at Congregational Church.

Under the direction of Mr. Chas. W Swaine, Miss Jessie P. Marshall, organist on Sunday at 4.30 p. m., the choir of the First Congregational Church, which has been increased for this service to thirty-six voices, will render the larger part of Elijah. In addition to soloists from the regular choir Mr. John E. Daniels, tenor, and Mr. Robert C. Whitten, baritone, will assist. The service will be entirely musical and a printed program has been carefully prepared that all may intelligently follow the narrative. Doors of the church will be open at 4.15. All are welcome.

W. H. S. NOTES.

The foot ball season closed Thanksgiving morning for the High School team. This year was the first time Winchester has been represented on the gridiron since 1905. With the services of Minot Hurd and Harold Webber who acted as coaches a speedy team was developed from raw material. The members of the squad who received their W's are: Captain Sheridan, Collins, Sharon, Welch, Cameron, Tuck, Hurd Main, Small, Neiley, Hudson, Hamilton, Hanson, Donovan and Manager Badger. At a meeting of the "W" men on Wedday Irvin Small was elected captain for next year.

The first basket ball game will be Dec. 4 with Ballou and Hobigan. The season promises to be a very successful one as Winchester will have the same team on the floor this year as last. Next Tuesday the team will play Harvard 1910 in the High School at 8.00 o'clock, and on the following Friday Winchester will play the strong Winthrop team at 8 o'clock.

HANDICRAFT SOCIETY.

The Handicraft Society will hold a loan exhibition of Japanese art Dec. 17th, 18th and 19th, in its room in the High School building.

One of the principal features of the exhibition will be a collection of Japanese wood block prints which the society has secured from the house of Sogo Matsumoto of Nagoya, Japan. This is an exceedingly interesting collection of prints and the copies which will be on sale at moderate prices will make charming Christmas remembrances and holiday souvenirs. The arrangement of the exhibits will be in charge of Mr. Hermann D. Murphy. Any one owning pieces of Japanese art, either pictures, fabrics, carvings or potteries, who is willing to lend them to the society for this exhibition, will confer a favor by communicating with Mr. Murphy or Mr. Sylvester Taylor.

KILLED BY LIVE WIRE.

John J. Lydon First Victim in Winchester.

Winchester experienced its first of the numerous live wire fatalities, which have been so common about this vicinity, on last Saturday afternoon The victim was John J. Lydon, employed by the Tree Department. With two companions he was working in the tree at the corner of Mt. Pleasant street and Highland avenue, when without a sound other than a slight groan, he grasped the deadly wire and was killed. At the slight noise his fellow workers attention was drawn to him and they at once saw what had happened. With a ladder they pushed his hand from the wire and then took him down out of the tree. Life was extinct, although it was hardly a minute after he had grasped the wire before they had him on the ground. The fingers of his hand were badly burned.

Just how Lydon came to take hold of the wire is not known. It was several inches from the limb on which he was, but the insulation at the point where he grasped it had been worn off.

Mr. Lydon was 26 years of age and born in Ireland, making his home here for the past six years. He was married a little over a year ago to Nellie F. O'Brien, whom he leaves with one child. One brother, Patrick, of Stoneham, and two sisters, Mary and Catherine of this town, survive him also.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday morning from St. Mary's Church attended by one of the largest gatherings seen in recent years at that edifice. The deceased was a member of the Holy Name Society of the Church, of Court Pride, F. of A. and of Hose 3 of the Fire Department, all of which were represented at the services.

Requiem High Mass was celebrated by Fr. Walter J Roche, and during the service the church choir sang

During the service the fire alarm was tolled, and in the funeral cortege Hose 3 wagon, draped in black, followed the hearse. Accompanying the hose wagon were: Chief, I. L. Symmes, Assistant Chief, D. H. DeCourcey.

Hose 1—Capt. George Osborne, Lieut. Ralph Anderson, Ernest Polley, Henry J. Lyons, Thomas Kane, Harry Dolliver John F. McCall, Oscar McElhiney, William Hurlburts.

H. & L. Truck No. 1—John McCarron, Owen Flaherty, A. R. Libby, James Kelley, John Danahy, Edward Fitzgerald, Michael J. McGuire.

Hose No. 3—R. J. McGinity, Thomas Nolan, Ernest Beaton, M. J. Quigley, Eugene Flaherty, John Hanlon, James McClellan, Frank Foley, John Healey, M. H. Nagle, Driver of Wagon.

The pall bearers were Mr. Daniel Lydon, Mr. Michael Lydon, Mr. David Sullivan and Mr. Joseph O'Melia of this town, Mr. James O'Brien of Stoneham, and Mr. Patrick Lydon of Woburn.

The display of flowers was magnificent and included offerings from all parts of the town. Among the flowers sent were the following: pillow of white roses and pinks from wife and child, large standing cross of roses, pinks and fern from brother and sisters, standing cross of white roses from Board of Engineers of Fire Department, pillow of everlasting, ivy and ferns from Tree Department, set piece with clock from Hose 3, wreath of roses, pinks and fern from Hook and Ladder Company, large pillow from Court Pride, F. of A., spray of roses, I. T. Guild; spray of pinks and fern, John K. Plummer; spray of violets, Miss Mary Kelley; spray of chrysanthemums, Mr. and Mrs. G. O'Brien; spray of roses, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Lydon and Miss Lydon; spray of chrysanthemums, Mr. and Mrs. Burke of Stoneham; spray of chrysanthemums, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Quinland; spray of pinks, Mr. M. Lonegan; spray of white chrysanthemums, Mrs. F. H. Bowles; crescent of white roses, Miss Norah O'Brien.

The interment was in St. Patrick's Cemetery, Stoneham.

CARD OF THANKS.

We desire to thus publicly express our heartfelt thanks to all those who offered their sympathy both by word and deed in our recent bereavement. Also to those who contributed floral offerings in memory of the late John J Lydon.

MRS. NELLIE LYDON,
MISS MARY LYDON,
MISS KATHERINE LYDON,
MR. PATRICK LYDON.

HOME REMEMBERED.

The Home for Aged People has again been thoughtfully remembered, this time by a gift of $5000, the donor being the late Caleb Chase of Brookline. Mr. Chase was a family connection of Mr. Anthony Kelley of this town. This last addition will be welcomed by the numerous friends of the Home, who hope in time to see the endowment fund large enough to take care of the expenses.

FROM THE FILES OF THE FORTNIGHTLY.

The Fortnightly. We find the club beginning to think a little now of the social side of club life and the appropriations for the Social Committee increasing little by little, as the importance of the few minutes' chat, aided by the "cup that cheers but not inebriates" was appreciated.

Two most successful "Gentleman's Night" were among the features of this administration. In the first of these the entertainment was provided by Club members. It consisted of a classic extravaganza, "A Masque of Culture" which was a credit to all engaged in it. In the amount of talent which was evinced in its production it would be hard to find a Club to surpass The Fortnightly. The play was followed by refreshments and dancing and was spoken of as one of the chief society events of the winter. The second winter of Mrs. Wellington's administration a Gentlemen's Night was given, with Mrs. Waldo Richards as entertainer; this was also a decided success.

One of the most interesting of Home Afternoons at this time was arranged by the chairman of the Music Committee. It consisted of a valuable biographical sketch of Emily Dickinson, by Mrs. Isabel Chase, who also read selections from Miss Dickinson's poems: to add to the interest of the occasion, Mrs. Harriett Wills had written music for two poems by the same author which were most delightfully sung by Mrs. Edlefson. Further music was given by Mr. and Mrs. Bicknell and by Miss Barker. The whole afternoon stands out in my remembrance for the rare quality of its excellence, a certain fineness of conception and execution which are a delight to recall.

A popular afternoon was provided by the Current Events chairman during this period, consisting of five minute talks by eight ladies, members of the class in Current Events, these talks being upon live topics of this and other countries. The first original Club Magazine was also given at this time, consisting of bright stories, poems, travel sketches and even a monologue which would have been a credit to far more ambitious publications than The Fortnightly Magazine. The Club Magazine was so greatly appreciated that it has become an annual affair, and seems to be another instance of the almost universal feeling among Fortnightly members that home work is more to be desired than that of speakers from abroad, unless those who come to us rank in the very highest class. Appreciation and kindly criticism seem to be the reward of those who among our own seek to do what they can to help the Club by taking a part in furnishing the program for entertainment. The social hour too has done much to bring Fortnightly members in closer touch with each other, and nothing could be more satisfactory than the cordial feeling which exists among the Club ladies at the present time.

MRS. PLEASANTINE C. WILSON
Fifth President of The Fortnight —the Club's 25th Anniversary.

As the Fortnightly neared its 25th birthday it seemed very fitting that one who had assisted in its formation should become President, and fortunate indeed was the Club in securing as 10th President, Mrs. Pleasantine C. Wilson, one of the twenty-two whose names are inscribed on our records as Charter Members.

Mrs. Wilson's loftiness of purpose, breadth of view and high ideals fitted her in a peculiar way to make the silver anniversary year of the Club a success. She has ever had the deepest good of The Fortnightly at heart and it is a pleasure to remember that she had the honor which she prized greatly of being the President during the 25th year of Club life. The great event of the year was the silver anniversary which was celebrated on January 8, 1906. It consisted of reminiscences from five of the Club Presidents, a history of the Club by Mrs. Brackett and an admirable musical program.

A Children's Day, arranged by Mrs. Nichols, was a unique and delightful feature of the time. Master Harold Fultz, Misses Elizabeth and Helen Ordway furnished delightful music, and Miss Frances Bent Dillingham, the well known writer told stories, which were greatly enjoyed by the little guests present, and equally so by their hostesses.

I note during this administration work done and meetings attended by individual members for the bettering of conditions in many ways, a petition against objectionable advertising in the public prints, being one, at another time the Club was represented at a meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the Civil Service Reform League, and a good report of that meeting given. The Fortnightly at this period made changes in the subjects considered by the different committees and made them as far as possible coincide with those of the State Federation.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Smith observed the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage at their home on Cutting street, Nov. 25, entertaining a large number of their friends who called upon them to extend congratulations and greetings.

They were married in Boston, Nov. 25, 1858, and after living in Boston and Allston came to Winchester several years ago, where they have since resided.

Mr. Smith was born in Paisley, Scotland, April 15, 1833, and at the age of nine years embarked on a sailing vessel for America, the voyage occupying seven weeks and two days. He is the surviving partner of the well known old cutlery firm of Smith Brothers.

Mrs. Smith was born at Dover, England, where her father was a surgeon in the English army.

Three of their seven children are now living, Mrs. John A. Macmaster, Mrs. William E. Moreland and Mr. William R. Smith. Six grandchildren were present at the anniversary.

Did you ever hear of anybody being as mum, and sort of downhearted as Brother Tuck has been since election? Bryan's defeat was an awful blow to Tuck, for no doubt, it cost him a good fat office—Minister, or Ambassador to Tongo, or Canibal Islands, mebby. Yes it is tough on friend Tuck, but his shoulders are broad, and he can stand it.—[Woburn Journal.

Charles Francis Adams has described the tariff investigation now going on before the Ways and Means Committee in Washington, as a "congregation of squealing and pushing hogs all trying to get their four feet into the trough at once." A great many beliefs concerning tariff reform will be permissible up to the time that the tariff is revised, whenever that may be.

What Happened in Winchester 30 Years Ago, or Thereabouts.

Taken From Old Files

Four young men from Somerville were arrested for fishing in Mystic Pond, and brought before Justice Littlefield, and obliged to pay a fine and costs amounting to $5.35 each.

At the Catholic fair, a cane was voted to the most popular member of the two parishes, Woburn and Winchester. From the start the favorite was James Cosgrove, a gardener on the estate of Geo. E. Rogers of Winchester, but he was hotly contested by the president of the Hibernians of Woburn. Mr. Cosgrove was the successful candidate, and over $1300 was realized as the products from the cane.

The Hill division shows a remarkable record for the year 1877. This rural neighborhood comprises sixteen families, and during the year just closed, there has been neither birth, marriage or death within its limits. Nor has there been but one case of serious sickness, and that soon yielded to medical skill. The Division contains something over one hundred inhabitants. The two oldest inhabitants are Mrs. Betsy R. Locke, widow of the late Jonathan Locke, aged 82, and Samuel Smith, aged 80 years.

There was quite a demonstration at the new building for a depot at North Winchester, belonging to Mr. A. C. Bell, on Tuesday evening. Numerous invitations were sent out, and in response to them about a hundred persons assembled. After a collation, speeches were made by Mr. Bell, Hon. A. B. Coffin, and several other gentlemen. The station will hereafter, be known as "Winchester Highlands." There is an effort being made to have a Post Office at this station.

First Congregational Church statistics for 1877: 11 were received by letter, and 31 by profession; 6 were dismissed to join other churches, and 5 have died. The pastor has officiated at 13 funerals and 6 weddings The present membership is 391 a gain of 29 during the year. There were 17 baptismals of adults, and 4 of infants. The Sabbath School has a membership of 397, and an average attendance of 230. The Parish expenses were $5,328.60. The benevolent contributions for home work were $3,437.80 and for foreign work, $2,526.86, total,—$5,964 66; total for religious and benevolent work, $11,293.26.

W. P. M., Edwin A. Wadleigh installed last Tursday evening the following officers of William Parkman Lodge, for the ensuing year: W. M., Thomas S. Spurr; S. W., N. Frank Marble, J. W., Geo. S. CAUGHT AN ECHO FAINT.

A reading there was and it was good,
Or, so some people say,
But I do not know and I could not tell,
Although I was there that day.

True, sometimes I caught an echo faint
That came to where I was at,
But most of the time I was out of reach
O'er whelmed by a lady's hat.

And it's oh, for the days now long ago,
When people quite different were!
When the State prescribed what might be worn
Of silk, or velvet, or fur.

They say there were drawbacks to that plan,
But I'm not sure of that;
For then one might say "Off goes your head
If you won't take off your hat."

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

While a state commission on old age pensions, of which Professor F. Spencer Baldwin of Boston University is chairman, is conducting an elaborate investigation into the conditions and needs of superannuated workers in Massachusetts, the principle of voluntary old age pensions is rapidly being put into practical working effect.

The annuities that are now offered as part of the savings insurance plan in successful operation in this state constitute virtually an opportunity for any citizen to provide his own pension under an assurance of the lowest possible cost that is consistent with safety and under the management of Massachusetts savings bank trustees whose record for integrity and efficiency in the cause of the common good has never suffered detraction.

Many annuity contracts are already being written by the two savings banks that have taken advatage of the privileges granted by the law of 1907 of establishing insurance departments. These banks, as is well known, are the Whitman Savings Bank and the People's Savings Bank of Brockton. Each of them has authorized agencies in various parts of the State, bringing the facilities within easy reach of practically our whole population.

The details of the annuity features of the savings insurance plan are set forth in easily understandable tables prepared by the State Actuary, Robertson G. Hunter, and to be obtained from his office at 161 Devonshire Street, Boston. They show that it is possible for men and women, citizens of Massachusetts, at ages from seventeen to fifty-nine by a system of monthly payments to secure for themselves after the age of 65 annual incomes up to $200, the maximum to be issued by a single bank to one individual.

The annuity contracts in general are of three kinds. There are those by which a small month'y payment entitles the contracting person simply to the annuity in case he lives beyond the specified age, with no provision for return of the premiums in event of a prior death. By a different and necessarily somewhat more expensive system of payments one who undertakes to provide for his old age may arrange that the premiums he pays in shall revert to his heirs in case of his death prior to the time when he becomes an annuitant. There is also a combination life insurance and old age annuity policy under which the citizen gets the benefit of protection as he goes along and the assurance of an income after he reaches 65, which is about the age at which workers ordinarily cease to be productive. One who is a depositor in the savings department of the bank issuing the annuity contract can arrange to have his premiums paid automatically from his account.

This idea of every wage earner attending to his own old age pension instead of putting a burden upon the state or upon his relatives and friends for his support has met with wide spread approval. There is general admission that Massachusetts is in no position to undertake such a socialistic scheme as the one which has recently gone into effect in Great Britain. An eminent statistician, Frederick L. Hoffman, chief actuary of the Prudential Life Insurance Company and one of the most careful investigators of sociological subjects, has proved, on the basis of Australian experience, that the present cost of compulsory old age pensions in this state, if issued to citizens above 65 who applied for them, would be about ten million dollars a year. This enormous sum would, of course, have to be raised by taxation. Voluntary old age pensions, as in the savings insurance plan, will have the contrary effect of adding greatly to the total of taxable property.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY.

Lorenzo Devitti, the Italian charged with an assault with a dangerous weapon on Tony Ross, November 13, when Ross received cuts about his head from the effects of which he has since been confined to the hospital, had a hearing in the District Court last Saturday morning and was held for the Grand Jury in $2000 bonds.

Ross has sufficiently recovered to enable him to appear in court but has not yet been discharged from the convalescent hospital where he has been for some time, the cuts on his head proving more serious than was at first anticipated.

The case is one of the most serious with which the Winchester police have had to deal tor some time, and it was by the merest chance that Ross escaped with his life, as it was evidently the intent of his assailant to do away with him.

The assault took place on Swanton street, Devitto seizing Ross about the shoulders and slashing him with some sharp instrument, cutting a gash on the right side of his head extending from back of the ear to the forehead, cutting into the skull, and another on the left side of the neck just over the jugular vein. Devitti was arrested after a chase through several streets and Ross after his wounds were dressed was sent to the hospital where it developed that his injuries were more serious than were at first thought.

He was confined to the hospital for several days and has since been at the convalescents hospital, the hearing on the case being put over to await his recovery sufficient to be present as a witness.

In default of the necessary bond for his appearance, Devitti was returned to the Cambridge jail to await the action of the grand jury.

REQUEST SHOULD HAVE BEEN GENERAL.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I read with much amusement in your last issue the short story of the refusal of a lady to remove her hat during a reading given in the Town Hall last week. I was there, and as far as I could see, every lady had her hat on. There were all kinds of hats, large and small, and no doubt the view of many in the audience were obstructed. Therefore, why was it that one lady only should be asked to remove her hat, and no attention paid to the others? Why was not the request made general? I happen to know the lady who wore the offending millinery, and also that had she been prepared to respond to the request made would most gladly have done so. As matters stood there were but two things she could do: leave the hall and the interesting reading, or remain and wear her hat, the same as all the audience were doing. She decided to do the latter.

I think a town ordinance compelling the removal of hats at public entertainments would become popular and meet the approval of all the women of the town. With such a rule in force, they would prepare their toilets before leaving home. Of course it is annoying and disappointing to be present at an entertainment and not be able to see but a small portion of the stage or platform, because of a large hat in front of you.

If a rule should be passed requiring the removal of hats in the Town Hall, then there should be a suitable room provided with mirrors where the hair might be adjusted and other preparations made incidental to the removal of millinery.

DR. VINCENT'S LECTURE.

Dr. Vincent's third lecture upon Lowell as Critic and Man of Letters occurred on Wednesday last. To those who have been fortunate enough to attend this course each has seemed more interesting than the previous one, and the audience on Wednesday showed by their close attention and spontaneous applause how much the talk was enjoyed.

As before, Dr. Vincent dwelt somewhat at length upon the early life of the author, and commented upon the irony of fate which brought Lowell at the age of 36 to the chair of literature in the college (Harvard) from which he had been rusticated, in the final term of his senior year. At the time he was called to succeed Longfellow at Harvard he was the author of a little volume of verse called "A Year's Life",—a book simply called "Poems," "Biglow Papers," and "A Fable for Critics," Of the latter, Dr. Vincent spoke as a gem in its way, the most remarkable collection of puns to be found, Charles Lamb's writings alone ranking with those of Lowell in this respect. In this poem he gives a line or two to each of the 25 American authors, classifying in the most inimitable way, and in many cases propesying truly. After his appointment he spent some time abroad as a preparation for his work, and in his letters from Germany at that time occur some of the most graphic pictures of life in a typical German home, where he was received as a boarder. After his return from Europe he occupied the chair of literature at Harvard for twenty years. His teaching must have been most unique and one would have enjoyed being a member of that famous Dante class, which translated the Divine Commedia, the Vita Nuova and a part of the Convito in eight months. It was said that his idea of teaching literature was as far as possible from the rhetoric or grammar involved, and was simply to get right at the heart of the subject, to teach literature alone in its relation to life.

He gave up his work there with relief for the more congenial work of editorship and authorship. He was the first editor of the Atlantic and has the distinction of having encouraged Dr. Holmes to write "The Autocrat at the Breakfast Table," for which booklovers must be eternally thankful to him. In collaboration with Charles Eliot Norton he directed the work of the North American Review. As minister to Spain and afterwards to the court of St. James he was most successful as a diplomat and representative American.

In summing up all he had written, Dr. Vincent after his poems spoke of his critical essays as among his most valuablue work, but especially commended the Letters as among the most charming examples of epistolary perfection, ranked by Howell, himself a famous critic, as more brilliant than those of Edward Fitzgerald, Mrs. Browning, Matthew Arnold and Robert Louis Stevenson.

Dr. Vincent's entire course has been most stimulating and helpful; he has a most felicitous way of dealing with his subject. Although his manner is light and entertaining, his material is the result of solid study and research.

MR. MURPHY'S EXHIBITION.

Venice is differently seen and interpreted by each one of the army of painters who successively undertakes to express in his work the unique charm and beauty of the Queen of the Adriatic. We say of one man's pictures that they depict the real Venice: and of another's that they express only his fanciful or fantastic vision of Venice; but as a matter of fact each painter's Venice is the only real Venice to him, and what is most interesting in his paintings of it may be, often is, a quality that enters into it unconsciously, the quality of temperament, which he can neither control, increase, diminish nor explain. Mr. Hermann Dudley Murphy is one of those painters who find in such a place as Venice the most congenial atmosphere for the development of the best that is in them. It might be said that when he goes there he enters into a native element. Everything is auspicious, his formulæ seem made expressly to fit the sort of subjects that abound on every side, and the lagoons, canals, palaces, gardens, monuments, all the parts that go to the making up of the spirit of the locality, seem to naturally fall in with his scheme of art. The architects of old who chose the site for the church at Santa Maria della Salute laid out a composition which requires no modification on the part of a painter in order to make a symmetrical picture. Time itself in its work of laying over the walls of the old palaces of the Grand Canal its soft and rich incrustations of mellow color, has prepared the way for the colorist, and there is hardly a corner which does not open up a vista of watery byways, lined with tall houses and spanned by handsome bridges, reflecting their exquisite tints in the still water, broken only by the ripples made by the gondoliers' busy paddles. To say that this city is an old game for the artist is not altogether exact, since each new angle of individual sentiment from which its beauty is viewed involves a novel sensation. Mr. Murphy has brought away from his Venice much of the poetry of color which he took to it in the first place. It has evoked all that is best in his artistic nature, and his work has taken on a fresh inspiration, not differing in kind so much as in digree from what went before. His tone poems, as we may call them, have a delicacy and completenes which show how perfectly his style and method are adapted to the motives. "Santa Maria della Salute" (4), "San Michele" (7). "The Sirocco Sky" (9), "The Palace of Old Ivory" (11), "The Piazzetta" (26), "The Red Sail," (27), and certain of the studies of color in the old walls and doorways, like the "Doorway at Night" (28), testify to the ardor and enjoyment of the artist, as well as his subtility and knowledge.

Apart from the Venetian subjects there are some very interesting paintings in this collection drawn from the Mediterranean and the Adriatic—pictures of Mount Etna, of Stromboli, of Gibralta, etc. The exhibition will be open on Dec. 11.—[Transcript.

75th ANNIVERSARY.

Mrs. Mary F. Wood of Burlington, who has many friends in Winchester, attained the 75th anniversary of her birthday Tuesday. In honor of the event her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Arthur W. Wood, of Jason street, Arlington, tendered her a dinner at the Hotel Touraine, Boston, and invited the venerable woman's three daughters, Mrs. Walter M. Walsh of Malden, Mrs. Fred F. Walker and Mrs. Emma F. Dane of Burlington, and her two grandchildren, Mrs. Paul Gardner Macurda of Cambridge and Master Marshall Wood of Arlington, to join in making the anniversary observance a memorable occasion. The dinner was heartily enjoyed, Mrs. Woods entering into the spirit of the gathering and proving the life of the party. Nor was the birthday cake forgotten. Of massive proportions and prettily decorated, it was the piece de resistance of the table. Mrs. Wood gives but little evidence that she has exceeded by five years the traditional three score and ten. Her faculties are unimpaired, and nothing of current interest escapes her. For more than 50 years she has lived in Burlington. Her husband, Marshall Wood, a prominent citizen of the town, died about 10 years ago Mrs. Wood was Miss Mary Francis Cate of Boston. In her residential town, where two-thirds of her life has been spent, she has endeared herself to all by her many womanly qualities.

IT IS SO.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Your article of last week concerning the steam railroad conductor's resusal to allow persons to decently board their trains was certainly correct.

If you could have seen the train which stopped at the station yesterday morning a few minutes before eight, with about one-fifth of its passengers still standing on the platform when it left, and the brakemen barring the steps, you might be still more indignant. W.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The regular meeting of the local union will be held Friday, December 11 at 3 p. m. in the Congregational church vestry. All interested are invited.

The Frances E. Willard settlement on Chambers street is doing an excellent work, better even than was expected when it took over all the activities of St. Andrew's Mission except those distinctly churchly. Classes upon classes are maintained with clubs of various kinds while the lodging house is a constant blessing to the many girls whose scanty wages will nowhere else pay for so much comfort and home-iness. A vacancy meats only a change in the waiting list.

Winchester Union has been interested in this settlement for the eleven years of its existence and during the past year either as a body or individually has done much to further the work. A visit to the Settlement would be a revelation and an inspiration to anyone who is even slightly interested.

THE FORTNIGHTLY.

The Fortnightly is having a feast of good things in the way of entertainment this season. Last week a large and appreciative audience listened to Marshall Darrach in his inimitable presentation of "Twelfth Night" and on Wednesday last Dr. Leon H. Vincent gave his third and last lecture in the course. They have all been delightful and those who have attended them all find it hard to tell which was most enjoyable. On Tuesday evening, Dec. 8, members of the Club, under the management of the Dramatic committee will present Shakespeare's charming comedy "Midsummer Night's Dream." This play has been very carefully prepared. Every effort has been made to insure its success. The stage setting, the beautiful costumes and Mendelssohn's exquisite music, and the accuracy with which each part is carried out will make all who come feel the price of a ticket is money well spent. Ladies are asked to remove their hats, and it is hoped patrons will be in their seats early. The hall will be darkened during the play and no seats can be found while the curtain is raised. Performance begins at 7.45. Tickets have sold so readily and are still in so great a demand that it is possible the play may be repeated. The next regular meeting of The Fortnightly will be on Dec. 14, and is "Reciprocity Day." Among the guests are Mrs. Pennock, State Chairman of Reciprocity Committee, Mrs. Lizzie S. Watts, President of the "Look Out" Club, Lynn, Mrs. J. H. Hayward, Woburn Club, Miss Georgia Bacon, President of State Federation, Mrs. Whitton, Dorchester Club, and Mrs. Whitman of the Cantabriggia Club.

Mrs. Pennock will speak on "Reciprocity as applied to Clubs," Mrs. Watts will give a ten minute talk on "Scholarships" and Miss Bacon will open a "Club House Discussion." Informal reception and tea. A full attendance is desired.

Newton's Light Theory.

Sir Isaac Newton earned worldwide fame by showing that gravitation, previously recognized only at the surface of the earth, is operative throughout the universe wherever there is matter. In another field of physics he was far less happy. His brilliant success in experimental optics came to be qualified, though not invalidated, by a faulty interpretation of the facts. He gave his name and powerful authority to the corpuscular theory of light. In Sir Isaac's view, the phenomenon of luminosity is produced by corpuscles—exceedingly minute particles of matter—which are projected continuously from the sun, stars and all other luminous bodies. But his corpuscles failed to elucidate all the appearances, and Sir Isaac's theory was finally deposed by an explanation which referred light to undulatory vibrations in the ether. It would be some comfort for the discoverer of universal gravitation, were he living now, to realize that the modern physicist is daily dealing with corpuscles flung off from matter at speeds fairly comparable with that of life it-

His Status.

The caste system is so deeply rooted among the people of India that Christianized Hindoos are still under its potent influence. For example, Mr. J. C. Oman, formerly professor of natural science in the government college at Lahore, tells in his book, "The Brahmans, Deists and Muslims of India," of the native Christian head master of a mission school who was asked in a court of justice what his religion was.

"Brahman-Christian," he replied.

The judge, who was a European, not recognizing such a sect, asked for more information.

"I am a Brahman-Christian," reiterated the head master. "I cannot call myself simply a Christian," he continued with some warmth, "when that Choorah (sweeper) there is also a Christian. I am a Brahman-Christian, sir."

Friday and Fortunes.

Two women who wished to make an appointment with a fortune teller who was pronounced "just splendid" by everybody who had patronized her were advised by the seer to come on Friday.

"That is, if you are not superstitious about Friday," she said. "Most people are. They regard Friday as such an unlucky day that they won't even have their fortune told then for fear they will hear something unlucky. That is why I advised you to come on that day. I will have plenty of time and won't have to put your cases through with such a rush."—St. Louis Republic.

An Equinox.

Tommy—Pa, what is an equinox? Pa—Why—er—it is—ahem! For goodness sake, Tommy, don't you know anything about mythology at all? An equinox was a fabled animal, half horse, half cow. Its name is derived from the words 'equine' and 'ox.' It does seem as if these public schools don't teach children anything nowadays!"

Naturalized.

An Italian went to the civil service commissioners' rooms to be examined for a laborer's position. He answered most of the questions correctly. Finally they asked him if he had ever been naturalized. He seemed a bit puzzled, but at last his face lighted up. "Ah, I know whata you mean. Scratcha de arm. Yes, lasta week."

Sponges Are Sunstruck.

The sponge being an animal, it is necessary to kill it. This is done by exposing it for several hours on the broad decks of the boats. In summer sponges soon die, but in winter take a long time owing to weaker force of the sun. After death they are brought ashore and put in the cradles. These are inclosures made on the seashore by setting stakes a little apart from each other. The ebb and flow of the tide wash the animal matter from the sponges, and the work is completed by manual labor. They are then taken to the packing house, graded, strung, baled and dispatched to their destination.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Perfectly Correct.

A shopkeeper had stuck up a notice in glaring colors and very large letters: Selling Off! Must Close on Saturday!"

On Friday he was asked by a friend: "What! Are you selling off again?"

"Certainly. All the shopkeepers are selling off, ain't they?"

"Of course they are. But you say, 'Must close on Saturday.'"

"Certainly I must. You would not have me keep open on Sunday, would you?"

Effective at All Hours.

"I've got the finest gardens in this part of the country," boasted the newly made millionaire. "Right in the center of them is the most expensive sundial in the world."

"A sundial is all right during the day," remarked a listener. "It's useless at night."

"Mine isn't," retorted the millionaire proudly. "I've got mine surrounded with electric lights."—Bohemian Magazine.

WINTER BOWLING TOURNAMENT.

Team 1 continues to hold its strong lead in the house tournament at the Calumet club, dropping but one point during the last four weeks. Its straight win on Friday night from the Tigers prevented that team from getting into second place.

G. W. Annin raised the high single during the week, rolling 128 flat, which with his handicap gives him 143.

On Monday night a very interesting game was rolled between teams E and K, Mr. J. H. Gerlach being the hero of the occasion. With K team apparently hopelessly outclassed in the second string, Mr. Gerlach started in his 10th frame with a strike, and then put 19 on top of it, winning for his team by a very close margin.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

"The Earl of Pawtucket," is as lively and as entertaining a farce as has ever been written, comes to the Castle Square next week for its first stock performance in Boston. Augustus Thomas has written many successful plays, but none more humorous and none more popular than this. Its characters are bright and comic, its plot is as clean and as wholesome as it is humorous, and it offers the right sort of clever entertainment for the Castle Square public.

Mr. Craig has acted the title role of the play before, but never in Boston, and therefore, his many admirers will be curious to see him and to witness a presentation of the character that will be unrivalled. As for the other parts, we are to see Mr. Friebus as Arthur Weatherbee, Mr. Evarts as Senator Barker, Mr. Meek as Wilkins, Mr. Hassell as Fordyce, Miss Young as Harriet Fordyce, Miss Cleveland as Eila Seaford and Miss Colcord as Jane Putnam.

BUSINESS IS GOOD
WE HAVE SEVERAL REASONS FOR IT

Buying the best of goods for cash and selling them on a fair investment basis for cash is the principal reason.

Every lady loves to shop. They like to see the goods and prices before they purchase.

They enjoy looking over new goods and as they continue to call they will find that new goods are added each week.

BUSINESS IS GOOD.

Our store is one of the best equipped in town for the sale of groceries.

It was built by one long in the business who knew what was required for a first-class store.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Robert Hilliard, than whom there has never been a greater favorite in vaudeville, that is among those who have come from the legitimate stage, will be the headline feature at Keith's Theatre next week. He will appear in a one act drama that will be seen here for the first time.

Another popular favorite will be on the bill this week, one who will be welcomed by a great many Bostonians, and this is that dainty little English comedienne, Lily Lena, who since she last appeared in Boston has had a series of successes. Although she has introduced a great many hits since she last appeared here, "Obidiah, Swing Me Higher" is still in her repertoire, and she will probably sing it during her engagement at Keith's.

In the way of a novelty there is nothing in recent years exceeding Franco Piper, the banjo expert, who is not only a remarkable musician, but somewhat of a juggler; also on this bill are Ray Cox, the Southern girl, whose singing and impersonations are always pleasing; Bellong Brothers, acrobatic cyclists, Coakley and McBride, colored comedians and dancers, and Marcel's Living Art Studies which are being held over another week with an entirely new set of reproductions of famous works of art.

BOSTON THEATRE.

Of all the pleasing attributes to that, master of stage craft David Belasco, there is none of such interest as "The Heart of Maryland," which will be given at the Boston Theatre next week. This was really Mr. Belasco's great effort, or in other words, the first play in which he proved the conviction of many years.

It will be produced at the Boston Theatre with all the splendid efforts of the original production, including the great belfry scene, which is said to have been suggested by that famous poem, "The Curfew Shall Not Ring To night."

Miss Eleanor Gordon will have the part created by Mrs. Leslie Carter which will add another element of novelty to this splendid production. This play is only one of those that have been presented at the Boston Theatre during the season, plays that are established successes and which every person should see and become familiar with as there is always an uncertainty when they will again be presented.

WATERS OF SONG.

TIME was when Avon's unrenowned stream,
Save for its beauty, unregarded flowed;
Once Arno even as other rivers glowed.
For then it had not mirrored Dante's dream.
How vague the gray Levantine sea did seem
Ere Homer charted all the stormy road!
And what lone grief by Babylon abode
Till David made those willow banks his theme!

Think you there are no other waters fit
To be reclaimed with a poet's name?
Is nature bankrupt, man's last beacon lit?
Believe it not! Unborn bards such fame
On undiscovered rivers may bestow
As shall to fable banish Nile and Po.

—Robert Underwood Johnson.

DYING IN HARNESS.

ONLY a fallen horse stretched out there on the road,
Stretched in the broken shafts and crushed by the heavy load;
Only a fallen horse and a circle of wondering eyes
Watching the frightened teamster goading the beast to rise.

HOLD, for his toil is over—no more labor for him!
See the poor neck outstretched and the patient eyes grow dim.
See on the friendly stones how peacefully rests the head
Thinking, if dumb beasts think, how good it is to be dead.
After the weary journey how restful it is to lie
With the broken shafts and the cruel load—waiting only to die.

WATCHERS, he died in harness—died in the shafts and straps—
Fell, and the burden killed him, one of the day's mishaps—
One of the passing wonders marking the city road—
A toiler dying in harness, heedless of call or goad.

PASSERS, crowding the pathway, staying your steps awhile,
What is the symbol? Only death. Why should we cease to smile
At death for a beast of burden? On through the busy street
That is ever and ever echoing the tread of hurrying feet.

WHAT was the sign? A symbol to touch the tireless will?
Does he who taught in parables speak in parables still?
The seed on the rock it wasted on heedless hearts of men
That gather and sow and grasp and lose, labor and sleep and then—
Then for the prize! A crowd in the street of ever echoing tread—
The toiler, crushed by the heavy load, lies there in his harness—dead.

—John Boyle O'Reilly.

KISSING NO SIN.

SOME say that kissing's a sin,
But I think that it's nane ava.
For kissing has wonn'd in this warld
Since ever there was twa.

OH, if it wasna lawfu'
Lawyers wadna allow it;
If it wasna holy,
Ministers wadna do it.

IF it wasna modest,
Maidens wadna tak' it;
If it wasna plenty,
Puir folks wadna get it.

—Author Unknown.

THE WELCOME.

COME in the evening or come in the morning,
Come when you're looked for or come without warning,
Kisses and welcome you'll find here before you,
And the oftener you come here the more I'll adore you.
Light is my heart since the day we were plighted,
Red is my cheek that they told me was blighted,
The green of the trees looks far greener than ever,
And the linnets are singing, "True lovers, don't sever!"

I'll pull you sweet flowers to wear if you choose them,
Or after you've kissed them they'll lie on my bosom.
I'll fetch from the mountain its breeze to inspire you;
I'll fetch from my fancy a tale that won't tire you.
Oh, your step's like the rain to the summer vexed farmer
Or saber and shield to a knight without armor.
I'll sing you sweet songs till the stars rise above me;
Then, wandering, I'll wish you in silence to love me.

We'll look through the trees at the cliff and the castle,
We'll tread round the rath on the track of the fairy,
We'll look on the stars, and we'll list to the river
Till you'll ask of your darling what gift you can give her.
Oh, she'll whisper you, "Love as unchangeably beaming,
And trust when in secret most tunefully streaming
Till the starlight of heaven above us shall quiver
As our souls flow in one down eternity's river."

So come in the evening or come in the morning,
Come when you're looked for or come without warning.

—Thomas Osborn Davis.

PENANCE.

HE kissed me, and I knew 'twas wrong,
For he was neither kith nor kin.
Need one do penance very long
For such a tiny little sin?

HE pressed my hand. That wasn't right!
Why will men have such wicked ways?
It wasn't for a minute quite,
But in it there were days and days!

THERE'S mischief in the moon, I know.
I'm positive I saw her wink
When I requested him to go.
I meant it, too, I almost think.

BUT, after all, I'm not to blame.
He took the kiss! I do think men
Are quite without the sense of shame!
I wonder when he'll come again.

WORK FOR SOME GOOD.

WORK for some good,
Be it ever so lowly;
Cherish some flower,
Be it ever so lowly.
Labor—all labor—is noble and holy.
Let thy great deeds be thy gifts to thy God.

MORE DEAD ONES AND FEW MOURNERS.

The electric plant formerly owned by Tawas City, Mich., is now in private hands. No information is obtainable from city officials.

The generating plant of the city electric light works of Fayetteville, N. C., installed in 1902 at a cost of $30,000, has been closed down, and a contract for current has been made with a private company.

The municipal electric light plant of Galena, Ill., was installed in 1898 at a cost of $18,000. It was sold last July for $13,000, but this price included a twenty-five year light, power and traction franchise. Under the new contract the city will get practically twice the amount of street lighting that was furnished by the municipal plant at only 15 per cent greater cost. The plant has not been a success. One account of it says:

"Its management was changed as often as new political cliques gained power, and at times there was no street illumination at all. The commercial service was inferior."

News of the action of the council spread rapidly, and a large crowd congregated in front of one of the hotels to express their delight at getting rid of the plant. A brass band was pressed into service, and speeches were made by prominent citizens.

On Aug. 1 S. G. Blatchford took possession of the municipal electric plant installed by the village of Kansas, Ill., in 1900. The mayor writes that the plant was sold "to clean up our indebtedness." The plant had been in the market for a year before it found a purchaser, the sale having been ordered by a vote of the citizens. A disinterested citizen wrote as follows last February:

"The principal cause for dissatisfaction with public ownership was inefficiency or, you may say, economy.

"The affairs of the plant were attended to until recently by three—now one—members of the board of trustees, who received no extra pay for their services and therefore were not as attentive to the business as if it had been their own or they had been properly paid.

"The man in charge of the mechanical part of the plant is an engineer, but not an electrician, more than one might be who works entirely by rule of thumb.

"The bad service deters people who would otherwise patronize the plant from using the light. There is no service after midnight. Although it is generally believed that all night service and cheaper rates would result in a substantial increase of business, the men in charge hesitate to take the responsibility of making the change, which might be a losing venture.

"Electricity has almost been displaced in the business buildings by gasoline, owing to the cheapness and being generally more satisfactory than the electrics under city management."

Socialist Testimony.

Hon. Carl D. Thompson, a Socialist member of the Wisconsin legislature, points as the foreword to his pamphlet "The Constructive Programme of Socialism" this quotation from Liebknecht:

"We are not going to attain socialism at one bound. The transition is going on all the time, and the important thing for us in this explanation is not to paint a picture of the future, which in any case would be useless labor, but to forecast a practical programme for the immediate period, to formulate and justify measures that shall serve as aids to the new Socialist birth."

Mr. Thompson then proceeds to outline the "measures that shall serve as aids to the new Socialist birth," devoting more than one-third of his brochure to municipal ownership, which he frankly calls municipal socialism and evidently regards as the most available means for accustoming the public to socialistic principles and methods. We owe a debt of gratitude to Mr. Thompson for helping to make clear the intimate connection between municipal ownership and socialism.

Mint, Anise and Gummin.

The growth of a small Wisconsin city made it very desirable to erect a high school building, but the citizens voted down the necessary bonds because it was felt that the indebtedness recently incurred for constructing a municipal light and water plant was as much as the people wanted to pay interest on at present. This is typical of what is going on all over the country. Cities are pawning their credit to invest in utilities which can be operated better and more economically by private enterprise instead of reserving it for true municipal purposes—schools, playgrounds, parks, paving, sewerage, etc. The result is that city development is checked, health is jeopardized and education is hampered because cities find it more interesting to invade the field of speculative business than to provide properly for the more commonplace but important functions of city government.

The City Pays the Bills.

The city of Kingston, Ont., has just discovered that it has been supplying current to its largest power customer at 17 per cent less than the actual cost of generating it. The city officials would not have made such a contract if they had been operating a plant in which their own money was invested.

Under the profit sharing plan adopted in 1907 by the New Haven (Conn.) Gas Light company between the corporation and its employees the men now own a total of 271 shares of the stock of the company.—American Gas Light Journal.

RETURN.

I SAID I had forgotten her,
That I had put away
Our memories of paradise
Until the judgment day;

THAT nevermore the laughing earth
Should see us hand in hand;
That I long since had shut the door
Of our old fairyland.

THEN on a sudden came strange news
Upon the gossip wind:
My love of those sweet years ago—
Great God! My love was blind!

I SAID the news must be a lie.
Cruel as are the years,
They could not be so merciless
To such great eyes as hers.

OH, little child of long ago,
God grant the news untrue.
Except for one strong selfish thought—
That I may come to you

AND sit beside you in the dark
And, as in paradise
I gave you all my breaking heart,
Now bring to you my eyes.

—Richard Le Gallienne.

THE MASTER BUILDER.

WHAT are your pyramids, Egypt?
Jerusalem, what are your mosques?
And rearing your Parthenon, Athens,
Was only the lightest of tasks.
Oh, London, your bridges and towers,
Your palaces and your docks,
Are matters of paltriest moment—
The baby is building with blocks!

Oh, China, your wall is a fragment!
Oh, India, shame on your Taj!
Oh, Titus, your vast coliseum
Is only a fleeting mirage!
Columbia, all your skyscrapers,
Your subways, an architect mocks,
For here on the floor of the playroom
The baby is building with blocks!

Oh, Solomon, wisest of sages,
Who cares for that temple of yours?
Oh, Ephesus, great was Diana,
But what of her glory endures?
Oh, Babylon, gone are your gardens!
Oh, Druids, your dolmens of rocks
Arouse in us only derision—
The baby is building with blocks!

A Fairy Tale Kingdom.

The kingdom of Uganda is a fairy tale. You climb up a railway instead of a beanstalk, and at the end there is a wonderful new world. The scenery is different, the vegetation is different, the climate is different, and, most of all, the people are different from anything elsewhere to be seen in the whole range of Africa. Instead of the breezy uplands we enter a tropical garden. In place of naked painted savages clashing their spears and gibbering in chorus to their tribal chiefs a complete and elaborate polity is presented. Under a dynastic king, a parliament and a powerful feudal system an amiable, clothed, polite and intelligent race dwell together in an organized monarchy upon the rich domain between the Victoria and Albert lakes.—Winston Churchill, M. P., in Strand Magazine.

A Promise Unfulfilled.

O. Henry, the well known story writer, once promised the editor of a magazine that he would deliver a short story to him on the following Monday. Several Mondays passed, but the muse was refractory, and the story was not forthcoming. At last the wrathful editor wrote this note:

My Dear O. Henry—If I do not receive that story from you by 12 o'clock today I am going to put on my heaviest soled shoes, come down to your house and kick you downstairs. I always keep my promises.

Whereupon O. Henry sat down and wrote this characteristic reply:

Dear Sir—I, too, would keep my promises if I could fulfill them with my feet.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constutional disease, therefore requires constutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

WOMAN'S BACKACHE

The back is the mainspring of woman's organism. It quickly calls attention to trouble by aching. It tells, with other symptoms, such as nervousness, headache, pains in the loins, weight in the lower part of the body, that a woman's feminine organism needs immediate attention.

In such cases the one sure remedy which speedily removes the cause, and restores the feminine organism to a healthy, normal condition is

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. Will Young, of 6 Columbia Ave., Rockland, Me., says:

"I was troubled for a long time with dreadful backaches and a pain in my side, and was miserable in every way. I doctored until I was discouraged and thought I would never get well. I read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others and decided to try it; after taking three bottles I can truly say that I never felt so well in my life."

Mrs. Augustus Lyon, of East Earl, Pa., writes

"I had very severe backaches, and pressing-down pains. I could not sleep, and had no appetite. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me and made me feel like a new woman."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

LAND COURT.

To the Lowell Five Cents Savings Bank, a duly existing corporation having its usual place of business in Lowell, in the County of Middlesex, and said Commonwealth; Horatio N Beyer, Henry F. Bower, Ella F. Crosby and Ella K. Wilson of Winchester, in said County of Middlesex; Mary D. Myrick of Woburn, in said County of Middlesex, and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Viola Allen Richardson of said Winchester, to register and confirm her title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Winchester, bounded as follows: Easterly by Washington street 97.73 feet more or less; Northerly by land of Ella F. Crosby and Ella K. Wilson 110.43 feet more or less; Southerly by land of Mary D. Myrick formerly of Joseph Stone 121.36 feet more or less; and Westerly by the Abajonah River 330.3 feet; containing 46,706 square feet.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the fourteenth day of December, A. D. 1908, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, LEONARD A. JONES, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this nineteenth day of November in the year nineteen hundred and eight.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

To the Honorable the Judges of the Land Court:

Respectfully represents Nora T. McCarthy, of Winchester in the County of Middlesex and said Commonwealth, that she is the owner in fee simple of a lot of land and the buildings thereon situated on Main street in said Winchester and described as follows:

"A certain parcel of land situated on Main street in said Winchester, bounded and described as follows: Easterly by said Main street about one hundred seven and 52-100 (107.52) feet; Southerly by land now or formerly of the Town of Winchester about two hundred nine and 4-100 (209.04) feet; Westerly by land of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts seventy-four and 35-100 (74.35) feet; and Northerly by land now or formerly of the First Congregational Society about two hundred thirty-six and 2-10 (236.2) feet. Containing about twenty thousand four hundred forty and 3-100 (20,440.03) square feet, be said measurements more or less or however otherwise bounded and described. Said premises are shown on a Plan of Land on Main street opposite junction of Washington street in said Winchester belonging to Henry F. Johnson, dated 1907, and duly recorded. Said premises are part of the same premises conveyed to Maria L. Johnson by deed of William P. Sargent dated September 1, 1866, and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book 964, Page 492."

That the recorded title of said real estate is encumbered by an undischarged mortgage covering said premises, given by one Francis H. Johnson and Maria L. Johnson in her own right to one William P. Sargent, dated September 1, 1866, and duly recorded with Middlesex Deeds, Book 994, Page 205;

That said mortgagor and those having her estate in said premises have had uninterrupted possession of said real estate for more than twenty years after the expiration of the time for the full performance of the conditions of said mortgage;

That no payment on account of the amount secured by said mortgage has been made and no act in recognition of its existence as a valid mortgage has been done within said twenty years, and your petitioner believes that said mortgage was long since paid, and by accident or misadvertence the discharge thereof has not been recorded in said Registry of Deeds;

Wherefore your petitioner prays that such notice may be ordered to be given to the representatives of said William P. Sargent and those interested in his estate and to all other persons interested in said estate as the Court may order; and the decree may be entered setting forth such findings of the Court in relation thereto and ordering that from and after such decree no action shall ever be brought by any person to claim a title under said mortgage, and that the said mortgage be released and cancelled upon the records.

OWN A HOME

When you return home at night, tired and sore from a hard day's toil, don't you often wish you could sit down in a home of your own?

Don't this continued rent-paying proposition worry you and rob you of a great deal of comfort that you would enjoy if you had a place that was yours?

Perhaps the psychological moment has arrived when you have determined to act in this matter. If so, do not fail to consult

It is amusing to say the least, to read of two men using violence in settling a land boundary disagreement. All the facts can be found at the Registry of Deeds building, and all disputes change nothing.

Mr. E. I. Braddock of Highland avenue, Hillcrest, spends much time and money in trying to keep his grounds in fine condition. This also includes the grass plot between his sidewalk and the street. Despite all his efforts to keep the latter looking nice, careless drivers of teams grind off the edges, cut the corners and otherwise disfigure it. This is, indeed, a poor reward for money spent in making estates a pleasurable sight to the public as well as the owner.

The tree men have been taught a sad lesson in the death of their comrade John Lydon. The charged wire in a tree is more to be avoided than anywhere else. The pruning pole or any implement coming in contact with a live wire means almost certain death. On Tuesday a town employee was killed in Amesbury by his pruning pole touching a wire. Rubber gloves should be used when work is being done on trees through which wires pass, and the responsible person in charge should insist that this be done.

THE WINCHESTER STAR.

VOL. XXVIII. NO. 23. WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1908. PRICE, FIVE CENTS

FROM THE FILES OF THE FORTNIGHTLY.

No. 5.

Mrs. Minnie C. Ely in 1906 became the eleventh President of The Fortnightly. This year was unique for the fact that at last the Club succeeded in making an arrangement to occupy the Calumet Club Hall for its meetings. In many ways this was a marked improvement over anything heretofore enjoyed, but the social committee found their labor so much more heavy on account of the arrangement of the club house that no effort was made to secure the hall for a second year. Several interesting home afternoons were held during this year and especially a Dickens Day deserves more than passing mention. The President making the cuttings, four of her friends gave scenes from "Our Mutual Friend" and "Nicholas Nickleby" in a most admirable manner, and Mrs Root gave readings from "A Tale of Two Cities." The meeting taxed the capacity of the hall to its utmost and was one of the most successful of the year.

On April 18th, 1907, was given a Colonial play for the benefit of the Vacation Playroom. This was a marked success, and with a course of parlor talks by Miss Grace Chamberlain gave a fund large enough to maintain the Playroom during the summer, without the usual appropriation from the treasury of The Fortnightly.

CARRIE F. WHEELER
Twelfth President of The Fortnightly.

As Mrs Ely's health would not permit her serving a second term, Mrs Carrie F. Wheeler became 12th President. Unusual opportunities occurred to make the Club prominent and the year just finished has been a most successful one. The $200 promised for The Fortnightly's share of Biennial expenses was raised by a Club Exchange table and by a series of whists. The State Federation signifying a willingness to accept an invitation to hold the mid-winter meeting in Winchester, the invitation was accordingly tendered. Between 800 and 900 delegates from Federated Clubs gathered in the Town Hall and were delightfully entertained. Mrs. Ham, as Chairman of the Lunch Committee with an efficient corps of workers, provided a bountiful lunch at the Congregational Vestries, and our visitors were enthusiastic in their praise of their entertainment, both intellectual and physical. About $55 was netted over and above expenses which went to swell the treasury.

The Club decided to open to the public the meeting at which Mr. Jacob Riis was to speak, as it has ever been the principle of The Fortnightly to benefit the community so far as possible by the good things it has been able to bring. As a result the Town Hall was filled with an audience which would have been a credit to any town in the Commonwealth.

Early in the year it was decided that the Club be limited to 400, and in March the Club voted to raise the entrance and annual dues to $4 and $3 respectively.

The Philanthropy Committee was especially fortunate in securing Miss Grace Chamberlain for a course of six dramatic recitals with music appropriate to the subject presented, and so great an interest was shown by the Club members and their friends that the amount placed at the service of the Education Committee for the maintenance of the Playroom was raised to the unprecedented amount of nearly $500. As a result four rooms were used and experienced and able teachers employed with results very gratifying to friends of the philanthropy. The need is now for another room to be opened and work provided for children between the Kindergarten and industrial ages. A child may be too old for Kindergarten and too young to make dresses or baskets or to cane chairs. In other schools where a similar problem has presented itself, work on hand looms has been provided which children of that age can easily learn. The children are most happy in their work and the Playroom commends itself to all who love children and wish to do them good. The ethical value of the teaching is strongly accented and in morning talks and by the continual "line upon line" efforts are made to give the children lasting benefit. A feature of the school for the last two years has been the lunch of milk and crackers served in the middle of the morning, the theory that the children are in much better condition for it physically at the end of the six weeks receiving ample support. This luncheon is also made the occasion for a lesson on table manners which is never amiss.

On April 12th the city of Chelsea was almost destroyed by fire. Early the next morning the President of The Fortnightly divided the Club into sections, soliciting was begun and enormous loads of clothing and furniture were dispatched to the sufferers. An all day sewing meeting of the Club was called and 900 finished garments were the result of the labor on that occasion. The Fortnightly also raised $250 in money for the same object. After the very first the work was done entirely through the Forbes Lithographic Company and Chelsea Woman's Club, and the appreciation manifested by our sisters in distress was very deeply felt and sincerely voiced.

The great topic toward the end of the Club year was the great Biennial to be held in Boston in June. The Club now numbering 400 was able to have four delegates and as many alternates. Many of the members were invited to serve upon committees, the President herself being chairman of the Platform Committee. It gave a fitting conclusion to a most important and interesting year in the Club history, and in usefulness and live enthusiasm The Fortnightly has vindicated its right to be called by the name which those noble women chose for it on that December afternoon in 1881. May it ever live, consecrated to the high ideals of its founders, animated "by the double purpose of self-improvement and active benevolence in a spirit of gentle tolerance and high endeavor."

A SECOND PRODUCTION OF MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM

There seems to be a general feeling that a second representation of Shakespeare's delightful play which was so superbly given at the Town Hall on Tuesday evening is called for. The School Board feels that there should be a large delegation of High and Grammar school pupils who can appreciate such an opportunity of real educational value.

If a sufficient audience to assure expenses can signify their desire for tickets within a few days, The Fortnightly will endeavor to place the production within the reach of those desirous of seeing this most successful representation of a play of the great master's happiest period.

FESTIVAL OF THE SEASONS.

The Festival of the seasons, for which the ladies of the Methodist church have been making active preparations during the past few months, opened yesterday and continues through today. CHRISTMAS SALE.

The Bethany Sewing Society of the Second Congregational Church held a Christmas Sale Tuesday at the home of Mr. Wm. McIntosh on Stone avenue. A large number of people attended from all over town and the sale was very successful, only a small number of articles being left over. The tables and rooms were prettily decorated in pink and red and the social part was very pleasant. The tables were presided over by the following ladies: Apron table, Mrs. McIntosh, Mrs. Belville, Mrs. Newth; Fancy table, Mrs. Currier, Miss Eliott; Cake table, Mrs. Claflin, Mrs. Parker, Mrs. Seagraves; Candy table, Mrs. Knapp, Mrs. George Goddu, Mrs. Clyde Bell; Tea table, Mrs. Dwight; Ice cream table, Mrs. Smalley, Mrs. Watt, Mrs, Everett and Mrs. Butler. Mrs. McIntosh was Chairman of the Fair Committee. About seventy dollars was realized.

THE FORTNIGHTLY PLAY.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It is understood that The Fortnightly contemplates repeating Midsummer Night's Dream, which was so successfully given last Tuesday evening, provided there is a sufficient demand to warrant a second performance. The club has done a great deal of philanthropic work for the benefit of the town and its inhabitants, and all should be only too glad to assist in swelling the proceeds of the present undertaking, which are to be entirely devoted to educational objects, the vacation school and a scholarship fund.

CHARLES F. A. CURRIER.

TWO BAD FIRES.

A fire in the block at the corner of Swanton and Holland streets gave the firemen the hardest battle which they have had for some time, on Tuesday night. The building was owned by Mrs. Margaret Fitzgerald. Besides several families the block contained a bakery, barber shop and grocery store, all of which were pretty well cleaned out. The fire started in the cellar from some unknown cause and had burned for a considerable length of time before it was discovered, as the flames had reached the roof. At the time the fire was discovered there were twenty-five persons asleep in the seven tenements above the ground floor, but all escaped except Mrs. Antonio Detello, who was taken down a ladder by firemen. Driver John Flaherty of Hose 3 was overcome by smoke

A large crowd was attracted to the scene and watched the efforts ot the firemen. Whether the building will be rebuilt or not is not known at present.

This was one of the most difficult fires that the department has had to contend with for a long time. The fire had got a good start before being discovered and had worked thoroughly in between the partitions, thus giving the men a hard task. An inspection of the burned building makes it appear wonderful that it was subdued as soon as it was, and is an indication of the efficiency of the department.

The damage to the building is estimated at about $4000.

The second large fire which taxed the energy and resources of the Winchester firemen was that of Thursday forenoon, when the house and stable belonging to Mr. J. A. Laraway on Forest street were burned. This place, formerly known as the A. B Coffin estate, consisted of a large stone and timber house with a spacious stable connected. How the fire started is not known. It originated however in the stable and the alarm was telephoned to the central fire station shortly before nine o'clock. When the apparatus arrived the barn was a seething mass of flames and the house burning briskly. Notwithstanding the immense headway of the flames the firemen turned to it with a will and fought the fire to the best of their ability, being handicapped by the extreme cold and low water pressure. The stable was completely destroyed and not much left of the house. About 40 pigs, two horses, a cow, automobile and much other valuable property was burned. Some of the furniture and fittings of the house were saved. An electric car was passing at the time the fire was discovered in charge of Conductor Green. He asked the inmates if he could assist in saving anything and said later that if he had been informed that the livestock was in the barn, he and his motorman could have saved it.

The origin of the fire is unknown, the stable not being entered by anyone after seven o'clock so far as is know until the fire was discovered. The flames spread with incredible rapidity, and swept everything before them.

The property was assessed for about $2800.

THE FORTNIGHTLY.

The long talked of much-planned-for presentation of Shakespeare's comedy, "Midsummer Night's Dream," was given Tuesday evening by members of the dramatic committee of the club. That it was a fine entertainment was proved by the frequent and prolonged applause given by the large audience which filled nearly every seat in the hall. So great was the success of the performance that it may be repeated.

Next Monday is "Reciprocity Day." All will remember the delightful program of last year, when so many presidents of neighboring clubs gave short talks on various subjects. Our committee have arranged for something similar this year.

Mrs. Pennock, State chairman of the Reciprocity Committee, will speak on "Reciprocity as applied to Clubs; Mrs. Lizzie S. Watts, president on of the Look Out Club of Lynn, will give a ten-minute talk on "Scholarships;" Miss Georgia Bacon will open a "Club House" discussion. Other guests are Mrs. J. H. Haywood of Woburn Club, Mrs. Whiton of Dorchester Club, and Mrs. Whitman of Cantabrigia Club. Mrs. John Laurence Tufts will sing and Miss Natalie Kinsman will accompany her as pianist. There will be an informal reception and tea. A full attendance is desired.

COUNTRY CLUB OFFICERS NOMINATED.

The nominating committee of the Winchester Country Club has made the following nominations for officers of the club for the coming year:

President—Samuel J. Elder.
Vice-President—John Abbott.
Treasurer—Richard S. Sanborn.
Secretary—James Nowell.
Directors—Frank E. Barnard, Franklin L. Hunt, William D. Richards, George M. Brooks and James W. Russell, Jr.

These officers will be voted upon at the annual meeting of the club, to be held on the last Monday in January.

The nominating committee was composed of Messrs. George W. Fitch, Arthur Black, George M. Brooks, Herbert H. Nickerson and William Keyes.

MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM

The Fortnightly added one more laurel to its already ample wreath, last Tuesday evening, by the most emphatic success resulting from a presentation of the Midsummer Night's Dream The attendance was, apparently, limited only by the capacity of the hall, and the audience was enthusiastic, and profuse in its applause.

This performance was made possible by the energy, perseverance and untiring efforts of Mrs. Mary Robinson, the manager, who added ability to earnest endeavor, and to her every member of The Fortnightly owes a debt of gratitude. The staging of the play, which was, in every respect, remarkably well done, was under the direction of Mr. Walter Dugan, and was a valuable addition to the performance. The Mendelssohn music was delightfully rendered by an orchestra under the leadership of Mrs. Lefavour, The Fortnightly's well-know pianist.

The various roles were executed with wonderful ability, and reflect much credit on the actors. Mrs. Ely played Theseus, the Duke, with ease and dignity, and the loveliness of Theseus' bride, Hippolyta—an Amazon in name, though not in looks—was much commented upon. This part was taken by Mrs. Wheeler. Egeus, the irate father, and Philostrate were well impersonated by Mrs. Allen and Mrs. Goffe respectively. The four lovers were presented to perfection by Mrs. C. H. Herrick as Lysander, Miss Mason as Demetrius, Mrs. Bicknell as Hermia, and Mrs. Farmer as Helena. These parts would have done credit to professionals. Graceful fairies in light, gauzy costume, the hair of each adorned with an electric light, furnished some attractive scenes, four tiny children adding their fascinations to the group. Miss Annette Symmes, first fairy, pleased the audience with her grace and sweet singing. Oberon (Miss Dorothy Ayer) and Titania (Miss Nutt) were charming as King and Queen of the Fairies. Miss Graves, slender and graceful, made an ideal Puck, and her ease of manner was very commendable.

Last—but, by no means, least—the group of "rude mechanicals," in the rehearsals and performance of their comedy, deserve a high tribute. This was the mirth producing feature of the play, and was heartily responded to by the audience. The grotesqueness of their make-up was alone enough to provoke the laughter of the most sedate; but, when action and conversation were added, the effect was irresistible. Mrs. Woods, as Quince, the manager of the small play, was original and admirable. Her enunciation was both loud and distinct—a most desirable requisite. Credit is due to nearly all the performers in the Midsummer Night's Dream for this much-valued distinctness of utterance.

Mrs. Root, who took the part of Bottom and also of Pyramus, was inimitable in the interpretation of her part, and was responsible for much of the laughter, particularly when adorned with the ass' head. Though struggling under the difficulty arising from the ass' mouth being in a different place from that of the speaker, it is to be doubted if Balaam's ass of olden times spoke half as distinctly as that distinguished beast of Tuesday evening. Words rolled from his moving lips as though his own unaided utterances. He enjoyed, too the advantage of most expressive eyes as they turned upwards, and ears that moved in sympathy with his emotions. Flute, the bellows-mender, representing Thisbe, was very ably rendered by Mrs. Goddard, and created much amusement. Snout, the Wall, was impersonated by Mrs. Pratt, who proved herself equal to the demands of that character. Snug, the joiner, (Miss Hazelton) who took the part of the lion did extremely well, and was very amusing. Mrs. Thompson who played Starvelling, and was assigned the part of Thisbe's mother, and afterwards that of the Moon, called forth appreciation for the manner in which she handled her parts.

The ushers who seated the large audience quietly and expeditiously were: Mrs. Folts, Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Vinal, Mrs. Pike, Mrs. Watters, Mrs. Seelye, Mrs. Huguley, Miss Vinton, Miss Downs, Miss Belcher, Miss Punchard, Miss Bunting, Miss Towne and Miss Clay.

After the dropping of the curtain at the end of the play, a tumultuous applause called forth the players, and some exquisite flowers were passed over the footlights to different individuals.

Already there has been a demand for a repetition of The Midsummer Night's Dream, and it is hoped that, later, the public request will be gratified.

THE MOTHER'S ASSOCIATION

The December meeting of the Mothers' Association on Dec. 16, is confined to "members only," and tickets of admission have been sent out.

If any present member of the Association has failed to receive a post-card-ticket, will she kindly inquire of Mrs. H. Parker, 408 Main street.

At the annual meeting, Jan. 20, officers will be elected, and dues (.25) for 1909, may be paid, by old members and new.

Mrs. Joshua Young sustained a slight shock ot paralysis this week.

WINCHESTER MAN COMPLIMENTED.

The executive committee on the Civic Federation of New England met last Friday evening at the Parker House, Boston, and considered several matters, including the temporary resignation of the secretary, Hayes Robbins of this town who is obliged to go to California for several months because of his health.

Lucius Tuttle, chairman of the committee, voiced the sentiments of the committee in his remarks on the temporary resignation of Hayes Robbins after the latter had read his report for the year. Mr. Tuttle said:

"There is only one thing in the secretary's report that leaves in my mind anything of regret, that is the departure of the secretary himself, even for a short time. For whatever success the New England Federation has achieved is due to the good sense and effective work Hayes Robbins has put into it. Now we've got to get along without his steadying arm for awhile at least, and I propose that he be given six months' vacation without loss of pay."

Mr Robbins' report for the year was an exceedingly able document and aside from a detailed report of the past year's work contained the cheering information that capital and labor are becoming better acquainted one with the other.

DR. KELLEY LECTURES.

The Fraternity Rooms of Delta Chapter of Psi Omega Dental Fraternity, of Tufts College Dental School, were crowded last Friday evening, December 4th, the occasion being a lecture on "The Extraction of Teeth" by Dr. Orlon Kelley, of this town. The lecture proved both entertaining and highly instructive, all the students present being loud in their praise of the manner in which the genial Doctor handled his subject, and the familiarity and thorough knowledge which was shown. Aside from the formal aspect of the lecture, the Doctor being an alumnus of Psi Omega, renewed old times and recalled many happy incidents of his student days. Three hearty cheers and a "tiger" given at the close of the lecture was evidence to convince anyone that the members heartily appreciated what the speaker had to offer.

Refreshments were served and it was nearly the "wee small hours" when the meeting adjourned.

Nothing would suit the members of Delta Chapter but that Dr. Kelley would be with them again later in the season and give them additional "points."

Judging from the comments heard there was not anything the matter with the afore mentioned Doctor.

HANDICRAFT SOCIETY.

The next meeting of the Handicraft Society will be held Thursday, December 17th, from three to six o'clock in the afternoon.

The meeting will take the form of a private view of the Exhibition of Japanese art and wood block prints, which the Society will hold at that time, the Exhibition remaining open to the public Thursday evening, and Friday and Saturday afternoon and evening. Members of the Society are urgently requested to attend on the opening day and bring any guests who may be interested in handicraft work. The Exhibition will be of unusual interest and the Japanese wood block prints, which will be for sale at moderate prices, will be found very suitable for decorations and Christmas souvenirs.

CHRISTMAS SONG RECITAL.

In the Assembly Hall at the High school building, next Thursday forenoon, Dec. 17, at 10.30 there will be a Christmas Song Recital by Albert E. Brown, basso. Mrs. Brown will be the pianist. The public are invited. Following will be the program:

PLACED IN A FALSE POSITION.

In a letter to the Boston Post, Samuel J. Elder, Esq., writes:

The repeated suggestion during the past month of my name in connection with some Cabinet position has become distinctly embarrassing.

It was all well enough at first to be mentioned and to have courteous and complimentary things said, but to have these pleasant things taken seriously and assume the appearance of a campaign, and especially to have my acquaintance with Mr. Taft exaggerated into intimacy, puts me in a wholly false position and one to which I have no right.

There is absolutely nothing in it, and never has been. So far as I know my name has never been suggested to Mr Taft, or considered by him for a moment in connection with any office whatsoever.

Yours truly
SAMUEL J. ELDER.

BUSINESS MEN'S CONFERENCE.

The business men of the First Baptist Church have recently organized a Business Men's Conference, for the purpose of associating together the men of the church and all others who may join with them and make a study of important questions of public interest. The conference meets Sundays 12 to 1 o'clock in the chapel of the church and is arousing unusual interest, as it offers a fine opportunity for study of the great questions that men everywhere are interested in.

December 20th the first of four studies on Child Labor with an address by Everett W. Lord, N. E. Sec. of Nat. Child Labor Reform Bureau will be given.

On Thursday, December 17th, at 8 p. m., will be held a public reception to the men of Winchester who are interested in the purpose and plan of the Conference. Entertainment and refreshments will be provided. All thoughtful men should be interested in this new movement.

WINCHESTER STARTS WELL.

The High school basket ball team started the season well Thursday evening by defeating the strong Harvard Sophomore team in the High school gymnasium by the score of 38 to 23. The team play was exceptionally good for so early in the season. All the home players put up a fine game, especially Dover, who shot eight baskets and received passes in fine style. Captain Webber of the Harvard team played his usual hard, steady game, which was always noticeable while on the high school team.

The lineups:

WINCHESTER		HARVARD 1911
Cameron (Tuck)	rf	Miller
Collins	lf	Case
Dover	c	Newton
Thompson	rg	Dow
Sharon (Hamilton)	lg	Webber

Score, Winchester 38; Harvard 1911, 23; Goals from floor made by Dover 8, Collins 4, Thompson 3, Cameron 2, Tuck, Miller 4, Newton 3, Case 2, Dow, Webber. Goals from free tries, Collins 2, Miller. Referee, Welch. Scorer, Hurd. Timer, Small. 2 twenty minutes periods.

WINCHESTER 51, BALLOU AND HOBIGAND 6

Winchester won the second game of the season in a walk-over from Ballou & Hobigand, last Friday night in the school gymnasium, by the score of 51 to 6. Never did the visitors have any show during the whole game, even when four substitutes were playing at the last part Dover and Collins played a large part in the score, while the Winchester backs never let anything get around them. The last part of the game, four of last year's second team took the regulars places and showed up some good material.

The lineup:

WINCHESTER		BALLOU AND HOBIGAND
Cameron (Mortensen)	rf	McCarthy
Collins (Tuck)	lf	Stone
Dover (Hanson)	c	Bouse
Thompson (Hamilton)	rg	Ryder
Sharon	lg	(Prescott) Hammond

Score, Winchester 51, Ballou and Hobigand 6. Goals from the floor, Dover 8, Collins 6, Cameron 3, Sharon 2, Thompson, Mortensen 4, Hanson, Ryder, Stone, McCarthy. Goals from free try, Collins. Referee, Smith. Umpire, Mobbs. Scorer, Welch. Timer, Neiley. 2 twenty minute periods.

BOSTON THEATRE.

The announcement of the closing of the Boston Theatre Stock company season at the Boston Theatre has been the sensation of the week in amusement circles, for there has been no more popular organization in Boston in recent years. Mr. Keith has other plans to announce, but for the last week there will be presented a production that will be a fitting end for a remarkable season of stock. The productions given by Mr. Keith have been of the most elaborate kind, far superior to anything hitherto attempted in a company of this kind, and it is predicted that "The Walls of Jericho" will outdo any of the others.

It was in this play that James K. Hackett and Mary Mannering, then playing together, made the greatest success of their career. It was an English play, written by Alfred Sutro, the famous dramatist, and when first presented created a tremedous sensation and had a run in London that has been equalled by few, if any piece of a similiar character. This was duplicated in America by Mr. Hackett.

The leading character will be taken by Wilson Melrose who will appear as Jack Frobisher. Of course, matters reach such a point where the manliness of Frobisher shows itself and the flirtatious wife is made to see her error. Just how all this comes about is best told in the play and it is hardly within the provi dence of a newspaper article.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The week of December 14th at Keith's Theatre, promises to be a red-letter one, for many reasons. First of all, it will mark the appearance of Irene Franklin in Boston with a series of new songs that have been creating a furore in every place she has appeared. Miss Franklin, who has been for several years assisted by Burt Green, the pianist, has always been a prime favorite in vaudeville.

On the same bill will be Jesse Lasky's biggest, and by all means, best production, "At the Country Club," which will be seen in Boston for the first time, presented by a large company.

Also on the bill this week will be Stuart Barnes, the monogolist; the Elis Norman Troupe with their circus; the Three Leightons, a remarkable company of comedians; Lisla Leigh and Company in a dramatic sketch; the famous Dillon Brothers, song writers and humorists; Franco Pipen, the banjo expert and juggler, who remains over for another week; Oscar Lorraine and the special Keith show.

A few years ago Representative Dowse of Malden introduced a bill into the Legislature, making it a felony for department stores that resort to misrepresentation in their advertisements. The proprietors of these stores turned out in such force that the bill was kicked into the Legislative sewer. Now a congressman at Washington has introduced a bill on the same general lines but of a broader scope.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constutional disease, therefore requires constutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

"FROM TRAPPER TO WEARER"

Unusual Values IN FINEST CANADIAN FURS

A Shrewd Woman's Wisdom

A shrewd woman's experience usually makes her a better judge of fur values than her husband because she takes more time to investigate and compare values.

If a woman were buying five fur garments at one time she would, naturally, expect the furriers to give a special price on so large an order, and the furrier would be most anxious to secure the business because, if he only charged one-half his regular profit on the five garments, he would still be making about three times as much on the transaction as if he had sold one garment only. In the fur business that's exactly our position. To deal exclusively in furs in five business centres where we have our own stores, we buy the raw furs direct from the trappers in Canada and manufacture and sell garment direct to the user without intermediate profits. Our Canadian furs are admitted into the United States duty free: here, they are made into the newest New York designs by the most skilled American designers and work people. The duty on manufactured furs is 35 per cent.

We make only reliable furs. When the people of Canada were making a present of the finest Mink Coat in the world to their future Queen, H. R. H. Princess of Wales, at Quebec, we were commissioned to make it; we would like to be commissioned to make your furs also. We want to interest you in some exceptional value in Canadian Mink and Hudson Bay Sable. It will pay you to look into the money saving chance to secure reliable Canadian furs at most reasonable prices.

Taken From Old Files

John McLean, a carpenter employed at A. Moseley & Co.'s tannery, while at work in the beam-house, had his arm caught in some machinery, and very badly broken.

Mr. A. Cutting is building a double dwelling house 26 x 28 with an L 16 x 22, on a court near Arnold's lumber yard.

An unsuccessful search for liquor was made at the store of Brooks & Dyer, by Officers Richardson and Hammond.

Messrs. Robinson and Cobb, of the Reform Club visited Waltham Wednesday evening, and attended the second anniversary of the Waltham Reform Club. About 350 were present, and among the speakers was J. R. Cobb, of Winchester.

Thursday evening the members of the Good Will Club were the guests of the Ladies' Friendly Society, the meeting being held in the vestries of the Unitarian Church. A bountiful supper was provided, and the evening was pleasantly spent in games and social converse.

The full amount of the $85,000 necessary for the granting of a charter to the Mystic Valley R. R., has been subscribed and ten per cent. actually paid in. [And what became of the project and the money.]

The Knights of Honor order has become so popular, and is extending so rapidly in Winchester, that the members find it necessary to secure a larger place of meeting.—[Wonder where the meetings are held now]

At the regular meeting of the Good Will Club on Tuesday evening last, the exercises consisted of a Harlequin Quadrille, a Charade in three acts, illustrating the word "Pumpkin." Duet on the piano by the Misses Spicer, and reading of a humorous description of "Mrs. Brown's first visit to an English Play House," by Mr. Charles A. Cutter.

The first lecture in the scientific course was given at the Unitarian Vestry on Tuesday evening, by Prof. Burbank, of Woburn. The audience was greatly interested. The subject was "Water Supply."

There were few who travelled in sleighs after the last snow storm, who can stand up and be counted among those who were not tipped over. Among those who were unfortunate enough to have a multitude of witnesses to their troubles, were Mr. J. F. Dwinell, who was upset Sunday, on coming from church, and Mr. M. A. Herrick was also spilled out, together with his family about the same time. His horse ran away, and injured himself quite severely.

Post 148 will give a Dramatic, Musical and Literary Entertainment Tuesday evening, Feb. 12th, in Lyceum Hall, for the benefit of the Charity Fund. Baker's play,—"The Little Brown Jug," will be given by local talent.

J. F. Brodeur has put up his credentials over the door of A. E. Ayers' late place of business.

The Sunday afternoon meeting at 2.45 o'clock, this coming Sunday will be devoted to the discussion of the best means of interesting the children in temperance work, and surrounding them with such influences as will lead them to grow up temperance men and women. Rev. Mr. Metcalf and the other clergymen are expected to speak on the subject.

The entertainment held at the Congregational vestry Monday evening consisted of a telephone exhibition, an excellent supper, a personification of Gen. George Washington and lady, by Mr. S. T. Sanborn and Mrs. J. C. Paine. S. J. Elder, Esq., of Boston, recited Mark Anthony's speech over the body of Julius Caesar, from Shakespeare, in a very fine manner.

Sally Richardson, widow of Reuben Richardson and the oldest person in Winchester died March 27, [1878], aged 98 years, 2 months and 8 days.

SAME TO WINCHESTER.

The Chronicle wishes it had the power to write convincingly enough to induce all Reading people to do their trading at home. The argument is all on the side of home trading. There is accessibility, low prices, responsibility, freedom from overcrowding, fresh stocks; and the money spent here sooner or later gets in to taxation and helps out in that way. Blood is thicker than water. We ought all to give our townspeople the preference over those who give no reason for us to care a hang for them. We hope the shop at-home idea is firmer rooted than in any previous year.—[Reading Chronicle.

An instance of Boston's department stores bargains was called to our attention this week by a lady who said that she had purchased some bargain hose in Boston and on reaching home said it took on a lemon tinge after examination. She went to Bowser's and found that she could purchase hose of a far better quality for the same price as she paid in Boston. These days people are mistaken if they think they can get something for nothing The same class of goods can be bought in Winchester at as low price as in Boston and perhaps lower.

It's easy to figure out profits on paper in buying stocks, but if you want actual returns see Geo. Adams Woods about a good real estate investment.

THE PARENT'S OPPORTUNITY

R. C. M.

The law requires children to be sent to school from the time they are seven years old until the completion of their thirteenth year,—and longer if they have not made satisfactory progress in reading and writing. It is expected that the ordinary child will acquire, during these seven years, the elements of an education. The term education is variously defined. It should include the physical, mental, and moral development of an individual, but more frequently it refers only to the mental growth. It is unfortunate that the term is thus confined, because of the tendency to cast a slur upon a large class of children whose education must be gained, if gained at all, outside of books. Information is gained not only from books, but from observation. As a boy, Lincoln gained little from books, but he learned much from his rude surroundings that was transmuted into knowledge through the alembic of his mind. He used his eyes and ears to gather information, and in the solitude of his cabin, or in his leisure moments on the flat-boat, he pondered over the unclassed material which filled his mind. His body grew strong from the exercise he was compelled to take exercise which he thoroughly enjoyed because he was conscious of growing strength and skill. His mind grew strong as a result of his thinking upon and mentally digesting the information which he had gathered in every possible way open to him.

The experiences which were the common lot of boys and girls fifty years ago, are not open to the boys and girls of the present day. The farm, the forest, and the workshop which gave so generously to the education of children of the olden days, are now unknown quantities to the children of the present. Population seeks the cities, or the suburbs of cities. Homes are crowded into smaller spaces. Farms are exchanged for a few feet of green grass attached to houses that in many cases get their light only from front and rear, and many of these houses furnish homes for several families. Children are born and grow to be young men or women without knowing the delight of green fields, singing birds, wild flowers, forests, or deep valleys. The education of these children is limited to books, and to such substitutes for country life as can be devised in cities and suburban villages. A few loads of sand dumped in city school yards innocent of trees and green grass, a gymnasium in the basement of some school building, a sloyd room in connection with some grammer school, these and similar devices furnish little of the real training that comes with the domestic economy of country life.

In a suburban village like our own, however, with an intelligent community of well-to-do men and women, there is little excuse for depriving our boys and girls of many opportunities for development which real country life furnishes so abundantly. We have hundred of homes that include not only houses that furnish comfortable shelter, but also plots of ground that might easily be converted into gardens and become factors in the education of the children. These gardens might not furnish opportunities for learning Greek, Latin, or mathematics, but a knowledge of "How plants grow," is no less important than "How Greeks and Romans talked." Moreover, the study of flowers and plants, the peculiar value of different kinds of soil, how to plant the seed, and how to train the vine; how to protect the plant from noxious insects, how to fertilize the soil and improve varieties,—all these objects of study stimulate thought, by demanding careful observation, sound judgment, and skilful manipulation. All this is education in the truest sense of the word. Not all of education it is true, but foundation work which gives the boy or girl confidence in himself, in his ability to control to a considerable extent the forces of nature in the growth of plants, and in the production of fruits and flowers. Such work leads inevitably, both with boys and girls, to the workshop with its numberless opportunities for the further development of the child's activities. He soon finds the need of tools for carrying on his work, and the wise parent supplies this need, not by purchasing ready-made all that is demanded, but by setting aside some small vacant room which becomes the child's "shop" and in which he will make and mend the simple tools that are needed in his work. And this leads to the study of books, because the child soon feels the need of help that his experience will not give. And thus he learns how to use books,—not merely to get lessons, but to get help from those wiser than himself, which will enable him to do what he had in mind with the least possible assistance. After all has been said, education is the ability to do things, and when the child has begun to produce something of real value in his home garden, when in his little workshop he has made a tool that will answer his purpose, when in the sloyd, or the cooking room, or in the sewing class, something of real worth has been wrought out by the child, then the process of education is begun in the best possible way, and is likely to lead to the best possible results.

While the home garden has been taken in this paper, as an illustration of what may be done in almost any family and with almost any child, other lines of home work may answer the same purpose by leading to the same result, viz., habits of industry, and ability to do something of real value without help or hindrance from parent or teacher.

The purposes of school life are by no means gained when lessons from books have been learned, recited, and duly recorded. These matters are not ends in themselves; they are means to ends of infinitely greater worth. The child is to be trained into habits of punctuality, industry, perseverance, trustworthiness, and absolute honesty. This training must begin in the home, and its value must be appreciated by the parents no less than by the teacher in school. There should be fixed hours for home study. Neither occasional work nor play should interfere with the study periods, if habits of study are to be gained. Nor should parents forget that play is just as necessary to the child as work, but the two should not be carried on at one and the same time. "Work when you work, and play when you play," is a wise saying, of no greater value in the olden time than now, at the beginning of the 20th century.

ADVERTISING IS NOT AN EXPENSE.

The man who talks of advertising as an expense does not know the first letter of the alphabet that makes up the words to describe advertising. If there are fundamental principles in advertising, one of the chiefest among them is the impregnable fact that advertising is not an expense. This has been demonstrated and demonstrated, yet if the advertising men do not themselves know and recognize it how can they expect to establish it in the minds of the advertisers?

The STAR sells increased business to its advertisers, as every good medium does. It is not an expense for any legitimate dealer in advertising to advertise properly in this paper. It is stock in trade. It is merchandise that can be sold again and again, and still remain to be again sold. It is no more an expense for the merchant to advertise than it is for him to buy more goods to renew his stock. It is not only false to allude to it as an expense, it is suicidal.

Whoever sells good advertising sells business, sells income, sells bank accounts, sells expansion, sells growth, sells progress, sell power.

GOOD FOR WOBURN.

Amid the din of steam whistles and bells Tuesday night the inhabitants of Woburn and surrounding towns were informed of the fact that Woburn had voted for another "dry" year. It was a hard fought battle in which the supporters of law and order won. It will probably be some years before Woburn again enrolls itself in the ranks of license cities, and it is well that it should be so. The majority of voters of that city are fast finding out that open saloons are a great drawback to its advancement and prosperity, and that people will not locate there under such conditions, and this may also be said of manufacturing industries.

Request a Repetition.

The performance of a "Mid summer Night's Dream" was a great success. The School Board has requested the ladies of The Fortnightly to give a repetition for the educational benefit of pupils in the public schools. The ladies will agree to do so provided there is a suffhcient demand for tickets to ensure the paying of expenses. Part of the house will be reserved for scholars at a moderate charge for admission, while the balance of the seats will be for the general public. This great educational play was charmingly given, and no doubt there are persons enough desirous of witnessing it to fill the Town Hall. All who desire to see the performance, should at once communicate with the president of The Fortnightly, Mrs. Wheeler, or some other member of the committee, as it is desired to give the play next Friday evening. To reproduce it will cost about $300.

CHRISTMAS STAMPS.

The Christmas stamps issued by the Massachusetts Branch of the Red Cross to help stamp out tuberculosis may be obtained at No. 4 Joy street, and in most of the larger stores in Boston as well as at Wilson's the Stationers.

They are sold at one cent each and are intended to be used on all kinds of mail during the holiday season. They do not carry any kind of mail but any kind of mail will carry them.

"Put these stamps with message bright
On all the mail you send,
Every penny helps the fight
The dread White Plague to end."

Without doubt the mail going out from Winchester will very generally carry these cheer inspiring testimonials of our participation in a movement which started in Denmark some years ago and has since spread over the world.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The recently published report of the commissioner of internal revenue has some interesting figures for temperance people and others. The receipts have for years increased steadily until 1907, when the amount was $215,904,720. But at the close of the fiscal year, June 30 1908, there was an actual decrease of nearly sixteen million dollars. This is doubtless the result of the anti-saloon wave in the South and elsewhere. This decrease was most marked in distilled spirits but the fermented liquors also showed a marked falling off although not an actual decrease.

There was also a decrease in the amount of liquor withdrawn, thus more truly showing the amount of consumption. The temperance people have every reason to be encouraged, for it has been many years since there has been so bright an outlook for temperance reform.

NEW TRUNK LINE TO BOSTON.

It looks now as if the Fells Railway will be speedily built. When completed it will be the main line for electric car travel to Boston from Lawrence.

The ride through the Fells will be one of the most delightful imaginable, surpassing in scenery anything along a railroad route in this section of the country. The tracks pass through the very heart of the Fells. The delights of this rarely beautiful park will be opened to hundreds of thousands who without means of transportation have been unable to reach them before.

As the Chelsea route to Boston became a side line, so eventually will the present trunk line through Wakfield, Melrose and Malden, and to the benefit of Reading and Stoneham will this be so.

The Boston Elevated has constructed its end of the road and a mile and an eighth remain for the Boston & Northern, and it is said that to build this short stretch of track will cost about $120,000

The Park Commissioners were not sparing of the railroads in granting the location and much blasting, trestle work and road bed building will be necessary, thus making construction a matter of more time and expense than ordinary.

Col. Woodward in company with General Manager Goff and other officials of the B. & N. went carefully over the proposed route last Thursday, and we are informed that work will be commenced as soon as practicable.

BASKET BALL.

The High school basket ball team kept up their fine work by defeating Harvard 1910 in a hard game December 8th in the High school gymnasium by the score of 25 to 12. The game was fast all the time and some fine team work was done by the Winchester players. Collins played an exceptionally fine game, scoring baskets on long shots at difficult angles.

The second half Harvard came back strong, allowing but two goals to be made. Sharon and Thompson played a great guarding game, while Flaherty excelled for the visitors. With such a team representing the High school everybody should come to support it. All come to the Winthrop game on Friday night. This will be one of the greatest games of the year as Winthrop had the champion team of the state last year.

The lineup:

WINCHESTER		HARVARD 1910
Cameron	rf	McDonald
Collins	lf	Sheehan
Dover	c	Leonard
Thompson	rg	Flaherty
Sharon	lg	Jordan

Score: Winchester 25, Harvard 1910 12. Goals from floor made by Collins 5, Sharon 2, Thompson 2, Cameron, Dover, Flaherty 2, McDonald 2, Jordan, Leonard. Goals from free tries, Collins 3. Referee, King. Scorer, Welch. Timer, Neiley. Time two twenty minute periods.

Newsy Paragraphs.

Yesterday afternoon four boys broke through the ice on Wedge pond and were in eminent danger of drowning but for prompt work of Fred Stevenson, who heard their shouts and procured a pole with a halter attached, which he pushed over the the ice to the boys, rescuing them. In doing so he was obliged to go into the water for a considerable distance himself. The boys were O'Connor, Newland, Elliott and Manza.

OBSERVATIONS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As the time for writing the annual reports of the boards and officials has about arrived it behooves them to look back over their reports of past years and see if they cannot improve upon them. Some of them usually give full and fair reports of their departments but others have been inclined to give the town very little information. They should all remember that these reports are a statement and account of their stewardship for an entire year and that the citizens are entitled to have a full report of their doings. Publicity is what we want.

While stopping in Boston the past month I have been impressed by the great number of excellent free public meetings and the interest taken in them and their undoubted educational value. There is no good reason why our town should not have in the Town Hall similar ones. The law provides for it and if the people would urge the school committee to take hold of it, probably it would provide some. Why do not the people get together on such things? Who will start the movement?

One by one the towns and cities about us are up against the day of reckoning because of continued vicious methods of administration and in every case they are places where politics in the bad sense have ruled. No proper auditing system, deceiving reports and carelesness. It is high time the Commonwealth found out how it's political divisions are conducting their affairs and called them to account where needed. There are some things we can improve in, but it is not the auditor's treasurer's or collector's offices.

One trouble with town government is that there is no head to it. A city has a head in its mayor, but the town meeting is supposed to be a town's head and it is altogether too hydra headed to be of any use. Every corporation needs a head and municipal corporations are no exception. I believe the appropriations committee should call attention in its report to anything it believes would be for the town's interest to do. That committee has no town officials upon it and could therefore act in an impartial and unbiased manner.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

Again will the John Craig Stock Company give a play for the first time on the Castle Square stage. For next week's attraction "The Heir to the Hoorah" has been chosen, and its scenes of western life, its story of the struggles of an Eastern wife married to a breezy Westerner who has no knowledge of the conventionalities and customs of the East appeals with directness to the playgoer who likes emotion mingled with humor.

The play will gain not a little through the excellent cast that is provided it under the expert stage derection of William Parke. The leading role of Joe Lacy will be played by Mr. Craig, who will act the breezy and manly Western hero to the life, and in the other characters Donald Meek will be seen as Bud Young George Hassell as Dave Lacy, William Evarts as Bill Ferguson, Mabel Colcord as Kate Brandon and the other parts competently filled by the able players with which Mr. Craig always surrounds himself. Last but not least, will be the baby, and he will be as lively and as kicking a youngster as has ever made a play all the more interesting by his presence.

PARISH OF THE EPIPHANY.

The Epiphany Circle meets next Monday at 3 p. m. at the choir room.

The Choir Club will hold its regular monthly meeting Wednesday evening, December 16th, at 7.30 o'clock, at the Rector's house. The club invites to this meeting the choir master, the men of the choir, members of the music committee and the choir mothers.

The Woman's Guild will meet next Tuesday afternoon at the usual hour at Miss Lawrence's in Rangeley.

Because of repairs upon the organ there will be no recital this month. The Organ Recitals will be resumed in January.

Friends of the Winchester Brass Band who attended the concert in the town hall last evening were many, and not one who composed a part of the large audience but who was loud in his praise of their evening's work. The concert was remarkably good from every point of view. Encores were demanded on almost every number, and the trombone solos by Mr. Paul Dotten and the vocal selections by Miss Jean Maclellan were especially well rendered and greatly enjoyed. It is hoped that the band will give another concert in the near future.

SUNSHINE SHOP

Rather a peculiar name for a store in Winchester, but become acquainted and you will see the reason.

BUSINESS IS GOOD.

The DAILY CAPACITY of one of the largest flour mills in the world is THIRTY-FIVE THOUSAND BARRELS.

They barrel several brands of high grade flour—one is BEN HUR.

If interested in a high grade flour, try a bag of BEN HUR, and if you find it is not of superior quality return it at our expense.

If you are troubled with rheumatism and Highland reservoir water is not the help you want for it, why not try a bottle of Poland Spring, or one from Nobscot Mountain Spring.

Possibly a bottle of Chapman's Mineral Spring would help your case.

The ordinary way of buying OLIVE OIL is by the bottle. A better way is to purchase it in tins.

We have Rae's lucca oil in four quarts, two quarts, and one quart tins. It will last longer, as it will keep better in tins than in bottles.

Couldn't Help It.

A young lady tells the following story of an Englishman she met during a trip to Mexico:

The Englishman became acquainted with the American party while they were all guests at a winter hotel. Whenever the parents of the American girl proposed any trip the Englishman immediately begged to be made one of the party. He was to be included in a moonlight trip to a nearby mountain. After the Americans were ready to start they had to delay some fifteen minutes awaiting their guest's arrival. When he did arrive he electrified them by his comments on the reason for his delay. What he said was:

"I beg pardon for my beastly tardiness. Couldn't help it, don'cherknow. I had to bring my mother from the gardens first. It's a singular horrid bore, but one has to be kind to his mother, don'cherknow!" — Milwaukee Free Press.

The Queer Screw Plant.

There is nothing under the sun quite so quaint, so weird and witchlike as the pandanus prairies of Fiji. The pandanus, or screw plant, as it is called, is a most grotesque specimen of the vegetable kingdom even at the best and in the early stages of its growth. In its very young days it is of an extraordinarily screwlike shape and looks as though some unkind hand had taken hold of its long, swordlike leaves and twisted them round and round. Later on it straightens out a bit, and from it grow a number of tall wooden stilts. Its foliage is simple, a number of drooping, ragged tufts, for all the world like mops and very mournful looking. Among these mops hangs the fruit, in shape like a pineapple, made up of hard red and yellow kernels, woody and fibrous and quite uneatable from a European's point of view.

Blessings.

She was the daughter of the village physician, a sunny curled darling of six, whose big blue eyes rested on the face of the Sunday school teacher with an attention and intelligence most encouraging.

So when, after a discourse to the children on the beauty of appreciating their blessings, the teacher asked for an explanation of a blessing the doctor's little daughter rose and said:

"If my papa was to have a patient and she was to get well, and she was to pay my papa, and my papa was to give the money to my mamma, and my mamma was to buy me a new dress and take me down to the vacant lot and let me ride the great big fierce lion on the merry-go-round, that would be a blessing."—Woman's Home Companion

Jockey's Tricks.

"There are tricks of two kinds in jockeying," said a jockey, "the legitimate and the illegitimate. Use the first and you'll prosper. Use the last and it's all up.

"Illegitimate tricks are pulling a race and getting left at the post. If you once pull a fast horse and make him lose, you are always afterward an object of suspicion, and ten to one if you ever pull another horse you are done for. But getting yourself left at the post is a big and complex subject and it is the one trick that a clever jockey can work time and again with safety.

"To cause a rival horse to swerve is an illegitimate trick that often wins your race. You cause the swerving by straightening out your leg so that your heel nearly touches the other horse's nose, or you make a wide slash with your whip so that it nearly touches the other horse's eyes.

"The legitimate tricks are— But why give them away when it has taken all my life to learn them?"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A WALKING GALLOWS

The Horrible Deeds of Lieutenant Hepenstall.

HANGED MEN FROM HIS NECK

This Handsome but Brutal Giant of the Wicklow Militia Was the Most Cold Blooded and Eccentric Executioner That Has Ever Existed.

Among the examples and records of British tyranny during the terrible year 1798 there is none more extraordinary, according to a writer in an English magazine, than that of Lieutenant Edward Hepenstall, known by the nickname of "the walking gallows," for such he certainly was, literally and practically.

This notorious individual, who had been brought up as an apothecary in Dublin, obtained a commission in the Wicklow militia, in which he attained to the rank of lieutenant in 1795. He was a man of splendid physique, about six feet two inches in height and strong and broad in proportion. Referring to this handsome but brutal giant, Sir Jonah Barrington in his memoirs states:

"I knew him well and from his countenance should never have suspected him of cruelty, but so cold blooded and eccentric an executioner of the human race never yet existed."

At the outbreak of the sanguinary rebellion, when the common law was suspended and the stern martial variety flourished in its stead, Lieutenant Hepenstall hit upon the expedient of hanging on his own back persons whose physiognomies he considered characteristic of seditious tenets. At the present day the story seems almost incredible, but it is a notorious fact, revealed by the journalism of the period, that when rebels, either suspected or caught red handed, were brought before him Hepenstall would order the cord of a drum to be taken off and then, rigging up a running noose, would proceed to hang each in turn across his athletic shoulders until the victims had been slowly strangled to death, after which he would throw down his load and take up another.

The "walking gallows" was clearly both a new and simple plan and a mode of execution not nearly so tedious or painful as a Tyburn or Old Bailey hanging. It answered his majesty's service as well as two posts and a crowbar. When a rope was not at hand Hepenstall's own silk cravat, being softer than an ordinary halter, became a merciful substitute.

In pursuance of these benevolent intentions the lieutenant would frequently administer an anaesthetic to his trembling victim—in other words, he would first knock him silly with a blow. His garters then did the duty as handcuffs, and the cravat would be slipped over the condemned man's neck.

Whenever he had an unusually powerful victim to do with, Hepenstall took a pride in showing his own strength. With a dexterous lunge of his body the lieutenant used to draw up the poor devil's head as high as his own and then, when both were cheek by jowl, begin to trot about with his burden like a jolting cart horse until the rebel had no further solicitude about sublunary affairs. It was after one of these trotting executions, which had taken place in the barrack yard adjoining Stephen's green, that Hepenstall acquired the surname of "the walking gallows." He was invested with it by the gallery of Crow Street theater, Dublin.

At the trial of a rebel in that city the lieutenant, undergoing cross examination, admitted the aforementioned details of his method of hanging, and Lord Norbury, the presiding judge, warmly complimented him on his loyalty and assured him that he had been guilty of no act which was not natural to a zealous, loyal and efficient officer.

Lieutenant Hepenstall, however, did not long survive his hideous practice. He died in 1804. Owing to the odium in which he was universally held, the authorities arranged that his funeral should take place secretly, while a Dublin wit suggested that his tombstone would be suitably inscribed by the following epitaph:

Here lie the bones of Hepenstall,
Judge, jury, gallows, rope and all.

A Slight Difference.

The globe trotter was telling about the wonders of India.

"The scenery in some portions of the country," he said, with enthusiasm, "is incomparable. Far, far away, the mountains pile up toward the sky, and stretching off to them are beautiful valleys, while close at hand you can get in sight of a man eating tiger"—

"I beg your pardon," interrupted an eager listener, "but did you say inside of a man eating tiger or in sight of one?"—New York Press.

All Bound.

A citizen of culture and poetic taste went to a public library and asked for Shelley's "Prometheus Unbound."

He was rather taken aback when the librarian replied, with great hauteur:

"We don't keep any unbound books in this library."

Missed It.

The prodigal son wrote the old man as follows: "I got religion the other day. Send me $10." But the old man replied: "Religion is free. You got the wrong kind."

The best part of beauty is that which no picture can express.—Bacon.

OLD FAVORITES.

WE LIVE IN DEEDS.

WE live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breath;
In feelings, not in figures on a dice.
We should count time by heart throbs. He most lives
Who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best.
Life's but a means unto an end; that end
Beginning mean and end to all things—God.

—Philip James Bailey.

TWO SONS.

I HAVE two sons, wife—
Two and yet the same.
One his wild way runs, wife,
Bringing us to shame.
The one is bearded, sunburnt, grim and fights across the sea;
The other is a little child who sits upon
your knee.

ONE is fierce and cold, wife,
As the wayward deep
Him no arms could hold, wife;
Him no breast could keep.
He has tried our hearts for many a year—
not broken them—for he
Is still the sinless little one that sits upon your knee.

ONE may fall in fight, wife.
Is he not our son?
Pray with all your might, wife,
For the wayward one;
Pray for the dark, rough soldier who
fights across the sea,
Because you love the little shade who smiles upon your knee.

ONE across the foam, wife,
As I speak may fall,
But this one at home, wife,
Cannot die at all.
They both are only one. And how thankful should we be
We cannot lose the darling son who sits upon your knee!

—Robert Buchanan.

THE OLD OAKEN BUCKET.

HOW dear to this heart are the scenes of my childhood
When fond recollection presents them to view—
The orchard, the meadow, the deep tangled wildwood
And every loved spot which my infancy knew,
The wide spreading pond and the mill that stood by it,
The bridge and the rock where the cataract fell,
The cot of my father, the dairy house nigh it
And e'en the rude bucket that hung in the well—
The old oaken bucket, the iron bound bucket,
The moss covered bucket that hung in the well!

That moss covered bucket I hailed as a treasure,
For often at noon when returned from the field
I found it the source of an exquisite pleasure,
The purest and sweetest that nature can yield.
How ardent I seized it with hands that were glowing!
And quick to the white pebbled bottom it fell;
Then soon, with the emblem of truth overflowing
And dripping with coolness, it rose from the well—
The old oaken bucket, the iron bound bucket,
The moss covered bucket arose from the well.

How sweet from the green, mossy brim to receive it
As, poised on the curb, it inclined to my lips!
Not a full, blushing goblet could tempt me to leave it,
Though filled with the nectar that Jupiter sips.
And now, far removed from the loved habitation,
The tear of regret will intrusively swell
As my fancy reverts to my father's plantation
And sighs for the bucket that hangs in the well—
The old oaken bucket, the iron bound bucket,
The moss covered bucket that hangs in the well.

—Samuel Woodworth.

THE CURFEW.

I HEARD a wild bird crying, a curlew of the moor,
And the heart out of my bosom was taken in its lure.
I left my sister milking brown Drimin in the bawn,
And I went out a-seeking under the yellow dawn.

I HEARD a wild bird crying, a curlew of the mist,
No longer free to follow my fancy as I list.
My feet were bound for pathless ground and turned aside for aye
From the track my sister treads in day by day.

I HEARD a wild bird crying, a curlew of the mire,
And I was moved and shaken with love and with desire.
A cabin is no home for me, nor any lad I knew
Shall mate me or shall look to me to love him true.

I HEARD a curlew crying, ochone and och anee!
I'm lost within the boglands as a drowned man in the sea.
A fairy fret is on me that will not pass me by.
Forever I must follow the curlew's cry.

—Nora Chesson.

THE CALL OF THE WILD.

WHO hath smelt wood smoke at twilight? Who hath heard the birch log burning?
Who is quick to read the noises of the night?
Let him follow with the others, for the young men's feet are turning
To the camps of proved desire and known delight.

Let him go—go—go away from here!
On the other side the world he's overdue.
Send your road is clear before you when the old spring fret comes o'er you
And the red gods call for you.

—Kipling.

OUT OF THE MORNING.

WILL there really be a morning?
Is there such a thing as day?
Could I see it from the mountains
If I were as tall as they?

HAS it feet like water lilies?
Has it feathers like a bird?
Is it brought from famous countries
Of which I have never heard?

OH, some scholar! Oh, some sailor!
Oh, some wise man from the skies!
Please to tell a little pilgrim
Where the place called morning lies!

THE GRAMPUS GOURMET.

This Marine Monster's Prey Is the Bowhead Whale.

"Of all the gourmets on land or water," said the captain, "commend me to the grampus."

The ladies at the captain's table looked with inquiring smiles at the handsome sailor.

"The grampus," he went on, "is a kind of overgrown shark or a kind of undersized fighting whale. You can take your choice. At any rate, he is a terrible creature to meet with if you happen to be aquatic.

"He and his mate travel together. Sometimes they have a friend along—big, fine, strong chap, as such friends usually are. And their game is the bowhead whale.

"When they find a whale they go at him. They stick to him invincibly. They punch and thump till he is as limp as a rope of seaweed with exhaustion. Then, by means of one horrible deed, they show their unexampled gluttony.

"They take hold of the whale's lower lip; they hang their weight on it until it drops open. Then in go their heads, disappearing inside that great red mouth, that warm, moist cavern of scarlet, and they eat in there the whale's tongue, a tender tidbit, very rich and delicate.

"The tongue consumed, they go on their way again, leaving the whale to die slowly."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

WHITE ISLAND.

Its Strange Lakes, Sulphur Fumes and Clouds of Steam.

White island, a New Zealand natural wonder, derives its name from the clouds of white steam in which it appears to be continually enveloped. Its area is only 600 acres and its height about 880 feet above the sea level.

In form and color it is like a reposing camel, while its interior, with its gray, weather beaten, almost perpendicular cliffs, recalls the Coliseum at Rome. Overhanging the southern landing place stands a column of rock closely resembling a sentinel, which has been dedicated to the memory of Captain Cook. The water of the island is of a pale green hue, and anything dipped into it becomes of a red brick color. The fumes of sulphur are always plainly perceptible.

On a fine moonlight night a wonderful sight is afforded to any one who will sit in an open boat in one of the lakes of the island. Covering an area of fifty acres is an immense caldron, hissing and snorting and sending forth volumes of poisonous steam, while all chances of egress appear to be denied by the steep, silent and gloomy cliffs.—British Australian.

Flying Fish.

Interesting are the habits of the flying fish, that queer denizen of the sea found principally in the region of the trade winds. "Does it rise from the sea like a bird?" you ask. No. It shoots out of the waves like an arrow, and with outspreading wings sails on the wind in graceful curves, rising sometimes, one might say, to the height of fifteen feet, but not often so high, and then, lowering, it again touches the crest of a wave and renews its flight. This operation may be repeated till it covers a distance, say, of 500 yards in the case of the stoutest on the wing, though very often not half that distance is covered. A ship sailing through the trade winds will often be visited on dark nights by flying fish which hit the sails or rigging and fall on deck, where of course they soon give up life.—St. Nicholas.

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

No other medicine has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women or received so many genuine testimonials as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Almost every one you meet has either been benefited by it, or has friends who have.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., any woman any day may see the files containing over one million one hundred thousand letters from women seeking health, and here are the letters in which they openly state over their own signatures that they were cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved many women from surgical operations.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made from roots and herbs, without drugs, and is wholesome and harmless.

The reason why Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful is because it contains ingredients which act directly upon the feminine organism, restoring it to a healthy normal condition.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

Legal Notices.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

To the Honorable the Judges of the Land Court:

Respectfully represents Nora T. McCarthy, of Winchester in the County of Middlesex and said Commonwealth, that she is the owner in fee simple of a lot of land and the buildings thereon situated on Main street in said Winchester and described as follows:

"A certain parcel of land situated on Main street in said Winchester, bounded and described as follows: Easterly by said Main street about one hundred seven and 52-100 107.52) feet, Southerly by land now or formerly of the Town of Winchester about two hundred nine and 4-100 (209.04) feet; Westerly by land of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts seventy-four and 35-100 (74.35) feet; and Northerly by land now or formerly of the First Congregational Society about two hundred thirty-six and 2-10 (236.2 feet. Containing about twenty thousand four hundred forty and 3-100 (20,440.03) square feet, be said measurements more or less or however otherwise bounded and described. Said premises are shown on a Plan of Land on Main street opposite junction of Washington street in said Winchester belonging to Henry F. Johnson, dated 1907, and duly recorded. Said premises are part of the same premises conveyed to Maria L. Johnson by deed of William P. Sargent dated September 1, 1886, and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book 1564, Page 192."

That the recorded title of said real estate is encumbered by an undischarged mortgage covering said premises, given by one Francis H. Johnson and Maria L. Johnson in her own right to one William P. Sargent, dated September 1, 1886, and duly recorded with Middlesex Deeds, Book 1304, Page 246;

That said mortgagor and those having her estate in said premises have had uninterrupted possession of said real estate for more than twenty years after the expiration of the time for the full performance of the conditions of said mortgage;

That no payment on account of the amount secured by said mortgage has been made and no act in recognition of its existence as a valid mortgage has been done within said twenty years, and your petitioner believes that said mortgage was long since paid, and by accident or misadvertence the discharge thereof has not been recorded in said Registry of Deeds;

WHEREFORE your petitioner prays that such notice may be ordered to be given to the representatives of said William P. Sargent and those interested in his estate and to all other persons interested in said estate as the Court may order; and the decree may be entered setting forth such findings of the Court in relation thereto and ordering that from and after such decree no action shall ever be brought by any person to claim a title under said mortgage, and that the said mortgage be released and cancelled upon the records.

Turning down Cross street the animal ran onto the B. & M. tracks near the Highland station through Parker & Lane's coal yard. The team was struck by the 5 59 train from Boston and the wagon was completely demolished and the horse badly hurt, one of the shafts entering the animal's neck and coming out of its mouth. Notwithstanding its injuries the animal was cared for by a veterinary and is expected to eventually recover. No one was injured by the runaway, as the wagon was unoccupied when the horse started and during its flight all gave it plenty of room.

A CHAPTER FROM "RECOLLECTIONS OF A SCHOOLMASTER."

R. C. M.

In 1843, when I was ten years old, my father moved his family from the farm to a factory village known as "The Bush," situated in the northerly part of the town. He had been chosen agent of the plant, and had the general management of the manufacturing establishment, as well as of the village that had grown up around it.

The school in this village was surprisingly small, both in the summer and in the winter. The school building would accommodate not more than twenty or twenty-five pupils. The factory was called a cotton mill, and the product was cotton sheeting. The amount of the cotton annually manufactured into cloth I am unable to state, but the weaving room contained forty looms, the output being not far from 1600 yards per day. The houses in the village were all owned by the Company, and were occupied by their employees, each paying a substantial sum for house rent. There must have been less than a dozen houses in the village proper, some of them occupied by two or three families. Within half a mile was another small manufacturing village where cotton batting was made. The school district must have included the territory extending at least one and one-half miles in all directions from the school-house, so that it is doubtless safe to reckon a school population of some forty children. As the school building furnished accommodations for only about half that number, one may infer that laws concerning child labor were somewhat lax, or that officers of the law were somewhat inefficient in their enforcement. The fact is that there were no laws at that time to protect the child from compulsory labor except so far as they existed in the hearts of their parents. My father sent his children to school whenever there was a suitable school to attend, but the school terms were very short, and the teachers,—well, they were the best that could be hired for two and one-half or three dollars per week besides their board. I well remember one of those teachers applying to me when I was about fifteen years old, for help in working out a problem in arithmetic which gave the dimensions of a room, the cost of paper, etc., and required the expense for papering the room. I found that she had attempted in vain to get the answer by papering the cubical contents of the room.

Between the two school terms of about twelve weeks each, and sometimes during the summer term, the boys and girls of twelve years of age and upwards, were employed in the factory. I worked for a year or two on machines called "Mules," for spinning filling, the unstarched woof of the cloth. Technically I was called a bobbin-boy. It was my duty to carry the bobbins of filling from the basement, where were to be found the cotton-pickers, the cards, and the speeders, to the top floor where the yarn was spun into filling for the looms; to replace the empty bobbins on the machines by others that had been filled; to sweep from the machines the cotton dust that would collect upon them; and to sweep the room itself several times per day.

Our work began at six or six-thirty o'clock in the morning, and closed, from March 21st to September 21st, at seven o'clock at night. From September 21st to March 21st our work for the day closed at 8 p. m. My pay while in the spinning room was twenty-one cents per day.

Dividing the year into two parts, summer and winter, I can say that our day's work was interrupted for meals twice in summer and three times in winter. We were allowed half an hour each for breakfast and supper, while an allowance of three-fourths of an hour was considered generous for a dinner. As boys and girls must play, we soon learned to dispatch an ordinary meal in less than fifteen minutes, thus learning not only to economize time in eating as well as in working, but also to train our digestive apparatus into habits of economy as well. Fortunately, perhaps none of us, boys, knew that we had a digestive apparatus, nor had we ever heard of "hygienic laws," as now laid down in the books. Vacations we never had, nor can I recall any holidays. Probably we had two or three during the year. After supper during the six months I have termed winter, the lamps were lighted in the factory, and our work went on, as I have said, until eight o'clock. On the evening of March 21st, when the term for lighting up, as we called it, closed, the boys of our village had a grand display of fire-works. Then all the old tar barrels, and other inflammable articles that could be found by inquisitive eyes, were brought into requisition, and a grand illumination resulted that gladdened the hearts of the young people, and doubtless brought terror to the hearts of our parents.

My promotion in the factory was by no means rapid, but at fifteen years of age, I found myself a "weaver," and in charge of four looms. This work was cleaner, and much more interesting than I had previously found in the spinning rooms. The pay, moreover, was better, amounting to nearly seventy-five cents per day. As the looms assigned to me were considered poor ones, my father allowed me one cent per cut (about 40 yards) for my personal exchequer. Boys in those days spent no money, and my accumulation ultimately amounted to a considerable sum, which answered, as will be seen hereafter, an excellent purpose in an important step that was taken in the near future.

My associates in the factory were not of the best, nor were they of the worst. I cannot recall any decidedly vicious boys or girls in the village. There was no petty thieving, no wanton destruction of property, no disorderly conduct that made an impression upon me deep enough to be remembered. Profanity and obscenity were common, but perhaps no more common than now in similar manufacturing villages. The villagers were almost without exception native Americans. There was one family of English immigrants, but aside from this very respectable exception, there were no foreigners whatever. Later, one Irish family came into the adjoining village, already spoken of as the batting factory settlement. It was only half a mile away from the Bush, and the new family proved to be worthy additions to the community. We were curious to watch the new comers from behind fences and hedges, and to note the peculiarities of dress and speech which, at that time, seemed novel in the extreme.

It was about this time, in the year 1848, that work was begun on what was then called the Nortolk Co., railroad, now a part of the New York, New Haven, and Hartford railroad system. This work brought into our neighborhood the first real influx of foreigners that the young people of our village had ever seen. I well remember my first visit to the scene of the new enterprise and my first impressions of our Irish neighbors.

To the boys and girls of our ninth grade at the present time, it seems absurd that I, a youngster of about their age, should have walked nearly two miles just to see an Irishman. And yet, such was the fact; and it is a fact also, that, at that time, I had never rode on the steam cars, and probably had never seen a steam engine.

I have already spoken of our school as small, and beyond that fact, there is little to be said of educational advantages for the children of the village. Of course evening schools had never been thought of even as a possibility for young or old. High Schools were unknown, in most of the towns in Massachusetts. According to Horace Mann's first School report, there were less than fifty such Schools in the state as late as 1852. Under Mr. Mann's energetic influence, these Schools increased rapidly in number, and in 1875 there were about one-hundred and fifty High Schools regularly established.

The law establishing High Schools was passed in 1826, and the schools were supported, in part, by special grants from the State. Objections to such schools came from two sources: viz (1) from Academies and private schools, and (2) from the scattered inhabitants of small towns. High Schools were necessarily located near the centers of the towns, which gave what seemed to be an unfair advantage to families residing near the High School buildings. Attempts were made in some towns to avoid the objections by having two such buildings in a town, the school being gathered in one for a part of the year, and in the other for the other part. Ultimately this arrangement was succeeded by another which permitted the transportation of the more distant pupils to the Center School at the expense of the town.

Academies had been common for many years, and, at the time of which I speak (1849) had served an excellent purpose not only as fitting schools for colleges, but, also, as finishing schools for young men and women. These young men and women were the ambitious pupils who desired a more extended course of training than was furnished by the district school, but who were unable to bear the expense of four years in college.

In Wrentham, Mass., Day's Academy had, for forty years, been doing a good work. One of its most noted Principals was Dr. Wm. J. Rolfe, the distinguished Shakespearian scholar.

LADIES BOWL.

The ladies' evening at the Calumet Club on Tuesday drew the largest crowd yet and in addition to the bowling and pool those present heard the reading of the "Isle of Bamboo," the opera which the club will produce this winter. The ladies made some very good scores on the alleys and Mrs. Wallace F. Flanders raised the highest single string from 98 to 101. The spares and strikes made by the ladies during the evening were as follows:

SAMUEL B. WHITE.

SAMUEL B. WHITE.

Prominent Citizen of Winchester Passes Away.

Mr. Samuel B White, one of the prominent citizens of Winchester, passed away at his home on Mt. Vernon street on Wednesday forenoon in his 82nd year Mr. White had been in poor health for a number of yea s and his death was not unexpected, it being due primarily to heart trouble, from which he had suffered for a considerable time, together with the infirmities of his age.

The funeral services will be held from the residence on this Saturday afternoon at 2.30.

Samuel Bartlett White came of old Revolutionary ancestry, his forefathers residing in Winchester and vicinity for over two hundred and fifty years. He was born in Winchester (then Woburn) in 1827 in the house on Washington street just north of Park avenue, now known as the Reynolds estate. His parents were Samuel B. and Sarah Richardson White, he being one of four children.

His early education was received in the public schools of the town. At fourteen years of age he left his studies and went to work in the general store of the town, located where Covel's Spa is now situated and owned by a Mr. Bridges. After working here and in Woburn center for a few years he entered the employ of the Boston & Lowell Railroad as a clerk, continuing in this position for a number of years. Following this he opened a wholesale and retail grocery store in the West End of Boston under the firm name of White and Kilburn. In 1865 he became associated with his brother, William H. White, in the glove manufacturing business in Lowell, which gradually developed into fancy leathers, his former partner, Mr. Kilburn, being taken into the firm and the name changed to White Bros. & Kilburn. Mr. Kilburn retired from the business in 1876 and the firm name became White Bros. & Sons, remaining so until 1887 when it was dissolved and Mr. White entered into partnership with his son Frank M. White under the name of White, Son & Co., dealing in fancy leather and book binders supplies. In 1898 that business was incorporated into White, Son Co., Mr. White being President and Treasurer, which offices he held at the time of his death, although during the past five years he had not been active.

Mr. White was first married in 1852, to Miss Susan B. Merrill of New Boston, N. H. By this union two children were born, Frank M. and Clara L. (Mrs. J. Shepard Pond) both of whom reside in this town. Mrs. White died in 1882 and Mr. White later married Mrs. Sybil S. Green of Nashua, N. H., who survives him. In addition he leaves one brother, Calvin R. of Boston, and a sister, Mrs. Sarah R. Merrill of Lowell.

Mr. White was one of the early members of William Parkman Lodge of Masons, an active member of the First Congregational Church, and had served on the directorate and valuation committee of the Winchester Savings Bank. The growth of Winchester's centre was due in a considerable degree to his enterprise, the Y. M. C. A. Building and White's Block being built and owned by him besides other buildings.

WINTNROP WINS 22 TO 17.

Winthrop defeated Winchester 22-17 Friday night in the High school gymnasium after a hard game. At the beginning of the game, Winchester started off great and scored nine points before the visitors knew what was up, but from that time Winthrop got together and when the first half ended the score stood 12 to 12. The second half Winchester had more shots for baskets than Winthrop did but failed to make them good, while on the other hand Winthrop made most of their shots count and gradually got a lead which the home team could not overcome. Anderson played a spectacular game getting two of his four baskets by overhead shots. Winthrop showed what a month's training under a coach has done for them, while the home team has been on the floor only two weeks.

The lineup:

WINTHROP		WINCHESTER
Snow	rf	Cameron
Anderson	lf	Collins
Taylor	c	Dover
Taillacq	rg	Thompson
Miller	lg	Sharon

Score: Winthrop 22, Winchester 17. Goal from floor made by Anderson 4, Snow 2, Taillacq 2; Miller, Cameron 2, Dover 2, Sharon 2, Thompson. Goals from free tries made by Anderson 4, Collins 2. Sharon. Referee, Schneider. Scorer, Welch. Timer, Neiley. Time, 15 and 20 minutes halves.

THE SECOND TEAM WINS.

The Winchester Second team won their first game of the season by defeating Winthrop second 30 to 19. All the members of the second team played a good game and displayed some of the fine team work which they had last year. This year the team is exactly the same as last year with the exception of Cummings. LeDuc scored four baskets to his credit while Tuck, Mortensen and Hamilton each got three.

The lineup:

WINCHESTER		WINTHROP
LeDuc	rf	(Fielding) Marsh
Mortensen (Grant)	lf	Roland
Tuck	c	Margeson
Hamilton	rf	Somerville
Hanson	lg	(Deveraux) Bently

Score, Winchester 30, Winthrop 19. Goal from floor LeDuc 5, Tuck 3, Hamilton 3, Mortensen 3, Hanson, Roland 3, Margeson 2, Fielding 2, Marsh, Bently. Goal from free try, Roland. Referee, Schneider. Scorer, Welch. Timer, Neiley.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The last week's meeting of the local Union was not largely attended because of the heavy snow that was falling, but there was an interesting discussion of ways and means and the appointment of a nominating committee, consisting of Mrs. Hamilton, Mrs. Blood and Mrs. Polley. Plans were made for a visit from Miss Elizabeth Gordon, State President, early in the year.

There is an interesting article in the current number of the Union Signal on the papers and magazines going dry. Of a list of six leading periodicals, two thirds stated, in reply to the question of their position, that no liquor advertisements are admitted to their columns. This list includes such magazines as the Century, McClures, Colliers, all the Munsey publications as well as the distinctively household papers. Most of them also include cigarette and malt medicines in the taboo list. It is an interesting study to see how the trend of public opinion is marked in the press.

WINTER BOWLING TOURNAMENT.

The week's games in the house tournament at the Calumet club have resulted in team I still holding its lead in first position while teams B, K and M are tied for second place.

Adjourned at 9.45 p. m.

G. H. LOCHMAN, Clerk

WORDS OF COMMENDATION.

Peabody, Mass.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Will you kindly permit a stranger to say a word about the recent performance of the Shakespearian drama Midsummer Night's dream, given by members of The Fortnightly of your town? It was so highly creditable to both town and club that congratulations are surely in order. Everything was well carried out, with no suspicion of amateurism in the nervousness of the novice. In fact, the performance might well put to shame some professionals. The work of the four ladies who impersonated the lovers Lysander, Demetrius, Hermia and Helena calls for especial praise and equally so the interpretation of Mrs. Woods as Peter Quince and Mrs. Root as Bottom, both of whom displayed much dramatic talent. The fine staging of the play, the beautiful fairy dances, the winsomeness of the tiny elves, the excellent work done by all who took part contributed to the well deserved success of the evening. Winchester may well be proud of The Fortnightly.

A PEABODYITE.

FOIBLES AND FURBELOWS.

On Monday afternoon Mrs. John Abbott of Dix street gave a tea at the Calumet Club in honor of her sister, Mrs. Charles G. DuBois of Everett avenue. The affair was attended by about 125 ladies. During the afternoon Mr. John Colby Abbott of Boston gave his talk on "Foibles and Furbelows of the 18th Century," illustrated by "la grande pandore," a life sized doll costumed in the various dresses of that period. Mrs. Abbott was assisted at the tea tables by Mrs. Herbert Underwood, Mrs. Alfred S. Higgins, Mrs. Edgar J. Rich, Mrs. William G. Bean, Mrs. William Keyes, Mrs. Marcus May, Mrs. F. Eugene Barnard, Mrs. William Forbes, Mrs. Everett Chadwick, Mrs. John Page, Mrs. William Palmer, Mrs. Joseph Barton, Mrs. Maurice Brown, Mrs. Frank Patterson Smith. The ices were in charge of a caterer. This was a most interesting afternoon to the large number of ladies invited. Mr. Abbott's talk has attained considerable prominence in Boston, and it proved highly interesting.

W. H. S. NOTES.

At a meeting of the athletic association December 15th, it was voted that the constitution be changed so that every member must pay his dues in order to be able to take part in any athletics. Arthur Cameron was appointed manager of the base ball team. George Neiley was appointed manager of the hockey team.

Out of twelve essays which were written on some historical facts about the town, to get the ten dollar prize awarded by The Fortnightly, one written by Agnes Cullen and another written by Ralph Cowdrey were superior to all the others but nsther one was considered good enough to get the ten dollar prize so the money was divided between both. Mr. Robert C. Metcalf, Mr. Arthur E. Whitney and Dr. Albert Blaisdell were judges.

Hockey practice was to be called last Friday but the snow hindered it and as yet the squad has not been out.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish in this manner to express our heartfelt thanks to all those who so kindly assisted in any way at the time of our recent fire. Also to those who offered assistance in any manner.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In your imprint of the 12th., inst., you publish a most excellent article from the pen of "R. C. M." under the caption "The Parent's Responsibility." No doubt that article has been read with interest and profit by the good people of your lovely town. I heartily endorse every sentiment therein contained. But the parent is not the only one having a responsibility. I refer to the responsibility of the free public library.

The distinguished sociologist, the late Professor Jevons said: "Among the methods of social reform which are comparatively easy of accomplishment and sure of action may be placed the proper maintenance of public libraries. There is probably no mode of expending public money which gives a more extraordinary and immediate return in utility and innocent enjoyment." Says a recent writer: "The free library is the most promising of all measures for social amelioration, because, more than any other, it teaches and leads to self-help. It is the cheapest and most efficient agency for popular education, taking pupils as soon as they are able to read and offering allurements to learning and providing courses of study adapted to all ages, tastes and capacities."

Since a very large majority of our children leave the public schools at an early age, when they have scarcely the barest rudiments, how can we hope to have intelligent, well-informed men and women, unless means are provided for subsequent instruction and enlightenment? And what other means so economical and instructive as the public library? The public library furnishes to each person just what he wants. Its courses of reading and study are infinite. One young man may be interested in machinery, another in electricity, a third political economy, a fourth in history and so on indefinitely. These subjects are not taken up in school; but the seeker for information can find all that has been written upon them at the public library. Through it he can acquire an education and keep up with the latest advances made in any department of science, theoretical or applied, in which he may be interested.

While spending vast sums to impart to our children the rudiments, the technicalities of an education, we are very apt to overlook the influence of good reading. Says a writer: "The liking of a good book is of vastly more consequence to youth and manhood than a knowledge of equation of payments or adverbial elements of the third form." It was Andrew Carnegie's grateful remembrance of the benefits he received from a few books, loaned to him when a boy—his recollection of the "intense longing with which the arrival of Saturday was awaited, that a new book might be had"— that has made him in these later years a founder of libraries. Mr. James Richardson, one of the founders of the St. Louis Public Library, says:

"The books of the free library must be brought into the free school and made a part of its curriculum, and no small part of it either. So soon as the pupils can fairly write, and cipher, and read understandingly all the time thereafter should be devoted to instructing them how to acquire an education by their own personal efforts by reading proper books adapted to their different circumstances and how to digest their contents by thinking them over and discussing them in classes. They should be so trained in this direction as to duly appreciate the value of knowledge—to love to acquire it—shown their ability to do so and directed in a course of systematic reading, that in due time, whether in or out of school, will lead on and up to a good education."

The cost of educating, instructing, elevating, refining and providing wholesome recreation and entertainment for the tens of thousands of our citizens, juvenile and adult, would be nothing: for a great deal more than the amount expended would be returned in the superior skill and increased productiveness of our mechanics and artisians, in the lessening of crime and disorder among us, in the influx of the most desirable class of citizens, in the greater sobriety, industry, order, morality and refinement throughout the community that must necessarily result from the reading of ten times as many books by ten times as many people.

FUND FOR CRIPPLE.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It is now many weeks since my first appeal through the STAR for funds to help procure a pair of hands for one of the poor unfortunates. I wish to thank all those who so generously responded, and up to date I have received $52. The original cost was to have been $100, but the manufacturer seeing the difficulty we were having in raising that amount, also being interested in the unfortunate man, reduced the price of them to $75. He has the hands on and has been able to saw wood, shovel coal, button his own clothes, feed himself, and even signed his name to a letter he had written to me. Surely it has been "worth while" to get the hands for him. His discouragement is great because of his inability to get work. No one seems willing to give him a chance to show how much, and how well he can work with these false members. If anyone reading this article knows where work of any kind, except clerical, can be procured for him they need not be afraid to give him a trial and he will show that he can do almost any thing asked of him, and do it just as well as those endowed with nature's own implements. He has eight mouths to feed, although his two older boys are doing something at present to help in this respect. If at this happy season of the year you would wish to help one of the poor unfortunates of which we have so many, I would ask for further contributions to this good work so that on Christmas day a receipted bill might be his gift from "the people" to represent the hands we have given him.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constutional disease, therefore requires constutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.
Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo Ohio. Sold by druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

For balls and parties have Smith's Orchestra. Absolutely the lowest prices and the best music that can be had. A postal to Charles Smith, 47 Harvard street, or telephone 317-2, will secure prompt attention. No union, so can make price suit and condition. n2ctf

TOWN HALL BEHIND TIME.

Not since the Town Hall was built has there been any renovation or replacement of the scenery on the stage. It is worn out and shabby and with many tears and rents, a condition which is not pleasing to persons who engage the hall for dramatic purposes. Accommodations for those who take part are meagre and crude and not at all in keeping with the times. This is a serious defect and a great inconvenience, and yet it is difficult to see how it can be remedied. But as regards the stage, scenery and appliances, there should be an improvement, and it should be attended to if the hall is to be let for dramatic performances. Regarding a piano, there appears to be no reason why there should not be one kept in the hall. A fee could be charged for its use and parties engaging the hall and desiring to use it should attend to its tuning. All conveniences were evidently lost sight of by the architect who planned the hall—no dressing rooms for those who take part in theatrical performances except those in the cellar, no robing or to let rooms that can be justly termed as such, in fact there is little or nothing for the convenience of players or audience.

These are serious defects that would be found extremely expensive to remedy, but as regards the scenery there is no reason why it should not be replaced by new.

BOSTON PIN LEAGUE.

The Calumet team lost all four points to the Colonial club on Tuesday evening at that club. The local bowlers were greatly handicapped by the large amount of chalk which their hosts sprinkled on the alley runs, they using the usual bowling shoes and their opponents sneakers.

ABOUT CONSISTENCY.

Among the Massachusetts newspapers that refuse liquor advertisements is the Woburn Journal.—Our Message.

That's right!

The same paper, which is the official organ of the Massachusetts W.C. T. U., says:

"We are fast coming to realize that the advertising colums of a paper should bear some degree of consistency with its Editorial policy, and to demand that no part of the publication shall offend against decency."

Now, what has Our Message to say about those temperance organizations who patronize and pay their money to newspapers that publish advertisements of alcoholic liquors, and advocate the license policy for towns and cities? Are they consistent?—[Woburn Journal.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Our order of the imported Christmas cards for giving and acknowledging gifts has been received and is now on sale.

The demand for these cards could not be supplied last season. Although a much larger assortment is now on sale, it should be remembered that as the goods are imported it is not possible to restock, and an early selection is advised.

The Lamson Nature Print Company has granted us the courtesy of its first Christmas shipment in New England.

Our line of these exquisite pictures, painted and plain, together with some of the daintiest calendars to be seen in years, is ready for your inspection.

WILSON THE STATIONER.

A Witty Reply.

A witty but not overindustrious Celt was one of a street gang. A few minutes before noon one day he threw his shovel into the gutter, sat down on the curbstone and proceeded to light his pipe. Just then the superintendent of streets came round a corner and, seeing Pat, roared out:

"Here! What are you throwing down your shovel for at this time of day?"

"To cool it, sorr," said Pat.

Wasted Opportunities.

"How did you like my talk last night?" asked the beginner in the lecture field.

"Well," replied the candid critic, "you didn't take advantage of your many opportunities."

"I didn't?"

"No; you had a number of opportunities to quit before you did."—Philadelphia Press.

We Work Too Hard.

Lady Headfort during her American tour said in New York that she approved of international marriages.

"They correct us," she explained. "Our Englishmen work too little, your American men work too much, and the international marriage tends to bring about a happy mean. Your men do work too much, you know," said Lady Headfort. "I have an English friend who attended the funeral of one of your hardest workers, a multimillionaire. My friend's wife said rather bitterly to him at the funeral:

"'How you have missed your opportunities, my love! Place yourself beside Mr. Ritch there. You are both of the same age. You both began life together. Yet you are a poor man, while he died a multimillionaire.'

"'Yes,' said the English husband. 'There Ritch lies, dead of nervous prostration, without one single penny in his pocket, and here I stand, hale and hearty, with a wallet in my coat containing quite a hundred dollars.'"

Talismans In Malta.

There are still to be found in Malta a number of small stones shaped and colored like the eyes, tongues and other parts of serpents.

The superstitious among the Maltese connect these with the tradition that St. Paul when shipwrecked was cast on their island and that it was there that while lighting a bundle of sticks for a fire a viper fastened on the apostle's hand. St. Paul calmly shook the reptile off into the flames, and no harm followed. The natives wear these stones as talismans, in which character they suppose them serviceable in warding off dangers from snake bites and poisons.

They are found in St. Paul's cave imbedded in clay and are set in rings and bracelets and when found to be in the shape of a tongue or liver or heart are hung around the neck. They are also taken internally, dissolved in wine, which method is attended, according to some people, by more immediate results.

Time's Changes.

"Before we were married you said you'd lay down your life for me," she sobbed.

"I know it," he returned solemnly, "but this confounded flat is so tiny there's no place to lay anything down."—Harper's Bazar.

Bilious Troubles

Bile causes no end of trouble. Sick headaches, bilious attacks, jaundice, constipation and many distressing ailments arise from an excess of bile, or from obstruction of the bile duct. Inactivity, sedentary occupations and indiscretion in feeding and drinking are bile blunders that need to be guarded against. When the liver is disordered the best bile correctives are

BEECHAM'S PILLS

because they relieve the overworked liver, and gently stimulate it when it is sluggish. These pills control the flow of bile, restore its right consistency, and work for the immediate and lasting benefit of the stomach, bowels and blood. Whenever a furred tongue, dull, yellowish eyes, nausea, or headache indicate bilious conditions, use Beecham's Pills at once, to correct the bile and

RECIPROCITY DAY AT THE FORTNIGHTLY.

The annual reciprocity meeting of The Fortnightly, which is for the purpose of presenting the work done during the year by the different clubs of the State, took place last Monday.

Mrs. Pennock, president of the Heptorean Club of Somerville and chairman of the Federation Reciprocity Committee, was the first speaker. Her subject was reciprocity among clubs and the great benefit it was to all clubs, but especially to the small ones, to hear what others were doing and their manner of carrying out their work successfully. She made a plea for the clubs of not more than 25 or 30 members whose receipts from their small dues were insufficient to provide much if any outside talent, saying that the entertainments, being mostly furnished by members, became somewhat monotonous. Moreover it was not always easy to find among so few a sufficient number of people competent, even though willing to contribute; and so these clubs gradually died out. She urged help from the larger clubs, offering to be the medium for those who were willing to do anything for the entertainment of the small clubs.

Mrs. Haywood, president of the Woburn Club, spoke next on scholarships. This club, originally formed for self-improvement, had during the twenty-five or twenty-six years of its existence, expanded in its work and interests. They now, yearly, furnish scholarships to worthy young girls who are struggling for an education. The names are never known, and the money furnished is almost always returned by the grateful recipients, to be used again for some purpose.

Mrs. Watts, president of the Outlook Club of Lynn, also spoke earnestly of the good done by scholarships, especially those for girls.

Miss Georgia Bacon, president of the State Federation of Clubs, gave a very interesting talk on Club Houses. She spoke of the Worcester Club, composed of six hundred members, of which she was formerly president, and gave a lengthy description of the club house which they have built, with its many conveniences and artistic furnishings, and the benefits which they are deriving from it now. Just after they had decided to build, the prices of building materials suddenly making a great advance, they were obliged to place a mortgage of about $40,000 on the property. This the Club is making an earnest endeavor to liquidate, and hopes to be able, in a few years, to return a dividend to the stockholders. The land was presented to the Club by Mr. Salisbury.

Mrs. Whitman, president of the Cantabrigia Club, also spoke on the advantages of a club home. She said that she had once noticed at the door of a grocery store in London, two baskets of eggs. One was labelled "Freshly laid," followed by the price. The other was marked, "Just as good," and a lower price given. She added, "We have not a club house of our own, but something just as good." The members of this Club residing some in Old Cambridge, some in North Cambridge and others in Cambridgeport necessitated three places of meeting. When the subject of owning a club house was first discussed, there was much dissension among the members as to its location. This was decided by hiring a hall in a large building in Harvard square, of which the Club was to have the exclusive use. In the same building are a larger hall and other rooms which the Club can have whenever required, but not for their exclusive use. This location suits all, and as land in this vicinity is too expensive to admit of building a club house of their own, the arrangement by which they have secured a club home is perfectly satisfactory.

Miss Natalie Kinsman gave the audience a great musical treat in the performance of three delightful selections for the piano. Her touch, her execution, and her sympathetic feeling were, each and all exquisite.

After the meeting there was a reception and tea, with a dear little illuminated Christmas tree in the centre of one of the tables.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

A bill that is in many respects seasonable and at the same time abounds in those big acts that have been making the shows at Keith's Theatre talked about this season, has been provided for Christmas week. As usual the wellfare of the children has been taken into consideration and on Christmas morning there will be a special holiday entertainment, beginning at ten and lasting until one, in which most of the important acts of the week will appear.

The bill is an exceptionally good one with a number of strong headline acts' among the latter being Nat M. Wills' "the happy tramp."

That splendid production by Jessie L. Lasky, "At the Country Club," which caused so much comment last week, has been held over. In fact there have been few productions in vaudeville that has caused so much talk as this.

Two Boston favorites on the bill are Hyams and McIntyre, who appear in a new sketch called "The Quakeress." Among the other attractions are the Willy Pantzer Troupe of acrobats; the Kitamura Japs; Pearl and Yosco; Howard's Dogs, an act that will be particularly attractive to the young folks; Ruby Raymond Trio, Le Dent and a number of others.

The performances will run continuous from noon until 10.30 in the evening.

Gazelle Hunting.

Gazelles in Nubia are hunted by a powerful breed of hounds in build somewhat heavier than a greyhound. In spite of being far swifter than the hound the gazelle falls a victim from the nervous habit of constantly stopping to look back to see if it is pursued. It also expends its strength by taking great bounds in an almost vertical direction, thereby not only losing time, but exhausting itself, so that it is overtaken without difficulty.

Should be Taught Meaning of Fair Play.

Last Friday evening when the members of the Winthrop High school basket ball team came onto the floor of the gymnasium to play with the local high school team it was discovered that the visitors had greased their shoulders. This unsportsmanly deceit was, however, quickly discovered and the grease removed. When sports degenerate to such a low level as this, it is time there should be a reform, and we trust that it will begin by the Winchester boys refusing to play hereafter with the Winthrop High school team or any other team that resorts to such dishonorable methods. As it was, the home team should have refused to play after the deceit was discovered. The Master of the Winthrop High school should read these boys a lesson on fair play

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES.

The Christmas tree at the Methodist church, will occur on Christmas Eve. The committee in charge are: Mr. F. G. H. Finnimore, Mr. Horatio Hovey and Miss Ethel Clay. A new and novel plan will be carried out, and a jolly time is assured. Come next Sunday and hear all about it.

The Christmas concert will be given on Sunday evening, Dec. 20 at 6 o'clock. Seldom have we had so strong a committee for this work. The committee may plan and appoint rehearsals, but they cannot give the concert. Come to church Sunday and do your part.

The last and all-important rehearsal for this concert will occur at twelve o'clock on Sunday noon. None are too old or too young to assist. The church has had repeated successes this season and now let us score two more next week. It all depends on you. The committee are: Mrs. Horatio Hovey, Mrs. Nestor Davis, Mrs. J. N. Mason, and Mrs. John Chaffee.

The public are cordially invited to all services.

The last day of the Ladies Aid Fair was marked by poor weather but wonderfully good sales. Miss Chamberlain entertained the audience in the evening to perfection, and she was recalled again and again.

On Thursday evening Dec. 10 Dr. Stiles' rendering of some selections from Sam Walter Foss, and French Canadian dialect stories, made a decided hit, as well as his vocal numbers which showed true musical ability.

PARISH OF THE EPIPHANY.

The Christmas services will be as in former years. Christmas Eve, December 24th, at 4 P. M., the Christmas Tree and Children's Carol service. Christmas Day at 8 A. M. Holy Communion; 10.45 A. M. Te Deum, Sermon and Holy Communion.

The annual meeting of the Epiphany Club will be at the choir Room Tuesday evening, December 29, at 8 o'clock. Members are requested to make note of this announcement.

The date of the parish supper will probably be Wednesday, January 6, which is the Feast of the Epiphany, the name day of the parish.

The parish meeting will be Wednesday evening, January 13th.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

As the coming week is Christmas week, John Craig will have something special and novel to offer at the Castle Square Theatre. On Monday will be a revival of "The Devil," of which little need to be said except that it ran for three solid weeks last September to crowded houses. "The Devil" will be played on the afternoons and evenings of Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and on Thursday afternoon, with a cast including Mr. Craig in the title role, Mary Young as the heroine, and Mr. Friebus, Mr. Hassell, Mr. Meek and Miss Cleveland in the other characters.

On Thursday evening which is Christmas eve, Mr. Craig will make his annual Christmas musical production. He has chosen "The Circus Girl" for this year's holiday spectacle, and preparations have been going forward so speedily that a complete presentation is assured "The Circus Girl," it will be remembered, is a musical comedy that ran for three years in London, and for one season in New York.

OBSERVATIONS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I hope our Park Board will ask for an appropriation to equip Manchester Field with such things as swings, teater boards and gymnastic apparatus and also a house to be used for the changing of clothes, washing up, etc. It certainly should consider these things and others which will suggest themselves so that we may get more benefit from the playground which is costing us $2500 a year for interest alone. The board should take more interest in this matter than it has in the past.

It is surprising what strides Socialism is making both in this country and in Europe and it is high time its arguments were met before it gains greater force. This ism seems to have about as many meanings as it has followers, some people go part way with it and others go further, but the getting together of the people and ignoring the politicians appears to be what they all have in mind. How they can get together effectively without forming a political party is difficult to see, however. They certainly have stirred the churches up, all of them, and it cannot be laughed or ridiculed down.

President Richards of the Boston Gas Company made a strong and timely talk before the Street Railway Association last week and in closing said that what was most needed was to bring the people and the public service companies serving them together for a better understanding of their mutual interests, which are identical. There never has been any doubt of the truth of this statement, but the recognition of it is only very recent. Good service, fair rates and fair dividends should go together.

There is a very good style of a shelter house at the ends of the Harvard bridge over the Charles river for our railroad crossing switchmen. It is of metal, round, ornamental and just large enough for one man, which latter quality is very desirable. If Folded Umbrella means business he might look this up.

The STAR should start a movement to have the stores in the Centre decorate for Christmas. A lot of trade which now goes elsewhere can be held in town if the storekeepers would devote more attention to it and the citizens could do their shopping with much more comfort and all-round satisfaction. Try it this year.

One of the things that should be done in our Town Hall building is to cut a doorway through from the police station to the main building. It should have been done long ago. An entrance should also be built at the easterly end and utilize the basement under the library for the engineering, superintendent of streets and other offices.

The Selectmen's weekly records appear to have petered out. What's the trouble, nothing doing, or so much that the clerk hasn't time to write it up? This has been the only board to favor us with any report of its doings through the year, although there is no good reason why we should not have some report from all of them occasionally.

HOLLIS GODFREY.

Hollis Godfrey's novel, "The Man Who Ended War," which Little, Brown & Co. published October 3rd, while the first novel by this author, is by no means his first appearance before the public. It stands rather as the culmination of some seven years' study and practice of the art of writing. For three years Mr. Godfrey wrote incessantly, tearing up his work as regularly as it was done.

The beginning and continuation of the able series of papers on "The Health of a Great City," which came out in the Atlantic Monthly were highly creditable. These essays have been copied and commented upon widely, "The City and Its Milk Supply" receiving especial attention. During this time a juvenile serial was also produced, which is to appear shortly in the Youth's Companion.

Finally the work of preparation reached a point where Mr. Godfrey was willing to attack a novel, "The Man Who Ended War" is the result. The tale is in no way a record of scientific research. Rather is it a thrilling moving picture of two strong American men and one charming American girl, caught in the strange events which moved mighty nations to resort to peace.

Many congressmen are up in arms over that part of President Roosevelt's message relating to the secret service force. Honest Congressmen, the same as all honest people, have nothing to fear from these agents of the government, and there is no reason why they should be exempted from wrongdoing. The President says in part: "It is true that the work of the secret service agents was partly responsible for the indictment and conviction of a senator and a congressman for land frauds in Oregon. I do not believe that it is in the public interest to protect criminals in any branch of public service, and exactly as we have again and again during the past seven years prosecuted and convicted such criminals who were in the executive branch of the government, so in my belief we should be given ample means to prosecute them if found in the legislative branch."

KNOWN BY NICKNAMES.

Places Where a Genuine Surname Is Never Even Heard.

In many places in Great Britain, and especially in some of the fishing villages of Cornwall and of certain parts of Scotland, such a thing as a genuine surname is never even heard. Every man in the place is known by a nickname.

In most of these villages this has been brought about originally by the fact that all the inhabitants have only had very few surnames among them. One or two prevailing families have represented the population and have married and intermarried till trying to distinguish a man by his surname has only created confusion. And even some of the nicknames have begun to act in the same way. At a village not very far from Wick the writer knows of some fishermen who had originally been nicknamed "Dumpy" and had left so many descendants that other specific nicknames had been necessary to distinguished which of the "Dumpys" was meant on given occasions.

At another village not far from this one several nicknames have in the same way become the only known family names. The writer was once in the general shop here when a small boy came in and asked for some article, stating that it was for Blower.

"Blower?" said the shopkeeper. "Which Blower? There are scores of Blowers?"

The child answered at once:

"It's for 'Bowlergit' Blower 'Red Lugged' (eared) Blower's laddie."—London Answers.

THE COCA PLANT.

Its Leaves Used as an Invigorant In South America.

Coca is the South American invigorant. The shrub from which the coca leaves are obtained grows under favorable conditions to a height of about four meters. It is cultivated in Peru and Bolivia.

At the time the crop is gathered the seeds are sown in beds, when they germinate and grow, and in two months the growing plants reach a height of about a foot. The leaves, grown in the proper sunlight and shade, are yellowish, small and thick.

This is the kind of leaf that is preferred for chewing by persons using the leaf as a stimulant, fortifier and preventive of sleep and fatigue in the performance of arduous work, inasmuch as they prevent rheumatism, from which miners suffer when working in mines that contain much water. Indians who masticate the leaves of this plant can work twenty-four hours without eating or sleeping.

Coca leaves are used by the natives when engaged in long and fatiguing journeys and by soldiers when subject to hardships and privations. They may be used with all kinds of food and are said to cure dyspepsia, either taken as an infusion in the shape of tea or by masticating the leaves. The life of the plant when perfect is eighty years.—Chicago Tribune.

Man and the Motor.

"Yep," said Uncle Rooster as he soberly traced in the glass the increasing whiteness of his hair and beard and the remarkable deepening and spreading of his innumerable facial wrinkles—"yep, man is like the motor car, by guinea."

"How so?" inquired the city nephew.

"Because," said Uncle Rooster, "by the time he's got in good workin' order in all his bearin's an' paid fur hisself to the last installment an' learnt to do his daily run with ease an' certainty an' never a breakdown, why, he's antiquated by that time, the noo models is out, an' there's nothin' fur him but the shelf."—New York Press.

Lighting the Nest.

There dwells in upper Burma a bird with the high sounding name of Newcouris baza, but which is really a sort of blackbird. It is conspicuously clever, at least in one curious particular, for it actually lights up its nest artificially. To do this it works up a lot of clay into balls and sticks these balls all over with living fireflies in such a way that, although the fireflies are held captive, they shine all the same. The Newcouris baza then decorates its nest with half a dozen or so of these balls by hanging them round. The balls last for only a few days and are then replaced by others, and so on all through the nesting season.

Obedient English Husbands.

Despite all the admonitions to perfect obedience which have for decades been carefully instilled into the feminine mind, it is an undoubted fact that this is an age not of obedient wives, but of obedient husbands. Some obey through love, some through fear and others through a desire for peace, but all are alike, insomuch that they are docile to a degree undreamed of in the middle ages or even in the Victorian era of Dundreary whiskers and baggy trousers.—London Gentlewoman.

Few Words.

He had gone to ask her father for her hand in marriage.

"Well, sir, what is it?" snapped out the old man. "Remember, I am a man of few words."

"I don't care if you are a man of only one word, if it's the right one," replied the suitor.

He got the girl.

A Christmas Restoration

By FRANK H. SWEET.

Copyright, 1908, by American Press Association.

It was a most disheartening trick of the brain—so John Loftus told himself—a trick of the memory, a way it had of dropping into that old rut and going over and over again the same awful road of misery and desolation.

What he saw was a rocky hillside pasture, with myriads of Canada thistles and a barefooted boy picking his way among them at the heels of a straggling little line of home going cows.

"O-u-u-oo, but I can feel those thistles yet. How like sin they did punish my bare, brown feet! Mother was not feeling well when I went after the cows—my blessed, darling mamma. She had heart trouble, I heard one neighbor tell another, and would go suddenly some day when we least expected it. I had hardly let her out of my sight after that, although in the misery of my poor, bursting heart I could never tell her what I had heard. How I raced down the hill that night! And at the foot of the pasture, just at the end of the village street, I stopped to put up the bars.

"As I turned there stood that—that—vision. Blessed if I did not think it was a fairy. I had never seen the like before. For a moment I forgot even my anxiety about my dearest mamma. Oh, I can see her now—the folds of her filmy white dress, the little blue slippers with the straps over the ankles, the long golden curls and the pitying violet eyes. And the poor little devil of a kid in a faded shirt and blue jeans—how he winced and felt ashamed!

"And then the vision spoke. She came to me shyly and held out a rose.

"'I wish you would take this,' she said, holding it out, far out, and I saw then that tears were running down her pink cheeks. I did not take the rose, but the birch switch dropped from my hand, and my heart turned to ice. Poor little kid! Poor kid!

"'My mamma sent me to meet you,' she said and sobbed, brushing the palm of her hand across the track of her tears. 'I wish you'd take the rose. I came to stay all day wif you. Maybe I can stay all day tomorrow. I—I've got a white kittie. We brought it from our former charge. I'm the new minister's little girl, you see, and you may have my kittie, and—and I know how to string red berries into booful strings of beads, and—and'—

"She pushed the rose into my hand and then turned away, and I saw her bare white shoulders toss up and down in a tumult of sobbing.

"What awful, horrible hurts there can be in this little life of ours! I knew, I knew.

"I threw the rose as far as I could dash it and flung myself into the sand by the roadway.

"I did not cry out. I beat the earth with my clinched fists and my bare face. The sand filled my mouth and blinded my wet eyes, and the blood oozed out and clotted across my throbbing temples.

"Then people came and wiped away the sand and the blood, and the shaking voice of a woman kept saying, 'Poor boy, poor little boy!'

"A team drove along the road and crept out into the grass in order to pass me. Then I heard a neighbor say: 'Let me take the little shaver into the waggin. Poor little feller! It is dretful suddent for 'im, but still Mis' Loftus haz hed the heart disorder fur a good spell back.'

"Oh, yes, I knew. I knew the awful truth as soon as I saw the tears in the eyes of the little strange girl. The dreadful blow had fallen.

"They carried me into the house, full now of sad faced, whispering women, that very room where I had kissed my mother a merry goodby not more than half an hour ago. Away in the darkened bedroom they had laid her and spread a white sheet over her face. Mother!

"But the great wheel of the years kept turning. The old life was a thing of the past. The boy was homeless, friendless. But the years did not stop, and as they turned I grew out of my blue jeans and no longer went barefoot. And now I was in love with the minister's daughter, just the same angel that stood that night at the bars, the beautiful vision with a woman's tender heart. And then came ambition, that great, swelling sea that swallows up all else of life."

He swept his hands out and in the gesture included all the magnificence that wealth could give, all that his surroundings implied.

"'I'll give you my white kittie.' Dear little heart, what was she not ready to sacrifice for me always? And I, brute, the beast of selfishness and ambition clothed over with the garments of a man, I—yes, it was the old story. In my selfish sorrow I threw her rose in the dust. At first I said: 'There is not enough for two. I can have just what I want at the club if I am alone.' I broke her heart and drifted away from her, waiting till I should have enough for two to live in the style I desired.

"Oh, never for an instant did I intend to lose her, only just to make her wait till we could begin life in the style that would give us just the social position I desired.

"I did not think she realized my selfishness. I did not myself. And then the unexpected happened. Her father died, and she took a position as companion for a wealthy invalid, and they went to Europe.

"She may be married for all I know and have forgotten me, and I—well, I am perfectly happy, I am sure. Hanged if I know what has got into me that I can't think of anything else tonight. I don't want to think of her—of course I don't. I am perfectly content as I am. Yes, her 'white kitten' was as the apple of her eye. Beryl—a pretty name—Beryl Rayswinter. I wonder if she did marry. I saw Teddy bears and woolly dogs and cotton cats in the shop windows tonight, and I thought of the Christmas trees mother used to make for me—red apples and striped candy and popcorn, with tallow dips for candles. It's the old memories that have got into my brain tonight. Confound the holiday season anyway! But I believe I'll take a turn down by the shops and shake them off. I can make a lot of little duffers happy with a handful of Christmas pennies. It is not that I want a home—with Beryl in it—no—certainly not. I'll just go to—to—I am perfectly satisfied as I am. But I'll take a look around to—to—well, to pass the time away."

The stores were ablaze with light, and the windows twinkle with tinsel and toys, and the tired shopgirls were behind their counters until 10 o'clock at night. John had spent a pocketful of dimes, and there was but one left—that is, but one dime left of the ten dollar bill that he broke when he stood treat to Christmas toys for the first ragamuffin he met as he started out to do the Santa Claus act on a small personal scale.

As he turned to take the car he stumbled over a ragged little mite, who was pressing a bit of a blue face against the plate glass of a big window and cooing in broken English to a sprawling yellow Teddy bear in the toy window.

"Want a Teddy bear?" he asked. And the child grinned hungrily. "Well, come on in, then. I'll get you one."

The bear bore the price tag, "Seventy-five cents." John must go in to change a bill. Crowds were thinning in the store, and he dragged the ragged mite after him through the long aisles, up the elevator and down among the rows of toys.

"Toy animals? Oh, yes. Down that aisle at post 10," so the floorwalker said, and John led the child hastily along.

"Have you toy"— he began. The clerk was putting a box on the shelf. She turned a weary white face to attend to her late customer.

"Beryl!"

The cry rang across an ocean of cotton cats and paper elephants heaped on a dozen counters. A little rattling crash followed, and then the voice of a clerk crying, "Oh, Mr. Headman, Miss Bayswinter has fainted again!"

The manager hurried up. Miss Bayswinter lay very white and limp across the arms of the tall customer.

No one noticed the little German waif scudding away with two white cotton cats and a Teddy bear in her pinafore.

"Send for the ambulance, some of you! Miss Bayswinter will get her discharge in the morning. This fainting is getting altogether too frequent," the manager said sharply.

"Where does this lady live?" John Loftus asked. "I will take her ... e in a carriage."

"Oh, rooms somewhere. We'll send her to the hospital. Don't trouble yourself."

* * * * * * * *

The marriage occurred on Christmas day, and now the fellows are all wondering who the mischief Miss Bayswinter was, whether she was some English girl or simply an American heiress.

Aesop Up to Date.

A Hare, meeting a Tortoise one day, remarked as he looked at the Tortoise's heavy shell and short feet, "I think I could beat you in a race."

"All right," answered the Tortoise. "It is not every race that is won by a 'hare.'"

At the hour appointed for the contest the Hare soon left the Tortoise out of sight and, feeling sure of winning, lay down by the roadside to take a nap. After a half hour's sleep and rest he resumed the race. But the Tortoise had turned into a wayside garage and hired an automobile, and so he soon overtook the fleet footed Hare.

The Hare was going at the limit of his speed, but the Tortoise was going at the speed limit and won the race by three miles and seven laps.

When the Hare, in the course of time, arrived at the post he said, with a sigh, "You'll never catch me in an endurance race again."

Moral—Foot racing is healthy, but motoring is swifter.—St. Nicholas.

Neighborly Advice.

I am not one of those who insist that everybody should mind his own business; that is too harsh a doctrine. One of the rights and privileges of a good neighbor is to give neighborly advice. But there is a corresponding right on the part of the advisee, and that is to take no more of the advice than he thinks is good for him. There is one thing that a man knows about his own business better than any outsider, and that is how hard it is for him to do it. The adviser is always telling him how to do it in the finest possible way, while he, poor fellow, knows that the paramount issue is whether he can do it at all. It requires some grace on the part of a person who is doing the best he can under extremely difficult circumstances to accept cheerfully the remarks of the intelligent critic.—S. M. Crothers in Atlantic.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

CHANCES TO BURN.

If you cannot swim the ocean
When the angry billows roar,
With your shoes and stockings minus
You can paddle at the shore.
If you cannot buy an auto
From the best they have in stock
And go scooting o'er the landscape,
You can walk around the block.

If you cannot blaze in diamonds
Large enough to hurt the eyes,
You can buy a five cent package,
With a jewel for a prize.
If you cannot to the concert
Go since you the price have not,
You can listen to the music
For a penny in the slot.

If you cannot at the banquet
Daily with the haughty bunch,
You can drop around and sample
Of the standard old free lunch.
If you cannot own a gold mine
As substantial as a rock,
You can on a small investment
Get a lot of mining stock.

Do not, then, stand sadly saying
Opportunity has fled
And, for anything you notice,
That you might as well be dead.
There are openings in plenty—
You can see them at a glance—
For if there is nothing better
You can always take a chance.

Vicious.

"I wish I had a lot of straight tips on the races."

"Want to play the ponies, eh?"

"Not on your life."

"What?"

"No."

"Why the wish?"

"I know a lot of guys that I want to hand them out to."

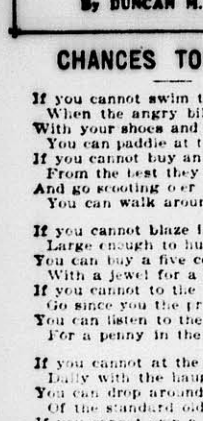
Nor the Last.

"The first thing you look at may be the very thing you want."

"Don't you believe it."

"Why?"

"You may happen to be a woman, and a woman never wants the first thing that she looks at."



May Have Been.

"Who was it said parting is such sweet sorrow?"

"May have been the young man who broke away at the instance of and with the aid of her father's boot."

A Summer Story.

Chic and pretty Mary Ann
Lingers by the sounding sea.
She acquires a coat of tan
And a beau of high degree.

Later down the center aisle
Mary wanders proud and fair.
Meets her lover, not a smile—
He gets just a marble stare.

For he sells a coat of tan
To her smiling Aunt Marie.
Bleached and powdered Mary Ann
Doffed the coat and beau, you see.

Queer.

"There is one queer thing about a disaster."

"What is it?"

"The reason the ordinary person gives for being among those present."

"What's the reason?"

"Oh, just for fun."

Offhand Explanation.

"Pa, why did Mr. Jones call Mr. Johnson a lucky dog?"

"I don't know unless it is because the police are allowing him to go about without a muzzle."

Just the Place.

Bill—I hope to see more of you.

Jack—Meet me at the bathing beaches then.

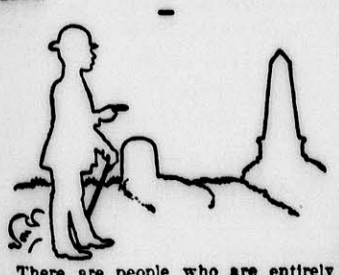
PERT PARAGRAPHS.

The fellow who tries to be good for himself and also for his fellow man is apt to get the short end of it.

Overcoming difficulties has its trials, not the smallest of which is the swelled head that you may get.

The small boy generally finds very little fun in doing a thing when his mother doesn't care.

When a woman gets a feather in her cap it is apt to give her milliner much more satisfaction than it gives her husband.



There are people who are entirely beyond all sort of flattery. They are dead.

If success were easy and within the reach of every one, the unsuccessful would be subject to much envy.

Most of us know plenty of people who are regular grouch factories. The one trouble with them lies in the nature of society, which has no use or room for their output.

Proof is inexhaustible that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound carries women safely through the Change of Life.

Read the letter Mrs. E. Hanson, 304 E. Long St., Columbus, Ohio, writes

"I was passing through the Change of Life, and suffered from nervousness, headaches, and other annoying symptoms. My doctor told me that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was good for me, and since taking it I feel so much better, and I can again do my own work. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me during this trying period."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

TIPS IN SCOTLAND.

An Example of How Some Servants Win Their Wages.

A gentleman was invited to a shoot in Scotland at two places close together. He arrived at the first place, and immediately after his arrival at the first house received a telegram calling him back to town. He, however, determined to have one day's shooting and to proceed to town by the night mail.

At the end of the day he gave the head keeper £1 and asked him to send his gun and cartridge bag over to the other place for which he had an invitation and where he proposed proceeding in three or four days' time.

On his arrival there after his visit to town he found his gun, etc., had not arrived, whereupon he wrote to the keeper, asking him to forward it at once, and he received a reply stating that when he (the keeper) had received the other £4 to which he was "entitled" the gun would be forwarded. It was detained till payment was made.

The gentleman wrote to the keeper's master and received a reply that "he (the master) never interfered between his guests and his servants in the matter of tips." The gentleman ascertained that the master in question paid the keeper no wages, but left him to get what he could out of the guests.—London Times.

Luck In Horseshoes.

The superstition about luck in horseshoes dates back too far for record, but it was not always confined to the horseshoe. Any piece of iron found in one's path was accounted a sign of good luck, and as horseshoes were more commonly picked up than any other article of that metal that particular object at last became the standard emblem of good fortune and the supposed defense against bad luck. In Aubrey's "Miscellanies," written 200 years ago, the author mentions having seen the horseshoe nailed up in church, and he also says that "most of the houses in the west end of London have the horseshoe on the threshold." The horseshoe to possess virtue must have been found, not purchased or looked up. Admiral Nelson had great faith in the luck of the horseshoe, and one was nailed to the mast of his ship, the Victory.—London Chronicle.

One Thing He Could Not Have.

Although there was no sort of toy which could be bought and for which Harold had expressed a desire that was not in his possession, he still had his unsatisfied longings. "I know what I wish I was, mother," he said one day when his own big brother had gone away and the little boy across the street was ill.

"Yes, dear," said his mother. "Perhaps you can be it. Harold; mother will help you. Is it to play soldier?"

"No, indeed!" said Harold scornfully. "I just wish I was two little dogs, so I could play together."—Youth's Companion.

Bouncing Betsey.

There is an old fashioned flower called "Bouncing Betsey," which every one should love for one trait. We have noticed that it grows on all neglected graves, as if trying to cover up the fact that some one who once lived is forgotten. It may also be found in corners of old fashioned gardens, where it grows and blooms and protests against being pushed out entirely. There are some dear old fashioned people who suggest "Bouncing Betsey."—Atchison Globe.

Let the "Blue Bell" Sign Remind You

OF THE ERAND YOU FORGOT TO EXECUTE, and a ready way out of the difficulty.

OF THE ORDER YOU WERE ASKED TO DELIVER for your firm or your home.

OF THE ENGAGEMENT for which you have been delayed and of the quickest way of explaining your inability to meet it.

OF THE CALL you promised to make, but failed to make through forgetfulness.

Of a hundred ways in which, to use a quaint phrase, you may "LET YOUR HEAD SAVE YOUR HEELS."

Remember:

The sign indicates the presence of a Pay Station.

FROM ANY PAY STATION you may talk, at a reasonable charge, TO ANY OF 290,000 TELEPHONES connected with the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company's system in the four northern New England states.

ALSO WITH TELEPHONES IN 30,000 CITIES AND TOWNS connected with the Long Distance lines of the great Bell System.

With such a convenience at hand is it fair to your friends to "borrow" their telephones? You are liable to impede their channels of communication by making their lines "busy" when others are trying to call them.

LEGITIMATE PROFITS

Are all that the conservative investor is looking for. The careful man does not expect to double his money in a month. He wants something that is perfectly safe and yields a fair rate of interest.

Such an investment is

BOSTON REAL ESTATE

Many of the "comfortably fixed" men in Winchester are drawing handsome incomes from rented property. You can do the same. If you have but limited means, start in a modest way and gradually increase your holdings.

Here is a good starter that you can handle with little cash:

3 story brick block Traverse St., near North Station. Price $14 000
Mtg. 4 per cent. 7000

Equity $7000

Pays 5 per cent. cost and is in direct line for rapid appreciation.

These small desirable pieces of City Real Estate are hard to find.

CHOOSE THE RIGHT INVESTMENT

"I have lost in every investment I ever made," said a man the other day, "and I have about come to the conclusion that the only way I can make any money is to work hard for it."

That man admitted that he had never bought real estate. He had invested his savings in stocks and the bottom dropped out.

Buy Winchester realty. It's getting better every year. Put your savings into a home, a building lot or an equity in a piece of business property and you will have it invested in something safe and sound.

A charming operetta, "The Japanese Girl," by Chas. Vincent was given last week in Arlington by The Somers Lend-a-Hand Club, before a very enthusiastic audience. The music is very attractive, and the tableaux effects most artistic. Quite a delegation from Winchester was present, and several expressed the wish that the operetta might be repeated here. We understand there is already an effort being made to persuade those graceful Japanese maidens to give us the privilege of seeing how a birthday is celebrated in Japan.

The announcement that Gov. Guild "for reasons of economy" will not appoint a successor to Supt Kirkland of the gypsy moth commission, but will consolidate that office with that of the State Forester appears to be a step in the right direction for other reasons than that of economy alone.

The rate of taxation increased this year in 32 cities and 136 towns; decreased in one city and 91 towns; and remained unchanged in 44 towns. Winchester is in the second class. The higest tax is $25 60 in Norfolk, and the lowest $3 72 in Gosnold, Dukes Co. But, then, it takes longer to get information from there than it does from a Western city.

The Star forwarded to anyone interested, would make an acceptable Christmas gift. It would be received like a weekly letter. You subscribe for it; we'll do the mailing.

THE WINCHESTER STAR.

VOL. XXVIII. NO. 25. WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, DECEMBER 25, 1908. PRICE, FIVE CENTS

31 YEARS AGO.

A Town Meeting of Much Interest to Present Citizens.

An Interesting Debate on School Matters—That Street Across Pond.

From an old copy of the Woburn Journal we take the following interesting report of a Winchester town meeting held in March, 1878; 31 years ago next March:

The annual March meeting was held in Lyceum Hall, Monday afternoon, and was called to order at 1.05 by the Town Clerk, who read the warrant. About 40 were present at the opening of the meeting.

Under Art. 1, to choose a moderator, Mr. T. P. Ayer was chosen, receiving the whole number of votes cast, 20. On taking the chair he thanked the meeting for this expression of confidence, and cautioned the town to use wise economy in their appropriations, and see that no money be expended for luxuries or in an extravagant manner.

Under Art. 2, to choose Town officers, Mr. J. F. Stone withdrew the name of A. B. Coffin for Water Commissioner. On motion of P. W. Swan, the polls were opened, and on motion of W. H. Bailey it was voted to keep them open until quarter of six. The chair appointed C. L. Harrington, G. F. Parker and G. G. Stratton, to sort and count votes.

Article 3, J. C. Stanton called for survey, plans, and probable cost of building a street from Oak to Pleasant street, which were given by Mr C. Oliver, the engineer employed. He estimated the cost of street, stone bridge, pile bridge, very minutely and satisfactorily; showing the cost would be about from $4000 to $12,000 according to the kind of bridge voted. F. H. Nourse moved the report of the Selectmen on this matter be adopted which was voted. J. C. Stanton thought it would not cost as much as the surveyor said it would. J. F. Dwinell moved to adopt Art. 3, as a whole, but it was not seconded. J. F. Stone thought the matter as it now stood was the right one.

Art. 4, was to "determine what sum of money the town will raise for support of schools." Sumner Richardson moved that the sum of $10,000 be raised by taxation for the support of schools the ensuing year. J. H. Tyler amended to insert $12,000. Mr. Tyler said the committee recommended in their report the appropriating of $13,000, but since then they had seen where, by using the strictest economy, they could get along with $12,000. He favored a wise economy, and was not in favor of employing low priced teachers, and if the appropriation made it necessary to employ such, he did not wish to be a member of the Board of School Committee. With only $10,000 some schools would have to be discontinued. Sumner Richardson favored economy as much as any one, and thought $10,000 enough. Our appropriation in this matter is more in proportion than a great many larger towns in our vicinity. He thought just as good teachers could be employed for $2 or $3 a week as we have now. Favored putting men on the School Committee who earn money by the sweat of their brow. If we keep on this way the tax-payers will be ruined. He thought that most of the studies of today were nonsensical, and that not enough of what was really practical is taught. Josiah Locke said the town must either retrench or they will drive some of the farmers out of town. It has cost more to run the High School the last year than any farmer had made. Dr. F. Winsor favored the sum of $12,000. Good teachers are like skilled labor, and that always costs more than cheap labor. J. H. Orne thought there was no need of appropriating any sum, as the committee had overrun their amount the last two years, and were likely to take all they wanted, whether appropriated or not. J. H. Tyler said the town being so scattered, made it necessary to have more room than was really necessary, but if they could consolidate, a less appropriation would answer. It would be a stigma on the town if they did not employ competent teachers. Luther Symmes liked to have good teachers employed, but skilled labor had come down in price, and why should not good teachers. He hoped they would get good teachers as low as they could procure them. N. A. Richardson thought we could have as good teachers and schools at a less price. One teacher, he thought, could be dispensed with in the High School. At the present rate per scholar, it costs more to educate our scholars in town, than it would out of town. Good schools are not the only things needed, but also good food, good raiment, and good morals. He moved an amendment to the amendment to insert $11,000. F. H. Nourse thought $12,000 not an extraordinary sum, as any decrease from appropriation must come from salaries of teachers. P. W. Swan would rather educate his boys to be honest than to read Latin, and he thought they (the boys) would, by reading the Town reports, think there was dishonesty somewhere, when a school teacher gets as much for one day's work, as a great many men do for a week's work. J. F. Stone saw only one way to curtail, and that was on the salary of the Grammar School teacher, which could be reduced to about $1,200. The previous question was called for, and after voting on that and the amendment, the sum of $11,000 was unanimously voted. The yeas and nays being taken on this vote, the chair appointed as tellers, W. H. Bailey, S. W. Twombley, P. W. Swan and S. Thompson, who acted as such during the remainder of the meeting.

Art. 5, was disposed of by voting on motion of S. Richardson, the sum of $500 for repairs of school-houses.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

December 21st, 1908.

Board met at 7.30 p. m. Present, Messrs. Dwinell, Richards, Winn and Walling.

Chief of Police appeared with venire calling for three jurors for the Superior Court at Cambridge, January 4, 1909. Names drawn, Frank Leonard, Napoleon Goddu, and Richard P. Glendon.

Receiving notice from the School Board that Mr. Frederick H. Means had resigned from the said School Board, it was voted to hold a convention to fill said vacancy on Monday, January 4, 1909, at 8 p. m.

Voted, that the Supt. of Streets be authorized to purchase 3 pungs for spreading sand, from Dennis Lawton at price quoted.

Received letter from John L. Ayer in regard to building extension to Cabot street. Voted, that the clerk give him the proper information.

Received petition of Edison Company for location of 3 poles on Harvard street between Florence street and the railroad. Also, for location and relocation of 3 poles on Dix street easterly from School street and also for location of 2 poles on Grove street, and one pole in triangle at Grove street and Mystic place. Voted, to hold a hearing on these petitions on Monday evening, January 4, 1908, at 8 o'clock.

Voted, to write the Library Trustees that the various clerks on duty in the Town Hall building complain that the boys made too much noise, going up and down the stairs to and from the reading room, and ask that the noise be stopped if possible.

Voted, to award contract for printing town reports to the Esterbrook Press, Marlboro, Mass., at price quoted.

Warrants drawn for $749.21 and $1737.01.

Adjourned at 10 p. m.

G. H. LOCHMAN, Clerk

GOOSE ROLL AT CALUMET CLUB.

Four prizes were awarded in the Christmas goose roll at the Calumet Club which closed on Saturday evening. The entrance money was apportioned to the winners in various sums being accorded the privilege of purchasing either a turkey or goose to suit their taste. The rolling consisted of the five best selected strings with handicap, bowled on the dates set by the committee.

The winners:

H. Earl Richardson	623	$3 00
H. Barton Nason	607	2 50
George S. Littlefield	596	2 00
James H. Gerlack	595	1 50

Acknowledge your Christmas gifts with the proper stationery. You can get it at Wilson's.

BUSINESS MEN'S CONFERENCE.

The new organization among Winchester men is now an assured success.

The Conference is an organization of men, thoughtful men, who value their citizenship and who appreciate the privilege provided to spend an hour each Sunday in a quiet, earnest discussion of Social Problems as well as matters of public interest. Meetings are held at the Baptist Chapel every Sunday noon, and any thoughtful man is welcome to associate himself with the Conference.

Last Sunday the first of four talks on "Child Labor" was given by Everett W. Lord, N. E. Secretary Child Labor Committee. The four subjects being as follows:

EVERETT W. LORD
N. E. Sec. Nat. Child Labor Com.

Dec. 20 "The Ethics of Work."
Dec. 27 "The Facts as to Child Labor."
Jan. 3 "Child Labor and Legislation."
Jan. 10 "What the Church Can Do."

Fourteen other subjects are to be taken up, each one taking a month. Each subject will be presented by an expert and will include, "Women and Industry," "Wealth and Capital," "Labor," "Civic Corruption, Socialism," "Immigration," "Race Question," "Marriage and Divorce," etc.

The Conference is of a social nature as well. Last Thursday a very successful Social and Reception was given, being held at the Chapel. Mr. Sears of Brookline, a member of a similar organization was present and gave a talk in regard to his organization.

It is evident that men everywhere are organizing these Sunday Noon Conferences. It is a great movement among men, good and true, and is of unusual significance. Every man in Winchester is welcome.

MRS. CLARA A. JOY.

Mrs. Clara A. Joy, one of the best known residents of this town, passed away at her home on Washington stseet Saturday afternoon, in her eighty-fourth year. She had been an invalid only a few months, previous to which she had all her life enjoyed remarkably good health and was keenly interested in all things up to the time of her death. Mrs. Joy, who was the widow of Albion K. P. Joy, was born in Concord, N. H., and was the daughter of Orlando and Lucretia Rogers (Carter) Brown. Her mother was a lineal descendant of the martyr English divine, John Rogers, who was burned at the stake in Smithfield, England, in the sixteenth century. Mrs. Joy was educated at New Hampton Institute and later was preceptress of Pembroke Academy. Her marriage to Mr. Joy took place in 1858, at Concord. They came to Winchester to live in 1858, and this town has been the home of the family ever since. Mrs. Joy was deeply interested in the affairs of the Congregational Church, to which she belonged, and was a charter member of The Fortnightly Club. She is survived by her son, Mr. Fred Joy, and three daughters, Miss Minnie Belle Joy, Miss Alice Joy, both of Winchester, and Mrs. I. P. Fox of Lexington.

Funeral services were held at Mrs. Joy's home on Monday last and the interment was in the family lot in Wildwood.

SECOND CONG. CHURCH SUNDAY SCHOOL.

A very enjoyable Christmas Concert was held last Sunday evening, in the Second Congregational Church, some 160 people being present. The musical program was under the charge of Mrs. John Park.

All the scholars, including the "Primaries" taught by Mrs. Bower, acquitted themselves well.

A double quartette of young people led the singing with spirit, and the Christmas songs were unusually sweet and cheery. Much praise is due Mr. John McLean, the Superintendent, Mrs. Park, Mrs. Bower, Miss Plummer, soloist, Mrs. Taylor, and other members of the congregation, for their coöperation in making the concert so much of a success.

On Christmas Day, at 5 p. m. a tree for the Sunday School will be provided, and attractive exercises by the children, will add to the enjoyment of the day.

WINTER BOWLING TOURNAMENT.

Although team I and M both lost games their standing remains relatively the same in the bowling tournament at the Calumet club. Team B now holds the second place alone as Team K, by a loss of four points, dropped into 5th position from the tie.

LADIES BOWLING TOURNAMENT CLOSES.

The Tuesday evening bowling for the ladies at the Calumet club held during Nov. and Dec., closed this week. The game has been much enjoyed by the ladies of the club and some very good scores have been made. President Wallace F. Flanders offered prizes for the highest single string, the largest number of strikes and the largest number of spares, all three of which were captured by Mrs. Flanders, who has shown exceptional ability in hitting the pins. Her highest single was 101 which easily took first prize.

Some of the spares and strikes made follow:

A CHAPTER FROM "RECOLLECTIONS OF A SCHOOLMASTER."

R. C. M.

Early in the year 1849, while employed in the cotton factory, the monotony of my life was unexpectedly disturbed by a proposition from my father that I should attend Day's Academy for a term of three months. I do not recollect that any expense was to be incurred by this new undertaking, but very likely a small sum by way of tuition was paid. One meal per day was also provided for. The Academy being three miles from my home, the walk of six miles per day, with books to be carried each way was thought to be sufficiently burdensome without the addition of provision for my noon meal. Accordingly arrangement was made at the tavern for my dinner, the expense to be twelve and one-half cents (nine-pence) per day, and to meet this expense, I was to bale cloth, evenings, in the factory.

I cannot imagine a happier boy than I at this wholly unexpected generosity on the part of my father. It brought home to me, as never before that I had a place in my father's heart. Children of the present day cannot imagine the relations between the children of sixty years ago, and their parents who were descendants of the old Puritans. The comradeship between parents and their children, now more unusual than it should be, was then unknown. To show affection for a child seemed to be looked upon as a weakness in the parents. My parents were honest, upright, hard-working, and conscientious people, but I have no recollection, as a child, of ever being taken into my father's lap out once, and then I had met with a serious accident to one of my hands. So far as I can recall my early childhood, and certainly during my youth, early manhood, and later years, my mother never once offered to kiss me, or any one of my brothers or sisters. And yet, that our parents loved us, and continually sacrificed time and strength for our comfort and happiness, we never doubted for a moment.

Thus it came about that my father, (and probably mother too) paved the way for my connection with the school life of Day's Academy. Of the value of this school, to me, I cannot speak too highly. The Principal's name was Kingsbury, but of his qualifications as a teacher, I am unable to speak. That he was a kindly man, and a gentleman, I am very sure. He had the respect of his pupils, and allowed them the largest liberty, putting them on their honor as ladies and gentlemen, not to abuse the liberty which he granted. It would be impossible for me to express an intelligent opinion concerning the merits of the instruction which we received in this Academy, but that it was a most excellent school for me at that time, I have no doubt whatever. It was the first time in my life that I had been brought into close association with young men and women who were ambitious to "go up higher," who had seen enough of the world to know that the best things in life were open to all who would prepare themselves to accept opportunities that were offered. These young men and women were socially my superiors. I had been hemmed about by conditions that made daily life a daily grind, that seemed to read into the daily bread for which we prayed, only food, clothing, and especially, money. Now I was in a new world. In the center of the town, I saw on every hand, evidences of moderate wealth, of culture, and of progress. I saw in the young women of our school, refinement, modesty, and "manners" that at once set me at ease concerning my relations as a member of the classes; and in the young men, an ambition for advancement which was to me an entirely new experience. Without doubt I exaggerated the worth of the Academy as a school, and overestimated the superiority of the students, but I verily believe that I can trace to this school the initial force which gave me whatever success in life I have won. If I could hope that these pages would fall into the hands of any young people whose plans in life have not already been fixed, I would say to them that the value of a school is not to be measured by the amount of information which is crammed into the minds of its pupils. An education comes in part, and only in part, from books. An education is mental and moral growth in power. Information is the food directly or indirectly which makes such growth possible. I believe the analogy is quite close between the growth of the body and of the mind. The food we eat when well digested, gives us strength, or bodily vigor. The mind gathers its food from many sources, from teachers and books in school, from its environment in the home, in the neighborhood, and in the world at large. Our daily experiences are constantly contributing food for thought, and thinking is a mental process that may well be called digestion, for it gives us mental and moral power. But one's own activities must be brought into play or there can be no growth in power. As bodily exercise aids in giving strength to the body, so mental exercise will aid in giving intellectual strength and vigor to the mind. But A's exercise cannot give strength to B, nor can B's intellectual acquirements, though crammed into C's mind by persistent effort on B's part, add one iota to C's mental vigor. "Give us this day our daily bread" does not preclude the necessity of hard work on the part of the petitioner. Young people should learn early in life that real success means long hours of well directed hard work.

FOLK SONG.

Mrs. Cole Charms the Dorchester Social Club of Women.

Winchester talent contributed to a most delightful afternoon at the last regular meeting of the Dorchester Social Club of Women, the entertainment of the afternoon being by Mrs. Sarah E. Cole, of our town, assisted by Miss Alice Williams, violinist and Mrs. Robert C. Whitten, pianist. The story told by Mrs. Cole was of the relations of music and folk-song, and she showed how the simple tunes that amuse the country people have been taken by great composers for the themes of splendid classics. Liszt, while in Italy, longed for the music of his native land and returning he immortalized the folk-music in his score of splendid rhapsodies. Grieg rendered like service to Scandinavian lore and Dvorak and Tschaikowsky cared each of them for other lands, the former finding beauties in Seminole and Negro tunes in our own South. The lecture was exceedingly interesting and was made doubly so by the illustrations. The artistic violin playing of Miss Williams is worth more than a passing note, being strong, conscientious and artistic, while the piano work of Mrs. Whitten formed a background for the voice or for the solo instrument. Two groups of numbers were solo for the piano, two from Grieg, in which by personal contact with the composer the artist had acquired unusual skill in the interpretation, and a triad of Farwell's Indian songs. Mrs. Cole in addition to the paper presented many vocal illustrations, a group of a dozen lullabys representing as many different countries, some of the Southern songs of Foster, a number of Negro Bamboolas and cute little songs in the quaint phonetic French Creole dialect in which she was her own accompanist using the banjo.

THE FORTNIGHTLY.

Last Friday evening the second presentation of "Midsummer Night's Dream" was given by The Fortnightly before an audience nearly as large as that of the first night. It was a delightful entertainment and in some ways even better than the first night. A little change in the arrangement of the colored lights thrown on the dancers and the forest scene made the whole effect beautifully picturesque. When the play was about ready to put on the first time Mrs. Wheeler took the part of Hippolyta on one week's notice. The second evening Mrs. Allen who played Egeus the first night, was ill and Mrs. Blanche Reynolds kindly took that part on two day's notice. Little Thelma Trott was unable to appear the second night and little Miss Marion Symmes learned the part of Mustardseed after one day's practice. Too much cannot be said of the way the parts were carried out. Everyone was at her best. The lovers, Egeus, the angry father, Philostrate, the faries and Puck—graceful, nimph-like, charming Puck. Mrs. Woods as Quince, with her band of players, was extremely mirth-provoking. Pyramus and Thisbe called forth rounds of applause. The music was exquisite—especially in the last scene, where the lovers were reunited. Now that it is all over and we know something of the time, patience and perseverance these ladies have shown in preparing this play—three of whom, Mrs. Root, Mrs. Goddard and Mrs. Thompson had to take the parts of several different characters,—do we all realize that it was a labor of love, a willing service, a giving of time and talent to raise funds that some deserving ambitious young girl might be helped to a higher education. Surely The Fortnightly stands for helpfulness to others, whenever there is opportunity.

The next meeting will be held on Monday, December 28. Miss Mary Speare will speak on the use and charm of "Humor in Life and Literature." At the business meeting the proposed amendment of by-laws will be considered.

PUBLIC INSTALLATION.

Under Art. 6, J. H. Tyler moved the sum of $5,000 be raised by taxation for building a new school-house on Highland Avenue, and for putting an addition on the Grammar school-house, to be expended under the direction of a committee of five to be appointed by the Moderator. G. S. Littlefield amended by appropriating $500 for building a new house on Highland Avenue, between Mt. Vernon, Eaton and Stevens streets, and that a committee of three be appointed by the chair to carry out said vote. J. H. Tyler further amended, by moving to appropriate $3,500 for a two-story addition to the Grammar school-house. S. Richardson thought we had room enough now, and hoped the vacant room in the Chapin school-house would be put to use, instead of building a new house. Other remarks were made by Messrs. Wilder, N. A. Richardson, Littlefield, Holland and Lunt, and the motion put to vote, when Mr. Tyler's $3,500 amendment was voted down, and Mr. Littlefield's amendment accepted. The Moderator appointed as the committee to build the house, Messrs. Salem Wilder, G. S. Littlefield and Charles Pressey. On motion of F. H. Nourse, the sum of $100 was voted for improvement to Grammar school-house, the same to be expended under the direction of the School Committee.

Art. 8, to determine what sum of money the town will raise for the support of highways and bridges. Under this article the sum of $5000 was voted, on motion of Albert Ayer, for the support of highways and bridges, $2,500 of which to be expended on Main street, the same to be used under direction of the Selectmen as Highway Surveyors.

Art. 9. To determine what sum of money the town will raise for the support of the poor, and to defray incidental expenses, interest, State aid, and town officers. F. H. Nourse moved the appropriating of the sum $2,750 for pay of town officers, to be divided as follows:—Selectmen, $400; Town Clerk, $100; Treasurer, $300; Collector, $500; Assessors, $600; Police, $500; Prudential Committee, $50; School Committee, $300; Auditors, $100. H. F. Johnson amended as follows: "That the police be paid as Selectmen see proper, provided all fees received are paid over to the town and that a detailed report of their work be given to the Selectmen once a month." Carried. The sum of $3000 was also voted, on motion of A. Ayer, for support of the poor, and the amount due from State for 1877, was appropriated for State Aid for 1878. On motion of John T. Manny, the sum of $6,400 was appropriated for interest on town debt. $5,000 from water rate account, and the amount from State for Corporation and Bank Tax for same purpose. The sum of $4,000 was voted for incidentals. J. H. Tyler moved that all taxes should be paid on or before Oct. 1st, and that eight per cent be charged on all taxes not paid on that date. H. F. Johnson amended to insert 7 per cent. J. F. Dwinell amended to insert 9 per cent, which was voted down, and Mr. Johnson's motion carried. On motion of P. W. Swan, the time at which taxes shall be paid before interest commences, was changed to Nov. 1st. J. F. Stone moved that a discount of 5 per cent be allowed on all taxes (except single poll,) paid before the time specified, and after some discussion on the matter by Messrs. N. A. Richardson, S. Richardson, J. F. Stone and P. W. Swan the motion was carried. On motion of H. F. Johnson, the unexpended balance of $73.75 on common account, and $10.61 on Fish Committee account, were transferred to incidentals.

Art. 10 P. W. Swan moved to appropriate the sum $100 for care of cemetery. S. T. Sanborn amended by making the sum $600, which was voted.

Art. 11. John T. Manny moved to appropriate $6,000 for payment of town debt. J. F. Stone amended by making it $4,000. Carried as amended.

Art. 12. The Treasurer was authorized to borrow a sum not exceeding $30,000, to meet the demands upon the treasury in anticipation of taxes.

Art. 13. E. A. Wadleigh moved the sum of $800, together with the money received for dog licenses, be appropriated for support of Town Library. J. F. Stone amended to make the amount $500, with dog license money. Carried, as amended.

Art. 14. On motion of G. A. Hall, the sum of $3,000 was appropriated for support of Fire Department.

Art. 18. To see if the town will establish a Board of Health distinct from the Board of Selectmen. Dr. F. Winsor moved that 3 citizens be appointed by the Moderator to act as such a board, one member to be a lawyer, and one a physician, to serve one year. Amended that committee serve without compensation. After considerable discussion on the subject, N. A. Richardson moved to indefinitely postpone, which was voted down, and the motion of Dr. Winsor, as amended, was carried. The Moderator appointed on the Board Dr. F. Winsor, A. B. Coffin, S. T. Sanborn.

Art. 19. To see if the town will pay Francis Chisholm, for damage to his estate caused by the building of Highland Avenue. F. H. Nourse moved to refer the whole matter to Selectmen, with full power. Carried.

Art. 20, in reference to the adoption of a classical course in the High School, was referred to the School Committee, on motion of W. H. Bailey.

Art. 21. To see if the town will allow ice to be cut on the reservoir, and a house built for the same on the town land. Moved to refer to Water Board with full powers. Carried. On motion of P. W. Swan, the vote was reconsidered, and J. T. Wilson moved to refer to Water Board, with full powers, and instructions not to lease it for cutting ice or anything relative to ice cutting. The article was finally disposed of by being indefinitely postponed.

Art. 22. To see if the town will build a foot-bridge, from Lake Avenue across the pond to Pleasant street. P. Holland moved to appropriate the sum of $1,500 to build a foot-bridge, and that the Selectmen be a committee to carry out said vote. J. H. Orne moved to indefinitely postpone, which was carried, and Mr. Holland moved to reconsider the vote and stated the needs of such a bridge, there being about 90 families who are obliged to go considerable distance around Washington street, or run great danger, besides violating the law, by walking on the railroad, in order to reach the centre. The motion to reconsider was lost.

Art. 25. To see if the town will appropriate money for the purpose of decorating the graves of soldiers on Memorial Day. P. W. Swan moved to indefinitely postpone. J. T. Wilson moved that the sum of $50 be appropriated. Mr. Edwin Robinson made an earnest appeal for the appropriation. The motion of Mr. Wilson was carried.

Art. 26. To see if the town will appropriate a sum of money for the purchase of land, and extending water pipes for Highland Water Works. Mr. M. A. Herrick moved "that the balance of receipts of the current financial year remaining at credit of Highland Water rates after transfer of $5,000 towards interest as heretofore voted, be appropriated for the purchase of land, and extending the water pipes for the water works." P. W. Swan amended by striking out the words, "and extending the water pipes." J. H. Tyler moved to strike out the words "for the purchase of land." After some talk, which tended to mix the matter considerably, Mr. Swan withdrew his motion. Mr. Tyler's amendment was lost, and the motion as made by Mr. Herrick was passed.

The Selectmen were authorized by vote to act as Overseers of the Poor and Highway Surveyors. The following were appointed field drivers:—Willie E. Locke, Thaddeus Parker, E. C. Swan, Samuel F. and W. P. Warren. Fence Viewers Asa Fletcher, Charles H. Dupee, O. S. Wellington. The Selectmen were instructed to appoint all other officers needed.

The Moderator then read the following as the result of the afternoon's balloting:—

Selectmen, Albert Ayer, 340; Daniel W. Locke, 348; Josiah F. Stone, 250; Warren Johnson, 71; Scattering, 22. Town Clerk, Warren F. Foster, 346; Scattering, 4. Town Treasurer, John T. Manny; Scattering, 2. Assess-Warren. Fence Viewers, Asa Fletch-317; Josiah F. Stone, 297; Warren Johnson, 34; Scattering, 33. Collector, Mial Cushman; Scattering, 1. School Committee, 3 years, Horace F. Barnes, 345; Elizabeth Pressey, 330; Scattering, 11. Water Board, Moses A. Herrick, 3 years, 350; Irving S. Palmer, 2 years, 231; Abraham B. Coffin, 2 years, 105; Scattering, 14. Auditors, Henry F. Johnson, 357; Stephen Thompson, 357; William H. Bailey, 346; Scattering, 5. Cemetery Committee, George P. Brown, 5 years, 350; Henry F. MR. ALFRED CLARKE ELECTED PRESIDENT.

At a special meeting of the directors of the North Adams Gas Light company, the Adams Gas Light company, the Williamstown Gas company and the Stacford Light, Heat and Power company to receive the resignations of the old directors and elect new boards, held at the offices of the respective companies, at North Adams last week.

The new boards will consist of the following named men: Alfred Clarke, president; Arthur E. Childs, vice-president; Addis M. Whitney, treasurer; George F. Howland, clerk; C. Frank Whittimore, C. Neil Burnell, all of Boston, and Messrs. C. D. Houghton and John Tudor of Stamford, Vt., directors.

The first three named men are trustees of the Massachusetts Lighting companies. Mr. Childs being president of the Light Heat and Power corporation.

Alfred Clarke is president and executive head of the fourteen gas and electric companies comprising the Massachusetts Lighting companies, having a combined capital value of more than $2,500,000. Mr. Whitney is treasurer of the above named companies. M. A. Maxwell has charge of the engineering and active operation of the several companies.

Mr. Richardson, the retiring treasurer and general manager of the North Adams Gas Light company and allied companies is an old and intimate friend of President Clarke and the other officers. The policies of Mr. Richardson will be continued, with but slight modification. President Clarke has requested Mr. Richardson to maintain his close relations with the companies and employes as long he possibly can, not only to aid Mr. Clarke, but to assist in continuing the policies so wisely formulated. Mr. Clarke has decided not to make any change, whatever, of the employes who have been in the service of the company for considerable periods, and have won the confidence of the company.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES.

Christmas Sunday was a most delightful day to both old and young at the Methodist Church, and the program contained some features which deserve special mention. During the deeply spiritual and most interesting Christmas sermon by the pastor, Rev. John Chaffee, on "The Sacred Presence," he refered to the last supper, and to the cup used by Christ, then in a most dramatic manner gave the story of the "Holy Grail." Seldom have we seen this illustration used more fittingly.

The Quartett work both morning and evening, was the best ever done by them, showing a steady advance. Their fugue numbers were rendered in a most satisfying manner. The selection by the organist, from "The Messiah" was also a most delightful number.

The Christmas Concert in the evening, under the direction of the superintendent, Mr. F. G. H. Finnimore and his committee was most interesting. The recitations by the children, the chorus singing by the Sunday school, assisted by the church quartett, and organist was very entertaining.

The reading by Miss Ethel Clay was well rendered, and held her audience's attention. This was also true of the readings by Miss Freda Mobbs and others.

The day closed with an extra fine audience, as was the case in the morning.

SAMUEL B. WHITE BURIED.

The funeral of Samuel B. White took place at the family home, 22 Mt. Vernon street last Saturday afternoon, the Rev D. Augustine Newton of the First Congregational Church, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Goddard, officiating. There was a large attendance of relatives, friends and business associates, the employes of the White Son Company, of which the deceased was president and treasurer, attended in a body. The bearers were D. N. Skillings, Charles Shattuck, Warren Johnson, Stephen Thompson, Thomas S. Spurr and F. V. Wooster, the two latter representing the blue lodge of Masons. Interment was at Wildwood cemetery.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treat, ment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer, One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for a list of testimonials. Address F. J. Fine Job Printing AT STAR OFFICE

The Best Way to Starve.

If one feels bound to undertake starvation for a period, it is best, a trained physician tells us, to make the process not quite complete by eating a little at the usual intervals of fasting absolutely for a comparatively long time. This makes freak treatment quite harmless. Physiologists find that as the body is starved fat and sugar disappear first, and then the minor organs are drawn upon to support the brain and heart, continuing until no more material can be spared. Exhaustion is then very near.

Did as He Was Told.

A well known Brooklyn clergyman in a talk to his Sunday school urged the children to speak to him whenever they met. The next day a dirty faced urchin accosted him in the street with "How do, doc?"

The clergyman stopped and cordially inquired, "And who are you, sir?"

"I'm one of your little lambs," replied the boy affably. "Fine day!" And, tilting his hat to the back of his head, he swaggered off, leaving the worthy divine speechless with amazement.

What Happened in Winchester 30 Years Ago, or Thereabouts.

Taken From Old Files

Maggie Hartnett, a domestic in the employ of Samuel Oakman, who lives in the Everett mansion on Cambridge street, fell down the well of the staircase, a distance of some twenty-five feet, breaking her collar bone and cutting her head badly.

John H. Bacon, Jr., whose death is noted had been identified with the railroad and steamship interests of Boston and New York for nearly 20 years. For ten years he was assistant treasurer of the Boston & Maine Railroad.

Monday, May 6, 1878, ground was broken for the Mystic Valley Railroad, the first shovel full of dirt being raised by Mr. Samuel W. Twombly, vice-president of the Company.

Mrs. Richardson, the second oldest lady in Middlesex County, died here at the age of 99 years.

Mr. A. Ayer was chosen Chairman of the Board of Selectmen, but declined to serve. Mr. Stone was then chosen and Mr. Ayer filled the office of Clerk.

Ten prominent citizens fined $10 each for keeping dogs without licenses. The event caused much excitement.

There were eighteen trains from Boston, the last at 10.30; and the same number to Boston, the last at 9.38. This was in April 1878.

Mr. Nathaniel Davis while driving on Main street collided with a carriage containing Mr. Dow and Mr. Eli Cooper. All were thrown out but not much injured.

SUBURBAN LIFE FOR JANUARY

Hon. Curtis Guild, jr., the retiring governor of Massachusetts, has the leading article in the January number of Suburban Life—a number which fully measures up to the standard of excellence marked by that magazine in the past. Governor Guild writes on "The New England of Tomorrow."

After finishing Governor Guild's article, the reader is transported from Massachusetts to Kansas, where lives "The Apple King of America," whose work is entertainingly described by Hon. F. D. Coburn, Secretary of the Kansas State Board of Agriculture.

"The Fascination of Art Pottery" is the title of a fascinating article, the illustrations for which are nothing less than superb.

"Making Over an Old House," deals with an interesting subject in a most practical way.

The flower article this month is by H. H. Howland, and is entitled "Cacti for the window Garden."

"On New Year's Eve" and "A Jingle Bell Party" contains valuable suggestions for social occasions.

Other interesting articles are, "When the Village Clergyman Becomes a Social Force," "Artistic and Sensible Window Draperies," "The Lesson of the Forest Fires," "A Garden to be" and "Milch Goat Possibilities."

THE JANUARY STRAND

The Strand Magazine this month contains an exellent variety of interesting material and is exceptionally strong in fiction. Besides a further long instalment of Hall Cain's remarkable new serial, "The White Christ," there is a delightfully funny story by W. W. Jacobs called "Prize Money," which will cause many hearty laughs. Another diverting story is Arthur Morrison's "Filer the Faithless." Horace Annesley Vachell, Ellen Thorneycroft Fowler, Mrs. Bland, and E. Nesbit also contribute some excellent stories. The articles are as diversified as ever and include such widely different subjects as "Bridge Blunders, or Hands that Went Wrong," "The World's Best Puzzles," "Some Queer Champions," and a superbly illustrated account of Southam Delabere the romantic and beautiful English estate of Mrs. Ratcliff. Harry Furniss continues his "Comic Side of Crime," and there are articles dealing with aids to memory, human musical instruments, and queer drapery figures, as well as a paper entitled "Wouldn't it be funny if ——" a question which can only be answered by reading the article. An innovation this month is a colored section dealing with the London Stage, in which portraits of the eight most popular actresses at present on the London boards are given, together with "shadow pictures of the plays in which they are appearing.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

A newcomer in vaudeville has been announced for Keith's Theatre the week of December 28th, in Claude Gillingwater, one of the most important standbys of the legitimate stage, who has succumbed to the inducements of vaudeville. Mr. Gillingwater created widespread attention through his performances of "Hiram Bent," the American millionaire in "Mlle. Modiste," with Fritzi Scheff,—a victory that seems all the more noteworthy from the fact that it occurred in such a popular production. Mr. Gillingwater in vaudeville, however, will have a one act comedy written by himself, in which he assumes the part of an actor manager.

Another newcomer is Maude Wulff, who has been the sensation of the season at the New York Hippodrome, in a remarkable act. Also on the bill are Edward Wulff, one of the most sensational animal trainers in the world, who presents an act that was imported especially for the New York Hippodrome. Will Macart, the comedien, will also appear in a new monologue. Others on the bill are McConnell and Simpson in a sketch called "The Stormy Hour"; the Willy Pantzer Troupe of acrobats; Cook and Stevens, the colored singers and dancers; Leipzig, the card manipulator; the Gleesons and Fred Houlihan; the Wood Brothers, Irish athletes, Young and Wardell, the Japanese jugglers and the Kinetograph.

Many sufferers from nasal catarrh say they get splendid results by using an atomizer. For their benefit we prepare Ely's Liquid Cream Balm. Except that it is liquid it is in all respects like the healing, helpful, pain-allaying Cream Balm that the public has been familar with for years. No cocaine nor other dangerous drug in it. The soothing spray is a remedy that relieves at once. At druggists, 75c., including spraying tube, or mailed by Ely Bros., 56 Warren street, New York.

DIKES IN GERMANY.

They Are Built With Great Care and Exactness.

When a dike is to be built—and they are still in places making dikes—it is first mapped out by the neatly sharpened stakes, a long straight causeway leading out from shore and widening into a rounded head which abuts on the red line of the channel. Then a ground sill or foundation mattress of willows is woven and sunk at this head and pinned down and held in place by the sharpened pegs. Then wattles are woven and sand filled in, and in places rock, and then, rounding up neatly out of the water and forming a tight covering to the whole, the hand squared blocks of stone are laid, as closely as a city pavement, all over the head and back along the neck to the old shore. It is as permanent and stable as the Harvard stadium, the dike so built, and the river, abandoning the space back of the tip to slack water or to be filled in with sand, flows on with entire grace in the restricted channel beyond the tip.

The care and exactness with which these dikes are made would be laughable if it were not so successful. In a land where hand labor is very cheap days are devoted to doing what in America would be roughly cast by machinery in a couple of hours. But the result is so admirable that one remembers regretfully the ugly pile dikes, the horrid fringes of the improved "off channel" banks of the Mississippi.

Where the dikes have accomplished their purpose and generally on the banks opposite to them the river is revetted above middle water. This, too, is done with the hand squared stones, and as a result the Elbe where completely finished resembles a broad canal between stone lined banks, the stone rising a few feet above the water, and above it the green slope of the fields or a fringe of willows. It is all peaceful, complete and generally beautiful, with at least the beauty of utility where it lacks that of ruggedness and wildness.—Boston Transcript.

GILA MONSTER'S BITE.

The Reptile Turns Over to Get Venom Into Its Victim.

It was his turning over habit that led me to the discovery as to the bite of the Gila monster. This creature, more like a short, stocky snake with legs on than anything else, has no poison fangs, like the rattlesnake, yet his bite may be just as dangerous. His poison teeth are in his lower jaw, and the poison comes from a gland under the tongue. If he bites without turning over the wound is not serious, but if he turns over there is great danger.

Dr. Snow of the University of Kansas wrote me some time ago of an experience he had with the bite of a Gila monster.

The reptile was caught and put in a bucket, the top of which was covered with paper. The bucket was then put in the wagon in which the doctor was driving. As the road was somewhat rough, the bucket was bounced up and down, and in order to steady it Dr. Snow put his hand behind him and took hold of the bucket, thrusting his fingers through the newspaper cover on its top so that he could hold it secure. Suddenly he felt the monster's grip on his fingers. Startled and somewhat alarmed, he carefully pried the jaws of the reptile open and released himself. The wounds were such as any ordinary bite would have made, and he suffered no more inconvenience than might have been expected.

There are many stories current in Arizona and Sonora as to deaths that have occurred from Gila monsters' bites, but it is hard to get at the facts. Careful experiments made with animals show that when the reptile bites and turns over, so that the poison flows down the tooth grooves into the wound, the bitten crentures die in a short time.—Suburban Life.

A Dead Bird.

Samuel Butler, the witty but eccentric author of "Erewhon," which means "Nowhere," and of many other remarkable and suggestive books, is now more read than during his lifetime. He died in 1902. In one of his notebooks he tells this incident, which must have amused the great Charles Darwin:

"Frank Darwin told me his father was once standing near the hippopotamus cage when a little boy and girl, aged four and five, came up. The hippopotamus shut his eyes for a minute.

"'That bird's dead,' said the little girl. 'Come along.'"

Her Lucky Number.

The byways as well as the highways of church life furnish much in the way of wit and humor. What, for instance, could be more mirth provoking than the naive confession of the cook of a London vicar who, being allowed to choose a hymn for the family prayers, was complimented on her choice by the vicar's wife?

"What a nice hymn you chose!" said the latter to the cook.

"Yes, mum; it's the number of my policeman."

Taking an Advantage.

"Your family seem to enjoy going to Europe."

"Yes," answered Mr. Cumrox. "Mother and the girls have observed that I am weak on getting the value of foreign money. Things are ordered and paid for before I have time to make any intelligent inquiries as to the expense."—Washington Star.

Truthful.

"I hadn't been talking with him three minutes before he called me an ass. What sort of a person is he?"

"Well, I never knew him to tell a lie."

ERRATIC SCIENCE.

Some Wonderful Answers by Schoolroom Small Boys.

"Mushrooms always grow in damp places, and so they look like umbrellas," wrote a small boy in the science examination. Other examples of the "howler" are compiled by a writer in the Scientific American:

"Air is the most necessary of all the elements. If there were no such thing as air I would not be writing this essay now, also there would be no pneumatic tires, which would be a sad loss.

"Electricity and lightning are of the same nature, the only difference being that lightning is often several miles in length, while electricity is only a few inches.

"Air usually has no weight, but found to weigh about fifteen pounds to a square inch.

"The axis of the earth is an imaginary line on which the earth is supposed to take its daily routine.

"The difference between air and water is that air can be made wetter, but water cannot.

"Gravity is chiefly noticeable in the autumn when the apples are falling from the trees.

"Things which are equal to each other are equal to anything else.

"A parallel straight line is one which if produced to meet itself does not meet.

"The blood is putrefied in the lungs by inspired air."

No Wonder.

Jack—Yes, poor John may have had his faults, but his heart was on the right side."

Progress Vs. Conservatism.

We print in another part of the STAR an account of a town meeting that took place thirty-one years ago next March, taken from an old copy of the Woburn Journal. Its reproduction will be found of much interest to the citizens at the present time as some of the burning issues before that meeting are now important questions before the town. Almost all the prominent participants at the annual meeting of 31 years ago, have passed away and are unknown to many of the present residents of Winchester. Yet these are the men who to a great extent laid the foundation of the present Winchester, and made it what it is today. This report shows the struggle for advancement made by the progressive citizens in opposition to the severe conservatism of those who did not believe in keeping abreast with the times, fearing that to do so would forever burden the town. In a discussion of the appropriation for schools, one speaker thought that "just as good teachers could be employed for $2 or $3 a week as we have now." Another citizen complained that unless there was retrenchment, "some of the farmers would be driven from town." The fight for progress in those days is far different from what it is at the present time, when business methods and improvements are looked upon as potent aids to increasing population.

At this meeting the question of building a street across the pond to Swanton street was considered, as it has been at frequent intervals since, but without accomplishment. But it is destined to come in time. Altogether this report of that long passed meeting will be found of much interest.

The School Committee Situation.

As we said in our local columns a few days ago, an entire new school board will be elected at the March meeting. As we then intimated, Dr. Blaisdell who served the town as a member of this board for the past nine years, will not be a candidate for re-election. It seems that this gentleman, while recognizing the fact that it is an honor as well as a privilege to serve his fellow-citizens in this capacity, yet feels that it is high time for him to withdraw in favor of a younger and less conservative man. The resignation of the Rev. F. H. Means will go into effect on January first on account of his removal to Maine to accept a pastoral call to Madison in that State. Mr. Charles E. L. Wingate, who was elected by the Selectmen and School Committee to serve out the time of Judge Odlin, will, of course, be a candidate at the caucus. Mr. Wingate has taken hold of school matters in his usual faithful and vigorous manner. He will undoubtedly receive a unanimous election at the March meeting. Thus there will be two vacancies to be filled by the caucus. It is absolutely necessary for the integrity of our school system that only competent and interested parties be nominated to fill these important vacancies. There are a score or more competent citizens in town who are fully qualified to serve their fellow citizens—if they only would. The position is one of honor and usefulness. Every high-minded and competent man should esteem it a duty and a privilege thus to lend a hand in the promotion of so noble a task as the education of our children.

Of the various people whose names have been mentioned to fill these vacancies, the choice of two citizens have met with a cordial response from a large majority of interested people of our town. We refer to Mr. John Abbott and Mr. Frank F. Carpenter. The last named gentleman, as our readers know, recently served on the School Committee for several years. His service was eminently faithful and satisfactory. If his health will permit, Mr. Carpenter would undoubtedly fill the vacancy to the complete satisfaction of all interested citizens. Mr. Abbott's name has been suggested on several previous occasions, but it has been generally understood that he would not accept the honor. If this is true, we hope the gentleman will reconsider. It is conceded with singular unaminity by all our people who know this gentleman that he is remarkably well qualified to serve on the School Committee. In our opinion, Mr. Abbott is one of the ablest and strongest men for this position that could be nominated at the coming caucus. Every citizen owes a certain duty to the town of his adoption. One of the most important of all the public duties, we truly believe, is for competent men to serve for a time in an honest, faithful and conscientious manner on their local school board. Their duties are not spectacular or remunerative, but they belong to that great class of unselfish tasks which should appeal to the mind and conscience of all true and patriotic men and women.

Backed up by a very liberal annual appropriation from the town, Mr. Currier and those associated with him, recently on the school board, by their untiring efforts brought our schools to a much higher grade of efficiency than had obtained in past years. It is generally conceded that our schools now rank as among the very best in Middlesex County. The construction period has passed. A still greater problem is to maintain this high grade of efficiency for the future. With ample appropriations, with skilful and experienced teachers and competent men on the school board who are blessed with good, sound judgment the problem is half solved.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The House of Lords of Great Britain has defeated the Licensing Bill, in spite of the fact that the Commons gave it a large majority. The cause for the defeat is not far to seek when it is known that nearly half the peers are financially interested in the liquor business. It has long been a saying that to become a peer, first make beer; so many brewers have been knighted in recent years, but in this case it is not only the brewers but others who are interested in the manufacture or sale of intoxicants that are counted. The Archbishop of Canterbury, the Lord Chancellor and Lord Roseberry all spoke in favor of the bill, but the Unionist members were determined to kill it for the time being at least. Politics in Great Britain is a very interesting subject in these days to the student who can spare time from our own continuous vaudeville of Congress and the President.

The rooms devoted to the Flower Mission, Congregational House, Boston, have been very busy this past week preparing for the Christmas basket distribution. Helpers from the local unions have assisted in carrying the baskets, the friendly visit adding much to the value of the gift. In this work the Winchester Union has a share.

THE RIVER NILE.

Ancient Greeks and the Process of Sterilizing Water.

The ancient Greeks already recommended the use of sterilized water. Rufus of Ephesus, in the first century of this era, taught that "all water from rivers and ponds is bad except that from the Nile. Water from rivers which flow through unhealthy soil, stagnant water and that which flows near public bathing places is harmful. The best water is that which has been boiled in baked earthenware vessels, cooled and then heated a second time before drinking."

This hygienic prescription was intended both for healthy and sick people, since it was applied to the armies: "During marches and in camps pits must be dug successively from the highest point to the lowest level of the place. These holes should be lined with clay such as is used for making pottery and the water should be made to percolate through it. The water will leave all its impurities in these pits."

It may be inquired how the ancient Greeks, knowing the processes of sterilization and filtration of water which they applied to that of the most limpid rivers, should have drunk without precautions the water of the Nile, which our microscopes allow us to declare "sound," but which is in appearance the most worthy of suspicion of all and is so muddy, so yellow, that it resembles wine.—Gazette des Eaux.

THE BASILISK.

How the Fabulous Monster Was Pictured by Ancient Writers.

The basilisk was the most famous of the many fabulous monsters of medieval folklore. According to the popular notion, it was hatched by a toad from an egg laid by the cock of the common barnyard fowl. In the ancient picture books it was usually represented as an eight limbed serpent or dragon, sometimes with and sometimes without wings. Its name is derived from basiliscos, meaning a little king, and was applied because the creature was figured with a circle of white spots on its head which much resembled a crown. The cockatrice, a species of basilisk, besides having a crown, possessed a comb which was an exact counterpart of the cock's.

Pliny assures us that the basilisk had a voice which "struck terror to the hearts of men, beasts and serpents." The Bible classes it with the lion, the serpent and the dragon as one of the most formidable creatures. Old writers—Pliny, Bascho and others—say that its bite was mortal in every case, that its breath was suffocating and that no plant would grow in the vicinity of its lair. Its dead body was often suspended in belfries to prevent swallows from building there.

Disease Scents.

"Every disease almost has its peculiar odor," said a doctor. "This odor helps us greatly in diagnosis.

"Gout imparts to the skin a smell precisely like whey. Diabetes causes a sweet, honey-like smell. Jaundice occasions a smell of musk. Smallpox has a very strong and hideous smell. It is like burning bones. Measles has a smell as of fresh plucked feathers.

"The fevers have the most distinctive odors. The odor of typhus is ammoniacal; that of intermittent is like fresh brown bread hot from the oven; that of typhus is musty, recalling to the mind old, damp cellars; that of yellow fever is like the washings of a dirty gun barrel.

"So, you see, to speak of a doctor scenting our disease is not to use a mere figure of speech."

A Surprise For the Thief.

Herr Hager, a rich and influential banker, frequently had watches picked from his pocket. At first he had recourse to all kinds of safety chains; then one morning he took no precaution whatever and quietly allowed himself to be robbed. At night, on returning from his business, he took up the evening paper; he uttered an exclamation of delight. A watch had exploded in a man's hands. The victim's hands were shattered and the left eye destroyed. The crafty banker had filled the watch case with dynamite, which exploded in the operation of winding.—London Telegraph.

A Difficult Task.

One of the greatest puzzles, said a member of parliament, is how to concede the most worthy and honorable intentions to an opponent, how to profess an unswerving and unfading belief in his uncompromising veracity and bona fides and at the same time to convey a distinct conviction that he is an impostor and a humbug of the first water and an accomplished Ananias carrying a welter of thirteen stone seven pounds in the mendacity handicap.—London Opinion.

The Other Way.

"I heard that Ranter broke down in the middle of his speech the other night," said the man who was kept at home by illness.

"Not exactly," replied the man who was there. "The meeting broke up right in the middle of his speech."

Needed a Starter.

One night little Margaret, on kneeling by her mamma to say her prayers, finished, "Now I lay me," and forgot. "Mamma," she said, "you just start me, and then I can go a-whizzing."—Delineator.

OBSERVATIONS.

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Undoubtedly the scenery of the Town Hall stage needs attention and it is up to the Selectmen to ask for an appropriation to cover it. There is not much if any chance to change the dressing rooms, however, for lack of space. There should have been a piano for the hall years ago, but the attempt to get it was voted down by the town meeting. As it would pay its own way, there would seem to be no good reason against securing it and such a hall certainly should have one.

Unless better order is maintained in and in connection with the children's room in our public library, it should be put in charge of the police department. Something must be done, as it is a nuisance now. What is the matter with the trustees? It is up to them, and it is their duty to attend to it now.

We have several special committees on important matters which should report in the coming annual report. If they do not they should be called upon at the first session of the town meeting to explain, as these committees are very likely to be lost sight of unless this is done.

How would it do to vote to place a tablet in memory of Forrest C. Manchester upon the Field, to be erected as soon as the northerly end is completed? Might it not hasten it by keeping the question more in our minds? Perhaps the memory of the dead will have more effect than the desires of the living upon the powers that be. Can it be that the grade crossing abolition is holding this work up also?

The centre looks quite gay this week with its Christmas trees and greens, but if business continues to increase the way it has of late years we soon will have to establish a mart on the Common for its accommodation. Pleasant street has not the entire monopoly of it this year I notice, but pretty near it, still.

While I understand there must be under the law another hearing before the Commission upon our street lighting petition, the Company has changed its proposition to the municipalities it serves to such an extent that we may be inclined to take some different view and action upon the question as regards a new contract now.

Such work as boulevard building should be kept until much labor is unemployed and times hard, and not done in good times while our debt remains so large as it is. The State like the Nation has either got to find more revenue or cut down its expenses.

PARISH OF THE EPIPHANY.

The fact that the Carol Service Christmas Eve is a Children's Service does not mean that grown-ups are excluded or that there is no room for them. It is to be desired that all parents and friends of the children will come, and crowd the church to the doors.

There are two services on Christmas Day, at 8 and at 10.45. It is hoped that these hours may make it possible for everyone to come to Church that day, and for every communicant to come to Communion. The church and its minister would be glad to arrange still other services, if it would help to this end.

The Epiphany Circle will meet next Monday at the usual place and hour.

The Woman's Guild will meet next Tuesday at Mrs. Week's Rangeley. The Open Table and Parish House Committee has charge of the meeting.

The Epiphany Club will hold its annual meeting next Tuesday evening, Dec. 29 at 8 p. m. at the Choir Room.

The Committee of Twenty-five will meet at the Rector's house next Tuesday evening, Dec. 29, to plan for the Parish Supper to be held on the Feast of the Epiphany, Jan. 6, at the small Town Hall.

The Parish Meeting is to be Wed. Jan. 13.

BARN BURNED.

Wednesday evening shortly after six o'clock, the big barn on High street opposite Mr. Charles H. Herrick's residence, was burned to the ground. The fire was caused by a lantern exploding, a man being in the barn killing hens, when one of them suddenly fluttered and upset it, causing it to explode. The flames gathered headway very rapidly and by the time the alarm was telephoned from Mr. Herrick's house the barn was a mass of flame. Situated on the crest of the hill on the west side of the town, the fire was seen from all parts of Winchester, besides Medford and Arlington.

The barn was owned by a man named Smith of Woburn, the small house adjoining it being occupied Thos. Boudreau. The fire apparatus arrived in season to save the house. The value of the property destroyed, which besides the building and farming implements, included a large number of hens and pigs, has been stated to be in the vicinity of $2,000.

TREMONT THEATRE

Starting next Monday, December 28, at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, the big Ziegfeld musical revue, "Follies of 1908" will begin a limited engagement. This is the entertainment that delighted all New York last summer, at Siegfeld's Jardin de Paris, where it ran for over sixteen weeks, to the biggest business ever known. It came to Boston with the original New York cast. New acquisitions to the cast include Arthur Deagon, last seen in Boston, as the star of "The Time, Place and Girl"; Billie Reeves, the "Inebriated Swell," who left a good impression with his original creation of a "Society drunk" in Karno's "Night In An English Music Hall"; Jack Norworth, the "college chap" who was to have starred in a new play by George Ade, but sacrificed his starring tour so that he might be near his bride of a few months (Nora Bayes); Seymour Brown, Alfred Froom, Edith Daniels, Pauline Thorne, Vi. Bowers and many others.

Ziegfeld's chorus is said to be the handsomest in the world. Some of the beauties are the "Nell Brinkley Girls," "Taxicab Girls," "Rooster Girls," "Mosquito Girls," "Navy Girls," "Drummer Girls," and Ziegfeld's "Dancing Dolls."

Some of the song hits are: "Shine On, Harvest Moon," "The Irish Song" and "Since Mother Was a Girl," sung by Nora Bayes; "The International Merry Widow," "The Rajah of Broadway" and "Big Merry Widow Hats," sung by Arthur Deagon; "The Nell Brinkley Girl" and "Duchess of the Table d'hote," sung by Annabelle Whitford; "Take Me Out in a Taxicab" and "Stung, Stung," sung by Grace Leigh; the "Patter Song," by Bickel and Watson, and "Over on The Jorsey Side" and "Cartoons in Song," by Jack Norworth, etc.

Matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday and will start sharp at 2 p. m.; evening performances at 8 sharp and over at 10.45. Mail orders accompanied by post office or express money orders will receive prompt attention. 'Phone, Oxford 608.

WINCHESTER DEFEATS EVERETT.

Winchester defeated Everett Independents in the High school gymnasium Friday night by the score of 28 to 5. The game was too one-sided to be interesting, and the outcome was never in doubt. At times the game was very fast and good team work was displayed and the shooting had improved somewhat since the other game. The work of the Winchester backs was very noticable and very seldom did Everett have a chance to make a basket. Cameron and Collins scored several baskets between them. Hart played a good game for Everett.

The lineup:

WINCHESTER		EVERETT
Cameron	rf	Norris
Collins	lf	Sawyer
Dover	c	Hart
Thompson	rb	Shoppely
Sharon	lb	Strong

Score: Winchester 28, Everett 5. Goals from floor made by Collins 4 Cameron 4, Dover 3, Thompson 2, Hart, Sawyer. Goals from free tries Sharon 2, Norris. Referee, Mobbs. Scorer, Welch. Timer Neily. Time 2 fifteen minute halves.

SECOND TEAM WINS ALSO.

The second team kept up their good work and defeated Everett 2nd 17 to 6. Winchester was crippled by Hanson's absence but nevertheless Everett was never in it. Mortensen played his usual good game and scored four times for the home team. Hamilton played a great game guarding and was always around when the team was in trouble.

The lineup:

WINCHESTER		EVERETT
LeDuc	rf	Green
Grant (Tuck)	lf	Bishop
Mortensen	c	Thompson
Hamilton	rg	Henderson
Badger (Evans)	lg	Woodruff

Score, Winchester 2nd 17, Everett 2nd 6. Goals from the floor made by Mortensen 4, LeDuc 3, Hamilton, Tuck, Bishop, Green, Woodruff. Goals from free tries Hamilton. Referee, Mobbs. Scorer, Welch. Timer, Neily. Time, 2 fifteen minute halves.

CAPE COD.

A Nomadic Piece of Land That Is Constantly Changing.

Cape Cod itself is sand and, like everything of a desert nature, is nomadic. Like the Arab, it is always silently stealing away, so that the appearance of the peninsula constantly changes. The prevailing winds in the winter being from the north, the sand is blown south; in summer it is blown t'other way. But, the winter winds being stronger, the land is gradually working south. Monomoy, at the lower end, used to be an island, its extremity being called Cape Malabar, a name not used now—why I cannot say. This island of Monomoy is rapidly growing toward Nantucket, it having advanced some five miles in the last fifty years. One of the Rubes told me that his father used to fish where the light is now. Of course you can always strain Rube talk and pick out about 50 per cent sediment, but the old charts show that the point is working south fast.—From "Knocking About Cape Cod," by T. F. Daly, in Outing Magazine.

Sarsaparilla.

The druggist was serving a couple of men with sarsaparilla.

"Did you ever stop to think where this delicious stuff comes from?" he asked.

"Sassafras, isn't it?" they hazarded.

"Sassafras nothing," said the druggist. "Sarsaparilla is made of zarza roots, and zarza roots come from the Amazonas swamps of Brazil.

"Fearful swamps they are—smelly black mud, mosquitoes in millions, snakes and crabs, heat, poison, orchids, fever. And here the natives camp for weeks at a time gathering zarza roots for the sarsaparilla trade. The vine runs along the ground, the roots are located, and half of them are taken, the remaining half being carefully covered with soil again, so that they will sprout for next year.

"It is because sarsaparilla, like quinine, grows in fever soil that it is good for fever."

A Story of Blackie.

Professor Blackie of Edinburgh, a martinet in the class room, was one day hearing a class with the individuals of which he was not acquainted. Presently a student rose to read a paragraph, his book held in his right hand.

"Sir," cried the professor in his autocratic way, "hold your book in your left hand!"

The student was about to speak, but the professor stopped him with a peremptory command:

"No words, sir; your left hand, I say!"

Then the student held up his left arm, which ended at the wrist.

"Sir," said he, "I hae nae left hand."

Before the professor could speak there came a perfect storm of hisses from the class, and when he did speak the hisses drowned what he said. Then he left his place and went down to the student whose feelings he had unintentionally hurt, threw his arm around him and drew him close.

"My boy," said the professor, speaking softly, yet being heard by every one in the room, "you'll forgive me that I was overwrought. I did not know! I did not know!"

Then he turned to the students, and, with a look and a tone that came straight from the heart, he said:

"And let me say to all of you that I am glad to be shown that I am teaching a class of gentlemen!"

Limitations of Practice.

In an Iowa town an action for ejectment was tried "by the court without a jury," the suit having been brought by a religious society to recover possession of a cemetery. The defendant, a physician in active practice, had bought the ground for the use of the society, but when afterward he severed his connection with the organization it was discovered that he had taken the title in his own name and evidently intended to hold on to it. After duly weighing the evidence the court ordered judgment for the plaintiff, stating briefly the reasons for the decision, whereupon defendant's counsel desired to be more fully enlightened in the premises.

"Certainly," said his honor. "In addition to what I have already said there are but two other reasons. One is that the church seems to need a cemetery, and the other is that the doctor has failed to show that his practice is sufficiently large to necessitate his maintaining his own burying [illegible]."

HAY FEVER

Fate and Mrs. Bayard.

By LULU JOHNSON.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"You may come in," called Ethel, eying approvingly the tall, well proportioned figure in the doorway. "I'm hiding," she explained as Chisholm came forward. "I'm hiding from a man."

"Remarkable!" was Chisholm's quiet comment as he dropped into a chair opposite the settee on which Miss Sprague sat. "I have come here to hide from a woman—a woman I never met."

Ethel clapped her hands. "Wouldn't it be funny if it happened that you were running away from me and I were running away from you and we both should be hiding here together—from each other?"

"More than likely we are the victims of Mrs. Bayard's well intentioned efforts," asserted Chisholm. "It is odd that after dodging Mrs. Bayard we should find ourselves in the same retreat with the common aim of avoiding each other."

"If you should tell me your name," suggested Ethel, "we could find out if we really are the only two victims of Mrs. Bayard's matchmaking craze."

"And rob the situation of its piquancy!" objected Chisholm. "No, Miss—Miss—er—Miss Dimples. I think we will enjoy a chat far more, because we are not absolutely certain that presently we will emerge from our retreat only to be pounced upon by the energetic Mrs. Bayard, thereupon to be introduced to each other while the world—our little world—looks on and smiles its commiseration."

"Mrs. Bayard means well," declared Ethel, "but it is dreadful the way she goes around introducing people with a look that says, 'Now I have introduced you young people I shall expect you to be married immediately, because you are perfectly suited to each other.' Every one finds such amusement in Mrs. Bayard's matchmaking that her victims are marked persons, so they come to hate each other."

"If she were content with mere hints it would not be so bad," continued Chisholm comfortably, "but she had me over here this morning to tell me that tonight I should meet my fate."

"And she wrote me," explained Ethel. "It seems that she has three sets of victims here tonight, so as soon as I came I made straight for this flirtation nook. Mrs. Bayard believes in flirtation booths to further her amiable ends, and it seemed a clever bit of satire to take refuge in one of her matrimonial traps."

"I felt much the same way," assented Chisholm. "Of course some time in the course of the evening I shall have to undergo the ordeal, but I am trying to defer her introduction until the last moment.

"This is the first time that I ever have been warned that I must marry, whether or no, and—well, I don't suppose that it would sound right to say that I am bashful, but I don't seem to fancy the idea."

"Which is ungrateful when Mrs. Bayard goes to such trouble on our account," reminded Ethel. "She gives three or four balls a year just to 'bring people together,' as she expresses it."

"Just as though the people would not find each other if let alone!" commented Chisholm, with a laugh. "Now, I can imagine that in happier circumstances I might"—

"What?" demanded Ethel as Chisholm paused.

"I was going to say," he concluded, "that left to myself I might perhaps have carried out Mrs. Bayard's wishes through natural impulse and not through a sense of duty."

Ethel colored softly at the remark, for the meaning was not to be mistaken. Moreover, she suddenly regretted the matchmaking propensities of her hostess, which had resulted in prejudicing the mind of this new found acquaintance against her.

"I remember when I was a youngster in short trousers," reminisced Chisholm, "that one day my father mixed a pail of whitewash, placed a brush beside it and gave me strict orders not to whitewash the chicken coops because I did not have the requisite skill. Then he went downtown, and I took chances on a thrashing to prove that I could do it."

"We always want to do the forbidden things," assented Ethel. "I suppose we inherit the trait from our first parents."

"It's human nature," agreed Chisholm. "Now, if Mrs. Bayard had said, 'Above all things, keep away from Miss—er—Dimples,' I should have hunted up the introduction the very first thing instead of running off to hide."

"And then you make my acquaintance the very first thing, just the same."

"But we are not certain, you know," pleaded Chisholm eagerly. "You said yourself that there were four other victims."

"But of course we are one of the pairs," insisted Ethel.

"Perhaps not of the same pair. It may be that through some happy chance fate has been permitted to take a hand and do things right."

"If you would tell me who you are," suggested Ethel, "we could settle the matter."

"And spoil it all," reminded Chisholm.

"Then I shall tell you my name," declared Ethel firmly. "I am"—

"You are Miss Dimples—for just a little while," pleaded the man. "All too soon the awakening will come. Let us enjoy these few minutes without the thought that fate and Mrs. Bayard are contriving to make us hateful to each other."

"If I am hateful"—suggested Ethel, rising.

"Don't go," pleaded Chisholm. "I didn't mean it that way. You are not hateful. You are a most adorable and charming young woman. It is only as an inevitable thing that you could become—not hateful, but"—

"Irritating," suggested Ethel, resuming her seat. "I suppose that when we are introduced I shall feel the same way about you."

"Then you do not feel that way now?" he pressed.

"You are not hateful—yet," she conceded. "I think that I should like you if I were not certain that Mrs. Bayard is looking everywhere for us to give the detested introduction."

"Then don't let us be introduced," pleaded Chisholm. "I mean not by our hostess. We can get some one else to introduce us, and when Mrs. Bayard sees us talking together she will leave us alone."

"Perhaps that might be done," agreed Ethel thoughtfully. "The only trouble is that so few here know me. It would be running a risk to go in search of an introducer."

"Then we might go and look for—the devil," he completed unexpectedly as the palms which screened the entrance parted and Mrs. Bayard swept in.

"There you are," she cried, shaking a plump, roguish forefinger at the pair. Mrs. Bayard would insist on being kittenish in spite of 200 pounds of all too solid flesh. "I have been looking everywhere for you two," she added, and Chisholm groaned. Evidently they were one of Mrs. Bayard's "pairs."

"I think it's a shame," continued the good lady. "There are Mr. Wynne and Miss Maurer flirting desperately, and all the time I've been looking for you two to introduce you to them."

A gleam of interest shone in Chisholm's eyes.

"Dear Mrs. Bayard," he suggested, "don't you think that perhaps it would be well to let that infatuated couple alone and rest content with introducing us to each other?"

"Miss Sprague—Mr. Chisholm," repeated the hostess, adding, "I am sure that you will like Miss Maurer when you meet her, Mr. Chisholm."

"I am quite convinced of that," assented Chisholm calmly. "I am already very grateful to Miss Maurer for occupying Mr. Wynne's attentions."

There was no mistaking the meaning and the mastery in Chisholm's tones. Mrs. Bayard turned and fled. Chisholm faced the blushing girl.

"Since it was fate and not Mrs. Bayard who took an interest in our affairs," he said significantly, "I—that is—there is a good half hour before the supper dance. Let's spend the time in getting better acquainted." And he sat down again, this time on the bench beside her.

His Lady's Tresses.

Sarah, the first Duchess of Marlborough, whose tempestuous character lacked many of the ordinary graces of womanliness, was yet sincerely loved by the two persons who knew her best—her husband, the Duke of Marlborough, and the "good" Queen Anne. Among the many pictures which Mr. Fitzgerald Molloy, the biographer of the duchess, incorporated in his "Life" is one which is not only lively, but charming:

On the death of the duke the duchess found in a cabinet where he kept all that he most valued a mass of her hair. Years before when he had thwarted her in something she resolved to mortify him, and, knowing that her beautiful and abundant hair was a source of pride and delight to him, she had it cut off.

The shorn tresses were left in a room through which the duke must pass and in a place where he must see them, for whatever Marlborough's lady did she did thoroughly. But he came and went, saw and spoke to her and showed neither anger, sorrow nor surprise.

When he next quitted the house she ran to see her tresses, but they had disappeared, and on consulting her looking glass she saw how foolish a thing she had done. But she said nothing about her shorn locks, nor did the duke. She never knew what had become of them until after the death of the duke she found them among those things which he had held most precious.

How Oysters Drop Pearls.

"The pearl oyster gives its pearl to you as a pretty girl gives you her white hand," said a jeweler. "Did you think that, like an oyster opener in an eating bar, the fisher pried open the shell with a knife and went jabbing about in the soft flesh? Oh, no—nothing so unpoetical. The oyster opens its lips and silently lets drop its pearl.

"The oysters," he explained, "are brought in to port and are laid on sloping boards, mouths downward. A few inches below their mouths is water. In two or three days the oysters become dreadfully dry and thirsty. The water tantalizes them. It increases their thirst. At last they open their shells, and if there are pearls within they roll forth and drop into the pans of water. That is how pearls are obtained. To open the oysters and search them is a useless task that is never thought of at the fisheries."

Too Much Equality.

"Why are you so vexed, Irma?"

"I am so exasperated! I attended the meeting of the Social Equality league, and my parlor maid presided and had the audacity to call me to order three times!"—Fliegende Blatter.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

NOTHING DOING FOR HIM.

No person loves a quitter,
On looking you will find,
Unless he quits his meanness
Or something of that kind.
The quitter may be noisy
Till some one calls his bluff.
He ducks then, and the stayer
Proceeds to take the stuff.

In piling up a fortune,
In winning out a maid,
In getting a position,
In working at a trade—
In fact, in any calling
Or task—it will be found
The quitter isn't in it
With those who stick around.

Though in at the beginning,
With prospects that are full,
Backed up by papa's money
And something of a pull,
The outlook may be rosy
For any large amount,
But if he is a quitter
The outlook doesn't count.

So, children, be a stayer
If you would cop the prize
And win success or something
Much like it in disguise.
Keep bravely plugging at it
In season and in fact,
And some time ready money
Will rush to praise the act.

Poor Job.

"See that shabby looking party yonder?"

"That last year's bird's nest?"

"The same. Well, he is a second cousin to the great financier M. Jierpon Porgon."

"Might have known it. Being second cousin to a millionaire is about the least nourishing occupation a man can work at."

Sure Indication.

"Hard times must have hit the wealthy. I understand there are many secondhand automobiles on the market."

"Still, that is no sure sign."

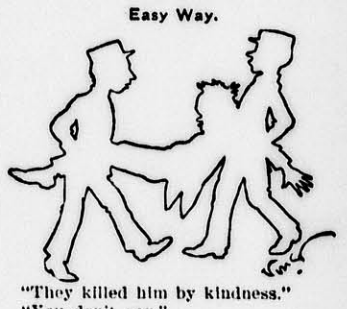
"Where is there a better one?"

"You might inquire around and see if the Newport monkeys are having as many banquets as usual."

Cautious.

"Will you love me when I'm old,
Love me more and more each year?"
"That depends," he whispered low.
"Will you then have money, dear?"

Easy Way.



"They killed him by kindness."

"You don't say."

"Yes, they told him he could borrow their auto any time he wanted it."

Retort.

"You tell all you know."

"I still hold a slight edge over you."

"Indeed!"

"Yes, for I know all I tell."

Been There?

When you're seated in the street car,
Placid, cool and quite at ease,
Comes a woman wide and solid
And without an "If you please"
Plants herself upon the car seat
Which erstwhile you've occupied,
Crowds tight against the panel,
Takes the comfort from your ride.

Why, oh, why will heavy women,
Wide and ample, stout of girth,
With a measly little nickel
Get an option on the earth,
Smile with vapid, sleek contentment,
While in agony you squirm,
Quite efface your slim proportions
And then treat you like a worm?

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

It seems a lot more to their taste for some people to talk about themselves than to pay their debts.

Self satisfaction, while extremely comforting to the individual, can't see its way clear to extend its sphere of influence.

If brain power were stimulated half as easily as self conceit, we would indeed be a marvelous people.

You can't expect an all round crook to know very much about a square and straight deal.

A stick of dynamite placed under a man will guarantee his rise in the world, but it is not recommended as pleasant during the heated term.

It is pleasant to have others think well of us; but, after all, we may have some choice even in that.

After we have made a record we are sometimes willing to pay some of the money to have the record expunged.

Some men begin to economize after marriage by cutting out the shave.

The definition of culture varies with the lack of it in the people defining and applying the term.

There may be a difference between diplomacy and duplicity, but the average person operated on can't see the distinction.

A Prohibited Weapon.

Every traveler knows that there are certain restrictions upon the introduction of arms into foreign countries. Among the weapons which it is forbidden to take into France is the "trombion," which is expressly mentioned in the Bengal code as a weapon the carrying and sale of which are not allowed. And yet the "trombion" is not a firearm which is commonly used nowadays, for it is nothing else than the blunderbuss, a weapon which old caricatures show to have been carried by the guards of coaches as a protection against highwaymen and to have been hung over his fireplace by John Bull at the time of the scare of a Napoleonic invasion a hundred years ago. The blunderbuss had a flintlock, a short barrel and a muzzle like a trumpet, the bell mouth being designed to scatter the slugs with which the primitive piece was charged. Any one who buys one at an old curiosity shop had better take care how he introduces it into France, for the penalty for doing so is a fine of 200 francs.—London Chronicle.

Took His Joke Seriously.

A funny incident occurred aboard one of our big battleships. While at anchor off some large city a delegation of ladies representing the W. C. T. U. came aboard and were much interested in all they saw. One of the visitors, spying the chit box for the wine mess, which was fastened up in the ward room, inquired what it was. A young officer, being facetiously inclined and not for one moment supposing that his joke would be taken seriously, told her it was a box for foreign missions and that the officers were always glad to have all those who came aboard contribute. Nothing more was thought of the matter till the end of the month, when the box was opened and, to the astonishment of all, was found to contain $12.30. The dilemma was overcome by sending a check for the amount, together with a letter of explanation, to the secretary of the navy requesting that he have it forwarded through the proper channel to the cause for which it was contributed.—Army and Navy Life.

Interpreting a Gift.

A Philadelphia man sent as a present to his son and daughter-in-law a gold eagle and with it the following letter:

"The woman on the face of this coin is for you, Clarence, because men usually like good looking women. The eagle on the reverse, with the feathers on its legs, is for Lottie, because women are supposed to like birds and feathers.

"The 'E Pluribus Unum,' which you know is translated 'One of Many,' means that of the many of them you would like to have this is the only one you get.

"The thirteen stars, being an unlucky number, indicate the hard luck many of us have in our efforts to gather in the quantity of these coins we really have need for, but, then, the forty-six stars around the rim tell you that by working like 'forty' six days in the week you can probably accumulate enough to see you through."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Vain Pride.

"Well, how do you think this looks?" asks Mr. Binderby, coming into his wife's boudoir while she is arranging her coiffure.

"How does what look?" she inquires in tones that are muffled by some hairpins she has between her lips.

"I got this toupee to cover my bald spot. I'm always catching cold and"—

"Why, John James Binderby! The very idea!" she exclaims. "I thought you were a man who was above such petty vanity. When a man becomes so self conscious of his looks it has really a suspicious appearance."

Whereupon Mr. Binderby takes off the toupee and combs the four long locks of hair over his bald spot, and his wife continues to pin on the perfectly lovely puffs that so enhance her beauty.—Chicago Post.

The Romans Invented Horsepower.

The Romans, among whom agriculture was a highly favored occupation, were an inventive race, especially in the matter of labor saving machines. Recognizing the drudgery of hand mills, they invented those whose motive power was imparted by asses, mules and oxen and introduced them into all the countries conquered by their victorious armies. There is no positive record of the name of the originator of this improvement in milling.

Dates and Her Birth.

Officer (investigating old age pension claims)—Well, Mrs. Brady, and how old might you be? Mrs. Brady—Sorra wan of me knows, indeed, sor. Officer—Think, now. Don't you know the date of your birth? Mrs. Brady—The date of my birth, is it? Sure, there was no such things as dates when I was born! —London Punch.

Shiftless.

Mrs. Borrow—Our neighbors are very shiftless people. Mr. Borrow—How do you know? Mrs. Borrow—When I go over to borrow anything they never have it.

Compensation.

Friend—If your washerwoman charges by the piece, it must be rather expensive. Young Housekeeper—Oh, no! She loses so many things that her bills are never high!

Source of His Money.

"How did he lost his money?"

"His father-in-law failed."—London Illustrated Bits.

He only is exempt from failures who makes no efforts.—Whately.

I AM A MOTHER

How many American women in lonely homes to-day long for this blessing to come into their lives, and to be able to utter these words, but because of some organic derangement this happiness is denied them.

Every woman interested in this subject should know that preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by the use of

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. Maggie Gilmer, of West Union, S. C., writes

"I was greatly run-down in health from a weakness peculiar to my sex, when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. It not only restored me to perfect health, but to my delight I am a mother."

Mrs. Josephine Hall, of Bardstown, Ky., writes:

"I was a very great sufferer from female troubles, and my physician failed to help me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound not only restored me to perfect health, but I am now a proud mother."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

They're All Like This.

A young and pretty schoolteacher once asked her class for an original definition of the word "wife."

"A wife is a rib," said one little girl.

"Wives are guiding stars," said another.

"A comforter," said a third.

"An inspiration," said a fourth.

Altogether the definitions were rather prosy and commonplace, but finally a child of eleven, smiling archly, said:

"A wife is a person for a man to find fault with when things go wrong."

"Good!" cried the pretty teacher, laughing. "Good! That is the best definition of all, the best, the truest!"

But that afternoon on the way home from school the little girl whose definition had so pleased tripped demurely up to the teacher and said:

"Are you going to marry that tall, handsome young man I see you with nearly every night?"

"Yes," said the teacher.

"Well, then, if my definition of a wife was true"—

"Ah, but, dear, with us nothing will ever go wrong. He says so himself."

The Horse's Power of Smell.

The horse will leave tasty hay untouched in his bin, however hungry. He will not drink of water objectionable to his questioning snift or from a bucket which some odor makes offensive, however thirsty. His intelligent nostril will widen, quiver and query over the daintiest bit offered by the fairest of hands, with coaxings that would make a mortal shut his eyes and swallow a nauseous mouthful at a gulp. A mare is never satisfied by either sight or whinny that her colt is really her own until she has a certain nasal certificate to the fact. A blind horse, now living, will not allow the approach of any stranger without showing signs of anger not safely to be disregarded. The distinction is evidently made by his sense of smell and at a considerable distance. Blind horses, as a rule, will gallop wildly about a pasture without striking the surrounding fence. The sense of smell informs them of its proximity.—Horse and Stable.

Deceivers.

There is an old fellow who lives in a "dry" New England town who has a very poor opinion of New York, to which metropolis he recently made a visit. It may be remarked in passing that the old gentleman is one of the pillars of the church in his native village. Upon his return home he sat for some time upon a sugar barrel at the grocery and then suddenly burst out:

"Them fellers down to New York is as bad as thieves! Cheat your eyetech out 'fore you know it!"

"Gosh, Hiram! You don't mean to say you got bunkoed at your age?" the storekeeper demanded, dropping the nail tongs.

"Yes, I did, too!" was the angry reply. "I went to a sody water fountain an' asked the feller for his best sarsyprilla, an' I give him the regular wink."

"Well?" the storekeeper demanded.

"Well, by heck, I got it!" was the disgusted reply.

Sharks and Divers.

Contrary to what is generally supposed, the fully equipped modern diver does not dread sharks in the depths, though there are cases on record where these monsters have bitten savagely at the air pipe, causing a serious leak and almost drowning the man before he could be hauled up. Sharks are, however, notoriously timid, and all the experienced diver has to do to frighten them away is to open one of the air valves in his dress and cause a stream of bubbles to rise up all around him, whereupon the "tiger of the deep" will make off in abject terror. A far more real danger is getting entangled —St. Nicholas.

Let the "Blue Bell" Sign Remind You

OF THE ERAND YOU FORGOT TO EXECUTE, and a ready way out of the difficulty.

OF THE ORDER YOU WERE ASKED TO DELIVER for your firm or your home.

OF THE ENGAGEMENT for which you have been delayed and of the quickest way of explaining your inability to meet it.

OF THE CALL you promised to make, but failed to make through forgetfulness.

Of a hundred ways in which, to use a quaint phrase, you may "LET YOUR HEAD SAVE YOUR HEELS."

Remember:

The sign indicates the presence of a Pay Station.

FROM ANY PAY STATION you may talk, at a reasonable charge, TO ANY OF 290,000 TELEPHONES connected with the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company's system in the four northern New England states.

ALSO WITH TELEPHONES IN 30,000 CITIES AND TOWNS connected with the Long Distance lines of the great Bell System.

With such a convenience at hand is it fair to your friends to "borrow" their telephones? You are liable to impede their channels of communication by making their lines "busy" when others are trying to call them.

For using tire chains on his automobile while going through the parkway, Mr. Robert W. Armstrong was fined $10 last Friday at Malden for violating the park rules. He appealed as did others who were fined for the same reason. Twenty automobilists were in court the same day, all charged with using tire chains. A prominent automobilist says that two years hence, this rule of the Park Board will be looked back to as being outrageous.

A hospital in Woburn had made all arrangements for a "tag day" last Saturday in that city. A couple of days before, it was learned that the hospital was a private concern, and then Chief of Police McDermott held a conference with the leaders, two women, with the result that the event was called off. It is not clearly seen why this private concern had not as much right to have a "tag day" as any other organization. The law cannot discriminate.

Mr. John S. Hodgson of this town was one of the speakers at a banquet of the Manchester (N. H.) Economic Club last week. The subject was, "The Government of Cities by Commission vs the Government of the Cities by Board of Mayor or Aldermen." Mr. Hodgson spoke very interestingly on the English form of government which comprises the election of a large body of representatives equalling the aldermen of the cities of this country who are divided into sub-committees. Other speakers were Josiah Quincy and Mayor Charles N. Barney of Lynn.

HANDICRAFT SOCIETY.

The second winter exhibition of the Handicraft Society was held December 17, 18 and 19, in the Society's room at the High school, and a small but very appreciative attendance testified to the interest and charm of the Japanese art exhibit.

Thursday was for members only, and they were graciously received by Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Boone, Mrs. Means and Mrs. Murphy, and after being shown the Japanese prints, they were conducted to the pretty teatables presided over by Mesdames Bicknell and Ely.

The feature of the afternoon was the informal talk given by Mr. Hermann D. Murphy, with the wood-prints, artistically hung on wallscovered with soft grey momie-cloth, serving as object lessons.

Mr. Murphy said that the earliest Japanese art dealt wholly with subjects of a religious or symbolic nature, Buddhism being naturally the central motive. For centuries neither landscape nor people appeared in the art of Japan until finally five artists arose who founded a school, called,—with true eastern imagery—the school of Ukioye—or "Shadow of the Passing World," because it began to portray nature and the common people and among these the actor took the first place. Originally the artist ranked with the mechanic in the social scale.

Among the great leaders in the world of Japanese art were Masanodu Matahei, and that vivid portrayer of nature, in all its forms, the famous Hokusai.

Mr. Murphy exhibited some fine old copies of these artists, and he aroused such keen interest in the modern woodprints—offered for sale—that at the conclusion of his illuminative talk it was a case of "come early and avoid the rush;" and the subsequent interest has amounted almost to a craze, as with new Bromledge on the subject, Handicrafters, and others are falling under the spell of the consummate art of Japan.

CARD OF THANKS.

To all who have so generously contributed to the fund for artificial hands for the poor Medford man, I extend my heartiest thanks. Also to the Winchester STAR for all the kind notices given so freely to this cause.
